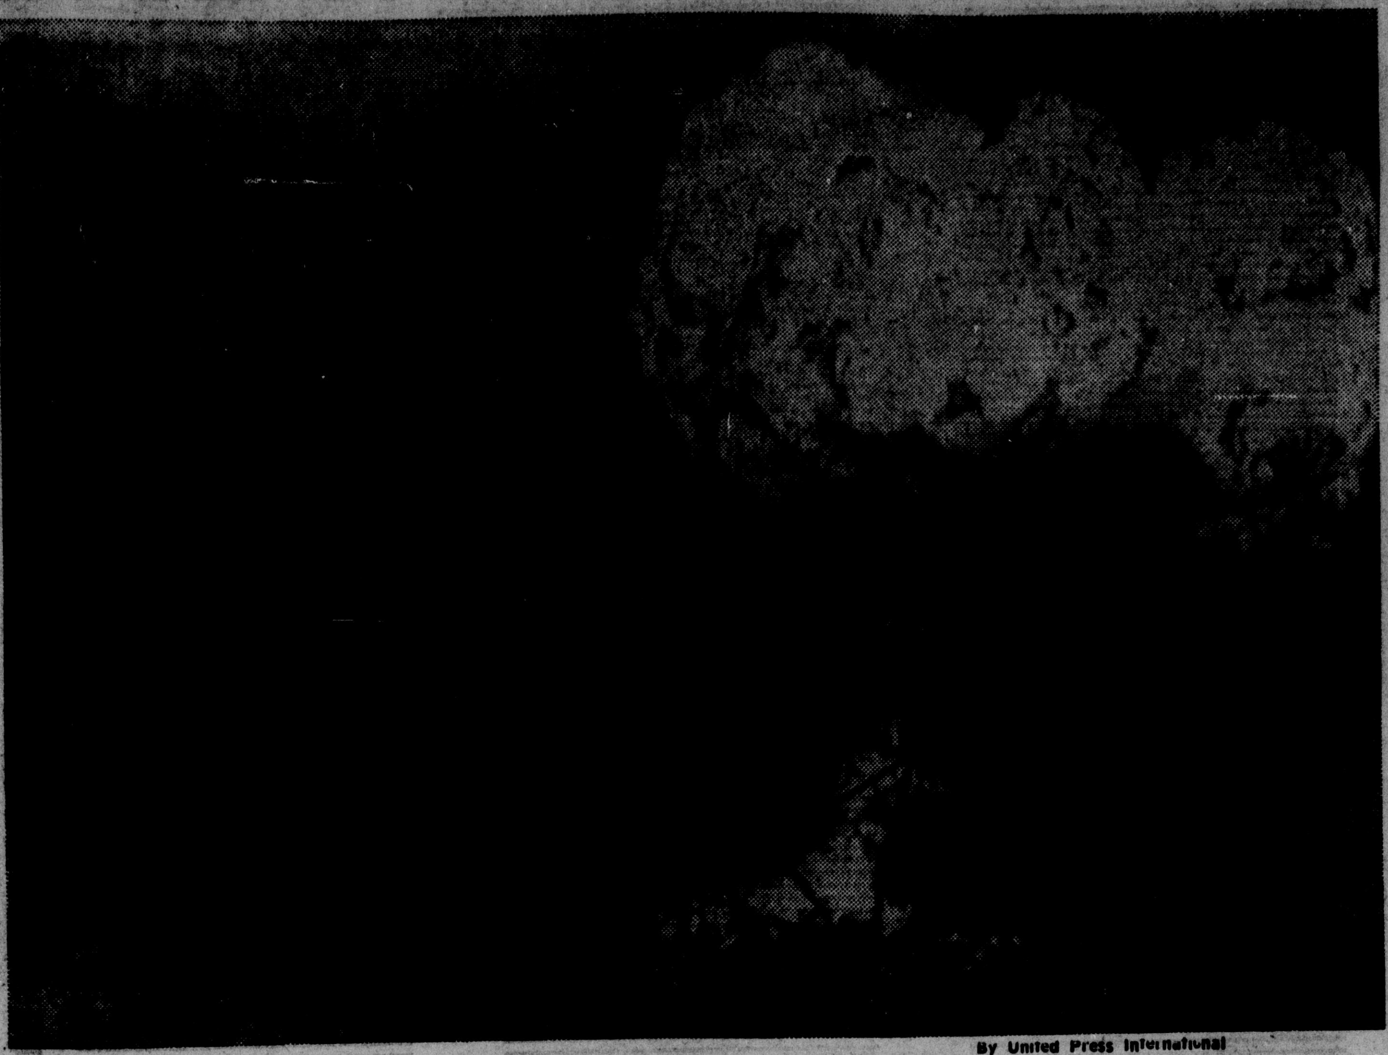
Dozens feared dead in chemical blast



By United Press International

MANY MISSING, INJURED

A massive explosion rips through chemical works in Scunthorpe, in northeast England, Saturday leveling the plant and sending a plume of smoke and poisonous fumes a mile into the sky.

British villagers flee deadly fumes

SCUNTHORPE, England (UPI)—An explosion ripped through a chemical plant in northeast England Saturday, leaving scores missing or injured and sending residents of surrounding villages fleeing from toxic fumes.

"The whole place is about flat," said an ambulance driver. "It's as if a bomb had hit the area."

The blast may have been Britain's worst peacetime industrial accident.

Firemen said between 20 and 30 persons were missing and feared dead. Most of them were workmen manning a weekend shift at the Nypro (UK) Ltd. chemical works in nearby Flixborough, 160 miles northeast of London.

Another 62 were treated at Scunthorpe General Hospital for injuries suffered in the blast, which was heard 30 miles away.

More than 150 firemen fought the blaze for four hours before bringing it under control.

Fearing the effects of toxic gases, firemen ordered 2,000 residents of six villages, including Flixborough, to leave their homes. Most were taken in army trucks to evacuation centers in Scunthorpe.

"There was a small bang, then a huge explosion. Everything went black as hell and we were blown off our feet," said Lawrence Harry, 31, processor working about 150 yards from where the explosion occured.

Caborn said the explosion appeared to have taken place near a control room in the plant where 30 people usually work.

"It doesn't look as though anyone got out of that area," he said.

Firemen wearing gas-masks hauled injured out of the rubble and put them in dozens of ambulances called to the facility, which is jointly owned by the Dutch State Mines and Britain's National Coal Board.

The previous highest death toll from a blast in peacetime was in 1971 when 21 people died and 57 were injured in a gas explosion that tore 10 shops apart at Clarkston Toll in Scotland.

Flixborough has a population of 310, many of whom work at the plant, police said. They said the explosion apparently occurred when the day and night shifts were changing over —and the maximum number of people were at the plant.

Mideast heroes' welcome

POWs traded

By United Press International

Israel and Syria traded wounded prisoners Saturday in the first phase of the troop separation treaty POW exchange and gave them emotional heroes' welcomes with an outpouring of tears, flowers, cheers, song, and back pay.

Guns were silent on the Golan Heights where the fighting stopped Friday with the signing of the Israel-Syria disengagement agreement after 81 days of intermittent artillery and tank fighting.

"I think this is the end of the first stage of the war," Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said at Tel Aviv airport,

SAN DIMAS — Frank Redfield was flying high Saturday but his plane wasn't.

That was the whole problem, according to sheriff's deputies, who jailed the 43-year-old San Dimas man for flying while intoxicated.

Deputies said Redfield apparently was buzzing his own home, and others in the 1900 block of Linfield St., about 4:40 p.m from an altitude of 150 feet.

Redfield's single-engine Cessna 150 aircraft was spotted by deputy John Rondina flying in a "circular pattern," at the low altitude.

Rondina notified Brackett Airport, and then traveled there in time to witness Redfield's "touch and go" landing.

The deputy reported that Redfield was in a "stuporous" condition and he could detect the odor of alcohol on his breath.

The suspect was booked for flying while intoxicated, flying too low, and for not having a pilot's license in possession.

Deputies said the Federal Aviation Administration is conducting a separate investigation into the incident.

WEDDING CELEBRATION

It was all smiles for bride, Mrs. Angel Johnson, left, who watches her husband of five minutes wrestle with a champagne bottle following the couple's marriage Saturday in the Lucky Six bar. The couple first met each other in the bar where Mrs. Johnson is presently employed.

Explosion, fire in house kill 5; three are saved

JEISEYVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — Fire believed started by an exploding gas heater destroyed a five room house early Saturday and killed five persons, burning them beyond recognition.

Three others escaped the smoke-filled house by groping their way to a window and breaking through to safety in this small town in central Illinois.

Christian County Coroner Thomas Doyle identified the dead as Mrs. Mildred Fecho, 54; her son Dennis, 20; two daughters, Faith, 12 and Phyliss, 10; and her grandson Clarence Moore Jr., 3.

The survivors were Clarence Moore Sr., 25, his wife Sharon, 18, who was another of Mrs. Fecho's daughters, and their infant son Brian, 3 months. The Moores live in Stonington, Ill.

Doyle said the fire started about 5 a.m. and "a gas heater may have exploded."

"Moore told me that the baby awakened them and the house was full of smoke," Doyle said. "They were in the rear bedroom. The smoke was so dense they couldn't find their way out. He said he beat on the wall until he hit a window. He broke the window and got his wife and son out but he couldn't find his other boy. He tried to enter the front of the house but the heat was too intense.

Nixon travels may include western Europe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon met with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim Saturday to discuss implementation of the recently negotiated Syrian-Israeli agreement.

The half-hour meeting, held in the White House Oval Office, came as Nixon aides prepared for an intensive round of presidential diplomatic travel.

In addition to trips to the Middle East and Moscow this month, an administration official said Nixon may also embark on a third foreign tour —a swing through Western Europe—later this summer.

Planning was still in the tentative stages but a target date was set between late July and mid-September for the European trip, the official said. Nixon would confer with European allies on the prospects for further military cutbacks in Europe and on a realignment of trade with the Common Market, the official said.

She clamps off at 147 pounds

NOTTINGHAM, England (UPI) — Mrs. Shirley Turner weighed an ungainly 247 pounds last Nov. 14, so her doctors fitted her with a silver clamp to make her keep her mouth shut.

Mrs. Turner, 37, took the clamp off recently and hit the scales 101 pounds lighter.

At 146 pounds, she is still 17 pounds heavier than her targeted "bikini weight." But she says she would be laughing if her mouth didn't hurt so much.

Couple married where it all began--at a Pomona tavern

POMONA — For most couples, the thought of getting married at the place they first met is a romantic idea, but one usually lost to more conventional standards.

Not so for Pomona residents Angel Jean Falls, 36, and David Lee Johnson, 27, who were married Saturday morning where it all began — at the Lucky Six bar on south Garey Avenue.

With the soft light from beer signs falling on the nearly two dozen guests, who sat perched attentatively on their bar stools, the couple was married by Ed Holtrust, minister from the Chapel of the Bells in Ontario.

The bride works at the bar as a barmaid, while the groom is a sheet metal worker at Freightliner Corp. in Chino.

"She works here, and I feel like I was born and raised here," grinned the groom shortly before the brief ceremony.

And they don't plan to change that arrangement.

She'll continue setting 'em up, and he'll continue to be her best customer.

FBI may ask legislation for use of wiretaps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI may push for adoption of new wiretap legislation to help agents combat spreading terrorist activity in this country, FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley said Saturday.

Under present requirements court approval is required in every case involving wiretaps for domestic surveillance. Kelley said new techniques are needed.

"We have given serious thought to this problem and have concluded that our capabilities in this area definitely need to be broadened in the use of certain techniques we cannot now employ," he said.

12 Golden Agers die as bus careens down hill, crashes

BAIE ST. PAUL, Que. (UPI) — A bus full of old people on their way to an island picnic apparently lost its brakes on a steep hill near here Saturday and careened off the road, killing 12 persons and injuring 32, police said. said.

A Quebec Provincial Police spokesman said the bus was one of two carrying members of a La Tuque, Que. area Golden Age club to a one-day outing at Isle Aux Coudres.

He said it appeared the bus lost its brakes as it was coming over a hill near St. Joseph de la Rive and plummeted down the incline at high speed before finally running off the road and turning over.

The spokesman said most of the 47 persons aboard the bus were women. The injured included 15 in serious condition.

He said surviving passengers reported there was no warning prior to the accident, which occured about 3:30 p.m. on a rural highway about 10 miles from here and 60 miles northeast of Quebec City.

Ontario man arrested after 100 m.p.h. chase

UPLAND — A 19-year-old Ontario man is in custody after he led six police units on a high-speed chase through Upland and Ontario early Saturday morning.

Lawrence Eugene Ross of 1217 Corona Ave. was arrested on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon and failure to appear in court on a $5,000 grand theft auto warrant.

The chase began when Upland Officer Tom Fitzpatrick came upon Ross in a parked truck in an alley in the 500 block of Richland St. at about 2 a.m.

During the chase at speeds over 100 m.p.h., according to police, Officer Fitzpatrick was joined by five Ontario Police units and a San Bernardino Sheriff's helicopter.

The 10-minute chase ended at Woodlawn and Campus avenues in Ontario when Ross attempted a high-speed turn, lost control and crashed into a utility pole.

He was treated for minor injuries at San Antonio Community Hospital and later booked into West End Jail.

PET SHOW FUN

Impeachment delay?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's Republican supporters on the House Judiciary Committee are demanding that the panel call many witnesses before taking a vote on whether to recommend that Nixon be impeached.

Their demand conforms with the White House's apparent strategy of seeking to delay an impeachment vote in the House and a trial in the Senate as long as possible.

If the committee Republicans prevail and dozens of witnesses are summoned to testify, the panel's timetable, calling for a decision in early July on whether to recommend impeachment, will be thrown off for weeks, perhaps more than a month.

This, White House supporters hope, will give some of the anti-Nixon feeling in Congress and the country time to die down.

The committee has heard all the evidence its staff has gathered on the President's possible involvement in the Watergate cover-up and is scheduled to focus attention on the ITT and dairy industry contributions cases this week. The meetings, resuming Tuesday, will continue to be closed.

He said the committee was "mesmerized" with getting access to Nixon's tapes and urged members to get on to summoning witnesses for direct testimony.

Since then, Vice President Gerald R. Ford has called on the committee to turn to witnesses and away from the tapes. White House officials —a different one nearly every day —have said the same thing.

At a public committee meeting Friday, Rep. David Dennis, R-Ind., a Nixon supporter, produced a list of 13 persons he wanted subpoenaed as witnesses to testify on the single question of whether Nixon authorized the payment of hush money to Watergate break-in conspirator E. Howard Hunt.

Dennis' list included many of the big names —John W. Dean III, John N. Mitchell, John D. Ehrlichman, and H. R. Haldeman among them.

Damien graduation

Share in future promised seniors

LA VERNE — The first woman ever to address a Damien High School graduation exhorted the graduates Saturday night to "be prepared to share the future in a way no generation shared the past."

Mrs. Constance Downey, deputy director of the federal Women's Programs Office, predicted that the 125 graduates will be part of a second American revolution.

She said it would be the only revolution "with any chance of success."

The first significant social changes for any generation in a long time will be part of the graduates' lifetimes, Mrs. Downey added. The revolution won't be a bearing of arms, she said, but a "transfer of power."

Mrs. Downey warned that many persons will be trying to "sell uniformity" and "sameness" to those entering society. She told the graduates not to accept it.

"It's dependent on us to shape the future. You must be yourself and not accept other beliefs without questioning them."

Valedictorian Paul McNamara, in a brief speech, said those entering society must "be your own best man, relate to people and be prepared for failure." Most important, is to "retain your individuality."

POWs . . .

where he greeted the POWs.

Dayan said the prisoner exchange of 408 Syrians and Arab allies and 58 Israelis should be completed by Friday, after the Syrian and Israeli military delegations in Geneva work out a timetable to carry out the rest of the disengagement agreement.

"No troops will move until we get our prisoners back," he said.

In Damascus, Information Minister George Saddekni said while welcoming 24 Syrian and one Moroccan POWs the troop disengagement agreement was "not an end in itself" and "full liberation" remains Syria's objective.

In Cairo Arab guerrilla leaders gathered for a conference to decide how to deal with the current drive for a Middle East settlement. Their meeting was expected to last three or four days.

As the Israeli prisoners filed off the plane wearing bright orange and green shorts and tee-shirts, a waiting group of 100 persons broke into applause and unfurled a sign reading, "Welcome home heroes of Israel."

The first man off the plane jumped out its front door, raced limping across the airport tarmac past two police barriers and joined his shouting and waving family about 50 yards away. He later rejoined the others and was taken to an army base for a check-up and debriefing.

Dr. Mordechai Shani, who checked over the men, said all except one POW were in "reasonably good" condition and would require only rehabilitative treatment.

He said three men had leg amputations and one lost a hand.

Itamar Barnea, 23, a fighterbomber crewman, lost a leg when his plane was shot down over the Golan Heights.

Chocking back tears, Barnea wrapped his arms around both wife and daughter and sobbed, "How do I hold her?"

In Syria 2,000 relatives and well-wishers were waiting at the airport and thousands of others lined the 12-mile highway from the airport to downtown Damascus, where the POWs were taken in motorcade to Damascus Military hospital.

Governors predict Ford, Kennedy as '76 opponents

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Most governors willing to make early political predictions see Vice President Gerald R. Ford and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy as 1976 presidential election opponents.

An even stronger majority of governors surveyed by United Press International on the eve of their 1974 national conference look for big Democratic gains in the congressional elections this fall. And most believe those gains would be cut considerably should Ford become president before November.

UPI also asked governors if they expected the House to impeach President Nixon or the Senate to remove him from office. Of 14 willing to make public guesses, 11 indicated they either expected impeachment or saw an increasing prospect of it. None predicted the Senate would vote to remove Nixon from office.

On the question about leading presidential contenders, 19 of 20 governors who rated Republicans named Ford and 14 of 16 who listed Democrats included Kennedy.

Gov. Ronald Reagan of California got 10 mentions and former Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York got seven on the GOP lists. Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., was listed 12 times and Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., and Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, four times each on the Democratic side.

Other Republicans listed as leading contenders were former Texas Gov. John Connally, 3, and Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, Gov. William Milliken of Michigan and Gov. Daniel Evans of Washington, one each.

Other Democrats mentioned included Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, Tex., Frank Church, Idaho, and George McGovern, S.D.; Rep. Morris Udall, Ariz.; and Govs. John Gilligan, Ohio, Jimmy Carter, Georgia, Rubin Askew, Florida, Daniel Walker, Illinois, and Dale Bumpers, Arkansas.

Most governors who declined to list presidential contenders said they thought it was too early and a number said they were waiting for this year's election results before predicting prospects for 1976.

Twenty-one of the 27 governors who replied when asked if they expected a Democratic landslide this fall replied yes or said they foresaw substantial gains. Of the 21, 15 were Democrats.

Thirteen of 22 governors who replied to a question about the political effect of a Ford succession to the presidency believed Republicans would be helped in the congressional elections.

Castro was reluctant to take missiles--Khrushchev memoirs

NEW YORK (UP) — Nikita Khrushchev talked a reluctant Fidel Castro into letting the Soviets install missiles in Cuba in order to get a no-invasion agreement from the United States, the late Russian premier reveals in his memoirs.

In excerpts from the soon-to-be published memoirs, printed in the current issue of Parade magazine, Khrushchev said he argued heatedly with Castro over the idea of setting up the missiles in 1962.

According to Khrushchev, the only reason the Soviets wanted to position missiles in Cuba was "to give the new progressive system created in Cuba by Fidel Castro a chance to work."

"Without our missiles on Cuba," he wrote, "the island would have been in a position of a weak man threatened by a strong man. I'm not saying we have any documented proof the Americans were preparing for a second invasion. We didn't need documentary proof. We knew the class affiliations, the class blindness of the U.S., and that was enough to make us expect the worst.

"When Castro and I talked about the problem, we argued and argued. Our argument was very heated, but at the end, Fidel agreed with me. Later on he began to supply me with certain data that had come to his attention.

"'Apparently what you told me was right,'" Khrushchev said Castro told him. "That in itself justified what we did."

SAN DIMAS — Residents north of San Dimas Canyon Park are organizing to fight a zone change application that would permit Picnic Services, Inc., to conduct private parties for large groups on seven acres near the park at 1809 San Dimas Canyon Road.

The applicant, which also conducts a similar operation in Maple Leaf Park in La Puente, is seeking a zone change from residential agriculture 10,000 to open space zoning. The open space designation permits park use with a conditional use permit.

But nearby residents, some whose property adjoins the seven-acre parcel, believe the enterprise isn't a park but a commercial venture that will create a great deal of noise and traffic problems on Saturday and Sundays..

The firm caters large parties and reportedly uses a public address system.

Residents are getting geared up for a Planning Commission meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. when the application will be presented for the zone change and a conditional use permit.

Jim Sandiford, who lives within 300 feet of the proposed project, is spokesman for the residents of the Eagle Cliff homes, Gray Oaks Estates, Mesa Oaks and residents who live further up into San Dimas Canyon.

Sandiford said petitions are being circulated among the residents and many will attend Tuesday night's meeting to protest the development.

Sandiford said the main objections he and other residents have to the project is the noise it would create. He said it is enough for canyon residents to live as close as they do to the popular San Dimas Canyon Park which also attracts large groups. On a pleasant Sunday, several thousand visitors come to the county park to picnic.

Another concern of residents is traffic on San Dimas Canyon Road which Sandiford says is now congested and heavy for what he says is a "narrow county road."

The development's proposed plans show parking for 300 cars which Sandiford said could be the potential for 1,200 visitors to the proposed picnic area.

"The city claims that San Dimas Canyon Road can handle 500 cars in an hour," Sandiford said, but added that he doubts this figure because his home fronts on San Dimas Canyon Road and is aware of the congested traffic conditions.

"Most of us moved to San Dimas to get away from the hustle and bustle and don't want a commercial enterprise adjacent to our homes," he said.

He said the residents wouldn't object to the property being used for single family homes.

County fair activity starts early for 10 coeds seeking queen title

POMONA — Friday, Sept. 13, is still a few months away, but it can't come too soon for 10 Southland coeds vying for the title of queen of the Los Angeles County Fair.

Chosen from five area colleges, the girls will spend the remaining months in posing for pictures, making radio and television appearances, and being goodwill ambassadors for the annual fair.

On the opening night of the 17-day exposition, one of the 10 will be crowned queen by Kathy Grothe of Cal Poly Pomona, who reigned over the 1973 fair.

Competing from Azusa Pacific are Valerie Hill, a 21-year-old brunette from Covina, majoring in special education to work with mentally retarded children, and Karen Kumlander, 18, a blonde from Upland, majoring in English and communications and planning to teach on the elementary school level.

Cal Poly's representatives are Debbie Dugally, a 19-year-old green-eyed blonde from Whittier, who wants to teach high school but also wishes to continue raising and training horses, and tall, brown-haired 19-year-old Carol Jean Gearhart of Pomona, a home economics major who wants to enter the field of nursing or physical therapy.

From Citrus College are Elvira Crawford, a 5-foot brunette from Covina majoring in cosmetology and homemaking and wanting to be a social worker, and red-haired Debbie Taylor of El Monte, an 18-year-old majoring in physical therapy because she'd like to work with handiapped children.

La Verne College's entries are 20-year-old India-born Smruti Bhagat who wants to teach on the elementary level, and Kathy Randolph, 21, of Phoenix, Ariz., a physical education and social science major who would like to teach on the high school level or go into some type of business.

Representatives from Mt. San Antonio College are Geni Arvidson of West Covina, 18, a long-haired blonde who has chosen nursing as a career, and brunette Yvonne Rios, a 19-year-old El Monte resident majoring in airline transportation with hopes of becoming a stewardess.

Hearings to open on break for taxpayer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., announced Saturday his Senate Finance Committtee will hold hearings on various proposals to give the ordinary taxpayer a better break by increasing the levy on wealthy individuals and businesses.

He said the hearings will open at 10 a.m. Wednesday, with Treasury Secretary William Simon as leadoff witness.

Simon will present the administration's position on the series of tax proposals ranging from an end to the oil depletion allowance to an increase in the minimum tax assessed against wealthy persons who avoid payment through shelters and loopholes.

Long noted that measures to increase the tax liability of corporations and wealthy persons have been offered as amendments to a minor House-passed tariff bill scheduled for Senate debate late next week or the week of June 10.

The six tax hike proposals could increase individual and corporate taxes from $7 billion to $8 billion in the current tax year, Long said.

Several liberal senators, led by Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Walter Mondale, D-Minn., are seeking to lower individual taxes and increase them for corporations and rich persons to make up for the loss in revenue.

They have proposed increasing the personal exemption for income taxes from the current $750 per individual in a family to $825. There is an alternative proposal to allow each person a $190 tax credit instead of personal exemption.

Key among the income generating proposals to finance the individual tax break is an end to the oil depletion allowance, alone estimated to raise about $2 billion a year.

House votes to end OEO, continue aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has voted to abolish the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), the 10-year-old war on poverty headquarters, but to continue its major programs of aid to the poor for three years under a $3.7 billion authorization.

The House voted 331-53 Wednesday to approve a "Community Services Act," which would repeal the 1964 law that created OEO as a major Great Society program. It had been under constant congressional criticism for waste and mismanagement of funds.

The bill was sent to the Senate, but President Nixon has implied he would veto it cleared that body, mainly because the measure keeps the Community Action program alive.

The measure would transfer Community Action to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare with its own director. The agency nearly would be free from HEW control. A total of $990 million would be authorized for the program over three years.

Community Action gives grants covering 80 per cent of the cost of operating a local or state program designed to lift the poor out of poverty by training and schooling. It has supplied nearly $20 billion to such public and private agencies since 1964.

Stan the Man

ST LOUIS (UPI)—Stan Musial set more than 50 major and National League records for batting and durability during 22 years with the St. Louis Cardinals. He also played in 24 major league all-star games, the "extra" games being accounted for by the fact two games were played each year from 1959-62.

Pomona council to air vandalism issue

POMONA — The City Council at its Monday, 8 p.m. meeting will consider a citizens' petition urging that something be done about problems connected with a pedestrian walkway between Washington Avenue and Rialto Way.

The petition, carrying 34 signatures, claims that adjacent homes have been subjected to vandalism and other problems brought on by persons using the walkway.

Public Works Director Ronaid Kranzer said that since the problems were brought to his attention, a number of steps have been taken by City Hall.

He said the maintenance services department has painted out all graffiti on the walls adjacent to the walkway, police have been asked to provide additional surveillance and Kingsley Elementary School has been requested to bring the matter to the attention of the teachers and the PTA for their assistance.

The walkway provides a direct path to the school and Kranzer said closing it would create problems for the children now using it.

He suggested the matter be reviewed during the summer school session after which a report would be presented on the legalities involved in the vacation of the walkway.

Among other items to be considered by the council is a resolution setting charges for sewer services for properties outside the city limits, a recommendation for the extension of General Revenue Sharing agreeements with the Mexican-American Opportunities Foundation and La Escuelita.

The council also will consider a resolution supporting Proposition 1, the state park bond issue, a recommendation to purchase office furnitre for the Valley Association of Cities, and a request by the American Cancer Society to hold a bike rally on June 8.

McVittie says state consumer help weak

POMONA — Chino City Atty. Bill McVittie, a candidate for the Democratic nomination in the 65th Assembly District, has charged that the California Department of Consumer Affairs is ineffective in protecting the public against consumer frauds.

Speaking before a recent meeting of the Chicano Urban Coalition, McVittie said the centralized offices of the department in Sacramento and Los Angeles defeat the purpose of the agency.

"Regardless of the number of consumer laws enacted," he said, "they're only unnumbered pages in dusty code books unless diligently enforced. It's imperative that consumer affairs offices be established in local communities so that close liaison may be maintained with local prosecutors of these laws.

"State agency structures should be revamped in order to reduce delays, eliminate referral runaround and vest final decision-making authority in the hands of public representatives."

District attorney

Cramer cites training for S.B. County post

UPLAND — Asst. Dist. Atty. Jim Cramer said he was selected as second in command of the District Attorney's Office last year because of his record in running the Ontario office for eight years.

And in his position as assistant to Dist. Atty. Lowell Lathrop, Cramer said he has contributed to the policy judgments made in that office.

He reported the policy judgments have been successful, resulting in a 91.3 per cent felony conviction rate.

Regarding the plea bargain issue, he described this as a tool, like a trial, used to get results. "If we can't get the results we want, we go to trial. Our interest is to protect the citizen."

Cramer said his opponents have minimal experience in the administration and leadership of trial prosecutors.

Promotions

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Coach Bo Schembechler of the University of Michigan has seen three of his football assistants graduate to head coaching jobs in the past three seasons.

Jim Young went to Arizona in 1973, Frank Maloney succeeded Ben Schwartzwalder at Syracuse in 1974 and George Mans assumed the top job at Eastern Michigan in 1974.

Cancer group has non-event to raise funds

Valley residents received invitations to the Northeast Lost Angeles County Unit of the American Cancer Society Phantom Ball, a fund-raising "non-event."

Invitations state that the ball would be held on "May 32," the time, anytime that suits you"; and the place, "wherever you are happiest.'

Contributions to the non-event are tax-deductible. No expense is incurred for decorations, food, drink or entertainment, so proceeds advance directly to the society's research, education and service programs in the valley and neighboring areas.

Contributions of $5 permit the donor to miss the ball; $10 to $25 donations permit the donor to miss the ball and cocktail party; $25 to $100 gifts entitle the donor to miss the ball, cocktail party and reception with guests of honor; and donations over $100 entitle donors to miss the whole evening and receive a special invitation to miss next year's ball.

Mrs. Robert Margid of Covina is chairman of the non-event. Committee members include Mrs. Kelly Young and Mrs. Gordon Carlson of San Dimas.

L.V. nursery school film to be shown

LA VERNE — The La Verne Nursery School is the subject of a slide-film story that will be shown Tuesday night as part of school preregistration for fall.

The program begins at 8 p.m. in the library of the Church of the Brethren, sponsor of the school.

Mrs. King was on a study leave and made the films while serving as an assistant at the nursery school.

Children will be registered at 7:30 p.m. for the fall term. The school is a parent cooperative for children between the ages of 2 years and 9 months through five years of age, with sessions of two hours in either morning or afternoons two days a week.

Mrs. Ruth Hersch is the director, and Mrs. Lena Willoughby and Mrs. Sue Dyer are the teachers. All able college trained and experienced teachers. Inquiries can be made by calling 593-1364.

For Sunday, June 2, 1974

ARIES — (March 21-April 19) You'll do very well today if you're involved in something of a secretive nature. Advantages will come through unusual channels.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone you'll be associating with is very lucky for you. This is a male. He has good contacts with large groups.

GEMINI—(May 21-June 20) Extremely favorable conditions are developing in an area where you perform some type of service for others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This is your kind of day. Brighten yourself up and get out where the action is. Someone you know only slightly is lucky for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your greatest source of pleasure today will come through associating with persons with whom you share close emotional ties.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The bigger the idea, the better you're able to handle it. Don't be reluctant to solicit cooperation from others to advance your plans.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Opportunities of a material nature are still circulating at this time. If one pops up, don't treat it indifferently.

SCORPIO — (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Have you noticed how many good ideas you've been getting lately? Don't you think it's about time you acted on a few of them?

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your best course of action is to continue to keep to yourself plans you've been hatching.

CAPRICORN — (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You could make a real contribution if you were involved in committee work for a club, especially if it is for charitable purposes.

PISCES—(Feb. 20-March 20) This will be one of your lucky days, especially if you first convince yourself. After that, convincing others will be easy.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
June 2, 1974

You're going to get more breaks this year than you have for quite a while. If you handle them wisely they will prove to be quite profitable.

For Monday June 3, 1974

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll come up with better answers today after you've had time to think things through. Don't be rushed into decisions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Something you're working on will develop into more of a problem than you thought at first. Hang in there till you find a solution.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can be quite persuasive. You will use this quality to turn another around to your way of doing things.

CANCER(June 21-July 22) Your frivolous plans will be changed to take care of a responsibility that will pop up. Anyway, you're getting tired of putting it off.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Most of the day will be rather burdensome, but something will come up this evening that will give you a chance to kick up your heels.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A material matter that's caused you some concern recently is on its way to being worked out. This will give you peace of mind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You haven't been digging deeply enough for an answer to a problem, but today you will. The solution will surprise you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be extra-sensible in your financial dealings over the next few days. Count your pennies as carefully as a banker does.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're getting a better perspective on an important issue, but you're not out of the woods yet. Move cautiously.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Cut down on your outside involvements a bit today, particularly if they take you near a person you don't dig too much anyway.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Sometimes victories are due solely to timing. Know when to back off and when to push. Don't oversell.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The pieces just don't seem to fit together in some of the things you'll be doing today. Don't give up; later it will all go together nicely.

Your Birthday June 3

Industrious effort will pay you surprising dividends this year. Be sure to fully complete projects once you have initiated them.

Hives make jail a sweeter place

John Scroggs, a part-time beekeeper, said the county would receive 60 pounds of table honey a year as a result of the hives.

General acts to curb arrests in Oceanside

OCEANSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — During a six-month period ending the first of March, 858 Camp Pendleton Marines were arrested by Oceanside police, and base commander Maj. Gen. Robert Nichols didn't like it.

He set out to do something about it and the results have been encouraging, although some of the businessmen in this resort city of about 50,000 aren't too happy.

"I'm distraught that any antisocial behavior or misconduct by Marines can impair the honor of the Corps," Nichols said. "Some folks think we carry our pride to the extreme.

"We do—deliberately so."

Nichols' first step in lowering the trend was to put arrest information into computers to see what they would come up with. One major finding was that most of the arrests occurred on payday nights that fell on Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday.

Next, disguised as an ordinary Marine on liberty, the general made two tours of the "Tenderloin" section of town.

This is a four-block strip of bars, topless entertainment establishments and X-rated theaters. The area also housed massage parlors but they recently were outlawed.

"Marines were elbow to elbow in bars," Nichols said. "One could get the feeling in walking around that this is a sin city."

Nichols said Marines are capable of making their own decisions but he feels the Tenderloin is a negative contribution to the behavior of the Marines downtown.

"There's no question that some of the places there are a source of overindulgence with spinoffs into what some people call an increase in crime. That kind of activity does not help our situation."

First, paydays were changed to every other Friday, instead of the traditional first and 15th of the month.

Second, a public subscription drive was launched to relocate the Armed Services YMCA away from the Tenderloin area. At last report, $150,000 had been raised for the project.

Third, the Marines' human relations program was re-emphasized. This involves all Marines from private to general attending 20 hours of lectures and discussions on social topics.

"We want to reawaken in young Marines the void created in our society by the absence of the kind of upbringing in the home, in the church, in the school, of the old American traditions regarded as the basic Christian ethic," he said.

"That is the concept of 'I am my brother's keeper' that is the heart of our program."

While no figures were available regarding overall crime and arrests, police said there was only one major crime, a rape, involving Marines since early March.

A survey revealed only about 300 of Pendleton's 26,000 Marines were spending their weekend at Oceanside bars, X-rated theaters and book shops and novelty shops.

Nichols said his study indicated that when Marines were paid on weekends they preferred to take trips outside the Oceanside area and seemed to stay out of trouble.

Of the Marines interviewed on the base, 80 per cent said they planned weekend visits to such places as Ensenada, Los Angeles and Las Vegas.

It is too early for the overall effect of the program to be evaluated, but as Police Lt. Ernest Michels said; "As far as the Marines go, there seems to be a downtrend in violence."

STRIKING silhouette was captured on film when an amateur photo buff saw this lass quenching her thirst in a way some may consider most unladylike. Regardless, what else can a thirsty girl do without a glass?

Doctor urges buffaloes for Indians

MUSKEGON, Mich. (UPI) — Dwain W. Cummings, an osteopathic surgeon known as the "buffalo doctor," thinks it's time that the government give some buffaloes back to the Indians.

"We've been working on the idea of getting the federal government to supply Indians with the 1,000 or so surplus buffaloes in our nation's parks," he said.

Cummings has a vested interest in both buffaloes and Indians. He is part Sioux and is free on personal recognizance bond after being indicted on a charge of interferring with federal officials because he helped airdrop food and medicine to the Sioux during the 73-day occupation of Wounded Knee, S.D., last year.

Buffalo dance

He is known as the buffalo doctor because of his knowledge of bison and the fact he and his wife have a herd of about 30 of them on his farm at Stanwood, Mich.

Cummings said buffalo would be an "excellent protein source" for Indians on reservations, including many who now go hungry.

"They are still starving on reservations," he said. "Little children suffer from lack of protein in their diet and the average life expectancy of an Indian is 40 years.

"The buffalo have a unique protein in their muscle. The meat is higher in essential amino acids and lower in cholesterol and saturated fatty acids."

Herds growing

He said in the last 10 years the government has learned how to breed buffalo, so the herds are growing.

"We do have a surplus, and the Indian should get it," he said.

"Two years ago, I gave 13 buffaloes to the Chippewa Indians at the L'ance Reservation in the Upper Peninsula, but I can't afford to give animals to all Indians from my small herd.

Cummings said he has had one success in eight years of experimentation in trying to cross breed a holstein cow with a bison.

"We call her 'Barely Kicking Von Holstein,'" he said.

"These cross breeds are very interesting because the offspring are bigger than the parents.

"They grow rapidly without estrogen or hormonal stimulation and when they get to be about four years old, they can weigh 3,400 or 3,600 pounds."

That's about 1,600 pounds more than a buffalo, and almost double a cow's weight.

Bank robber shot to death

SOUTH PASADENA (UPI) — A bank robber who looted three tellers' cages at a branch of the Security Pacific Bank Thursday was shot to death in a gunfight with police while trying to flee, authorities said.

All the stolen cash was recovered.

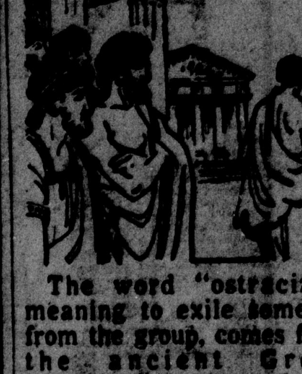
WORLD ALMANAC FACTS



The word "ostracize," meaning to exile someone from the group, comes from the ancient Greek "ostracon," a piece of clay upon which was scratched the name of a man the voter wanted exiled, the World Almanac notes. The person whose name appeared most often on the "ostraca" was exiled for 10 years.

Preacher's wife teaches belly dancing

DECATUR, Ga. (UPI) — Emma Stanford is a preacher's wife who believes there is more to life than teaching Sunday School or playing the church organ. For her, it's belly dancing.

It may be shocking to those who believe the minister's wife should be at the church whenever the doors open, but Mrs. Stanford wants the congregation to know that when they hire her husband they are not hiring her.

"I am a bonus to the package," quipped the slender, brown-haired Mrs. Stanford, who teaches belly dancing at a local YMCA.

Her husband, Richard, a former Florida parole officer, is winding up his studies at the Columbia Theological Seminary. He proudly acknowledges his wifes belly dancing when interviewed by church committees for jobs.

No real opposition

"There have been some people at the seminary that have registered their disdain by giving us the silent treatment," said the bearded Stanford, but he said he has run into no real opposition to his wifes hobby.

Others at the seminary have accepted Mrs. Stanfords belly dancing, including the wives of seven senior students who recently took "secret" lessons from her as a present for their husbands' graduation.

"One of the reasons one of the girls was doing it was so she would have a tool for getting her husband out of late church meetings," said Mrs. Stanford.

"It will probably be effective, too," her husband added.

The Stanfords agree the stereotyped role of the prim minister's wife is archaic. "I almost feel rebellious about it," said Mrs. Stanford. "I don't want people to feel that just because I am married to a minister they can take advantage of me."

Taught Sunday School

She has taught Sunday School in the past and enjoyed it and may do so in the future "if I feel like it. But I want them to know they are not buying me.'

Mrs. Stanford and four other seminary wives began taking belly dancing lessons over a year ago.

"I think it gets your mind in shape and in perspective about where you are," she said. "It helps you be yourself, to be more relaxed. Its very freeing of inhibitions.

"It also helps the figure. One girl has lost a half inch everywhere, even her knees."

Mrs. Stanford, who has also taught her daughters, ages 7 and 8, a few routines, disagrees with those who find the scanty costumes indecent.

"What's pornographic about doing something that's good for you and good for your marriage?" she asked.

A new record for Guinness

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jim Dawson claimed the record for the world's longest continuous radio appearance, after completing six days and six hours on the air recently.

Dawson, 19, broadcast for 150 hours on KBLA, the campus station of Cal State Los Angeles, alternating between small talk and records. He set out to break the mark listed in the Guinness Book of World Records —144 hours by Royal Air Force broadcaster Peter Jackson, set in Yorkshire, England in April, 1972.

Can motorists be convinced?

Innovations may do away with spare tire

DETROIT (UPI) — New developments from the tire industry could make the spare tire about as necessary as the hand crank.

Whether the tire and auto manufacturers will be able to convince motorists they don't need a spare is another story altogether. Thousands of tubes are sold each year although tubeless tires have been on the market since the 1950's.

The B. F. Goodrich Co. has developed a tire that will seal most punctures while the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. has followed a different route with a tire that can be driven 50 miles after going flat. Both could eliminate the need for a fifth tire.

The energy crisis has pushed Americans toward smaller and more economical cars and, at the same time, has left automakers looking for ways to cut down the weight of their cars. Automotive engineers would love to be able to eliminate the space and weight taken up by a spare tire, its wheel and jack.

Test Drive Made

"It's a kind of emotional subject trying to get motorists to rely on just the four tires on their car," observed one Firestone official during a display of the company's Steel Radial 500 ACT (Advanced Concept Tire).

Firestone engineers said tests have shown that a flat ACT tire can be driven about 50 miles at about 40 miles per hour, depending on what caused the tire damage and added there was an even greater margin built into the tire. A conventional tire would be ruined if driven only a fraction of a mile at that speed.

To prove the capability of the tire to run while it's flat, a crew drove 245 miles in a Ford Pinto on which the front tire was punctured and the air valve stem removed to make sure the tire was flat.

The demonstration for newsmen covered the distance between Firestone headquarters in Akron, Ohio, to a ski lodge at Clarkston, north of Detroit, over turnpikes, freeways and city streets. They maintained a legal speed limit of 55 miles per hour on the turnpikes and freeways.

Bump Designed

The tire runs so smoothly while flat that engineers have decided to design in a "bump" that will cause a slight vibration while it's running flat. The "bump" would warn the driver that the tire needs attention, but would not affect the steering or handling of the car.

While company officials say no price has been set for the tire when it is finally introduced during the 1976 model year, it probably will be more expensive than conventional steel radial tires. One objective, however, is to make four cheaper than five of the present tires.

The ACT steel radial tire is constracted in such a way that should a flat occur the tire would settle down onto the wheel rim. The tire would not flop on the rim, as does a conventional tire when air pressure is lost. It is the flopping that results in steering control difficulty and damage to both the tire and the wheel.

Richard A. Riley, Firestone president, said that flat tires are becoming less common with the increased use of belted tires.

"But our surveys show that one-third of car-owning households had a flat tire during the past year," Riley said.

Punctures Sealed

He added that 72 per cent of these occurred within two miles of a service station, while 5 per cent were more than 10 miles from a service facility. The survey also showed that 38 per cent of the tires which went flat were well worn at the time.

While Firestone looks for a way to let a driver keep going even though he has a flat tire, Goodrich would rather design a tire that probably won't go flat in most cases.

Goodrich put its self-sealing, Golden Lifesaver steel radial tire on the replacement market in January. It has a cellular liner system that has successfully sealed punctures up to one-quarter inch in diameter.

Technical Problems

In 1891, a patent application filed with the U.S. Patent Office described an air-cushioned tire with a "lining or partial lining of viscous or plastic rubber, which will provide for the closing up of holes made in the air-cell of the tire...will close up the pierced opening when the piercing object is withdrawn."

Goodrich marketed a selfsealing tubeless tire in the early 1950s, but by the end of the decade only a few brands of tubeless tires with a sealant feature remained on the market, mainly because of technical problems with the sealant. The superior quality of tubeless tires themselves made the extra-cost feature uneconomical.

When the tire is punctured, the individual cells that contain the same pressure as the tire itself expand to seal around the puncturing object. This is a mechanical reaction, entirely different from the behavior of soft, sticky sealants that depend on fluidity for their sealing properties.

When the puncturing object —such as a large nail —is pulled out, a coating on the interior of the tire casing helps in the hole-plugging operation and the tire can continue to provide normal service with no repairs.

Scholarships would honor Harry Truman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation to establish scholarships in the name of former President Harry S. Truman was introduced by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., recently.

Four-year scholarships would be awarded annually to one student in each state and the District of Columbia to prepare them for government careers, financed with $30 million in Treasury funds.

Nixon: if guilty, I'd get out of here fast, but I'm not

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon told a group of conservative Congressmen recently that "if I was guilty, I'd get the hell out fast, but I'm not guilty."

Nixons words were reported by Rep. G. V. (Sonny) Montgomery, D-Miss., one of 11 conservative lawmakers who accompanied Nixon on a three-hour dinner cruise on the Presidential yacht Sequoia on the Potomac River.

Montgomery, who said he took notes on the discussion, said Nixon was reluctant to even talk about impeachment but he did express concern about the impact of "such a drastic step" on future Presidents.

The Mississippi congressman said Nixon described the House impeachment inquiry as "basically a fight for what the office (of President) stands for." He cited a "great balance" that has existed between the executive and legislative branches of government in the past and expressed concern that "if something happens now, it would throw that balance off and this could happen to every president who disagrees with Congress."

Governor's race the most expensive in state history

California's gubernatorial primary election Tuesday is the most expensive contest in state history with candidates collecting nearly $8 million from campaign contributors.

The previous record for primary elections was recorded in 1966 when candidates of both parties spent $2 million.

According to documents on file with the office of the secretary of state, the top fund-raiser in this year's primary was San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto, who collected about $1.6 million for his Democratic campaign for governor.

The Democratic frontrunner, Secretary of State Edmund Brown Jr., raised about $1.4 million while Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, another Democrat, took in $1.2 million.

Republican gubernatorial candidate Houston I. Flournoy, the state controller, reported collecting more than $1.1 million. His opponent, Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, raised $350 thousand.

In other campaign developments Thursday:

A student poll conducted by California Junior State shows California high school students favor Brown as the next governor. Of 15,000 students polled in 89 high schools, 22 per cent favored Brown, 13 per cent Moretti, 12 per cent Alioto and seven per cent Flournoy.

Flournoy told the Oakland Rotary Club that a governor's council of economic advisors should be created to fight inflation. He said the proposed council, composed of economists and representatives from business, labor and the academic world, would study how state policies affect California's economy.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, a Republican candidate for state controller, proposed giving California renters the same property tax deductions on their federal income tax that homeowners now enjoy. Bagley told a Sacramento news conference his plan would enable renters to deduct from $100 million to $300 million a year in property taxes from their federal income tax as homeowners now do.

Herman Sillas, Democratic candidate for secretary of state, called for candidates to be prohibited from buying television commercials for their campaigns. Sillas said TV coverage of campaigns "must be publicly funded, equally distributed and limited to live actual debates of issues."

During a government institute in Sacramento, Gov. Ronald Reagan repeated his opposition to Prop. 9, the "political reform" initiative on Tuesday's ballot. Reagan said Prop. 9 would, among other things, replace existing conflict-of-interest law with "less stringent" requirements.

Orange price hikes predicted for fall

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumers can expect a sharp increase in orange prices beginning late this year, an Agriculture Department report said recently.

Experts said supplies of both fresh and processed orange products will drop in the 1974-75 harvest season and may not climb back to current levels until the 1979-80

Latest California poll

Looks like Brown, Flournoy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Unless there is a major change in the voters' minds in the closing days of the campaign, the latest California Poll indicated today that Edmund G. Brown Jr. and Houston Flournoy should win next Tuesday's gubernatorial primaries.

The poll reported today that Brown still holds a commanding lead over his many rivals for the Democratic nomination. It found that 34 per cent support the secretary of state with Joseph L. Alioto now in second with 16 per cent.

Robert Moretti has dropped to third with 14 per cent with no other candidate commanding over 7 per cent support.

Told of the poll results in Los Angeles Thursday night, Brown admitted he was "very pleased with the results" and "very confident" of victory. He also said it indicated he felt the poll showed that his two stormy debates with Moretti represented "a resounding victory for my campaign."

He said the results are "just another indication that political reform is an extremely important issue to the elections in California as it has been in my campaign."

Brown has been a staunch supporter of Proposition 9 and the poll found that 37 per cent of the voters will support the complex measure aimed at reforming campaign practices. Only 10 per cent plan to vote no but a majority of 53 per cent still have not made up their minds on the measure.

Flournoy, who trailed Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke as recently as last April, now is supported by 44 per cent of the Republican voters. Reinecke has 27 per cent support but 26 per cent still have not made up their minds. Three per cent support other GOP candidates.

Jerome Waldie has moved into fourth spot among Democrats with 7 per support. William Matson Roth is next with 6 per cent while Baxter Ward has 3 per cent support, Herb Hafif 2 per cent and other candidates 1 per cent. Seventeen per cent of the Democratic voters are still undecided.

Replica of ship in 'Two Years Before the Mast' to be launched

By FRANK BARTHOLOMEW

MONTEREY, Calif. (UPI) — A replica of the brig "Pilgrim," the setting for Richard Henry Dana's classic "Two Years Before the Mast," is scheduled to be launched in Portugal today and set sail to recreate the voyage of her famed predecessor.

However, it will be only "one year before the mast" for the crew of the new Pilgrim.

The new ship, to slide down the ways at Setubal, Portugal, will makes 32 ports of call and sail three oceans before reaching her home port of Monterey.

The 100-foot brig honors the historic 180-tonner in which Dana sailed from Boston harbor 140 years ago.

The new Pilgrim will be under the command of Capt. Ray Wallace, a naval designer and architect. He researched every detail of the first Pilgrim and had the replica built by a small shipyard in Portugal which specializes in handcrafting.

In addition, there will be three experienced officers and a doctor aboard along with a crew of 15, mostly teenagers.

The Pilgrim will follow part of the general sailing course of its predecessor, from Boston to the West Coast. But it will avoid the perilous Cape Horn passage by transiting the Panama Canal.

Arrival at home port here in Monterey is scheduled for April, 1975. The Pilgrim will call at Gibraltar, Las Palmas, Barbados and St. Thomas before entering her first American mainland port at Portland, Maine.

Other ports of call will be Portsmouth, Gloucester, Salem, Boston, Plymouth, Newport, Mystic, New London, New Haven, Kings Point, and New York City, on Oct. 5 this year.

The Pilgrim will then head southward to call at Newport News, Charleston, and Savannah. She is scheduled to arrive in Miami Nov. 5, and then depart for the canal.

Her first Pacific Ocean call will be Acapulco, followed by Mazatlan; then to American ports again at San Diego, Dana Point, Los Angeles and Morro Bay.

After arrival "home" at Monterey, she is to go into service as a training ship.

To seek chairmanship

Sparkman to walk in Fulbright path

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI) — Sen. John J. Sparkman D-Ala., says he will follow much the same course as Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., if he succeeds Fulbright as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Sparkman said he would seek the chairmanship next January, when Fulbright, chairman of the committee since 1959, leaves the Senate. The Arkansan was defeated in a primary election Tuesday by Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers. Sparkman is next in line for the post.

"I think the Foreign Relations Committee has functioned quite well (under Fulbright)," Sparkman told UPI at his home here. "I don't plan to change the course of it.

Sparkman could point the committee in a more conservative direction, but the committee is filled with Democratic and Republican liberals who might be able to outvote Sparkman on key issues.

Sens. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, said they did not expect Sparkman to attempt to block liberal legislation.

Sparkman said he favored negotiations with Communist nations on issues such as the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) between NATO and Warsaw Pact countries and presidential efforts at detente with Russia.

"I believe strongly in a mutual balance of arms — mutual force reductions of armaments,'' he said. "That means something worked out whereby there would be proper reduction on both sides.

"We ought to encourage trade between the United States and Russia and do whatever we can —as long as it is matched by Russia —to establish and maintain good relations," he said.

Sparkman will have to give up the chairmanship of the Banking Committee to take the Foreign Relations post because Senate rules bar a senator from heading two major committees.

Successful blacks beginning to return to rural South

By BERNARD BRENNER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A few successful blacks who earned good pensions in the urban North and West are beginning to trickle back to the rural Southern areas they left decades ago, an Agriculture Department population specialist says.

But so far, said David L. Brown, census figures show only faint signs of this movement of blacks "who have made it in the city and are retiring to the country, often back home."

But Brown thinks the movement will continue.

"The South is definitely going to see a gradual return of successful blacks to rural areas, just as the national trend is toward more people staying in or returning to the countryside," Brown said in an article published today by the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service.

The back-to-the country move will not, however, be as great in this decade among blacks as among whites, Brown added. And he said it would fall far short of offsetting the heavy tide of blacks leaving the rural South during the past 20 years.

"Over the past two decades, nearly 3 million blacks — mostly young —have left the rural South on a net basis. The main reason was the lack of jobs,' Brown explained. He said black employment on farms dwindled sharply as cotton and peanut production were mechanized and tobacco began to follow the same trend.

For whites, the loss of farm jobs was offset in recent years by rapid growth in nonagricultural employment in the rural South. But for blacks there were either few such opportunities or they were not attractive enough to outpull the lure of a potential better life in places like Chicago, Los Angeles and New York, Brown said.

During the 1950's, Brown's article said, nearly 3 million whites and about 1.5 million blacks left the South's small towns in rural areas. In the 1960's, with growing job openings for whites in new rural nonfarm jobs, only 123,000 white people left the rural South on a net basis compared to 1.3 million blacks.

In predominantly-black Wilcox County, Ala., which Brown described as typical, black employment in agriculture dropped 80 per cent during the 1960's while nonagricultural employment for blacks declined 3 per cent. During the same period, nonfarm employment for whites in the county rose 40 per cent and the white population increased while black numbers were dropping.

Not flowers, but campaign funds

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — State Sen. Betty Roberts, who came in a strong second in the race for the Democratic nomination for governor, doesn't want any flowers when she enters the hospital this week for surgery.

"I would rather they send a comparable contribution to my favorite charity —my campaign deficit," she said.

Taxes wiping out gains by aged, poor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gains by poor people under the latest Nixon administration budget may not be as big as first thought, according to three Brookings Institution economists.

Increasingly burdensome taxes are wiping out recent advances in federal spending for social security, Medicare, food stamps, and other programs aimed at helping aged and low-income Americans, the economists said.

The analysis was part of an annual review of government fiscal policy published Friday by Brookings, a respected private research organization headquartered in Washington.

The study notes that in fiscal year 1975, which begins July 1, the administration has earmarked $98.2 billion for "cash income maintenance." This is a full 32 per cent of the $304 billion that the government plans to spend during the next 12 months and is a much higher percentage for such programs than in recent years.

Government money for "essentials" such as medical care, food, housing and education programs has swollen to $33 billion, or 11 per cent of the total '75 budget, also a bigger slice of the pie than in earlier spending programs.

But these gains are, in part, offset by a tax system that the Brookings study says is increasingly regressive—meaning that low-income people are carrying a heavier share of the tax burden relative to their incomes.

For example, after examining all sources of government revenue, the Brookings group concluded that "social insurance (security) taxes that weigh relatively heavily on low-income people are growing the most."

At the same time, tax breaks for farmers, oil producers and other business sectors have reduced the effective yield of corporate income taxes as a revenue producer.

"If you just looked at expenditures, you would think that the overall effect was to give poor people a lot," said Edward M. Gramlich, co-author of the report. "But when you look at the tax side, it turns out to be much less true."

The Brookings report also said defense spending "seems poised for a turnaround from a steadily declining share of the budget to substantial real increases for 1975 and future years."

Chimp learns to 'talk' by computer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chimpanzees have no natural language, but psychologist Duane M. Rambaugh says Lana has learned to communicate with her keepers by using a computerized keyboard.

The chimp, according to Rambaugh, types out such messages as "Please machine give Lana coke" or "Please Tim come into room and tickle Lana"

"She's big on tickling," said Rambaugh, "and Tim can punch, 'Does Lana want Tim to tickle Lana?' to which she almost invariably responds by pushing the yes button."

Rambaugh said Lana has learned to read and type 75 words and symbols in the past 18 months and hopes to expand her vocabulary to 100 symbols soon.

Cameras filmed her at her keyboard late one night typing out, "Does Lana want to be groomed?," Rambaugh said. And a few minutes later, "sure enough the cameras recorded that she then settled down to grooming."

43 in running for state, federal offices

Valley ballot is loaded with candidates

By PAT SPENCER
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Valley voters will have a record number of candidates for federal and state legislative offices to select from in Tuesday's direct primary election.

A total of 43 candidates, representing four parties, are contending for nominations for Congress, state Assembly and state Senate in six newly reapportioned districts.

Three Republicans and 10 Democrats are running in the 35th Congressional District which includes Pomona, Ontario, La Verne, San Dimas, Montclair, Upland, Chino and Walnut.

The Republican candidate is Rep. Del Clawson, 23rd Dist., of Compton. He is running unopposed for the party nomination and is seeking his fourth term.

In the 62nd Assembly District, which includes Claremont, La Verne, San Dimas, Glendora, Covina and West Covina, one Republican and two Democrats are running.

In the 64th Assembly District, which includes Walnut, Diamond Bar, Hacienda Heights, Whittier and La Mirada, four Republicans and two Democrats are running.

Two Democrats, five Republicans and one American independent are vying in the 65th Assembly District which includes Pomona, Chino, Montclair, Upland, Ontario and Cucamonga.

In the 32nd Senatorial District, state Sen. Ruben Ayala, 20th Dist., is the Democratic candidate seeking his first full term; San Bernardino attorney John Marcus is the Republican candidate; and wholesale grocery manager Ray Clark of San Bernardino is the American Independent candidate.

The senatorial district is made up of the 65th and 66th Assembly districts and includes Pomona, Ontario, Montclair, Chino and other San Bernardino County cities.

The winners of these various primaries will face each other in general elections on Nov. 5.

Regional elections also abound with issues and candidates. Two stories on B-3 review what's going on in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties.

Quakes could be forecast closely, far ahead of time—with money

By ED PRATHER
P-B Staff Writer

It begins as a vague confusion of the senses on the very edge of consciousness. "What's happening?" races silently through the brain.

In a split second, the answer violently jolts the mind, sinking to grip a pounding heart. Time suspends amid an avalanche lurching sensations.

Earthquake!

In the eternity of a dozen seconds, blurred images of destruction—even death—mix with the sudden reality of human frailty.

When it is over the experience will be deeply etched into the memory.

Any California resident who has felt the power of a big quake will remember, years later, where he was, what he was doing and how he felt. It is an experience quite unlike any other.

The damage caused by major quakes, both in lives lost and property destruction, is often staggering. Unfortunately, much of the loss could be avoided if only there was some warning—even if only minutes.

Technology here now

At the seismological laboratory at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, the premier earthquake laboratory in the world, scientists now say they possess the techology to provide that warning—not in minutes or hours, but in months and years.

The only thing that stands in the way is money.

"We could do a very adequate job of earthquake prediction for the cost of an aircraft carrier" said Dr. Don Anderson, director of the laboratory.

Given the equipment and financial support, Anderson explained, earthquakes of major proportions could be predicted up to two years in advance. The general location, intensity and time could all be determined.

That, of course, would do nothing to prevent the quake or the damage it would cause. It would, however, allow for some elementary precautions that could save lives, said Anderson.

Emergency equipment, ambulances and fire trucks, could be left outdoors so as not to be trapped in the rubble of a collapsed building. Dams could be drained or homes situated below them could be evacuated.

Also, new construction near the expected quake center could be prevented. (In the Feb. 9, 1971, quake in the San Fernando Valley, Olive View Hospital had just been completed at a cost of $23.5 million. It was a total loss.)

More stations needed

There are currently about 40 seismological field stations in Southern California, with the heaviest concentration in the San Bernardino-Riverside area along the San Andreas fault.

A field station consists of small monitoring equipment that is placed in a vault below ground. The equipment monitors "velocities," the speed of vibrations, in the earth and records them, via telephone lines, at the seismological laboratory.

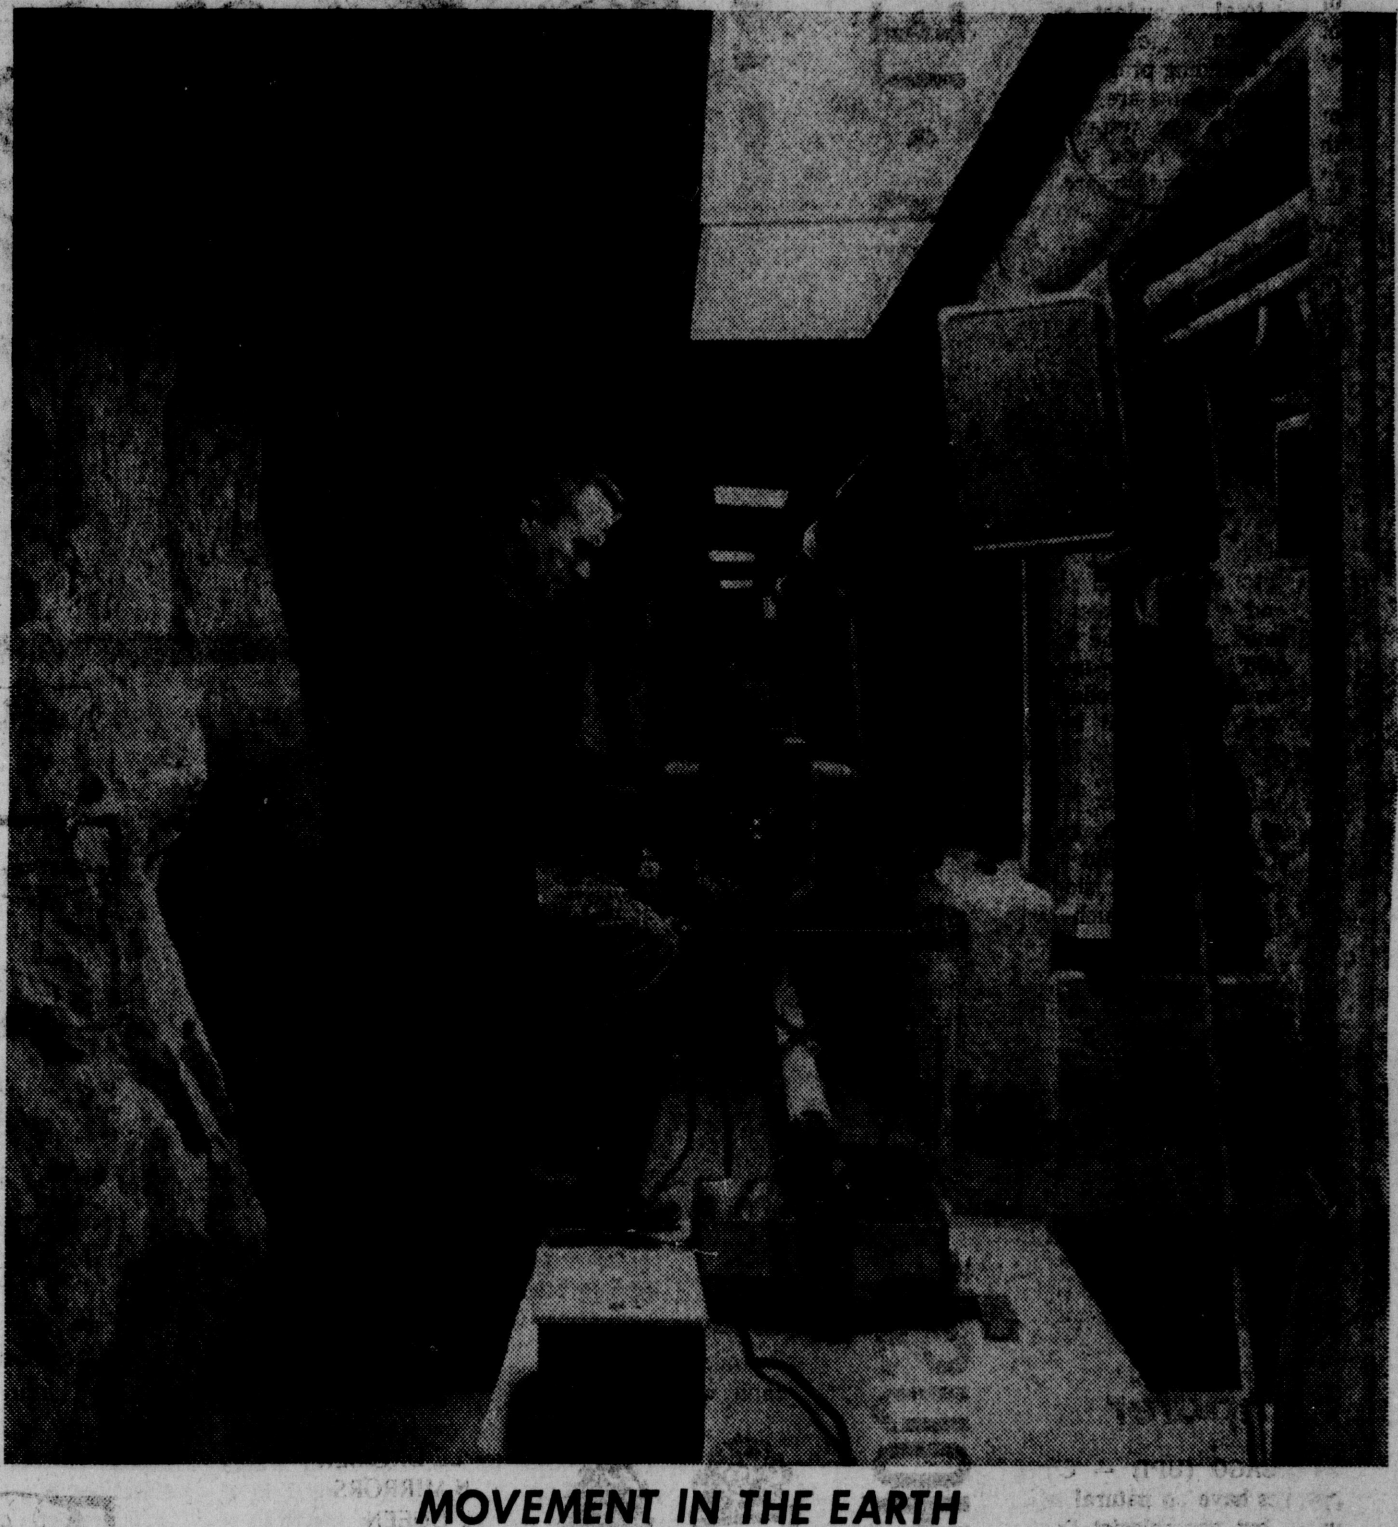
Cost of the equipment for a field station is about $3,000, with another $1,000 per year for the phone link to Cal Tech.

"What we need is a much denser network of stations," Anderson said. "In order to make accurate predictions, we would need four seismometers within five kilometers (three miles) of the epicenter."

Such a network, Anderson admits, would cost tens of millions of dollars, and he is not optimistic about government support for such a system.

"After a big earthquake, when a lot of damage has occurred and people are killed, politicians are very interested in earthquake predictions. But when it comes to spending the money later on, their interests are in other areas," he said.

It is a price that will have to be paid, Anderson continued, if earthquake predictions are ever to be made with the kind of accuracy needed to save lives.



MOVEMENT IN THE EARTH

A Cal Tech scientist examines a quartz extensometer located in a mountain tunnel near Lake Isabella. The device is used to measure earth movement along the San Andreas fault and is one of the reasons scientists now say they know how to predict earthquakes up to two years in advance.

There is simply no other way of providing the data necessary to forecast a quake. For while a quake is a violently powerful occurrence, it is only the rapid climax to a very long and subtle buildup of stress.

To show how subtle the measurements of movement in the earth have to be, Bill Gile, director of instrumentation for the laboratory, describes his equipment's capabilities as "almost in the realm of black magic."

One of the more exotic pieces of equipment is a quartz extensometer, which is a quartz rod 30 meters long. Several of these devices are located at various spots in the world and are capable of measuring earth movements of only two billionths of an inch.

"It's like measuring the width of the United States to within the size of a human hair," said Gile.

This type of precision is needed because the relative motion along the San Andreas fault, which runs from San Francisco Bay to the Gulf of California, is only an average of one inch per year.

The fault is actually where the Pacific and North American plates, two of the giant sections of the earth's crust, abut each other. The Pacific plate, to the west of the fault, is moving northwest toward Alaska.

As the two plates rub against each other, stress builds at various point and eventually the rock factures, causing an earthquake.

While the average movement is only one inch per year, movement actually occurs in periodic surges. For instance, explained Anderson, during the 1971 San Fernando Valley quake, the ground in Sylmar moved 30 inches in those few brief seconds.

That quake measured 6.5 on the Richter scale (named for C. F. Richter of Cal Tech), which is considered a major quake, but not a giant one.

A giant quake, said Anderson, would measure 8.5 or more, or about 100 times stronger. There has not been a giant quake in California since the infamous San Francisco earthquake of 1906.

But it could happen tomorrow, or next year, or 50 years from now.

"If you live in California, you should expect a large earthquake in your lifetime," he says succinctly.

That explains the quiet sense of urgency at Cal Tech for more government funding.

"We know what happens. We know what to look for. But our resources are limited," Anderson concluded.

Abandoned houses are difficult to purchase

Much controversy has been noted in the paper about the boarded up houses in Pomona.

We have been tyiing to purchase one of these homes but much to our dismay we can't even see the inside of the house.

We have contacted mainy real estate agents. We also contacted the city government many times but to no avail.

Finally we called the head of the Federal Housing Administration in Los Angeles. That was a waste of time.

Can you please find out why these houses can not be sold to a qualified buyer? Taxpayers are pouring tax money into the homes every day they are boarded up. Also, they are an eyesore. —Mrs. F.H., Pomona.

We put you in touch with West America Corp., 1636 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, telephone 623-1475.

The corporation has been called a glorified babysitter for the abandoned houses. The official description of its function is that of area managment brokers in charge of the abandoned houses but without authority to sell.

For the corporation to sell the houses would be a conflict of interest, the government has decided.

However, West America will tell you the status of the property, its approximate condition and the approximate time it will go on the market.

You then must deal with private brokers, who receive listings from the government.

The Valley Association of Cities is working hard to effect a program for handling all of the 1,000 abandoned houses in Pomona and eight neighboring cities.

Our only enjoyment is television. The picture tube of our set is going and I know it is expensive to replace.

If someone could get us a new picture tube cheap, we would appreciate it. I am not asking something for nothing. —E.L., Pomona.

You told us that your set was a Curtis-Mathes. We contacted Reliable TV Service in Pomona, which repairs sets of that and other makes.

Mrs. Marie Leak of Reliable told us the firm often receives calls from senior citizens and other people with limited incomes and takes into consideration ability to pay.

A few days later you wrote to us that the firm cleaned your TV and put in two new tubes at a price you considered very reasonable.

PLASTIC DILEMMA

Since we wrote of a valley firm which gave up recycling plastic containers because people turned in too many dirty bottles, we have had several inquiries from people hoping there was someone else offering the recycling service.

We know of only two outfits which collect plastics for recycling and their service in that field is very limited.

Although Trinity United Methodist Church, Pearl and Gibbs streets, Pomona, collects aluminum, glass bottles, newspaper and cardboard, the only plastic containers it handles are egg cartons.

We add the information that aluminum cans are recognizable because they do NOT have seams up the sides. The reverse erroneous description appeared in a recent Action Line column.

EDITORIAL Opinion

P-B recommendations in Tuesday voting

The statewide primary election on Tuesday will decide party nominees for state and federal offices, and the fate of state propositions.

Voters in the valley will also cast their votes on candidates for judicial posts, county measures and offices, and in some communities and school districts there are special school or city council elections.

Customarily, the Progress-Bulletin does not endorse in the primary of partisan elections. However, it does endorse in nonpartisan races, in judicial contests which are certain to be decided in the primary, in special elections, and recommend for or against county and state measures.

For the guidance of its readers, the Progress-Bulletin recommends the following candidates, and "Yes" or "No" votes on the various measures.

WASHINGTON — Bruce Biossat, dean of America's national political writers whose syndicated column appeared in the Progress-Bulletin and more than 400 other newspapers died in his sleep the morning of May 27, apparently of a heart attack. He was 64.

Mr. Biossat was found in his bed by his wife, Barbara, at their home. He had been in general good health and was preparing to attend the National Governors' Conference in Seattle next week.

An inveterate traveler, collector of political information, folklore and friendships among the nation's political great, Mr. Biossat was generally regarded among the most knowledgeable of reporters about the procedures and intricacies involved in the making of presidential candidates.

As chief Washington correspondent and columnist for the Newspaper Enterprise Association, Scripps-Howard affiliate, he visited leading politicians in most of the 50 states every election year and often in-between, building up a network of sources that few of his colleagues could match.

In both 1968 and 1972, he compiled convention delegate counts for NEA and the National Observer that were guideposts for other political reporters. He covered his first national convention in 1940 and every one after that.

Born in Chicago on Jan. 10, 1910, the oldest of the six children of Harry Biossat and the former Marie Reich, he attended the Universities of Washington and Chicago and worked in a steel mill and as a cookie taster in a biscuit factory before breaking into journalism.

He showed up one day in 1940 in the Chicago bureau of what was then United Press and besieged the Midwestern manager, Boyd Lewis to hire him. Lewis had no job but invited young Biossat to send him samples of his work.

In the next four months, the would-be reporter flooded Lewis' desk with stories from all over the city, state and country, hitchhiking to Philadelphia to cover the Republican National Convention that nominated Wendell L. Wilkie and filing daily reports for his special readership of one.

The young man's persistence — which became a trademark of his career as a political writer and columnist — finally was rewarded with a job covering the state legislature in Springfield, Ill. From there he went to Harrisburg, Ill., the Washington bureau of UP, the Chicago Daily News as a political reporter and the Washington bureau of the AP.

In 1948, he was reunited with his old boss, Lewis, who hired him to be chief editorial writer for NEA in New York, a job he held for 12 years until he moved again to Washington, first to write editorials and then to succeed Peter Edson as NEA's chief Washington correspondent and columnist.

Since then, Mr. Biossat had written four columns a week from every corner of the country and overseas, particularly Japan in which he developed a special interest in his last years.

A gentle man with a dry sense of humor and an incredible memory for detail, he was considered and used as a walking encyclopedia of political history by his colleagues. A full and flowing mane of gray-white hair made him look older than his years and made him the brunt of endless jokes and gags by his political associates. He was once referred to unwittingly by a young reporter as "that old codger," and his colleagues never let him forget it — to his undisguised amusement.

His news sources were numerous in both major parties and among liberals and conservatives alike, but the Kennedy brothers — John, Robert and Edward — had a special treatment for him, and for his doggedness as a reporter. They needled him endlessly but affectionately, to his delight.

Once when Sen. Edward M. Kennedy was campaigning for re-election, Mr. Biossat accompanied him one morning first to a casket manufacturing factory and then to an old people's home. Kennedy told his reporter friend the itinerary had been arranged for him. Another time, while speaking at the college in Massachusetts, Kennedy introduced Mr. Biossat to the faculty as his father.

During the 1968 presidential campaign of Sen. Robert Kennedy in California, the press bus was stalled on a hot afternoon and Kennedy's press secretary and a longtime friend of Mr. Biossat, Richard Drayne, jumped off and came back with a case of cold beer. When Mr. Biossat complained and asked what he'd brought for the non-beer drinkers, Drayne told him he'd tried to buy "a six-pack of Geritol, but they didn't have any." On Mr. Biossat's next birthday. Drayne came to a party for him with the six-pack.

On a presidential campaign flight a few years ago, as deadline time approached and reporters began pounding their typewriters, one of them got on the public-address system and inquired whether "anybody aboard has a quill pen, because Bruce Biossat wants to start writing."

He interviewed and knew many Presidents, but his closest association was with John F. Kennedy. In November, 1960, shortly after Kennedy's election, the President-elect was enroute to the airport to make a speech in New York when his limousine passed Mr. Biossat on a Washington street. Kennedy stopped and asked him if he'd like to go along — obviously a chance for an exclusive interview. No, the reporter said with aplomb, he was delivering a raincoat to his daughter at a school nearby, and besides he had his car with him.

Although his friends included most of the leading political figures of his day he was as well as a friend to the greenest of reporters who embarked on the political beat, steering many of them — and some not so green — away from error in fact and judgment on the campaign trail.

"No one knew more about politics in this country, or about politicians, than Bruce did," Sen. Edward Kennedy said yesterday. "And no one brought more zest and humor to the art of political journalism. He was great fun, and he was a great man, and we will miss him."

In addition to his wife, Mr. Biossat is survived by a daughter, Susan Patton of Virginia Beach, Va.; four sisters, Marzalie Stevens and Barbara Snow of Chicago, Mary Warde of Denver and Suzanne Andrews of Prescott, Ariz.; and a brother, Bayard Biossat of Chicago.

Burial, in Washington, was private. A memorial service was held in the library of the National Press Club on Saturday.

Mrs. Biossat has requested that remembrances be in the form of contributions to the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, which she and her husband attended often.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Who among us did not grow into adulthood absolutely convinced that the cow was an altogether wonderful beast?

Does not the cow give us patties for our hamburgers, milk for our double-malteds, leather for our catcher's mitts, horns for our gunpowder, fertilizer for our gardens, glutinous protein for our calf's foot jelly and other goodies too numerous to mention?

A veritable bovine cornucopia, the cow.

Yet my duties as a card-carrying correspondent oblige me to report that we may have been deluding ourselves.

There is presently underway what appears to be a concerted campaign to downgrade the cow, to sully its image and alienate its many aficionados.

As recently as last week one Barbara Ward, identified as an economist associated with the International Institute for Environment and Development, accused the cow of contributing to the world food shortage.

She told a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee that feeding grain to beef cattle was an "enormously wasteful way to obtain protein.

A far more efficient method would be to use the grain directly for human consumption, rather than channeling it through the cow, she said.

The cow, she said, is "technologically a very unimproved animal."

Traditionally, in situations of this sort, someone hires an efficiency expert to make a time-and-motion study and try to pinpoint where the deficiency lies.

So I paid a call on Sidney Watchcloque, a local functional analyst, who told me why cows are impractical. They spend too much time ruminating.

"A cow's stomach has four compartments, which is three too many for peak efficiency," he said. "The food passes through two compartments, then is returned to the mouth for additional chewing. After which it goes through all four compartments. What an incompetent system!"

I said, "It sounds like something Rube Goldberg might have invented."

Watchcloque nodded. "We need to bypass three of the compartments to speed the digestive process. The grain the cow eats then will be converted to protein 75 per cent faster, and cows will become economically feasible."

More important, it will restore our faith in barnyard technology.

Gossip for today

Day by day in every way old age gets better and better. All one has to do is hang in there long enough and eventually every day's a holiday and skies are always blue. To make growing old all the more worthwhile, our Governor has signed a bill which states that from here on out free flu shots for the elderly will be provided by the state. And as if that weren't enough, a group of doctors just announced that wine drinking is beneficial to older folks. Add all that to increased social security benefits and the prediction that before long medical science will make possible artificial pancreas implants, and the first thing you know envious young Americans will start shouting discrimination. They may even go so far as to demand legislation that will guarantee equal benefits for youth. — So maybe we old freeloaders had better start making the most of our many blessings while there is still time. All too soon, in the interest of fairness and equality, we may be asked to pay full price for bus rides and maybe even be forced to share our Senior Citizens reduced-fee golfing privileges on county courses with a bunch of young upstarts.

Los Angeles County

Supervisor race spices election

A three-way race to represent the First District on the Board of Supervisors heads the elections on the county level in the east end of Los Angeles County.

Supervisor Peter F. Schabarum of Covina is being challenged for his first full term by Charles Ruggles, a county engineer from Diamond Bar, and by Walter Bimey, a county sound technician from Valinda.

Possibly the most controversial election will be that involving Superior Court Judge Charles Older, who rose to fame on the heels of the Manson murder trial three years ago. Older became a central figure when he jailed reporter William Farr for refusing to name his sources of information during that trial.

Judge Older is opposed for re-election to Office 41 by Alex Kanowicz and Christopher W. Smith.

Much interest is also shown in the judgeship vacated by Prentiss Moore, who is retiring from Office 20 after seven years of service.

The post is sought by eight candidates: David J. Aisenson, Vincent N. Erickson, Joseph R. Grillo, Joan Dempsey Klein, John J. Lynch, Bonnie Lee Martin, Joseph R. Ruffner and Howard J. Thelin.

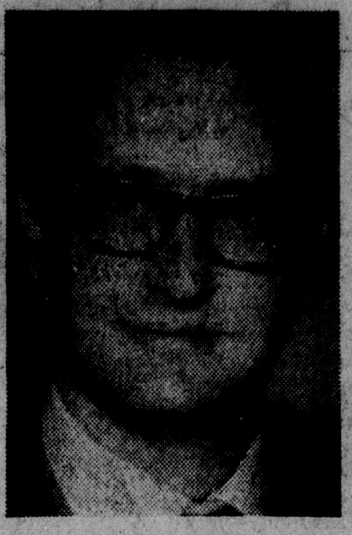
In Office 12 of the county Superior Court the incumbent Edward J. O'Connor is being challenged by Earl J. McDowell, and in Office 18, incumbent Robert W. Kenny is opposed by Bela Botos.

The only countrywide proposal on the ballot will be Proposition A which asks the voters to decide whether rebates from motor vehicle taxes now used to repair local streets should be used to construct a mass transportation system.

Because county offices are nonpolitical, both Democrats and Republicans will be voting for the same candidates. Any candidate who polls more than 50 per cent of the total votes will automatically be elected.

One special election will involve only Claremont residents. There, a vacancy on the City Council, left by the resignation of Craig McManigal is sought by Eleanor Cohen, Teena Ann Boyk, Joseph Armendarez and William McLaughlin.

And those who live in the Pomona School District will vote on a 72-cent per $100 assessed valuation tax override—described by the district as a school tax revenue limit election.



NORMAN S. JACKS of San Dimas has been promoted to assistant vice president at Security Pacific Bank's Lake and Colorado Branch, Pasadena. He formerly was manager of the Bank's Arrow and Azusa branch.

Tri-City to act on state job counseling agreement

POMONA — Adoption of a memorandum of understanding with the State Department of Rehabilitation will be considered at a meeting Monday of the Tri-City Mental Health Authority.

The authority's board of directors will meet at 4 p.m. in the Pomona City Council Chambers.

Tri-City has an agreement under which the department provides vocational rehabilitation counseling services. The agreement, adopted last July, calls for an annual review which is followed up with a memorandum of understanding between the two agencies.

Other matters to be considered by the board include recommendations to establish an hourly rate of $3.46 for doctor-level student professional workers, to retain the services of Dr. Steven L. Abrams, psychiatrist, for 10 hours a week, and for the purchase of a closed circuit television system.

S.B. County ballot crowded, lengthy

Decisions, decisions, decisions.

That's what faces San Bernardino County voters Tuesday when they step inside the voting booths to cast their ballots for their favorite candidates.

There are 261 persons seeking some type of office, which includes federal, state and county leveles. Each voter however, won't have that many names to consider since not all offices are countywide.

And in addition, candidates for state and federal offices will be divided according to political party. These are Democrats, Republicans, American Independent and Peace and Freedom.

"This is the largest ballot I have ever seen," declared William H. Clinton, county registrar of voters. "The ballot will consist of 11 or 12 pages, depending on the locale."

Some communities he explained, have special issues. Examples are Cucamonga where voters will decide on the reorganization of their fire district and the Chaffey Union High School District with a proposed property tax rate increase.

The 707 polling places within the county will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Officials hope to have the ballots tabulated by 3 a.m. Wednesday.

Those candidates seeking county offices won't be divided by party affiliation since these offices are nonpartisan. The offices and candidates are:

County Supervisor, fourth district, (includes south Ontario, Montclair, Chino and south Fontana)—Robert O. Townsend, Chino, incumbent; Henry C. Mizysak, Fontana, sheriff's supervisor, businessman; John Yuhas, Chino, administrative assistant; Harold Hayes, Montclair Montclair mayor; and Howard L. Terdick, Chino, businessman.

County Supervisor, second district, (includes north Ontario, Upland, Cucamonga and Alta Loma)—Daniel D. Mikesell, Ontario, incumbent; and Cal McElwain, Upland, metallurgical control specialist.

Auditor—John H. Bulmer, San Bernardino incumbent.

County Clerk-Recorder—V. Dennis Wardle, San Bernardino, incumbent; and Sam Frisone, San Bernardino, businessman.

Superintendent of Schools—Roy C. Hill, Redlands incumbent.

District Attorney—James M. Cramer, Upland, assistant district attorney; Stan Tomlinson, Redlands, attorney; Ralph Prince, San Bernardino, San Bernardino City Attorney; and Anthony Piazza, Victorville, attorney.

Public Administrator-Coroner—Bill Hill, Upland, incumbent.

Sheriff—Frank Bland, San Bernardino, incumbent.

Treasurer-Tax Collector — John A. Gartner, San Bernardino, incumbent.

Judge candidates for the seven Superior Court offices are:

Office No. 1—Marshall Miles, Redlands, lawyer; Kenneth Ziebarth Jr., Montclair, Municipal Court judge; D. Larry Thorne, Cucamonga, Justice Court judge; Tom Parry, San Bernardino attorney; and Charles A. Bierschbach, Redlands, attorney.

Office No. 3—Margaret J. Morris, Redlands, Superior Court judge

Office No. 4—James J. McCartney, San Bernardino, Municipal Court judge; and Joseph A. Katz, San Bernardino, Superior Court judge.

Office No. 7—Rex W. Cranmer, Redlands, incumbent.

Division No. 2—Ray W. Ferguson, Ontario, incumbent.

Division No. 3—Ernest L. Keechler, Chino, incumbent; Division No. 4, Jack F. Comstock, Fontana, incumbent; John G. Bilday, Fontana, production supervisor; and John T. Kinsey, Fontana, insurance agent.

Teacher pay proposal due in Claremont

CLAREMONT — A proposal to house a seventh grade at Sycamore Elementary School, a salary proposal from the Certificated Employes Council (the teachers), and pre-enrollment figures for Claremont High School's many options program next fall will go to the school board when it meets Monday at 8:30 p.m. at Sumner Elementary School.

A parents study committee, headed by Principal John Bobo, has looked into the possibility of using empty Sycamore classrooms for seventh graders in a pilot program instead of sending them on to junior high school. He has requested approval from the school board to try out the idea next fall.

The district teachers council will present its proposal for a salary increase for the coming school year after studying minimum and maximum salaries paid to teachers in the 43 unified districts in the county.

The board will receive a progress report on the 1973-74 vocational education cooperative work study program conducted at Claremont High.

The board also will receive bids and may award a contract to the low bidder for a new wall separating Cahuilla Park from the Claremont High campus, and will call for bids to lease Mountain View classrooms during the coming school year.

Also received by trustees will be pre-enrollment figures for students who wish to attend either a five-period day, the traditional module schedule, or the extended day program which includes nighttime classes.

Americans buying home canning equipment as if it were jewels

By JEANNE LESEM

Demand way up

Americans are buying home canning jars and lids as if they were diamonds selling at rock bottom prices.

The reason: a home canning boom of unprecedented size.

Its causes: high food prices that have encouraged more home gardening, forecasts of shortages of commercially packed food, changing life styles and the energy shortage that is keeping more people home.

Demand Way Up

"The demand (for jars and lids) never quit from last year," said Harold Metsker, general manager for the consumer products division, Kerr Glass Mfg. Co., Sand Springs, Okla.

"We've been shipping jars, caps and lids since January. We're running like the seed industry, about 40 per cent above last year."

Metsker and John W. Fisher, president of Ball Corp., another jar and lid manufacturer, said the industry's problem is the same as last year—not enough soda ash for making jars or enough tin-plate for lids.

"We're currently running three and four weeks behind on our shipments and have been all along," Metsker said.

He blamed the current shortage largely on panic buying by consumers, rather than shortages of materials. He had this advice for shoppers:

Advice: cool it

Cool it. Buy only as many jars and lids as you can use. Give manufacturers a chance to catch up and there will be enough for everyone.

(You also can stretch supplies by packing jams, jellies, preserves and marmalades in reusable commercial canning jars from mayonnaise, instant coffee and the like. Anything that can be sealed safely with melted paraffin can be packed this way.

(But only home canning jars are safe in water bath or pressure canners, which are necessary for safe canning of low-acid foods such as meat, seafood, poultry and most vegetables.)

"(The boom) really began in the Pacific Northwest," Metsker said. "The people in Washington, Oregon and California were still buying during the winter when nobody else was even thinking about it."

He said jar sales in the Tulsa area skyrocketed recently after a syndicated newspaper columnist wrote that the United States was heading for the most severe shortages of canned and frozen produce in years. The columnist also predicted 25 to 100 per cent price increases.

Short supply, high demand

Fisher reported an equally great growth in jar and lid sales. He said demand for them and for freezer bags and boxes made by his company rose 46 per cent in 1973 pany rose 46 per cent in 1973 first quarter this year was unprecedented.

Both Fisher and Metsker anticipate higher prices because of short supplies and high demand.

Three major retail chains told UPI there is a tremendous increase in demand for canning supplies.

The J.C. Penney Co., Inc., said its Des Moines stores had sold out their season's stock of jars and lids by the end of February—months before that area's canning season—and reordered.

Andrew J. Santulli, a housewares buyer for Penney, added that his company's stock of pressure canners and other supplies is tight but adequate. He thought some smaller chains and independent stores might run short.

Midsummer shortage

Both Sears, Roebuck and Co., and Montgomery Ward and Co., reported a tremendous increase in consumer demand, beginning last year and growing in momentum since early 1974. A spokesman for Montgomery Ward added that if it keeps up, there's a good probability of a shortage by midsummer.

Many smaller merchants are pessimistic.

Dave Brown of the Pay 'n Takit grocery, Vancouver, Wash., told UPI: "We're getting (only) about 50 per cent of our orders (for jars) filled." Other stores in western Washington state reported a shortage of lids as well as quart jars.

Reports of heavy consumer buying were echoed in many areas around the country.

Dr. Ed Hefron, assistant chief of the food inspection division of Michigan's Department of Agriculture, said some farmers bought up a year's supply of canning equipment last fall in anticipation of a shortage.

The few stores in San Francisco that stock supplies the year round said the turnover is rapid. A spokesman for the Farmers' Market said manufacturers were limiting orders. Stores that stock canning supplies only during the summer also reported difficulty in getting orders filled.

Community Canning Centers

In Utah, where home canning is traditional, customers who usually buy only during the season are stocking up early. Two retailers — the K-Mart chain and Warshaw's Giant Foods Store—said buying was more rapid than usual.

In Atlanta, however, supermarket manager Stan Moon said he saw no unusually early or larger-than-usual sales and no shortages were foreseen.

Meantime, community canning centers, first established by a jar and lid manufacturer as a public service during the Depression, are booming. They were very active during World War II, but died out during the postwar period.

Ball Corp., revived the program in the mid-sixties. By last year, 50 centers for low-income households were operating in 15 states. The company expects to double the number this year.

Almost two tons

Some centers occupy specially built quarters but most are in schools, churches, donated halls and even abandoned gas stations, drive-in cleaners and slaughterhouses. Large pressure cookers and cooling baths operate up to 10 hours daily in some centers.

Last year, supervisors in Bernalillo and Sandoval County, N.M., helped low-income familes preserve almost two tons of produce.

The only metropolitan self-help canning center, the Farmers' Market, Atlanta, Ga., put up 90,000 quarts of food between May-September, 1973, under USDA sponsorship.

Teachers penmanship

Chester A. Arthur, the 21st president, worked his way through school by teaching penmanship.

By paraplegic

Accident turned into film career

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Paraplegic David Harvey turned a $600,000 car accident settlement into a movie spoof of pornography and a new career in film production.

Harvey had just been released from the Navy in June, 1970, when the accident happened. On his way to a job interview in Richmond, he had stopped at a stoplight when a large moving truck rammed into his car from the back.

It took seven hours for firemen to remove him from his crumpled auto. For four days he was unconscious and then it was another seven months before the young business school graduate was released from the hospital. And when he left, it was in a wheelchair. The crash had damaged his spinal cord and Harvey was paralyzed from the waist down.

As part of a $2 million suit against the moving company — the suit that resulted in the $600,000 settlement —Harvey's lawyer, Anthony Brookman, hired a couple of filmmakers to make a 45-minute movie titled "A Day in the Life of David Harvey," designed to show the jury what it was like to be a paraplegic.

Although the truck driver never showed up in court and the case was settled without having to use the movie, the filmmaking process rekindled a college interest in theater and Harvey decided to use the settlement to pursue that interest.

"My first love is the theater," Harvey, 33, said in an interview. He said he had majored in drama at Sacramento State University before turning to management and he also appeared in many school productions. "I saw this (the settlement and his introduction to filmmakers Barry Spinello and Paul Artow) as a chance to get back into the theater."

He talked to Spinello and Artow, viewed some of their other work and decided to back their next venture, a satire on pornography titled "Bizarre Devices."

Harvey says the film is "hilarious" but he regrets it has an x-rating. "This isn't exploitation —it's satire," he says. "A violent film like 'The Godfather' is much more pornographic."

Harvey said the movie, which is scheduled for release next month, received the x-rating because of frontal nudity.

During the filming of "Bizarre Devices," Harvey formed Cinema Development International, of which he is president, executive producer and chairman of the board. He has hired an adviser, an advertising agency, an accountant, an attorney and a secretary. And he also has access to American Zoetrope Studios in San Francisco, which are run by "Godfather" director Francis Ford Coppola.

Harvey plans to begin production on "Recluse," a film he describes as "a suspense-horror story about a mother, her two retarded children and a social worker." He also has bought rights to a "good, honest love story" that he predicts will win an Academy Award for its theme song.

Harvey, who has sold insurance and worked as a magician, loves his new career despite its lack of security.

"This business is high risk — you can lose your shirt." he says. "But it's fun. You can actually see a product. You say, 'Hey, I did that' or 'I made that.' Whether it's good or bad, it's my baby. It's fun and exciting."

Harvey said that he had invested some money in the stock market. "But it gets a little boring reading the Wall Street Journal everyday."

Currently, Harvey runs Cinema Development International out of his apartment, which is piled high with scripts and books that have film possibilities. He also has to make time to meet with a therapist five days a week at his home and he's involved in an experimental drug program under the University of Oregon.

Eventually, he says, he would like to open a small studio off Jack London Square here. But he is adamant about keeping his company in the Bay Area.

Another male field is making way for the women

DETROIT (UPI) — In the early 1940s, Blanche Parent Wise walked into an auto dealership in Detroit in search of a job.

Instead of tucking her away in the office, where women had filed invoices and answered telephones for years, John Hetteche hired Mrs. Wise as a saleswoman—the first auto saleswoman in Detroit and possibly the nation.

At least 14 women are currently employed as auto saleswoman in and around Detroit the city that feeds and thrives on the auto industry, and most are aware that they have broken barriers in a traditionally male-dominated field.

They are young and old, divorced and married, black and white —but most have the common goal of proving that women can sell a car just as well or better than a man.

"This business takes a gal who can keep her emotions under control, who doesn't moan and groan once a month," said Mary Ellen Miller, 31, the official Jeep consulatant at Village American in Birmingham, Mich.

Need flexible mind

April Clemons, 33, has been selling cars for almost a year, most recently at Porterfield Wilson Pontiac in Detroit.

"I would say that it's definitely a male-dominated field," she said, "but once you get to know the other salesmen, there's no problem.

"A woman has got to have a flexible mind in this line of work. Sometimes I have to have the mind of a teen-ager and other times the mind of a grandmother. In the car business, you have to be a doctor, lawyer, Indian chief and even a psychiatrist."

Mrs. Clemons, a widow with two sons, said it takes a very strong woman to survive the long hours, competition and hassles with customers.

Most of the women interviewed got into the business for strictly economic reasons, but several wanted challenge, a chance to meet people or just a switch from secretarial jobs.

Very few of the women had previous experience in selling cars, but many had been involved in other types of sales or supervised their own businesses. Three were housewives looking for a change.

Some resentment

Many of the car salesladies were forced to contend with resentful salesmen at first, but feel they gained acceptance once they proved they were not there "for fun and games."

"When a new salesman comes in he thinks he can outsell me," Lolita Clark, 31, saleswoman at Falvey Motors in Ferndale, Mich., said. "He will try to take advantage of me, like running out on the floor when it's not his turn."

Joanna Mackie, 42, a saleswoman at Ver Hoven Chevrolet in Detroit since last August, said she still has problems with her male coworkers.

"I'm the only gal here with 18 men and they feel resentful," she said. "Without the help of one salesman, I would have fallen flat on my face. A woman has to push her way in and then continue to dominate the job with personality and perserverance."

Judy Sullivan, 33, who was a medical secretary for ten years before landing a job at Jim Vance Dodge in Wyandotte, Mich., met with great resistance from the other salesmen.

It's a living

"They wanted to make it uncomfortable for me so they could run me out," she said. "But it just made me more determined to do a good job because, after all, I'm here to make a living."

Miss Sullivan, a member of the Dodge Delta Sales Club in recognition of her outstanding sales achievement, said her coworkers eventually began even think about another job now."

In addition to salesmen who are not willing to admit a woman into the fold, saleswomen must often face rude customers who would rather see a woman in the office than behind a sales desk.

Kim Malecki, 43, who came to the U.S. 20 years ago from to accept her and "I wouldn't Japan, seems to have the opposite effect on customers at North Bros.

Not Sex Appeal

"I will approach a man looking at the cars and their eyes get real big and they say 'are you a salesman?'," she said. "I get more cooperation and can get away with more because I am a woman."

None of the saleswomen who talked about their jobs felt they tried to use their sex as an advantage in selling a car.

Virginia Patterson, 26, a former artist and model who sells cars, vans and buses at Seaway Motors in Detroit, said she tries to handle everything in a very businesslike manner.

"Sometimes I have to feel out a customer to see if he is really interested in the car or me," she said. "It's a matter of outpsyching them, and letting them know that I am not available as one of the car's options."

Age barrier worries her

By JEAN ADAMS

ONE YEAR: (Q.) Label me crazy, but please believe me. I am in love. I don't mean sex. I mean love. I am not an ordinary girl. I believe in caring.

I am 17. Two years ago I met a strange boy whom I care for very much. Only thing stopping us from getting together any more is he is 16 and his pride is very strong.

I still see him and he comes around when least expected. When he doesn't which is often, I miss him very much. I would like to know if you feel that age is a barrier, and if it is, if there is a way to jump it. —Love Him in Pennsylvania

(A.) The one year between 17 and 16 is not too big a barrier. The next time you see him tell him Jean Adams said so.

LONG DISTANCE: (Q.) Last summer I met a girl from Down South while she was visiting relatives up here. I met her the day before she left. We talked for about two hours and since then have written fairly regularly. She's 15 and I'm 18. The thing is that I hardly know her but I want her very much. You'd think I was in love or something. Can I really love her? Is our age difference too great? —Lonely on Long Island

(A.) You do not mention dating or interest in any other girl. I suspect that you are more lonely than in love. Take out a local girl or girls on dates and see if your Southern intensity still holds up.

Specifically, it IS possible to fall in love in two hours time. And 18 and 15 are a little far apart but not usually too far.

MIGRANTS — North Africans arriving at Marseille, France, have their papers checked by French immigration inspectors. Throughout the world illegal migrants soon find there is no promised land. The International Labor Organization, at its annual Assembly which begins Wednesday and continues through June 26, plans to help both legal and illegal migrant workers who get the toughest and most dangerous jobs, the lowest pay and the worst but most expensive accommodations. Migrants have no sickness insurance or legal protection.

New Zealand burglars eligible for compensation for injuries

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (UPI) — The New Zealand Accident Compensation Commission is waiting for the first burglar to claim compensation for an injury received during working hours. When he comes along the commission will pay him.

Since April 1 the commission must, by law, pay compensation to anyone in New Zealand injured by accident, whether at work or not, and whether a New Zealander or a visitor to the country.

In its first month the commission paid 1,000 claimants and it expects before long to be paying many thousands more each month.

The Accident Compensation Act under which the commission works is believed to be the first of its kind in the western world.

Property damage

It abolishes all court actions for damages for personal injury happening after April 1, 1974. But the courts will be busy for years clearing old claims.

The act does not apply to damage to property, for which New Zealanders may still sue for redress through the courts.

When in top gear, the commission expects to pay out $100 million a year for everything from death by accident to loss of earnings because of a sportsman's sprained little toe.

The chairman of the commission, Kenneth L. Sandford, says the scheme covers employes and the self-employed, road accident victims and everyone else, including non-earners.

Financing differs

"The three schemes differ mainly in the way they are financed and not in the payments made to accident victims," Sandford said.

"Employers and the self-employed are levied a payroll tax to pay for the earners' scheme."

Lump sum payments

An employe off work because of injury is paid 80 per cent of his usual wages whether he is injured at work or elsewhere.

"He is, if he is permanently injured, paid an additional lump sum up to a maximum of $7,000 plus a maxmum of $10,000 for loss of employment or life, disfigurement, pain and mental suffering. His wages compensation continues until he is old enough for a pension."

The commission pays all doctors' fees for all accident victims.

"The self-employed pay one per cent of their incomes to the commission and receive 80 per cent of their usual earnings if they are disabled by injury. They also qualify for lump sums." Sandford said.

No punishment

Sandford says a widow whose husband dies by accident receives half of his earning entitlement, plus $1,500 for herself and $2,200 for each child.

The commission pays for the funeral.

A child disabled by accident will receive compensation when he or she turns 16.

If a housewife is disabled, she will be paid a lump sum and her husband will receive earnings compensation if he has to stay home to look after her.

Sandford surprised many New Zealanders when he pointed out that the brawler, the drunk and even the burglar blowing a safe who may be injured will not receive a dollar less than his innocent victim who may be similiarly injured.

"At what conduct would we draw the line? The commission is set up to award compensation, not to punish people for their action," he said.

Australian inquiry

Woodhouse, at the request of Prime Minister Gough Whitlam, has since taken part in a similar inquiry in Australia.

Lawyers certainly will be affected but nothing in the act prevents anyone from taking out extra insurance against injuries caused by accident to themselves or their families.

The government has promised to investigate the possiblity of extending the accident scheme to cover all illnesses however caused.

Buyer's billboard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Moving into a new house or apartment can be a hazardous adventure, even beyond the financial and legal problems.

The last thing most consumers think about is accidental injury; but government statistics indicate the people most likely to be moving — young couples for instance —run the worst risk of getting injured.

Stairs are a particular problem. According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission stairs and related structures account for about 356,000 emergency room cases every year. And it is neither the very young nor the infirm who are the most likely victims.

Persons aged 25 to 34 account for more stair-related injuries —15 percent of the total—than any other group. The next highest group, with 11 per cent of the stairs themselves, junk left on them, loose railings and —not the least of it —the victims themselves who run, jump, act careless, think they don't need to use the hand rail or are in their stocking feet.

The statistics covering other household injuries are no less conforting. The commission says there are 153,000 emergency room cases every year involving non-glass doors, including garage and screen doors, and another 178,000 accidents requiring emergency treatment that involve architectural glass, such as doors, shower enclosures and windows.

Speaking of moving, the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) has a booklet for consumers offering tips about the moving business and detailing your rights as a buyer of their services. The publication, called "Information on Moving Your Household Goods", is available for 20 cents by writing to Consumer information, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Okay Detroit, here's a gripe no doubt shared by many car owners and pedestrians. Writes John M. McCartney of Cumberland, Md.:

"My gripe is about the way American automobile manufacturers design the bodies of their cars so the wheels set out from under the fenders and throw everything that is on the road up along the sides of the car instead of up under the fenders. My personal experience has been with 1967, 1969 and 1973 Chevrolets.

"When the roads were wet or have had slush, salt etc., on them a short drive of five to 10 miles and both sides of the car look as though they have been sprayed. Where a side rear view mirror is on a car the spray from the front wheels hits the mirror and in a very short time the door glasses are completely covered, obstructing one's side view.

"I have always been under the impression a fender was made to contain the spray set up by the wheels, but I do believe the car designers have overlooked this basic fact..."

We'll second that.

'Lord's Prayer' makes the charts

By PAUL R. ALLERUP

That was my teen-age nephew, working on his motorbike, singing and humming what sounded like the Lord's Prayer. And, in fact, was.

"John," I said, "you suddenly got religion?" It was a barbed question. His lack of visible interest in things religious has been a point of contention between us for some time.

"Nope," he said. "It's on the charts. Haven't you heard it?"

Charts? "The pop charts, Unk. You know, the top 20. The top selling records."

"Let me hear it again, how does it go?"

Fingers began to snap, then: "Our Father, who art in heaven, hallow-ed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done, on earth as it is in heeaaaven."

"A good beat to it, huh, Unk?"

Yes, I agreed. A good beat. "Good words, too," I said. "You think about them?" "Ah, Unk. There you go. It's a song. It's good. I like to listen to it. I dig it. So, okay, the Au words. It's this nun, see. From Australia, I think." And she's got this group. They sing songs like that. She writes the words, I think."

"She writes the words? She wrote that?" Heavy sarcasm in the voice.

"Aw, come on, Unk. I know who wrote the words. At least I know where they came from. Said them often in Sunday school when I was a kid."

"Well, I'm glad of that, anyway," I said.

"Look," the boy said. "So what's wrong with putting them to a song? A song you like to sing. So what's wrong with that?"

The kid had me. I couldn't think of what's wrong with that.

As I walked away I suddenly realized I was singing "Our Father, who are in heaven, hallow-ed be Thy name . . ."

I went back to my nephew, still puttering with his bike.

"Are there any more words?" I asked. "Does the song have the whole Lord's Prayer?"

"Yeah," he said. "All the words. I think so."

"Okay, let's sing it together, all the way through this time. I'll follow you on the tune."

"Sorry, Unk. Now you really got me. All I know is the first two lines."

Well, I thought. Two lines is better than none. And went back to my lawnmower humming, "Our Father, who art in heaven..."

LIGHTHOUSE TENDER — George Hupman, a General Electric executive from Philadelphia inspects a light stand which once housed the lenses for the Tillamook Lighthouse off Tillamook, Ore., which Hupman purchased. Hupman plans to convert the five tender rooms into bunk rooms and the light room at the top of a flight of 60 stairs. When the renovation is complete the 94-year-old lighthouse will be a vacation home. The top of the structure, which was abandoned in 1957, stands 132 feet above the ocean surface, and on more than one occasion storms have sent solid water over the top. Hupman also is getting a new set of business cards printed, which will read, "George Hupman, lighthouse tender."

Over opium poppy agreement

U.S., Turkey on collision course

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Since Turkey succumbed to U.S. political pressure and economic blandishments three years ago and agreed to plow under its vast opium poppy fields, the supply of heroin in the United States has slowly been drying up.

Now, however, the delicate U.S. arrangement with Turkey seems to be disintegrating. The forces of a newfound Turkish nationalism, economic hardship among Turkish farmers, possible underworld corruption in Ankara and pressure from major U.S. pharmaceutical companies are converging.

As a result, Congress, the administration and the Ankara government seem headed for a collision over opium later this year that could have a major impact on U.S. strategic interests in the Middle East.

At stake, beyond Turkey's tenuous agreement to cooperate with the United States in halting the ravages of illicit heroin traffic, is Turkey's pivotal role in the NATO alliance in the Mediterranean and the durability of Turkish-American relations.

Strategically, the Turks control the Dardanelles, passage for the Soviet Mediterranean fleet to its home ports on the Black Sea. Moverover, a network of U.S. monitoring outposts in Turkey provides vital electronic intelligence on all kinds of military activity in southern Russia.

Also, Turkish restraint in its conflict over Cyprus with another NATO member, Greece, has prevented a major eruption there and permitted Britain to maintain its naval installations on the island.

All this might be jeopardized by two major approaching and essentially political battles.

One is between Congress and the administration over whether opium should be allowed to be grown in the United States —even under tightly controlled safeguards —to relieve what drug companies say is a growing shortage of legal supplies of the narcotic for medical purposes.

Another struggle seems likely between Congress —with or without administration backing —and the Turkish government over whether the Turks should permit renewed poppy cultivation.

A powerful coalition of liberals and conservatives, led by Sens. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and James L. Buckley, R-N.Y., has introduced a resolution urging President Nixon to cut off all military and economic aid to Turkey, amounting last year to $300 million including military sales credits, if poppy farming is resumed.

In addition, Mondale and other liberals are intent on killing an administration proposal to grow opium at government compounds outside Phoenix, Ariz., and Walla Walla, Wash. They say the United States can hardly insist on a poppy ban in Turkey if poppies are grown domestically.

Federal drug enforcement officials and congressmen who have studied the issue agree the Turkish ban has been highly effective in suppressing a major part of the illicit U.S. heroin trade.

Although a "nickel bag" of heroin still costs just $5 on the streets of New York, the actual average heroin content in each bag has been cut in half —from 8 per cent to 4 per cent, according to Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y., whose district includes Harlem.

As a result, the per-milligram price of heroin in the typical street sale has risen from 44 cents to $1.50, and the cost to an addict of maintaining just an "ordinary" habit of 50 milligrams per day has gone from $25 to more than $75.

The situation is such that the Justice Department's Drug Enforcement Administration, which three years ago was warning of a heroin "epidemic," reports a reduction in drug-related crime, overdose deaths and incidents of injection-related hepatitis.

And the official estimate of total active addicts has dropped from half a million to about 200,000.

Concern that the anti-heroin campaign might be undermined first arose in March, when the Turkish government announced it was authorizing a group of state farms to plant a "seed crop" of poppies.

Ostensibly this was simply to germinate seeds that had been stored at the end of 1971 and would have died without planting this year. But it was obvious that the Ankara government might also have been keeping its options open for lifting the ban in response to intense political pressures.

These presssures stem fundamentally from economic need. Until 1971, Turkey was one of seven countries that raised opium legally, and the livelihood of perhaps 80,000 families on the Anatolian plateau depended on it.

The sale of opium gum, laboriously harvested pod-by-pod from poppy plants, was the main source of cash income for these families, who sold it both legally to state-controlled traders at artificially low prices, and to smugglers for a much higher return.

The farmers also extracted cooking oil from the seeds, used them in bread, and fed the leaves and stalks to domesticated animals.

In either case, the ban severely disrupted the Turkish farm economy.

As part of the deal for the ban, the United States agreed to pay $35.7 million to compensate the farmers for their cash losses from legal sales and to help them shift to other crops.

But Rangel and Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., said in a report last week that the U.S. payments not only were inadequate but had not reached the farmers.

They said there never was any intention to compensate farmers for their losses in illegal sales. No money was given to licensed farmers who failed to plant during the 1971 season, and there was no provision to cover losses of small business men who made a living pressing oil from poppy seeds.

Washington and Ankara have been inefficient in administering the payments program. In mid-March, when Wolff and Rangel visited Turkey, many farmers were still waiting for their promised 1974 compensation.

Of the $15 million budgeted for compensation to Turkish farmers, only $10 million had been delivered. Of the remaining $20.7 million for aid in diversion to other crops, the United States had paid only $10 million.

The Turkish agriculture ministry likewise has been slow to relay the funds, and the substitute crops recommended —sunflower seeds for oil, and barley for fodder and domestic consumption —neither satisfy the Turkish palate nor provide the same substantial profits as poppies.

Charges that the former Turkish military government had bowed to U.S. pressure in 1971 helped stir nationalistic resentment that contributed to the government's defeat in last year's elections. The present prime minister, Balent Ecevit, has tried to ease national resentment, but the political pressure is becoming well-nigh irresistible.

Rangel and Wolff wrote that both the press and irresponsible politicians are pushing the view that the ban of "a traditional crop ... closely associated with the lifestyle of some Turkish farmers is an inappropriate response to an international drug problem."

The United States is accused of trying "to solve one of its problems inexpensively and inadequately by providing minor compensation to a poor country," they said.

In the shadows are other pressures, including the well - known corrupting influence of the payoff money of illegal opium's traders and smugglers. Opium money has been a powerful factor in the politics of other producing countries, such as Laos and Thailand, and there is no reason to believe Turkey's opium underworld would shrink from bribing a few politicians if it thought it would help get the ban lifted.

On top of this unknown degree of pressure from the underworld is the lobbying power of the big pharmaceutical manufacturers who are complaining of a shortage of opium as a raw material.

Some of Turkey's production was supposed to be shifted to India to compensate for reduced legal supplies, but Indian weather conditions are unstable and production there has fallen short of expectations.

At the same time, U. S. sales of opium-based codeine cough syrup have burgeoned, from 20,000 pounds in 1969 to an estimated 40,000 pounds this year.

Legal opium prices have risen along with the illegal since the ban was imposed. At least two big drug companies, Merck and Mallinckrodt, have complained recently about a medical shortage and are lobbying vigorously for a resumption of Turkish production as well as a legal U.S. crop.

There is concern in Congress that if the Turks resume production, the "French Connection" may be re-established and illicit heroin once again could flood the U. S.

Even recognizing Turkey's strategic importance, Rangel and Wolff say, "if Turkey disregards the real dangers which renewed poppy production presents to the American people, then this matter must be brought before the Congress to review any and all agreements between the two nations."

If the ban is resented in Turkey for nationalistic reasons, the possibility of its abandonment could become an intensely emotional issue in Congress. If the issue were cast in terms of a vote for or against heroin in the veins of American youth, relations between the two countries probably would be the loser.

PUC rejects firm's plea for fare hike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The state Public Utilities Commission denied permission Wednesday to the Southern Pacific Co. to increase its fares on the San Francisco Peninsula by an additional 3 per cent.

The firm had been granted a 6 per cent boost on its commuter fares to offset federally required increases in payroll retirement taxes.

It then asked for an additional 3 per cent which was rejected because its figures differed from those of the PUC staff.

Baker sees primary route, if he runs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., says that if he decides to run for President in 1976, he expects "to go the primary route."

He also said in a speech to the National Press Club recently that he doubts the American people, after the experiences of Watergate, will let politicians choose presidential candidates next time.

CRIME. The rising crime rate and violence in our communities is alarming! Too many parolled felons return to a life of crime because our prisons have failed to rehabilitate them. Our present system of justice often works to protect the criminal instead of the law abiding citizen.

WELFARE. Welfare programs should be available to those who truly need welfare but should not be a giveaway plan for those who do not want to work or for families who want to make a career out of living free at the expense of the California taxpayer.

COST OF LIVING. The increasing cost of living is of grave concern to all of us. I am particularly concerned about the senior citizens who are forced to live on fixed incomes . . . legislators must seek ways to reduce government spending to hold down inflation.

Tick-borne Rocky Mountain fever on rise in two states

By United Press International

More than 25 cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever have been reported in Maryland and Virginia this year, and health officials are trying to determine if the rare, tick-borne disease was responsible for the death of a 1-year-old child.

Dr. Kenneth Crawford of the Maryland Public Health Department said the disease appeared to be intensified this year because a larger than usual number of rodents and rabbits survived the warm winter.

"So did the ticks they were carrying," he said. "If there is a severe winter, there is a greater die-off."

Crawford said three confirmed cases and 12 suspected cases of the fever had been reported in Maryland.

Twelve cases of the fever have been reported in Virginia this year three of them last week, state epidemiologist Robert S. Jackson said Tuesday. He said the number of cases so far is about normal for the state at this time of year.

"It's a pretty serious disease if it is untreated, and the mortality rate becomes about 20 per cent," he said. "It should be zero if antibiotics are available."

Dr. Manuel Cockburn, a pathologist at Physicians' Memorial Hospital in LaPlata, Md., said the disease was suspected in the death last week of 1-year-old Ernie Lee Ramsey. Diagnostic tests have not yet been completed by the Maryland Health Department. The boy's brother, Kenneth, 2, is being treated at a Washington D.C. hospital for the disease.

John Ramsey Jr., 29, their father, said the boys became ill overnight.

"They were lying around and they had little red bumps all over them, mostly on their faces and arms," he said. "They got worse. All they wanted to do was sleep —just lie around and sleep, and they wouldn't eat."

He said ticks were found on Kenneth, but not on the younger brother who died.

Symptoms of the fever, named after the region where it was first diagnosed, are a headache, rash, and fever. Symptoms occur between several days and several weeks after a tick carrying the disease is removed.

10 airmen now listed as dead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department has announced that 10 airmen previously listed as missing in Indochina have now been declared dead as a result of hostile action.

There remain 1,059 men listed as missing.

Conservation Down Under

CANBERRA, Australia (UPI) — Since assuming office a year ago the Labor government has taken steps to outlaw the export of crocodile and kangaroo skins in an effort to protect them from possible extinction. Import of whale meat has been stopped as well as trade in other endangered species of mammals, birds and reptiles.

Leopards face Lewis today with optimism

By DON BRADLEY
P-B STaff Writer

ST. JOSPEH, Mo. — La Verne's Dan Drake has a hunch about today's 3:30 p.m. (PDT) game with Lewis University.

Drake, assistant baseball coach under Ben Hines, thinks the Leopard baseball team will come up with a stellar effort against the Lockport, Ill. school, seventh-ranked in the country.

"There were kind of mixed feelings about Friday's (4-1) game with Point Park," Drake said. "There were a number of good things, but the players generally didn't feel like they played their best. I think that will really make a difference today."

The Leos will send lefthander Robb Mayhew (9-3) against the Flyers, who are now 36-12 and riding a 13-game winning streak. Lewis coach Gordon Gillespie has indicated he will counter with Don Markelz (8-2).

Markelz is a little (5-10, 170-pounds) sophomore. He goes into the game with a 1.52 earned run average. In 71 innings, Markelz has struck out 61 and walked 30.

"I think the Lewis team may be the surprise of the tourney," Drake commented. "The Flyers have good pitching and their first baseman (Ray Crowley) can hit a ton. That's one reason we will use Mayhew."

Crowley is a lefthanded power hitter with a .349 average and 13 home runs with 61 RBIs. The big (6-4, 205-pounds) slugger had a two-run double that broke open Friday's win over third-ranked High Point College of North Carolina.

Drake sees one strange difference between this year's Leo team and the 1972 national champions on which he played.

"On the '72 team, we played up to our maximum ability all the time," he related. "I think this team has been holding back a little for some reason. We had it all together at Arizona State and in the first two playoffs games at Lewiston. But the rest of the time, I think we fell a little short of our potential."

Like shortstop Nick Leyva and catcher Don Snyder, who were also on the national championship squad that posted a 44-9 record in 1972, Drake feels the only difference in the indivdual makeup of this year's team is in the outfield.

"We had two All-American outfielders in Jim Beal and Willie Norwood," he agreed. "But this year we have a more consistent level of high quality throughout the lineup.

"When we started the season," he continued, "we didn't know if we would have a centerfielder. Art Sanchez has really come along. He put it together when we went to Arizona over the Easter holidays."

Another player who has developed rapidly is Ontario's Wayne Redfearn. The freshman rightfielder had a double and single in Friday's game to riase his average in eight playoff games to date to .375.

"Working with Wayne is a real pleasure." Drake commented.

Drake, like Hines, feels the La Verne pitching will be the key in the playoffs.

"I think the pitching will be good for all teams through Monday's games," he said. "After that, I think our pitching will make a difference."

Ryan hurls two-hitter in 4-1 win

ANAHEIM (UPI) Nolan Ryan pitched a two-hitter and Joe Lahoud slammed a two-run homer to lead the California Angels to a 4-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers Saturday night.

Ryan hurled no-hit ball for the first 7 1-3 innings before Mickey Stanley singled as the second batter in the eighth inning to drive in a run. Ed Brinkman had reached first on an error and advanced on a wild pitch.

Ryan struck out 10, walked seven and hit one batter in gaining his seventh victory in 12 decisions and his sixth straight over the Tigers, going back to 1972.

California scored its first three runs in the first inning off loser Joe Coleman, 6-5. Coleman suffered his fourth defeat in a row.

Two successive throwing errors on the relay of a one-out double allowed Denny Doyle to score the first run. La- also scored Frank Robinson, on base houd's homer over the right field fence after forcing John Doherty, who had walked in his first major league at bat.

Ellie Rodriguez drew a two out walk in the seventh and scored on Dave Chalk's double for the Angels' only run.

Sandoval leads SoCal fighters

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — An inexperienced amateur boxing team representing Mexico was no match for Southern California fighters in an international AAU boxing show at the L.A. County Fairgrounds Saturday afternoon.

The Southern Californians, some whom will represent the Southern Pacific Association of the AAU (SPAAU) in the national championships later this month in Knoxville, Tenn., won four of five bouts with the fifth ending in a draw.

Ahead on points through the first two rounds, Sandoval knocked his opponent down in the third for a mandatory eight count.

It was Sandoval's 83rd victory in 94 amateur fights. The Cal Poly freshman will defend his title at the nationals as a stepping stone to the AAU world championships in Havana and eventually a shot at the 1976 Olympics.

Still more impressive was Manuel Castrejon, a 132-pounder who, like Sandoval, fights out of Pomona's Sacred Heart Athletic Club. Castrejon knocked out Ignacio Cabarabias in the third round.

Decisions were won by Francisco Flores of Pacoima over Abalardo Suarez in a 125-pound battle, and by Chris Carrillo of Whittier over Jesus Armenta in a 139-pound bout.

The most impressive Mexican fighter, Francisco Solario, fought to a draw with Johnny Jensen of Los Angeles in a 119-pound bout. Solario was clearly the most experienced fighter among the visitors.

In preliminary bouts, Bruce Henderson of Hollywood, who fights out of the Sacred Heart gym, decisioned Dan Campbell of Los Angeles in a welterweight match-up.

In a middleweight bout, Jimmy Kassel of Pomona dropped a unanimous decision to Zeffie Gonzales of Los Angeles.

A listless no-decison heavyweight exhibition was fought by Fred "Young Sanford" Houpe and a novice from Sacred Heart, Bernie Roberts.

Houpe, a protege of entertainer Redd Foxx, expects to turn pro following the national championships. In 99 amateur fights, Houpe has won 85 with 54 knockouts.

The Pepperdine University law student missed a trip to the 1972 Olympics, losing a split decision to eventual silver medalist Duane Bobick in the Olympic trials.

Scott takes second, Law grabs sixth

Scott finished behind state champion John Musich of Burbank High in 1:52.4. Musich, the runner-up in the Masters Meet last weekend at Cerritos College, won the half mile in 1:51.0. Masters champion Tom Lloy of Edison High finished fifth in 1:52.7.

Chino High sophomore Jayson Law settled for a sixth-place finish in the 220, recording a time of 21.9 seconds. Law, the San Antonio League 220 and 100 champion, was left in the dust with the rest of the field, led by Millar Hampton of Silver Creek High in San Jose. Hampton won in 21.1 seconds.

Muir High, the CIF 4-A and Masters champion, finished the year as the state champion with 23 points. San Francisco Wilson High finished a distant second to the CIF and state champion with 14 points.

Plunkett to WFL?

PORTLAND (UP) — Boston attorney Bob Woolf confirmed Saturday that the Portland Storm of the World Football League has been conducting negotiations with quarterback Jim Plunkett of the New England Patriots.

Cey's 7 RBIs pace Dodgers

CHICAGO (UPI) — When third baseman Ron Cey of the Los Angeles Dodgers comes to Wrigley Field, he can boast of his own cheering section.

With 20 members of his family looking on, Cey led the Dodgers to a 10-0 triumph over the Chicago Cubs by driving in a club record seven runs with a pair of homers and a single.

Probably the most excited person of 19,558 was Cey's youthful wife, Fran, a willowy, attractive social worker who grew up in Chicago.

"I was screaming, jumping up and down, and kissing my entire family after Ron hit his second home run of the day. I don't know anything about records," Mrs. Cey said, "but, it had to be the greatest day of our lives from a baseball standpoint."

Cey has been on a hitting rampage all week. His three-run homer Wednesday night beat Bob Gibson in St. Louis. Cey attributed his first home run, a three-run shot in the second inning, to a mistake by Cub starter Ken Frailing. "The count was 3-2 on me and Frailing should have come in with a breaking pitch," Cey said. "After all there was the possibility of my hitting into an inning double play but Frailing hit me a fastball down the middle and I just swung away."

After singling home two runs off Steve Stone to highlight a four-run third inning, Cey again faced Stone with Joe Ferguson on base and two out in the fourth inning.

"With a count 0-1, Stone threw a fastball that was high but was over the plate. It was a good pitch to rip and it sailed out of here," Cey explained.

Cey's greatest praise went for Andy Messersmith who was knocked out of the box in each of his last two starts.

"Andy really had it today and I was glad we could give him an easy win," Cey said.

Messersmith allowed six hits and went the distance for the fifth time this year in boosting his record to 5-1.

The Dodgers staked him to an early lead with three runs in the second inning.

The Dodgers sent 10 men to the plate in the third inning and scored four runs. A single by Bill Russell and walks to Jimmy Wynn and Garvey loaded the bases, bringing on Stone. A walk to Ferguson forced in Russell. Cey then drove a shot to the left of shortstop Don Kessinger to score Wynn and Garvey.

After two out in the fourth, Ferguson doubled and Cey followed with his sixth homer of the season to wind up the Dodger scoring.

Heard charges into lead

Californian up by three in Kemper Open

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (UPI) — Californian Jerry Heard, shrugging off threatening clouds and a host of pursuers, shot a seven-under-par 65 Saturday to build a formidable three-stroke lead after three rounds of the $250,000 Kemper Open golf tournament.

Heard, winner of this year's Florida Citrus Open at Orlando, birdied four straight holes on the backside to run his three-day total to 69-66-65--200.

Heard started the day one stroke behind second-round leader Lee Trevino and started out with two birdies on the front nine. He spurted after the turn with consecutive birdies on the 10th through 13th holes to take a three-stroke lead over Trevino and surprising Bob Menne into today's final round.

"I just started making a lot of putts," said a smiling Heard. "They just started to go in."

Former PGA champion Billy Casper, steady Hubert Green and J. C. Snead were four strokes back at 204.

Veteran Ray Floyd, who started fast with five birdies on the first eight holes, struggled on the backside and finished with a 68-205. He was tied with Bert Yancey, who also had a 68, and Gibby Gilbert who had a 70.

The day's best round was carded by young Tom Kite, the former University of Texas star from Austin, who equalled the course record 64 set Friday by Trevino, moving into a five-way tie at 10-under-par 206, six strokes back of Heard.

Jack Nicklaus, grousing that the manicured greens over the 7,085-yard Quail Hollow Country Club course put too much of a premium on putting, had a respectable 69-208, eight strokes down.

Arnold Palmer, for the first time in his illustrious career, missed the cut for the third straight week and did not play Saturday.

Gary Player, considered a favorite after his victory last week in the Memphis Classic, had a 72-214 and was out of contention.

Trevino, whose unspectacular 69 was marked by five birdies and two bogeys, was confident about his chance of taking the $50,000 first prize.

"I still have a chance, I think," he said. "Jerry and I are real good friends and we relax each other."

Menne, who had to play an 18-hole qualifier to get into the elite field for the "designated" tournament, had a bogeyless round with five birdies en route to his 67.

"I'm trying to be very patient," he said. "I'm trying very hard not to make a mistake."

KMPC offering channelwatch

LOS ANGELES — Now under way for its 17th season, KMPC Channelwatch is offering its annual service to Southern California boaters with hourly reports each Saturday, Sunday and holiday.

Some 40 participating skippers from the United State Power Squadron broadcast up-to-the-minute and on-the-scene reports on wind, sea and channel conditions on each hour's newscast on KMPC (710).

One stroke up

Rankin holds lead

TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — Defending champion Judy Rankin withstood challenges by hometown favorite Carol Mann and Susie Berning Saturday to retain a one-stroke lead heading into the final round of the $40,000 Baltimore Golf Championship.

Miss Rankin, of Midland, Tex., tired on the back nine at the Pine Ridge course, but she finished with an even par 73 Saturday for a 36-hole total of 144.

Four women were tied for second place with scores of 145 after the second round. They were Miss Mann, the 1972 Baltimore champion; Miss Berning, the 1969 titlist; all-time leading money-winner Kathy Whitworth and Marilynn Smith.

"I played almost as well as I did Friday, but ran out of zip on the back nine," Miss Rankin said after Saturday's round. She shot a 39 on the final nine holes after a 34 on the front nine.

Miss Berning, from Lake Tahoe, Nev., shot a sizzling four-under-par 69 for the afternoon's best effort. She had five birdies in rebounding from a first-round 76.

Miss Mann, of Towson, Md., had four birdies in her second round 72, but suffered three bogeys on the gruelling back nine that prevented her from taking the lead.

Miss Whitworth, of Richardson, Tex., stayed in the thick of things with a 73 on a second straight afternoon featuring rain showers and soggy conditions. Miss Smith, of Tequesta, Fla., entered the second round in fifth place but shot a three-under-par 70 to position herself for a challenge in Sunday's final round.

Mary Wolfe of Beaverton, Ore., and Beth Stone of Muskogee, Okla., both finished play Saturday with 146 scores.

Valley teams in mixed B.B. luck

Valley Legion, Thorobred, and Big League baseball squads were all in action Saturday, with mixed results for the locals.

LaVerne Legion edged San Gabriel Connie Mack 4-3 in a non-league encounter, the Walnut Thorobreds nipped Charter Oak 9-8 in a San Gabriel Valley loop game, Rowland dropped a 5-4 decision to LaPuente Legion in a District 18 league game, San Dimas posted a 8-5 Pomona Valley Big League win over Pomona Southwest, and Pomona National was also a winner in Big League action, beating Pomona Northwest 4-3.

LaVerne rode to victory on the pitching arm of Bill Bumstead, who fired a four-hitter.

Marty Schroedter drove home two of the four LaVerne runs as they improved their season mark to 8-3.

The Walnut Reds held off Charter Oak to win their opener in the San Gabriel Valley Thorobred League. Sefio Purcell, Jeff Corkill, and Bob Adams paced the Reds' attack, while Jim Vallandingham pushed his mound mark to 3-0 with the win.

LaPuente pushed across a run in the 11th inning to beat Rowland Legion in their District 18 debut. Dave Bourque pitched the distance in dropping the hill decision.

In the other District 18 game Saturday, Claremont and South Pasadena suspended action after eight and one-half innings with their score knotted at 7-all, due to a curfew. The two teams will resume the game today at 1 p.m. at Pomona College, and then play a regularly slated contest immediately afterward.

San Dimas survived a late Southwest rally to post a 8-5 win and stay atop the Big League standings with a 6-1 mark. Rich Espinosa hurled the win for S.D.

Pomona National also posted a Big League win, as Doug Seiner's fine relief job and triples by Mike Forsyth and Mike Willett netted a 4-3 decision over Pomona Northwest and pitcher Cleve Porter.

The 1974 Leo baseball team has what Drake terms "a pretty good mixture of youth and age." And he adds one more very important ingredient.

"This is really a close-knit team," he observed. "Just like we were in '72. Last year we weren't. Like 1972, everything now is positive. Last year there were some negative feelings."

One thing about coaching has surprised Drake greatly. "I feel more tired by the time a game ends now then I did as a player," he grinned.

TOURNAMENT TOPICS — In Saturday's games, High Point (N.C.) became the first team to be eliminated. Point Park College (18-4) edged the third-ranked Purple Panthers (31-10) 2-1.

Sam Houston State righthander Jim Miller (11-) hurled a two-hitter as the fifth-ranked Bear Kats blanked Fort Hays State 5-0. Second-rated David Lipscomb got three-hit pitching from big Mike McLaughlin (13-4) in beating Wisconsin-Oshkosh 6-0.

Fort Hays St. (26-17) plays Wisconsin-Oshkosh (27-10) at 11:30 a.m. (PDT) today. La-Verne and Lewis meet at 3:30 p.m. (PDT), and David Lipscomb (46-9) clashes with Sam Houston State (39-9 at 6 p.m. (PDT).

Lewis University is without its regular shortstop in the national tourney. Jim Alessio, who batted .329 and drove in 48 runs, broke his hand on a fishing trip Tuesday.

The Flyers' leading hitter is leftfielder George DiMatteo who sports a .428 average in 38 games. The team average going into the finals was .324, second highest among the eight teams.

USC must sweep today

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — First baseman Blaine Calder's two-run homer capped a three-run rally after two out in the ninth inning to give Pepperdine a 4-2 victory over University of Southern California Saturday in the first game of the NCAA District-8 baseball finals.

USC, winner of the NCAA title the last five years, must sweep a doubleheader from Pepperdine today to capture the best-of-three game set and advance to the College Baseball World Series June 7 at Omaha, Neb.

Pepperdine trailed 2-1 entering the ninth inning. But John Guarino reached base on a throwing error by USC's Marvin Cobb, advanced to second on a sacrifice, and after a fly out scored the tying run on a single by Carlo Mejia. Calder then drilled his third home run of the season off losing pitcher Jorn Racanelli (7-4).

Pat Murphy (13-2) was the winner for Pepperdine, now 38-10 for the season. USC—winner of nine NCAA crowns—is 43-19.

Christian quits at Upland

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

Another local coaching dynasty is coming to an end.

His presence will be missed not only by his own players but also the players and coaches of the other San Antonio League teams.

He's never been known for giving Knute Rockne type of pep talks. In fact, he's more easily identifiable by the tape recorder hooked to his belt when he sets foot on the baseball field.

The competitiveness of his teams is illustrated by the fact that the Highlanders tied for the SAL crown in 1968, 69 and 71 and in 1974 won the championship outright while advancing to the CIF 3-A quarter-finals.

Herb Christian is stepping down after 145 victories and 11 years as head varsity baseball coach at Upland High.

"I felt I'd been at it long enough," said the former Claremont High graduate ('49). "After 16 years of coaching and with my classroom hours making me be constantly on my feet (10½-11 hrs. per day). There are just some things I couldn't do any more.

"When I get to the point where I can't do the things I want to do all season long it's time to get along.

"It'll also give me a chance to do a lot of other things I'd like to do. My 11 year-old son is playing little league ball and I'd like to spend more time with him. I'm just fortunate to go out a winner."

Christian guided Upland to its first San Antonio League solo championship (12-2) and its best overall season ever (20-6) this year. Both set new school marks for league wins and yearly victories in a season.

The '74 Highlander version also downed Los Amigos and Corona before losing to Nogales in the CIF3-A baseball playoffs.

Christian feels that momentum has been the key to his success.

"If the kids look forward to each game then baseball will be more exciting for them and for the fans. I try not to let the kids stand around and so I try to make the practices more interesting.

"Since practices are so important — important in that the kids work hard — I try not to let the practices get boring by doing different things during batting practice and infield practice. Hopefully we work on the fundamentals and game-type situations that they get to the point where their reactions are automatic."

"Since I rarely give them a Knute Rockne type of pep talk, I try to get them mentally prepared by trying to build up momentum which is the key to success," continued Christian.

"We had momentum this year until the Montclair game in the first round. They started propelling themselves right after the Pomona tourney and peaked in the 6-1 win over Damien. The whole team played real well up until the final two games of the season which made me concerned for the playoffs."

"But we had a good attitude against Los Amigos and Corona and we lost to a very good Nogales team, which was proven by their win over El Segundo.

"The most rewarding part is working with the kids in the game of baseball. I've had super kids all the way through, even the early years when the teams were down," said the not so successful hitter in college. "I've really enjoyed working with the kids and helping to develop them into baseball players."

Holy cow! It will sure seem strange not seeing Herb Christian next season with that tape recorder hooked on to his belt. But even morely missed will be his favorite slogan after one of his players drops a fly ball — Holy cow!

Quarrie wins 100 in Kennedy meet

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Don Quarrie, the little Olympian from Jamaica, nipped world record holder Ivory Crockett and Steve Williams in the 100-yard dash at the Kennedy Games Saturday, then became a double winner when he took the 220 in a breeze before a crowd of about 11,000.

Quarrie, Crockett, who took the world record to nine seconds flat three weeks ago, and Williams, who shared the old mark of 9.1 with five others, all were clocked in 9.4 over the relatively slow cinder and clay track at Edwards Stadium.

In the 220, Quarrie had little competition and won easily in 20.7, but had to share honors for the day with Maren Seidler, who broke the American women's shotput record for the second week in a row.

Miss Seidler, who took her own American mark to 56-½ a week ago in the Cal Relays at Modesto improved on that mark by 5-½ inches but still is nearly four feet off the world record of 70-4 ½ set by Nadezhda Chizhova of Russia a year ago.

While most of the crowd focused its attention on Crockett, who took the world mark to nine seconds flat three weeks ago, and Williams, who shared the old standard of 9.1 with five others, Quarrie sneaked up fast on the inside to win by an eyelash.

The shotput and discus were two other fine events with world record holder Al Feuerbach winning the shot over George Woods for the second time in less than 24 hours and John Powell taking the discus over a so-so field.

Feuerbach, who won the U.S. Track and Field Federation title over Woods at Wichita, Kans., Friday night, won Saturday with a throw of 69-11. That was 11 ½ inches shorter than his Friday victory.

Woods, who did 70-3 ½ Friday, was second at 69-2. In head-to-head competition this year, Feuerbach has beaten Woods, who holds the world indoor mark at 72-2 ¾, only four times in 14 matches.

Powell, who had a 223-4 discus throw a week ago at the Cal Relays, won this time while throwing into a wind at 215 even.

In other events of note, Peter Farmer, the Australian champ from UTEP, took the hammer with a throw of 222-4. Arnie Robinson won the long jump at 25-9 ½, and the University of California upset the Philadelphia Pioneers in the 440-relay in 40 seconds flat.

National League roundup

Pirates pound Reds with 18-hit attack

By United Press International

The Pittsburgh Pirates pounded five Cincinnati Reds pitchers for 18 hits, including homers by Richie Hebner, Rickie Zisk and Bob Robertson, en route to their easy 14-1 victory Saturday over the Reds behind the eight-hit pitching of Ken Brett.

The victory was the sixth this season against three losses for Brett and ended a Reds winning streak at seven games. The Pirate lefthander, who walked two and struck out two, contributed a single and a double to the assault.

Robertson's bases-empty home run was his seventh of the season and fifth in his last three games. Hebner's homer came with two men on base and Zisk's with one on. Zisk and Willie Stargel, who doubled twice, each had three hits for Pittsburgh.

In other National League games the Los Angeles Dodgers opened their West Division lead to eight games with a 10-0 win over Chicago, New York beat Houston 3-1, St. Louis nipped San Diego 3-0, Philadelphia whipped San Francisco 6-2, and Montreal slipped by Atlanta in 10 innings, 7-6.

Rusty Staub belted a double and single to drive in two runs and pace New York and Tom Seaver to victory over the Astros.

Seaver, in going the route for his third victory in eight decisions, allowed only a solo homer by Cesar Cedeno in the fourth — Cedeno's 11th of the year — for the Astros' only tally. Seaver walked two and struck out 11.

Mike Schmidt drove in four runs with a pair of homers to lead the Phillies to their victory over San Francisco and give Jim Lonborg his 100th major league triumph.

Schmidt connected for his ninth homer in the first inning after Dave Cash was safe on an error and Larry Bowa hit his first of three singles.

Ken Singleton singled home the winning run with one out in the 10th inning to give Montreal its dramatic 7-6 come-from-behind victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Bob Bailey led off the Expos' 10th with a single and Larry Lintz sacrificed him to second. Losing pitcher Lew Krausse then walked Willie Davis intentionally to pitch to Singleton, who singled sharpy to shallow centerfield to score Bailey.

The Expos, trailing 6-2 with two out in the ninth, rallied for four runs to tie the score at 6-6, with pinch-hitter Bob Stinson's three-run homer capping the rally.

American League roundup

Dempsey rescues Yankees in 13th

By United Press International

Rick Dempsey drove in the tying run with a single in the ninth inning and the winning run on a fielder's choice in the 13th Saturday as the New York Yankees defeated the Minnesota Twins, 6-5.

Fernando Gonzalez singled with one out in the 13th and took third on a single by pinchhitter Gene Michael. Dempsey grounded to shortstop Luis Gomez, whose throw to second forced Michael, but Rod Carew threw wide of first to erase the inning-ending double play chance and allow Gonzalez to cross the plate with the winning run.

The game, which was delayed 45 minutes by rain and took 4:11 to play, was highlighted by the appearance of 36 players, two male streakers and the ejection of Minnesota Manager Frank Quilici by first base umpire Jim Odom.

In other American League games, Oakland downed Milwaukee 4-1, Cleveland beat Kansas City 5-2, Boston defeated Chicago 8-0 and Texas trimmed Baltimore, 4-2.

Deron Johnson, mired in a season-long slump, drove in three runs with a homer and double to lead the Oakland A's to victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Leron Lee belted two home runs including his first major league grand slam, driving in all the runs, and Jim Perry tossed a four-hitter to pace Cleveland to a win over the Kansas City Royals.

Carl Yastrzemski homered and singled twice to drive in three runs in leading Boston to its win over the Chicago White Sox as Luis Tiant notched his second shutout of the season.

The Red Sox jumped on Stan Bahnsen for two runs in the first, one in the third and two in the fourth while handing the White Sox' righthander his fifth loss in 10 decisions.

The bat night crowd exceeded Arlington Stadium's official capacity by over 4,000 and boosted this year's Ranger attendance — tops in the American League — to 160,000 over last year's figure at this time. Texas has now drawn more than 381,000 in 24 dates.

Cards trade for Heidemann

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Cleveland's Jack Heidemann, the 24-year-old utility infielder who was the Indians' No. 1 draft choice in 1967, was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals Friday night for Ed Crosby and Louis Alvarado.

Heidemann and catcher Ray Fosse were traded to Oakland in March, 1973, for catcher Dave Duncan and outfielder George Hendrick.

Heidemann, who was hitting .091 in only 12 games this season with the Tribe, was reacquired on waivers in March of this year.

Alvarado, also a utility infielder, broke into the majors with the Boston Red Sox and was traded to the Chicago White Sox before coming to St. Louis. Alvarado had started in five of the Cards last six games as their regular shortstop the past week.

Braves' Gentry out for season

ATLANTA (UPI) — Atlanta Braves' pitcher Gary Gentry will apparently be out for the rest of the season after undergoing surgery on his throwing arm Friday.

The Braves said bone chips were removed from Gentry's right elbow in his second operation in two years since being acquired from the New York Mets.

A Braves' spokesman said doctors were optimistic about Gentry's chances for a comeback next season. He had pitched only 6 2-3 innings with no decisions this year.

Votaw selected Scot's MVP baseball award

CLAREMONT — Tony Votaw was the recipient of the Most Valuable Player award at the Upland High award sports banquet held at Griswold's Thursday night.

The senior right fielder broke four school records in helping lead the Highlanders to the San Antonio League baseball title and the quarterfinals of the CIF 3-A playoffs.

Votaw, who finished with a season batting mark of .338, set new school marks in home runs and runs batted in. His RBI standards were for driving across 15 runs against league opposition (the old mark was 14) and 24 on the season, better the old mark of 23.

The left handed hitter also smashed four league roundtrippers and six on the season, both establishing new marks.

The Best Pitcher Award went to Steve Iles. The senior righthander won nine of 11 decisions on the year, including a perfect 7-0 SAL slate. He also broke four records for lowest ERA (0.97 in league), most strike-outs in league (62) and on the season (102), and for the highest won-lost percentage (1.000) in league.

Mark Schneekluth was voted the Most Inspirational Player. The Scot co-captain wound up with a .307 average. And the Most Improved Player award went to Jeff Martin, who wound up batting .250 in league after a slow start.

Several other school marks were set. Individual standards were recorded by catcher Russ Feaster who tied a record with 12 walks in league play while Stu DuVall tied Votak in league homers with four. The first sacker also tied the Upland record in triples with three.

Coach Herb Christian guided Upland to its best overall season ever, 20-6, and the Scots equalled their previously high number of league wins with 12.

Walton likes Oregon, will live in Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Bill Walton, looking at the Oregon sunshine from his hospital bedroom, said Friday he likes it so much here that he may never go back to Los Angeles.

Walton, the UCLA basketball superstar recently signed by the Portland Trail Blazers of the NBA, is recovering from minor knee surgery.

He has purchased riverfront property just south of Portland.

"I'm going to live here a long time," he said. "I wouldn't have come up here if I didn't like it in Oregon."

He was asked if he would keep in contact with UCLA coach John Wooden.

"I don't know. He's staying in Los Angeles and I don't know if I'll ever go back there again."

Walton said he was anxious to backpack through Oregon's scenic country. His backpack lies near his bed and books on Oregon bicycle trails are in his room.

He said he didn't know when he would be up and around. "I get up three times a day now, but getting around again is a different story."

When asked what he planned to do with his riverfront land he said, "I'm going to try and grow some food to eat. You can't do that in Los Angeles."

Padres release Jim McAndrew

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The San Diego Padres are asking waivers on pitcher Jim McAndrew for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release, a spokesman for the National League club said Saturday.

McAndrew was replaced on the team's 25-man roster by Lowell Palmer, who already has joined the club, the spokesman said.

McAndrew, 1-4, appeared in 15 games with the Padres. He posted a 5.57 ERA, had 16 strikeouts and 13 walks and gave up seven home runs.

Palmer, 26, a right handed New York Yankee pitcher, was obtained by the Padres Friday. He had a 5-1 mark and 48 strikeouts in 43 innings with the Yankees' Syracuse farm club in the International League.

The fourth annual Corona National Championship, one of the few 36-hole stroke play tournaments in the southland, will be played Saturday-Sunday, June 15-16 at Corona National Golf Club.

The entry fee, which includes greens fees, is only $20.

Host pro Tom McHugh said competition will be in four flights, the championship and three handicap divisions.

"In the handicap flights, we'll have one prize for low gross and four net prizes. And we'll have a couple of prizes for gross and net in the championship," said McHugh.

Entries may be mailed to McHugh at Corona National Golf Club, 1500 Greenbriar Road, Corona, Calif. 91720. The telephone is (714) 737-2303. From Orange County, 839-2362.

AUTO RACING celebrities will join with Hollywood personalities and stars of the sports world in the annual Econo Auto Center-Tuborg 400 Invitational Golf Tournament Saturday at Riverside's challenging Indian Hills Country Club.

The golf tourney is a prelude to Sunday's doubleheader race classic, the Tuborg 400 and the California 100 at the Riverside International Raceway.

A number of special prizes will be awarded, including a Datsun 260-Z sports car for a hole-in-one on the 11th hole.

VALLEY RESIDENTS will have the opportunity to watch television and motion picture celebrities team with local amateur golfers in the Hollywood Hackers Celebrity Golf Tournament Friday at South Hills Country Club, West Covina.

The tournament is sponsored by the Auxiliary of Inter-Community Hospital with proceeds going toward the new coronary care pavilion now under construction at the Covina hospital.

Gallery admission will be open to the public starting at 11:00 a.m. Gallery tickets, selling for $2.50 each, went on sale this week and are available in the volunteer office of Inter-Community.

THE FIFTH annual memorial Don Edwards golf tournament will be played Saturday at El Rancho Verde near Rialto. The tournament is sponsored by the Citrus College Department of Athletics. All proceeds from the tourney are turned over to the Don Edwards Memorial Scholarship Fund and in turn handed out in the form of financial aid to needy students to continue their education at Citrus.

Entry blanks for the shotgun start tourney may be obtained by calling the athletic department at (213) 335-0521, extension 304 or 263. Entry fees of $15 include greens fee, buffet dinner, and prizes. The fee is tax deductible. Checks should be made out to the Don Edwards Memorial Scholarship Fund and mailed to the College at 18824 East Foothill Blvd., Azusa, CA 91702.

RESULTS FROM HERE AND THERE: Joe Haley shared low net honors with Harold Dotts recently in the Palm Lake Men's Club May tournament. Both shot 54 . . . Betty's foursome shot a two-best-ball 123.

'Wulfe' leads North roster for All-Stars

COSTA MESA — All-time CIF scoring champion Mark Wulfemeyer of Troy High School will lead the North contingent in the ninth annual Orange County High School all star basketball game scheduled for June 15 at Orange Coast College.

North coach Nash Rivear of El Dorado High is hopeful that Wulfemeyer can provide the punch to break the South's three-game winning streak in the classic. This will be the final prep appearance of the Troy flash who scored a total of 2,608 points during his high school career. He is set to play for coach Bob Boyd's USC Trojans next season.

The all star contest, sponsored by the Costa Mesa Kiwanis Club, features the country's top graduating seniors. Tipoff is slated for 8 p.m. in OCC's Peterson Gym. The South holds the series edge, 6-2.

Other outstanding stars on the North roster include a trio of 6-5 forwards in James DeWeese of El Dorado, Mat Porter of Kennedy and Jeff Welshans of Katella. Bill August is a strong 6-8 center from Lowell.

HE'S HANDLING IT — Houston Astros coach Preston Gomez (left) doesn't think an off-season shooting incident in which centerfielder Cesar Cedeno (right) pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter has changed the athlete. Gomez says he's handled the situation well.

Hollypark greets Agitate

INGLEWOOD — Agitate, whose perfect career record is marred only by third-place finishes in the Kentucky and Santa Anita Derbies, will open a campaign aimed at Hollywood Park's rich "Double Crown" when he makes his Inglewood debut today in the $60,000 Argonaut Handicap.

Trainer James Jimenez hopes the Meeken Stable three-year-old will complete his Hollypark agenda with a trio of victories that also will include the $100,000 Swaps Stakes, Hollypark's newest event for sophomores, on June 30, and the $150,000 Hollywood Derby, July 14.

Sunday racegoers, in addition to seeing Agitate in action against the cream of the western three-year-old crop, also will have an opportunity to compete for $41,000 in prizes in "Sunday Sweep", the weekly contest that rewards patrons for their handicapping skills.

Modus Vivendi, conqueror of previously unbeaten Miss Musket in the recent Railbird Stakes, also will race this weekend at Hollypark, as she is set to contest the $40,000 Princess Stakes on Saturday.

Agitate, who overcame traffic trouble to be third in the Run for the Roses, recorded a sensational mile workout in 1:34 3-5 preparing for the Argonaut and the Californaa Deby victor is likely to be a solid favorite for the mile and-one-eighth main-trrack event.

Heading his opposition will be Stardust Mell Shirley's Champion and Battery E., one-two-three finishers in the El Dorado Handicap two weeks ago. The field also will include Aloha Mood, unplaced in the El Dorado but second in the Santa Anita Deby and the Arcadia meet's top-ranked three-year-old.

The mile and one-sixteenth Princess will find Modus Vivendi, a winner of five of seven starts, seeking her first score around two turns. In her one prior distance try, she was pulled up during the Santa Susana Stakes when unable to handle a muddy track.

Fleet Peach and Special Goddess, who accounted for California's two richest races for juvnile fillies in 1973; Lucky Spell, Stone Cottage and Bedknob all are regarded likely foes for Modus Vivendi.

Maddox figuring in Yankee plans

NEW YORK (UPI) — There was DiMaggio . . . Mantle . . . Murcer and, now, Elliott Maddox.

Elliott Maddox?

Maddox, who's noted by trivia experts mainly for being a throw-in when the Detroit Tigers unloaded Denny McLain on Bob Short, has suddenly found himself in the midst of a major controversy.

Yankee manager Bill Virdon, unhappy with Murcer's fielding in center, has decided to shift Murcer to right and play Maddox in center. Virdon, a fine fielding centerfielder in his day, knows the way the position should be played—and he thinks Maddox plays it better than Murcer.

That means Maddox is getting a lot of attention these days but he's treating a ticklish situation with a sense of humor.

It isn't every day that a guy who was a benchwarmer in Texas beats an All-Star performer out of his position.

"When is the last time you saw this many reporters around your locker," one writer asked Maddox after Virdon put the change into effect on May 28.

"Not since I set fire to my high school gym," Maddox smiled.

He added, "I don't like being in the middle of this thing but I had nothing to do with it. Virdon's the boss and he did what he thought was best for the team. Murcer's a pro and I'm sure he realized the move was for the best of the club."

Maddox came off the University of Michigan campus in 1968 as the Big Ten batting champion when he signed with the Detroit Tigers.

Since then he's impressed baseball observers with his glove but his hitting has left something to be desired. After all, if you can't break into the Texas Rangers' lineup, you have problems.

But Maddox has a familiar complaint—one heard from nearly every benchwarmer. He says he never really got a chance to play regularly to prove if he could hit.

"Baseball is fun for me again," he said. "It's been a frustrating four years. I just haven't had the chance to play every day."

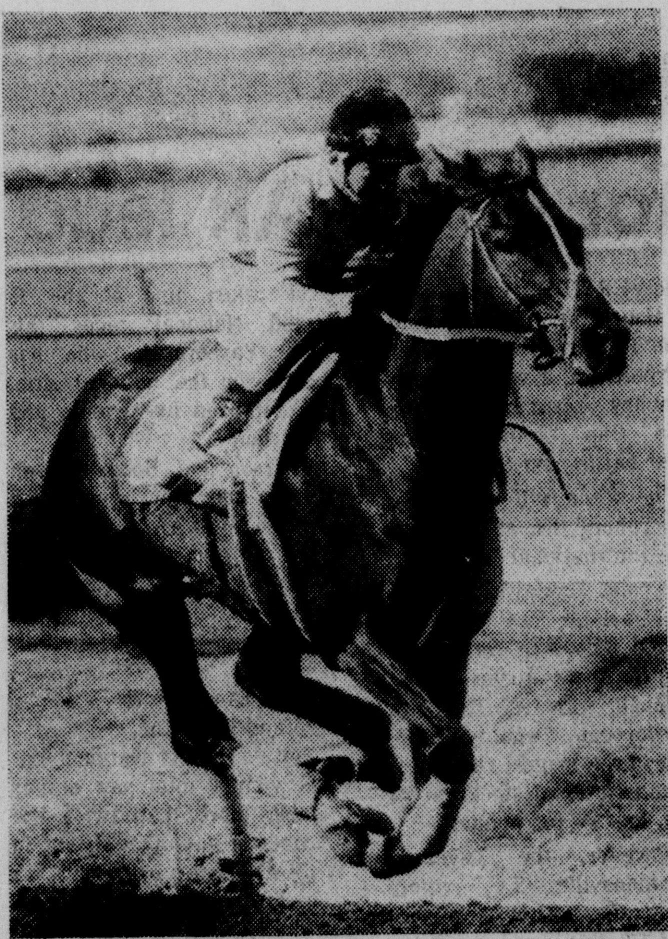
Virdonsi

Virdon is indicating that all Maddox has to do to keep the job is to hit .260. Old-timers would cringe at the thought of a Yankee centerfielder hitting .260. But Maddox, now hovering around .280, figures he can keep his average close to .280 if he stays in the lineup.

Maddox spent the 1968 and 1969 seasons in the minors and hit .248 in 109 games for the Tigers in 1970. At the end of that season, the Tigers were trying to get rid of McLain. Bob Short, who then owned the Washington team, wanted him badly. Short didn't realize McLain was finished.

In one of the great heists in baseball history, the Tigers got Joe Coleman, Aurelio Rodriguez and Ed Brinkman— who've all helped the club— along with Jim Hannan, for McLain, Norm McRae, Don Wert—and Maddox.

Maddox spent the 1971 season in Washington and then shifted to Texas when the franchise was moved in 1972. In three seasons, he was at bat 258, 294 and 172 times a year. He hit .217, .252 and .238 those three seasons and that left him with a .239 lifetime average.



ARGONAUT PREP—Meeken Stable's Agitate will make his Hollywood Park debut today when he faces the West's best three-year-olds in the $60,000 Argonaut Handicap. Bill Shoemaker is the regular jockey.

Contreras-led South stars are announced

COSTA MESA — South coach Jim Stephens of Marina High School has announced his roster for the ninth annual Orange County High School all star basketball game slated for June 15 at Orange Coast College.

The contest features the country's top graduating seniors and is sponsored by the Costa Mesa Kiwanis Club. Tipoff is scheduled for 8 p.m. in OCC's Peterson Gym.

This year's Rebel quintet is paced by Huntington Beach High School's flashy 5-10 guard, Raul Contreras.

Contreras led the Oilers to a tie for the Sunset League title this past season and was an All-Sunset League first team choice in addition to being All-CIF. He averaged 23.5 points per game.

Other outstanding stars on the South roster include forward R. B. Jamison of Santa Ana Valley and Dan Malane of Fountain Valley, and guards Bob Yoder of San Clemente, Jim Swain of Costa Mesa and Brendon McCaughey of Mater Dei.

Self-imposed cool

Cedeno stays quiet

HOUSTON (UPI) — Cat-quick Cesar Cedeno, called out on an attempted steal at second base, shot to his feet.

He thought he had hooked around the tag of San Diego's Derrel Thomas and he wanted to protest. Oh, how Cedeno wanted to tell the umpire how he did it.

But any trouble, on the field or off, is like an 0-25 batting slump these days for the Houston Astros' young superstar centerfielder. He avoids both.

Cedeno may be a better ball player for his new self-imposed cool.

Coach Preston Gomez doesn't think an off-season shooting incident, in which Cedeno pleaded guilty to the involuntary manslaughter of a young Santo Dominican girl, has changed the athlete.

"This boy has handled the situation as good as anybody could handle it," Gomez said. "And the fans, the players, both at home and away, they've been outstanding with this boy because they see the great athlete he is.

"There is no question about it. They understand it was an accident just like he told me and he has told everybody. And it's gone by."

Cedeno, 23, a five-year veteran who has led the Astros in batting the past two years, refuses to discuss the incident which threatened his already brilliant career.

Despite hitting .290 before the Astros left town recently for an extended road swing, Cedeno said there was no problem.

"There hasn't been no problem," he said in broken English. "It's just that sometimes you go out there and you do something wrong. It take you a while to find out, especially when I been hitting home runs I really get in trouble, you know, because I always try to hit the ball out of the park."

Although injury-prone the past two seasons, Cedeno has been playing regularly so far. Only Lee May has shared Cedeno's position in not being moved around in the batting order.

After 47 games, Cedeno led the team in home runs with nine, RBIs (38), doubles (12) and stolen bases (25). He had committed just two errors.

But one thing bothers him. The Astros, one game out of the National League West early in May, slid to 10 straight losses to drop way behind Los Angeles.

"Nothing is the matter," he said. "It's just the same way you can win 10. You can go out there and the same way we have been losing, we can win.

"It would be the same feeling, I mean, we are hardly pressing at all. We know we are going to win. This is not a last place ball club. We don't have to worry about it."

Catchers around the league are fretting more this season because Cedeno has a free pass to steal. And the swift 190 - pounder is going first class—he takes off every chance he gets, unmindful of the resulting bumps and bruises.

"I don't mind about the stolen base crown," he said. "I was third last coupla year. I do it for the ball club. I don't wanta get no stolen base title. I don't wanta become that type of ball player."

And the batting title?

"I would love that; I would love it," said Cedeno, breaking into a broad grin. "Every year it looks, the last couple of years, like I am going to win it. I'll be there again this year."

Gomez agrees.

"I tell him, I say Cedeno, anybody that's as gooda hitter as you are, sometimes you have to give credit to the pitcher, they gonna get you out.

"But he is one to be perfect, you know. He's not satisfied with hitting just .290 or .301, he just wants to hit, because he knows he's a gooda hitter, and he is a gooda hitter, no question about it."

Cedeno, like his fellow Latin American and confidant, Gomez, loves the game. They both arrive at the ball park early. They both prepare exhaustively and because of Cedeno's readiness, the centerfielder earns his team's respect.

"You take our players," Gomez said. "They look up to him. They call him 'Nino, meaning in English, baby, and it just amazes our players to see some of the things he does in the field.

"He might be the best ball player right now in baseball."

It was Gomez, more than anyone, who sat down with Cedeno after he returned to the United States following the shooting incident and trial. The two could be seen talking late into the Florida night. Cedeno was reminded to cool it when the going got hot.

And, according to one Astro teammate, the burner under Cedeno heated up quickly.

"It happened in Winter Haven, Fla.," the player recalled. "Cesar popped up and then headed for the dugout. A couple of guys sitting behind the dugout yelled real loud at him, 'Hey, Cedeno, why don't you shoot the pitcher?'"

"Cesar stopped, looked at the guys, and then lowered his head and trotted into the dugout.

"The same two guys came up to Cesar after the game and asked for his autograph."

Sports parade

NEW YORK (UPI) — Finally, inevitably, the sludge from Watergate has spilled over and begun to contaminate baseball.

The effects keep growing more and more apparent in ballparks all over the country— Candlestick Park, San Francisco; Riverfront Stadium, Cincinnati; Dodger Stadium, Los Angeles; Arlington Stadium, Arlington, Tex.; San Diego Stadium in San Diego and Shea Stadium right here in New York.

He keeps saying he won't resign, and he sounds like the baseball manager who has lost control of his ball club but keeps saying, don't worry, we're going to bounce back soon.

The lawmakers in this country aren't at all sure he will.

Much more important, the people aren't sure. They're confused, alarmed and anguished over what happened at Watergate. They have difficulty distinguishing right from wrong anymore and few places has their general despair become more evident than at the baseball parks.

Baseball fans have taken to verbalizing their dismay and it comes out in a terrible Exorcist form of raw abuse upon the ballplayers. Fan abuse and rowdyism in baseball aren't really anything new, but now they seem to be reaching unprecedented proportions.

Bad incidents

Houston outfielder Bob Watson runs into a wall in Cincinnati and some imbeciles throw beer on him while he lies injured on the ground...Pete Rose of the Reds has obscenities hurled at him in San Francisco and Los Angeles, obscenities so vile that no man possibly could endure them...Sitting in the visitors' dugout at Candlestick Park, Hank Aaron is hit by a thrown orange...Kids have to be stopped by police from turning over players cars at Shea Stadium ...Cleveland catcher Dave Duncan is so enraged after being splashed by beer in Arlington that he tries to lead a group of players into the stands...and with the Reds due back at Shea Stadium next Monday night for the first time since last Fall's playoff with the Mets, at which some fans went berserk following a run-in between Rose and Bud Harrelson, there is some question as to the reception Rose will receive.

One emininent psychologist, Dr. Lucille Blum, training analyst and senior supervisor at New York's Post Graduate Center for Mental Health, sees where the general mood of people today easily can translate itself into the type behavior being manifest so often now in the ballparks.

"Everybody is quite apprehensive," she says. "The uncertainty of the future is a little more intensified now because of our national condition, and whatever resentment people have, the ballpark is a very compatible atmosphere in which to show it. This is a form of aggressive or immature behavior with them. The words these people are using on the ballplayers are ones they are normally prohibited from saying. Throwing beer is also a child-like action which fits into the general pattern of repression."

Pete Rose has a theory which pretty much coincides.

"We have to face it," he says. "People's frustrations seem much greater today today than they were, say, 20-25 years ago. Stop and think a minute. What better place for someone to relieve his frustrations than in a baseball park? The ballpark is warm and comfortable. It's outdoors and affords a perfect opportunity for free expression. Where else can a guy walk in and call someone making $100,000 anything he wants, practically to his face, without being answered back?

Vulgar language

"Some of the things I heard the fans say to me from the stands in San Francisco and Los Angeles I just couldn't believe. I've heard vulgar language in my life, but nothing like this. In San Francisco, I went back to catch a fly ball and an ice cube was thrown at me. Then came the language. I thought maybe I was getting it because I beat out Bobby Bonds in the MVP, or because Harrelson comes from right across the way (Hayward, Calif.). Then in Los Angeles, I'm playing leftfield, there are 38,000 people there and this one group of 20 guys keep yelling 'Rose, Rose, bleep Rose!' So loud, you can hear it in our dugout all the way down near home plate. Later they begin throwing things. Ice, garbage, a whiskey bottle and a big firecracker. In San Diego, it was so bad the first night we were there, Sparky Anderson told me to wear my helmet in the field, and I did.

"Boos are part of the game," Rose concedes. "You don't mind them so much, but some of the guys sit there all night and say things about your wife and your mother that nobody in the world can take. How is a man supposed to concentrate when he hears things like that? I went 0 for 13 in those three games in Los Angeles. I found myself playing half out of position. One thing I want to emphasize —it's never ALL the fans. Ninety-eight per cent of the fans in Los Angeles are great. They stand up and clap when I go out to my position. But those other two per cent...absolutely unbelievable."

Pete Rose isn't a complainer.

If he complains, there's good reason, and if Watergate is responsible for much of this, which it seems to be, then that's bad. Very bad.

Richard Nixon loves baseball and used to come out to the ballpark. No more. Do you wonder why?

Wohlhuter enters AAU meet

LOS ANGELES — World record holder Rick Wohlhuter and three of the most accomplished distance runners in the world have been added to the field for the 86th annual National AAU Track & Fiepd Championships at UCLA's Drake Stadium June 21-22.

New Zealand stars Rod Dixon and Dick Quax, along with Irelands's Neil Cusack, the winner of this year's Boston Marathon, will also run in the meet, which is being sponsored by the Los Angeles Times with proceeds going to youth activities in Southern California.

Wohlhuter, a 1972 Olympian, holds he world's record at 880 yards (1:44.6) and is the No. 1 ranked half-miler in the world.

The 25-yard old Chicago insurance man will be gunning for Marcello Fiascanaro's world record at 800 meters (1:43.7) at the Nationals. In his last outdoor appearance in Los Angeles, Wohlhuter ran a 1:43.9 at the Coliseum to set the [illegible] meter world mark, [illegible] Italy's Fiascanaro claimed the world mark a month later in Europe.

Dixon, the No.3 ranked miler in the world last year, and a bronze medal winner at 1500 meters in the 1972 Olympics, should prove to be a formidable foe for America's young milers led by world indoor record holder Tony Waldrop of North Carolina.

The 23-year old Dixon lost only one race during the 1973 season, running a 3:37.3 1500 meters at Oslo behind Filbert Bayi of Tanzania. His personal best at the distance was recorded last February at the Commonwealth Games when he ran 3:33.9, again behind Bayi.

Quax was ranked No. 5 in the world at 1500 meters in 1973 at 1500 meters and No. 2 at 5000 meters. His lifetime best at 5000 meters the distance he will run at the AAU Meet, is 12:18.4 at Stockholm in '73.

Cusack, a student at East Tennessee State, will compete at 10,000 meters. His Boston Marathon win was only his second attempt ever at that distance.

Other entries already announced by meet director Glenn Davis include Waldrop and Marty Liquori in the 1500 meters, New Zealander John Walker in the 800, Commonwealth Games gold medalist Dic Tayler in the 10,000 meters and a remach in the 100 meters between Steve Williams of San Diego State, the No. 1 ranked sprinter in the world in 1973, and Ivory Crockett of the Philadelphia Pioneers, the first man to run the 100 yard dash in 9 seconds flat.

Tickets for the meet are now on sale at the UCLA Athletic Ticket Office, Times Special Events, 212 W. First St., Pacific Stereo, 637 S. Hill St., and all Mutual Ticket Agencies.

Oldest homer mark

BOSTON (UPI) — The oldest major league batting record was set in 1894 when Bobby Lowe of the Boston Braves became the first man to hit four home runs in a single game.

RIVERSIDE — Hershel McGriff, at 46, one of the oldest active auto race drivers, heads a list of 60 entries who will be on hand today at Riverside International Raceway when qualifying begins for the California 100 next Sunday.

The California 100 will be part of a classic doubleheader on next Sunday's card that features the Tuborg 400 Grand National race for an $80,000 jackpot, as well.

Riverside's 2.62 mile, eight turn road course, has been a particular favorite for McGriff. He opened the current racing season by winning his third Permatex 200 and is the defending champion in the California 100.

Last year McGriff piloted his 1969 Olympia Chevelle to a narrow victory over Simi Valley's Ron Hornaday, Sunnymead's Roy Bleckert, Ivan Baldwin of Highland and Ron Esau, San Diego. All four have again, filed entries for next week's race.

Also entered in the California 100 is veteran Clem Proctor, of Paramount, one of the most dominant drivers in Riverside's sportsman events over the past five years. Proctor drives a 1968 Ford Torino.

Among those expected to take qualifying runs today to determine the 40-man starting grid are the Esau brothers Ronald and Larry from San Diego Danny (Duke) Dunn, Riverside, Ray Johnstone, San Bernardino and Don Puskarich, Garden Grove.

Practice begins today at 9 a.m. with qualifying starting at 1 p.m. Race time for the California 100 next week is set for 11 a.m. with the Tuborg 400 following at 1 p.m.

Tickets for the doubleheader classic can be purchased at all Ticketron and Liberty agencies and at Riverside Raceway.

Battle continues for NASCAR lead

The scene will be the $80,000 Tuborg 400 at the Riverside International Raceway.

In last Sunday's World 600 at Charlotte, N.C., Petty finished second to David Pearson to move ahead of Yarborough with 987.155 points. Yarborough, who came in 11th in the longest race on the Grand National stock car circuit, has 952.835 points.

However, the 33-year-old Timmonsville, S.C., veteran holds the money lead with $124,770 this year to Petty's $115,635.

The two stock car rivals have taken nine of the 13 Grand National races this year. Yarborough, who has never won the national title, has captured five events and Petty four.

Pearson and Bobby Allison are the only other winners on the 1974 NASCAR circuit.

In addition to Riverside, Yarborough has scored victories at Bristol, Atlanta, Martinsville and Dover. Petty's wins were at Daytona, Rockingham, North Wilkesboro and Nashville.

Petty's Grand National career victory total now stands at 158, more than twice the number of any other driver in NASCAR history.

It's Blalock vs. 15 men in celeb tennis tourney

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Janie Blalock, a touring golf pro, has been working on her tennis game in preparation for the fourth annual Dewar's Sports Celebrity tennis tournament June 3-4.

All the other 15 entrants are men, including seven pro football stars. One of them will be drawn as Miss Blalock's partner for the round robin doubles competition.

"When I was at Rollins College, I played golf and tennis and almost chose tennis as a career," said Janie. "I think I can play tennis as well as any of these men."

No big advance sale

Rose back to N.Y.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pete Rose thinks, "they'll never forget it there."

But the New York Mets fans seem to be less than overwhelmed about the return of "Charley Hustle" to New Yorks Shea Stadium for the first time since his celebrated fight with Bud Harrelson in the National League playoffs last season.

"Theres been no big advance sale," said business manager James K. Thomson Thursday for the Mets' game against the Cincinnati Reds on Monday night.

The Reds are here Monday and Tuesday night and then, after an off day on Wednesday, they also play on Thursday afternoon.

"We feel we have good fans and we expect a peaceful game," Thomson said. But he didn't want to comment on any queries about whether extra police were being assigned to the game.

Rose and Harrelson met for the first time on the field since last year in Cincinnati last week when the Reds played at Riverfront Stadium. Harrelson was booed by the Cincinnati fans but there were no incidents.

While Harrelson has been getting almost no reaction from fans around the league, Rose has been the target off boo-birds in several cities—and was the target of ice cubes in San Francisco.

The fight took place in the third game of the playoffs last year when Rose barreled into Harrelson at second—Harrelson insisted Rose threw an elbow at him—and the two players started scuffling.

Wayne Garrett of the Mets came running from third and jumped and Rose's back and the two benches quickly emptied.

He was also booed vociferously throughout the game and the fans brought many signs— several of which couldn't be printed in a family newspaper.

The booing continued in the fifth game and Rose was on base when the game, which the Mets' won, ended and he made a dash to the dugout as fans engulfed the field. Some Reds' officials and their wives were overrun in the melee.

Rose, who hit .338 last year when he was named the National League's Most Valuable Player, has been slumping and the the booing he's been getting seems to be bothering him.

"What do you tell your kid when he asks you why they're booing you?" Rose asks. "It takes some of the fun out of the game."

California stays no. 1 for fishing

LONG BEACH — California remains the undisputed fishing capital of the nation, leading all states in numbers of licensed sport fishermen.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service reported that California last year accounted for nearly 10 percent of all fishermen in the country, topping second-place Texas by 600,000. California issued 2,199,190 fishing licenses during the year.

Other leading states and the numbers of paid fishing license holders were: Texas, 1,599,905; Minnesota, 1,465,501; Wisconsin, 1,395,493; and Michigan, 1,076,982.

California ranked fifth during the year among states in hunting licenses with 641,319. Pensylvania, the leader had 1,141,385, Texas had 822,968, Michigan 753,808, and New York 652,468. The California Michigan and New York totals all were down from those for the previous year.

MATCH RACE DOUBTFUL — Plans for a winner-take-all match race for $110,000 between the champion quarterhorse mare, Charter Bar, and a 'mystery' gray thoroughbred from the Southwest named Beduino at Los Alamitos in mid-July have apparently fallen through.

Charger Bar's owner, George Allred, and Justo Fernandez, who owns Beduino, reportedly were to put up $50,000 each and Frank Vessels another $10,000 on the track's behalf for the special race.

Allred, however, apparently felt that the match race would interfere with Charger Bar's regular Los Alamitos stakes schedule and, at least for the moment is declining.

Beduino, according to rumors, is unbeaten in 13 match races in the Southwest, numbering among his victims Come Six and Chariwari.

Charger Bar, meanwhile, will now point to the $10,000 Chicado V. Purse on June 7 following her eighth consecutive victory last Monday night.

PENNY ANN SCORES — Horse racing's famous women's libber, Penny Ann Early, reached the winner's circle Monday at Golden Gate.

In the midst of a riding comeback, Penny Ann won a special all-girls exhibition race Memorial Day, guiding Crombie's Lady to an easy five furlong victory.

While the race was a nonwagering affair, it did carry a purse and surprisingly, produced a claim.

DeLima had a busy day Monday at the Northern track. In addition to claiming Crombie's Lady, he also haltered Gemel, runnerup in the seventh race, and saddled the veteran sprinter Kissin George to a victory in the sixth race.

NO DATE CHANGES — The California Horse Racing Board meets Thursday in Inglewood to discuss the state's 1975 racing calendar, and for the first time in years, no major changes are anticipated.

Now that the newer meetings, such as Southern California Racing Association, the Horseman's Quarterhorse session and the Cal-Cap trotting meet are now settled the overall schedule finally falls into place.

About the only discussion point at this juncture is the closing day at Santa Anita and the opener at Hollywood Park in 1975.

SALES PITCH — Hollywood Park officials are busy behind the scenes attempting to lure Kentucky Derby winner Cannonade, Preakness hero Little Current and Florida Derby champion Judger West for the Swaps Stakes for three-year-olds on June 30.

Whether or not they can pull off the coup remains to be seen, but it brings up some fascinating possibilities.

Conditions of the race call for a base purse of $100,000 but should a winner of one of the Triple Crown races enter, then the purse would jump $25,000. If two enter, the ante raises another $25,000.

Interestingly, if the Cannonade and Little Current camps could be sold on jetting out for the Swaps Stakes, they'd have only two weeks to wait before the $150,000 Hollywood Derby comes up.

JOCKEY STAKES — The guessing now begins as to who the 10 riders will be that join Laffit Pincay and Sandy Hawley in the lineup for Hollywood Park's $20,000 All-Star Jockeys Race June 30.

Pincay and Hawley have already been invited for the race as the national money champion and the national dash-winning champion of 1973.

Five riders from the East and five more from the west will be added, based on money-won as of May 31st, with the winner earning $10,000.

The leading candidates at this point from the East are Angel Cordero, Miguel Rivera, Ron Turcotte, Braulio Baeza and Jacinto Vasquez while the Western possibilities include Bill Shoemaker, Alvaro Pineda, Don Pierce, Fernando Toro and Howard Grant.

Horses and post positions will be drawn by lot.

BIG RACING WEEKEND — Southern California's horse players were busy on three fronts over the long Memorial Day Weekend with Hollywood Park, Los Alamitos and Caliente all in action.

The Inglewood track lured 116,818 for its Saturday-Sunday-Monday programs with $12.6 million passing through the mutuel machines.

Los Alamitos drew 16,636 for its Saturday and Monday night cards good for a handle of $1.3 million. Caliente, meanwhile, attracted 30,000 with wagering right at the three-quarter million mark, for programs Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

NO 'BUTE' TO HELP — Judger's disappointing fifth-place finish in Monday's $160,000 Jersey Derby didn't come as a surprise to most veteran horsemen.

Judger, like so many thoroughbreds today, is accustomed to using Butazolidin, legalized in many states — but not in New Jersey where Monday's race was run.

So, Judger went into the race without the drug, in complete contrast to his impressive wins in the Blue Grass in Kentucky and the Florida Derby where, by law, he was allowed to use 'Bute.'

Pierce rode high-weighted Quack to an impressive victory in the $100,000 Californian at Hollywood Park, to register his 48th stakes victory at the Inglewood track and move into fifth-place on the all-time HP list.

The family mare, Chatty Connie, dropped a by filly by Knight in Armour at the Pierce's '395' ranch located near Escondido. The foal was the sixth this year at the Pierce ranch. Don's wife. Norma, supervised the proceedings.

Later in the day, Don's 15-year-old won a third-place trophy in the All-High School-Moto-cross motorcycle competition at Carlsbad in the overall '125' class.

Angels revise format at open tryout camp

ANAHEIM — The California Angels will use a revised format for their second annual tryout camp at Anaheim Stadium as a result of last year's overflow response.

High school graduates through age 23 with last names beginning with letters A through N are invited to try out before Angels scouts Friday, June 21. Those with last names beginning with O through Z are invited Saturday, June 22.

Players should report by 9 a.m. for registration on their respective date. Workouts will begin at 10 a.m. Players will be judged on throwing, fielding, hitting and running ability. They should bring their own glove, shoes, hat and uniform or other suitable outfit. American Legion players must have a written permission slip from their coach to attend the tryout.

More than 700 young men showed up for the first day of the 1973 tryout camp. None was signed to a contract at that time but several were selected later in the January free agent draft.

The Angels currently boast two examples of on-the-spot successes. Pitcher Jimmy Stewart is on the Triple A farm club in Salt Lake City. He was signed at a tryout camp in Shreveport, La. He is considered a major league prospect but has been hampered by injuries this spring.

Infielder Ronnie Franks is on the Class A team in Salinas for his second season. He was signed in 1973 after a tryout at Sawtelle Field in West Los Angeles.

Angels director of scouting Walter Shannon and west coast scorting supervisor Al Kubski will conduct the tryouts. Several local scouts will assist.

NFL is considering further expansion

. NEW YORK (UPI) — The question of further expansion will be one of the major topics on the agenda this week when the 26 National Football League owners gather here for a meeting opening Tuesday.

The threat presented by the new World Football League and the upcoming negotiations with the NFL Players Association will also get high priority from the owners before they wind up the meetings on Thursday.

There are also several minor procedural, rules clarification and bookkeeping items on the agenda.

But the question that interests the fans most is whether the owners will agree on more expansion at this meeting after hearing a report from the expansion committee.

At their last meeting in April, the owners surprised many observers by adding only one team—Tampa—for 1976 at a cost of $16 million. It had generally been assumed that they would add two teams. But with all the problems on the horizon, the owners are becoming more cautious about expansion.

The city officials of Memphis were enraged at being bypassed by the NFL and then agreed to rent their stadium to a World Football League team —after first refusing to let a WFL team use the stadium.

The other cities in contention are Seattle, which is constructing a domed stadium, and Phoenix. Honolulu has been mentioned but is considered a longshot.

Although an NFL franchise is a small business as businesses go, an NFL franchise is supposed to be worth many millions to a city and the stakes are high. The chamber of commerce in Tampa is already promoting the fact that its area was picked for the the 27th franchise.

At one time, there were thoughts that the NFL might expand to 30 teams in 1976 but now the owners are having second thoughts about such a move. Adding four teams would dilute their TV revenue and their rosters—at a time when most teams are [illegible] playes to the new World Football League.

The WFL, of course, will be discussed and the owners will decide how they're going to cope with the challenge of the new league.

Up to this point, two NFL teams—Cincinnati and Dallas— have filed court suits against the new league for signing its players. Dallas won in a state suit but Cincinnati lost in federal court and that decision will take precedence.

It is generally believed there is no way the owners can stop the WFL from signing its players to future contracts.

Of course, the owners will also discuss their position in regard to the negotiations with the players. They made a "good will gesture" this week when they decided to pick up the health insurance premiums for the players from June 1 to July 15 at a cost of almost $60,000.

The two sides will start meeting every Tuesday - Wednesday-Thursday the week of June 9th—and none of the major issues have been resolved.

Ratte named 'Hens' MVP

CLAREMONT — Pierre Ratte of Pitzer College was named the Most Valuable Player of the 1974 Pomona-Pitzer tennis team at the annual banquet and awards ceremonies held recently.

Pierre, a transfer from Fordham University, was a strong addition to this the Sagehen team, playing in the number two singles and number two doubles positions. The sophomore netter was victorious in 60 per cent of his 49 matches during the season.

He represented Pomona-Pitzer at the Ojai Tournament, the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Tournament, and the NAIA District III Tournament.

DFG reports record haul of anchovies

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Commercial fishermen in California landed a record 121,579 tons of raw anchovies during the 1973-74 season, the state Department of Fish and Game reported recently.

Department figures compiled after the May 15 closing showed landings in the north totaled 11,276 tons out of a quota of 15,000 tons and in the south 110,303 out of a 120,000 ton quota.

The California Fish and Game Commission increased the annual quota in the southern area from 100,000 tons after fishermen approached the quota for the first time in the fishery's history. The northern quota was also increased, from 10,000 tons.

The department said last season the commercial fleet landed a total of 75,039 tons, 72,687 in the south and 2,352 in the north.

Closing price to fishermen was $41.25 per ton, down from the season's peak this year of $57.50, the department said.

Aztecs host tough foe

LOS ANGELES — The hottest team in the North American Soccer League, the Los Angeles Aztecs, will try to notch its sixth consecutive league victory against the Miami Toros at 3 p.m. today at East Los Angeles College Stadium.

Miami has lost only once in five games and is contending for the Eastern Division title against defending NASL champion Philadelphia.

The match features two outstanding offensive teams. Douglas McMillan leads the Aztec forward line which is the highest-scoring in the NASL while last year's most valuable player, speedster Warren Archibald, spearheads the Miami offense. The 27-year-old Trinidad forward scored 12 goals last season.

He also played on the Trinidad national team last year which also sported Aztec starters Tony Douglas and Ramon Moraldo.

Miami's goalie, Osvaldo Toriani, is among the best in the NASL. He currently ranks third with a 1.20 goals against average, allowing only six goals through five games.

He was the goalkeeper for Independiente during several seasons when that Argentine Club was South American champion. He allowed Pele only a single goal during four games against Santos and the legendary soccer superstar.

"There's no doubt that this is the toughest team we will have to face at home," says Aztec head coach Alex Perolli. "Miami was one of the finest teams in the league last year and already they're off to a fast start.

"It's going to be our hardest game so far and it'll show us how good we really can be when we have to. Miami has a very fast team and any good, fast team is always dangerous."

The Aztecs will present a three-game State Cup Soccer championship preliminary program. Montebello Homenetmen and the San Pedro Yugoslaves will battle for the Southland State Cup championship at 12:45 p.m. The teams are perennial powerhouses in the Greater Los Angeles Soccer League.

The State Cup program will open at 10 a.m. with the Branford Rangers of the Goldent State Soccer League meeting Veracruz of the California Soccer League in a Division Three under-15 Southland State Cup title. At 11 a.m., the Branford Rangers and the Celtic Flyers of the Pacific Soccer League will meet in an under-11 battle for the Southern California championship.

Sugar Ray Robinson and members of his youth foundation will be guests of the Aztecs for Sugar Ray Robinson Youth Foundation Day Sunday.

New World Football League set to open training camps

NEW YORK (UPI) — The World Football League, the third league to challenge the National Football League since the end of World War II, has opened training camps for its first season this year.

Ten of the 12 teams will have their practice camps in operation before the end of this week.

Three teams, the California Sun in Fullerton, Calif., the Honolulu Hawaiians in Riverside, Calif. and the Houston Texans at the University of Houston opened their training camps Saturday.

The New York club opens Sunday at LaSalle Academy on Long Island and two more clubs—Florida (Orlando) at Harrisonburg, Va. and Chicago at Lake Forest, Ill.—start on Monday.

The Jacksonville Sharks start on Tuesday at Stetson University at Deland, Fla., and two more teams—Philadelphia at Glassboro, N.J., and Portland at the University of Portland—open on Friday with Memphis tenatively set for Senatobia, Miss on Saturday.

Waiting until the following week to start are the Detroit team at Ypsilanti, Mich., on June 9 and the Birmingham club at Marion, Ala. on June 10.

The league starts a 20-game season on July 10 with no exhibition games. Most games will be played on Wednesday nights and there will be a nationally televised game every Thursday night. The season runs until the day after Thanksgiving when the league title game—dubbed the "World Bowl" is scheduled.

The Honolulu team plays its home games on Sunday, creating quite a road trip for clubs that will play a West Coast team on Wednesday and then fly to Honolulu for a game three days later.

The other two leagues to challenge the NFL in the last three decades were the All-America Conference, which folded when the NFL absorbed its best teams after the 1949 season, and the AFL, which started in 1960 and got the NFL to agree to a merger by 1966.

Unlike the AFL, which competed with the NFL for college talent, the WFL has concentrated on signing NFL players to future contracts.

Except for a few players like Charley Harraway, most of these players won't be available until 1975. So, the WFL will have to try to win public acceptance this year mainly with unknown players.

The new league says it has over a thousand players under contract but most of them were cut by NFL teams in the past or were never even drafted.

The NFL, which is currently involved in contract negotiations with the Players Association, is not scheduled to start its regular season until September although exhibition games begin late July—if there's no strike.

KMPC personalities to play Angel wives

LOS ANGELES — With the emphasis on laughs instead of finesse, radio station KMPC personalities will again play the wives of California Angel players in a softball ame at Anaheim Stadium on June 29.

The 6 p.m. contest will precede the Angel-Texas game, and KMPC listeners will again be able to purchase seats to the "double header" on a two-for-the-price-of-one basis.

Last year's Spouses vs. Louses contest ended in defeat for the KMPC team, after supplying hilarity for the more than 25,000 fans in attendance of the Big A.

Angel players' wives play their husbands positions, and have already gone into training for the return match.

Schmautz stays with Bruins

BOSTON UPI) — Bobby Schmautz, rumored to be heading for Vancouver of the World Hockey Association next season, has signed a contract with the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League.

Schmautz, 29, reportedly had a tentative agreement with the Vancouver Blazers when he was acquired by the Bruins in February from the Vancouver Canucks.

World doesn't seem quite ready yet for World Team Tennis concept

NEW YORK (UPI) — World Team Tennis says it is ready for the world, but the world doesn't seem ready for World Team Tennis.

The ambitious and imaginative concept which has lured some of the game's brightest stars—present, past and future —into its ranks, has gained great attention from the tennis establishment, from the media, and from the players who are guaranteed their money before stepping on a court.

But ominously, in four weeks of WTT existence, the world does not seem ready for the new game in town.

Attendance through May 26 for 86 league games was 208,571 for a sobering average of 2,414 —an average bolstered by a few respectable 8,000 crowds but an but an average also decimated by a May 12 Chicago total of 300 and a lip-biting, strict count of 556 in New York for the Sets against the Baltimore Banners, a match which paired Nikki Pilic against the Banners' headliner, Jimmy Connors.

There is no sign of panic, though, among the front men and women for the new League.

Commissioner George MacCall professes to see signs of progress, slight signs, he admits, but progress nevertheless. He believes that the almost three week break in competition, from June 16 to July 6, offers WTT time in which to make certain provisions for the rest of the season and for the years to come.

The break in play will permit all WTT players to compete at Wimbledon and the attendant publicity of their play their will be an asset to the league when it resumes play, MacCall thinks.

"I'm most delighted," he said, "about the attitude of the players. I'll admit that some of our guys and gals had some reservations about the new concept, but they've all taken to it. The younger kids can't get over playing against the big names before a couple of thousand fans. In tournament play, they'd meet the big boys in early rounds on the outer courts at Forest Hills or Wimbledon before maybe 200 people. Don't tell these kids that 2,000 people isn't a crowd."

Nor is there is sign of panic— yet—among the 16 franchise holders. They went into the venture with money belts and eyes open. No one sold them a bill of goods. They had been told they would take a financial lacing, but that if the concept proved valid after four or five years of losses, the league would make it, make it worldwide, and make it big.

Led by the high-priestess of women's lib in sport—Billie Jean King—the league believes it can cultivate a new tennis fan, disguised as the fan who watches baseball, hockey, football, boxing, basketball. That is the same fan who comes to be entertained, to participate vicariously and sometimes violently in the doings of a team or individual with whom they can identify.

Let 'em yell, WTT says of the crowd. Shout when you want, heckle when you want, break the concentration of a man or woman serving at match point, just as you try to shatter the nerves of a pitcher when the count is 3-2, bases full, in the bottom of the ninth.

That aspect has had a mixed reaction from spectators and players alike. The old line tennis afficianado does not take kindly to bad manners either on court or in the stands and the players, the older ones like Ken Rosewall, are up the wall when heckled by the opposing team's "bench jockeys."

Is the team concept going to develop new players for the international circuit and the traditional major events of the sport?

Playing against the likes of John Newcombe for one set in a team match scarcely equates with fighting a Newcombe over five sets in the early rounds of a major tournament, the veterans say.

"What do I think of streaking?"

I think streaking is Okay if they don't go to far. Streaking is better than swollowing goldfish or seeing how many people you can stuff in a telephone booth. They shouldn't streak around business buildings. They can streak in parks or campuses. Its even sort of funny. In the newspaper you don't have to read about watergate, energy crises, Nixon, or the war. I don't want any laws that say people can not streak. They shouldn't walk in stores in the nude or just walk in the nude. Streaking and walking in the nude are two different things. Streaking is running a short distance from one place to the other. Walking in the nude is walking for hours. People who don't agree with you can go to nudist camps. But you heard what I think of streaking.

The End.

Children's viewpoint I'm entering your contest about streaking this week

I think streaking is a fine thing to do, there's nothing wrong with it. Take Adam and Eve for example. They ran around naked and weren't ashamed of it and that's just what streakers do and everyone stares and points. I think you could classify it as a sport. I think a game could be made of it. I don't see why some people say its so bad I don't think it is. There problem if you want to show off your body then its great that your not scared to show it. You should be proud that you have a body to show. So stand up and streak Americans! Well have to go now or I'll be late for my streaking appointment.

See you later and Happy Streaking.

Dear Progress bulletin,
What Do I Think of Streaking?

I wouldn't do it, because it would make me feel weird. If I saw someone I would probably laugh or gigle or make fun of the person that's doing it. Why do they do it? To show off, or there sick in the head. My friend saw a little boy about 14 or 17 years old streaking at school on the grass.

Mary E. White
Pomona,
Age 9½

I think it's silly. It's not something horrid, but it is crazy. What I'd like to know is why the people streak. I guess it's up to the individual. It's sort of like hot pants. They came and went. So this probably will too. But, while it lasts, let the streakers have fun.

Donna Guisado
Pomona,
Age 10½

What I Think Of Streaking

I think that going from point "A" to point "B" naked isn't really such a big thing. I mean so what? No clothes. That's how we were born so doesn't it seem like it would be natural? The fact that it offends some people doesn't mean it's wrong. Clothes are made for protection against weather and for style so if they don't want or need Protection, why should he be forced to wear clothing? I think the person who uses streaking as a form of recreation and exercise should be allowed to do so if he or she uses responsible judgment.

Having an accident prevention summer takes concentration

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Family Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bone up on accident prevention to keep harm out of summer fun.

When you're breaking out the sun tan lotion, swimsuits, barbecue gear and such, resolve to do your very best to avoid the hospital emergency room and, at the extreme, the mortuary.

Consider:

—More than 200,000 fingers and toes are amputated by power mowers.

—More than 300 of all ages drown in backyard swimming pools.

—Carelessness at the grill results in countless burns, ranging from minor to severe, including those resulting in death.

Ben Harris, Recreation Safety Specialist in the Public Safety Department of the National Safety Council (NSC in an interview listed areas of extra-special concern to the safety specialists this summer. He also gave tips for basic safety-consciousness.

In the backyard pool, skull fractures and broken necks are increasing, leaving many victims paralyzed. The most severe cases involve both legs, both arms—everything below the neck.

Harris said this often is due to going down the pool slide headfirst. The slides are designed for feetfirst posture. Other fractured skulls and necks, including those resulting in fatalities, are due to forgetting the all-time prohibition—diving into water that is too shallow in lake, river, backyard or community pool.

Previously a swimming coach for 12 years, Harris said hyperventilating before diving in for an underwater swim is a practice to be discouraged.

The swimmer takes many breaths and fills his system with lots more oxygen than ordinarily needed. This sees him through the underwater swimming longer than if he did not hyperventilate first.

"I believe that most of the unexplained drownings of excellent swimmers is linked to this practice," Harris said.

"When a swimmer hyperventilates the usual warning signs to breathe are not there. He can black out without warning and drown."

In the backyard pools other troubles develop from diving from the ladders into above-ground pools. Harris said some of these pools are two to three feet deep. No one knows if three feet is too shallow for diving.

"There is a controversy over how deep pools should be for diving purposes," he said.

To come up with a solution, the National Swimming Pool Institute is supporting research at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, Mass.

"In general," Harris said, "diving should be done only in an area designed for diving."

Mini-bikes, those two-wheeled motorized teeny "motorcyles", also concern the accident fighters at NSC.

"I dont have specific figures," Harris said, "but a lot of kids are getting killed on these things. It is illegal to use them on the streets and they are not allowed on sidewalks but the kids use the streets and sidewalks anyway.

"A lot of little riders are getting hit by cars."

To parents who might be pestered for a mini-bike, Harris would say—try to forget it, unless you have a private place where the bike can be used, and only after the rider has had adequate instruction.

A further area of new concern involves danger of death from carbon monoxide poisoning—when on a rainy or cool day the family chef decides to bring the grill indoors. If the cooking area is not properly ventilated fumes accumulate and death results.

If you think the garage is a better bet, keep the door raised and the windows open. The practice of bringing the grill in under any roof also escalates the danger of injury from burning accidents.

Each year some fatal accidents are linked to drinking too much while boating, swimming, horsing around on the swimpool deck, grilling or even trying to use a powermower — when under the influence.

Watch the drinking when doing any of these things.

A basic primer on summer safety goes like this:

—POWER MOWER ACCIDENTS. Due in large part to impromper mowing practices. Contact with a mower's moving parts is a major cause of injuries. The Outdoor Power Equipment Institute (OPEI) urges power mower operators to follow safety rules found in the owner's manual. Safety rules include:

Start the mower engine with feet and hands well away from the blades or other rotating parts.

Before removing the grass catcher or unclogging the chute, shut the motor off and wait until blades come to a full stop.

Know your controls. Learn how to stop machine fast in an emergency.

Stop the engine and disconnect spark plug wire before checking or working on blades.

Wear sturdy shoes, not tennis or sneaks. Never, never mow in barefeet.

Keep children under 13 away from mower. Insist children and pets be indoors or otherwise out of range of any stones, bits of wire or wood the mower might pick up and shoot with the velocity of a bullet.

—COCKOUT SAFETY. Do not pour flammable liquids on the coals that are dying. The heat rides the trail of liquid into the can and causes contents to explode in your hands. Use all flame starters according to directions. Watch children around the grill. It is best to keep them a distance away. Also avoid horseplay while grilling. This is to keep from being involved in burning accidents.

—BACKYARD POOLS. There are four million and an additional 300,000 will be installed this summer. Each one needs to be fenced or otherwise made off limits for children and-or others who may be tempted to take a swim without permission. The fencing also keeps curious little children from falling in and drowning.

The National Safety Council Guidelines for keeping accidents from the home pool scene include:

—Don't mix water and electricity. You can get electrocuted. That means rotisseries, portable record players, radios and other electric things should be kept away from pool.. —Keep pool and apron clear of glasses, bottles and other things that can cause cutting injuries.

—See that everyone who is swimming knows how. If non-swimmers want to join the fun, keep them in the shallow part and under supervision.

Attention, brides

The Progress-Bulletin Women's Department looks forward to printing the stories of your engagement and wedding.

Please pick up engagement and wedding forms at the newspaper office and return them with the picture you wish used.

Engagement forms are not accepted if they are received less than six weeks before the wedding, and wedding forms should be returned within two weeks after the wedding with a picture of the bride only.

Butler-Sprague vows heard in Long Beach

MRS. ELMER BUTLER

Miss Kathryn Louise Sprague and Elmer Alvin Butler were united in marriage in a Saturday afternoon ceremont at the Lakewood Village Community Church in Long Beach.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Sprague of Paramount was given in marriage by her father during the double-ring rites read by the Rev. Roger Lautzenhiser.

She wore a floor-length gown of blue batiste over blue taffeta fashioned with a square neckline and accented with white lace around the waist and on the puffed sleeves. She wore a white garden hat and carried a cascade of white carnations, pink baby rosebuds and baby's breath.

Mrs. James I. Harvey III was matron of honor. Kristen LeVier was flower girl.

Edwin S. Butler served as his brother's best man. They are sons of Mrs. Marie Butler of Pomona.

Miss Nancy J. Hyden attended the guest book at the reception at Casas Del Patio recreation center in Paramount.

After a two-weeks honeymoon in Mexico, Mr. and Mrs. Butler will reside in Pomona.

Dr. Bellew to address society

"Newer Concepts in Nutrition" will be the topic for the June 11 meeting of the Pomona Valley Chapter of the American Nutrition Society.

The 7:30 p.m. meeting in Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association, Foothill and Indian Hill Boulevards, Claremont, is open to the public.

The speaker will be Dr. Bernard A. Bellew, who is now serving as president and medical director of the International Molecular Institute in Riverside.

The center was established for research and cure of degenerative diseases such as arthritis, coronary heart disease, emphysema and peripheral vascular diseases.

He is the co-author of a book, "Diet Dynamics" and many articles in magazines and newspapers.

Dr. Bellew has served in the Navy and as the police, fire and floor surgeon at Los Angeles Receiving Hospital as well as on the staff of Children's Hospital, Queen of the Angels Hospital, Los Angeles General Hospital and others. He has taught at USC and other schools. He is widely known as a lecturer.

Baptist Women set party

The American Baptist Women of Bethany Baptist Church have planned a birthday party Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the church fellowship hall.

The usual luncheon has been replaced with an evening event for the benefit of working women.

Mrs. Donald Brandt, who teaches eight-week courses on "Fascinating Womanhood" from the book by Helen B. Andelin, will discuss the subject. She is a minister's wife, a registered nurse and the mother of three children.

The revealing of Secret Sisters will take place along with the selection for next year.

The birthday cake will be presented by Mrs. Gary Clayman to commemorate the event.

The meditation will be given by Mrs. Stanley Chapin and Mrs. Martin Griss will play piano selections.

Hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. William Cherry and Mrs. Troy Blackmon.

Upland Jrs. install, honor woman

Installation of new officers for Upland Junior Woman's Club was held at Beef 'n' Barrel Restaurant in Pomona.

Taking office were: Mmes. Don Pederson, president; Andy Bergen, first vice president; Brian Kruger, second vice president; Frank Gant, third vice president; Rusty Cushing, recording secretary; Bruce Nichols, corresponding secretary; James Gray, treasurer; Thomas Carlton, parliamentarian; Phillip Plotkin, press chairman.

The title is given not only for work as a club member, but also for a woman's attitude, friendliness and how she presents herself as a junior to other groups.

Mrs. Troje has worked in all Junior projects during her three-year membership in the club. She has been conservation chairman, press chairman and third vice president.

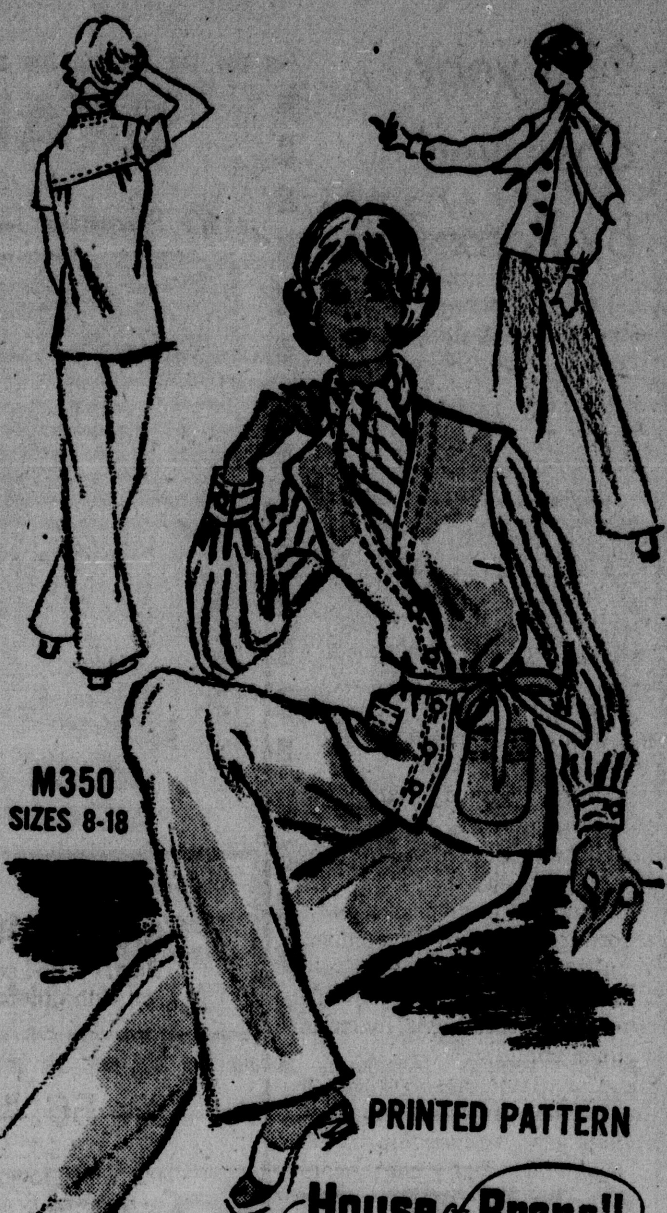
Ice cream social slated this afternoon

An ice cream social is scheduled from 5:30 to 8 p.m. today by the Board of Christian Education of St. Paul Congregational Church in Claremont at the church.

Proceeds from the event will go toward defraying expenses for a Vacation Bible School scheduled in August.



PRINTED PATTERN

House of Branell

Popular vest-jacket

HEAVENLY FOR HOT WEATHER — the sleeveless vest-jacket tops its own long or short-sleeved shirt and pants. The lean cardigan lines are casually tied at the waist above the straight-legged pants. Thanks to an invisible front zipper, the pants fit absolutely smoothly over the stomach. Wear all three parts together, or wear the scarf-neckline shirt (see small sketch) over or tucked into the pants. It would be beautiful in sheer voile. Note also the short-sleeved shirt version. Branell designed the Original of Printed Pattern M350 in polyester crepe. Think of jersey, pongee, Dacron-cotton, linen, double knits as well.

Printed Pattern M350 is available in Misses' Sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, 16, 18. Size 12 (bust 34) sleeveless pantsuit requires 2⅜ yards 60-inch fabric; blouse 2¼ yards 45-inch.

Please send $1.25 for Printed Pattern M350 to Progress-Bulletin, Pattern Department, P.O. Box 59, Old Chelsea Station, New York, N.Y. 10011. (Add 25c for each pattern for First Class Mail and Special Handling.) Please Print plainly YOUR NAME, ADDRESS with ZIP, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

PVCH Auxiliary

Installation scheduled

To highlight its final meeting of the season, the Pomona Valley Community Hospital Auxiliary will install officers for the 1974-75 term.

Mrs. Walter Jones, a past president, will install the officers. They are Mrs. Gerald Rathbun, president; Miss Edith Frances Eells, vice president; Mrs. Delwin Ludwick, recording secretary; Miss Virginia Parker, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Elmer Juenke, financial secretary; Mrs. Harry C. Kinne Jr., treasurer; Mrs. V.D. Farrand and Mrs. Chester Rappe,. directors.

The program will be presented by Mrs. Frank Herkelrath, soprano solist, and Mrs. David Naftel, accompanist.

Reservations for the luncheon should be made with Connie Gildersleeve, 595-3849, or Kay Keltz, 986-4960. Persons needing transporation to the country club from the hospital are asked to contact Pat Spear, 624-3683, or Gloria Soupkoff, 626-1983.

At the last general meeting of the auxiliary, Mrs. Louise Pavey, a member of the PVCH Charity Fund Committee, presented a check for $1,100 from hospital employes to the Auxiliary Sick Baby Fund. She was introduced by Mrs. Wilma Temple, director of volunteers.

Mrs. Margaret Balch, president of the auxiliary, announced that the group had purchased three more pieces of equipment for the neonatal nursery at the hospital. They consisted of a heart monitor and two heart transducers, costing $1,860.

MRS. GERALD RATHBUN

Officer induction charted

The Women's Service League of St. Paul Congregational Church in Claremont has scheduled a dinner and installation of officers Monday at 7:45 p.m. at the church.

Taking office will be: Miss Lynne Nevins, president; Mrs. Patti Chase, vice president; Mrs. Sue Lang, secretary; Mrs. Lura Kirk, treasurer; Mrs. Jeanne Reuter, ways and means chairman; Mrs. Marian Kerwin, council representative; and Mrs. Elsie Paige, chapel leader.

The Rev. Robert Fleischmann will conduct the installation service.

Smoking problems

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: Recently I had to visit several doctors' offices. In each one the patients in the small waiting room were smoking, and in one case the receptionist had her ashtray overflowing. The air was blue with smoke.

"Even though I felt quite well, having to breathe all that smoke annoyed me. It can't be good for patients who are really ill. I do wish you would encourage the use of 'no smoking' signs in doctors' offices. Do you approve?—L.E., Syracuse, N.Y.

I certainly do approve. I have been annoyed, too, by patients and doctors' aides smoking when I have been in small waiting rooms, sometimes for an hour or more as appointments usually don't take place as scheduled (another annoyance which is, I suppose, unavoidable in most cases).

How about doctors' aides being more realistic about the scheduling of appointments? Instead of a firm "2 o'clock," say "I have you down for 2 o'clock, but Im sure the doctor won't be ready until 2:30 if you want to take that into consideration." Many errands can be done in a half-hour, and few people enjoy sitting around doctors' offices unnecessarily. Post cards, please.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: Regarding your column about a lady who puts a 'no smoking' sign on her front door, I wholeheartedly agree with her. Recently I suffered for eight hours on a flight from the Canary Islands to Philadelphia and nobody cared that I had just completed 25 cobalt treatments and was not supposed to irritate the esophagus area! I wish nonsmokers could get together and really do something!—Mrs. S.S., N. Arlington, N.J."

I have had much mail on this, and I am now myself contemplating putting no smoking signs in my country house which is guarded from the menace of fire only by a volunteer fire company. I never did like smoking in my house but am now getting courage to say so openly.

Church unit schedules meet, tour

Members of Westmont United Methodist Women will meet at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the church parlor before going to the Armstrong Galleries at 11 a.m. David Armstrong will take the members on a tour of the galleries and will lecture on the collection.

No luncheon is planned for that day.

The circle meetings scheduled June 11 are the Susanna Wesley unit meeting with Mrs. Frank Williams, 1749 W. 9th St., at 9:30 a.m., and the Lamplighter group meeting at 8 p.m. in the church parlor.

Turn once

Hamburgers about three quarters to one inch think cook in about eight to 14 minutes over charcoal. Turn them about half way through the cooking period.

Guild charts luncheon

The annual luncheon meeting of the Foothill Guild for the Crippled Children's Society will be Friday noon at the Red Hill Country Club, Cucamonga.

Mrs. Kenneth F. Russell will serve as president for a second term. Others taking office for 1974-75 are Mrs. Robert F. Miller, vice president; Mrs. Leon R. Lott, secretary; Mrs. Ralph E. Gain, treasurer; Mrs. Colin McDonald, hospitality chairman; Mrs. John T. Tomlinson Jr., membership chairman; and Mrs. J.P. Rimer, publicity chairman.

New provisional members for the year will be introduced by membership chairman, Mrs. Robert C. Davidson.

Reservations are due by Wednesday with Mrs. Robert F. Miller, 624-2259.

Training classes to begin

Classes will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday of this week from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. with no charge.

Five Day Clubs, a registered name for Child Evangelism Fellowship, are for boys and girls of elementary school age.

The program includes gospel songs, Bible lessons, memorization and a missionary story.

There will also be a training class for teen-agers the last week in June at Corona. Further information may be obtained by calling 622-2680.

Stocks decline during slow holiday week

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rising interest rates and inflation have concerned investors for months and it showed again as stock prices declined in a slow holiday week on the New York Stock Exchange.

There was disappointment when the prime rate —that charged a bank's top-rated commercial customers —held at the record levels of the past two weeks.

There had been signs of a peaking in the rate —now generally at 11 ½ per cent, with one major bank at 11 ¾ —when business loan demand declined the week before and major banks for the first time in weeks did not hike this base lending rate which has climbed from 8 ¾ per cent in mid-March.

However, the Federal Reserve Board reported loan demand up again last week. The Fed has been trying to stem soaring loan demand by means of a tight money policy in an effort to curb inflation, and during the Memorial Day weekend, Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Fed, said the board would not relax its tight money policy.

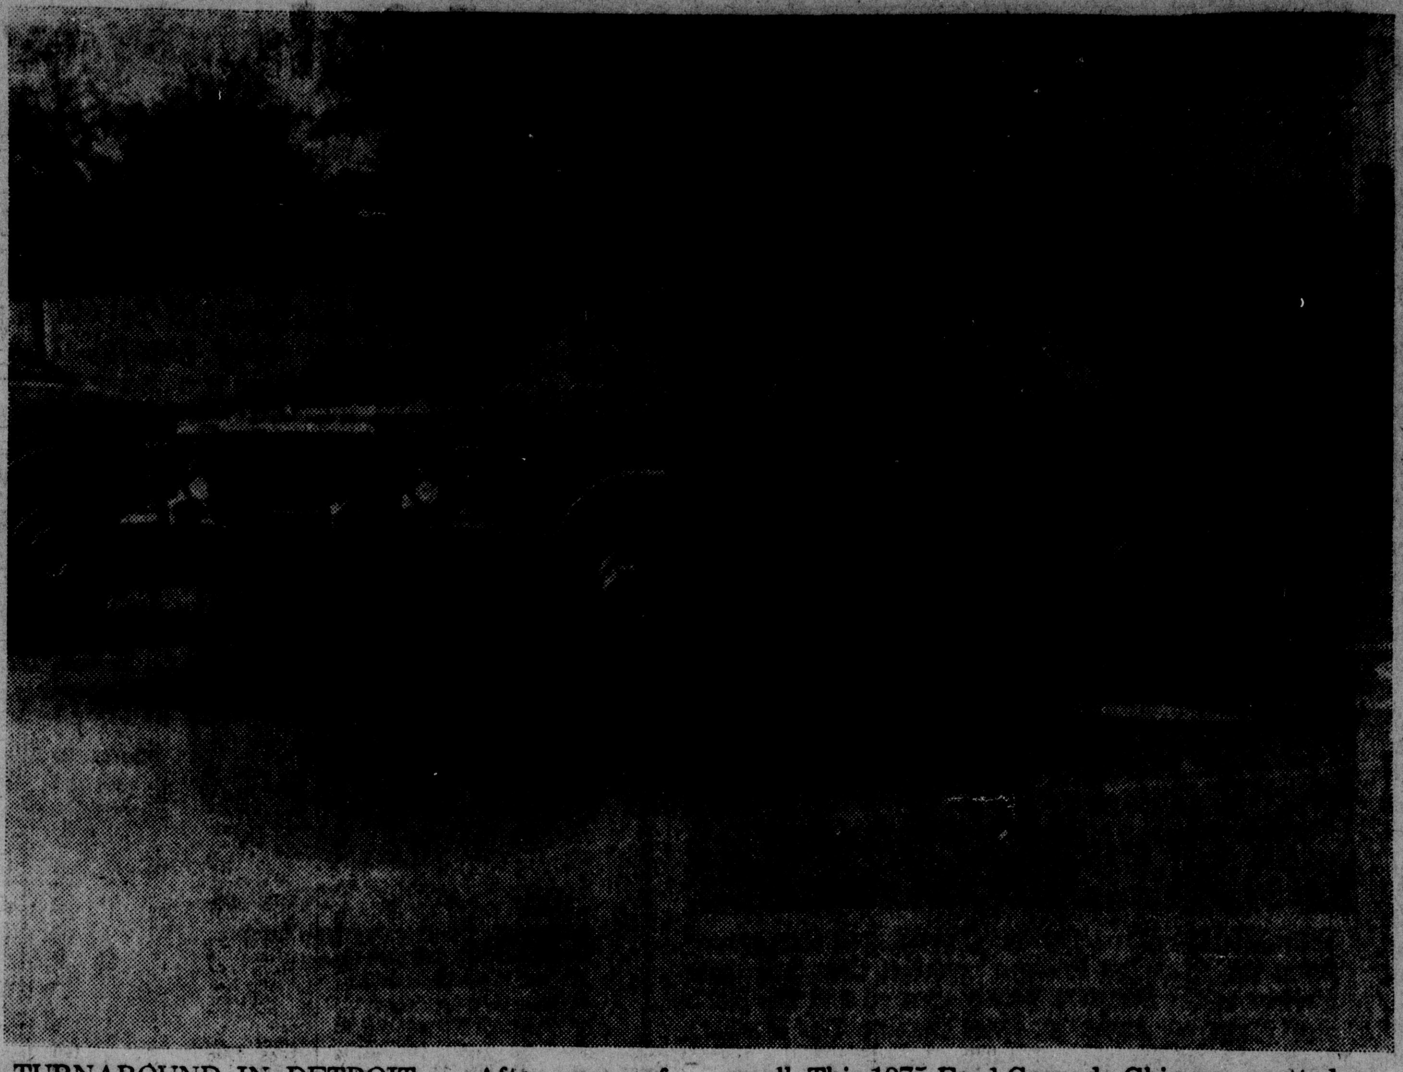
This caused renewed concern in Wall Street. "Right now, there is a question of whether the Fed has adopted too tight a money policy" said William Nelson, analyst for Moody's Investors Service.

There was a psychological factor in trading during the week, also.

The Dow Jones industrial average, an indicator followed widely by the public, hovered around the 800 level, breaking slightly below it Wednesday when it plunged more than 18 points to its lowest level since Dec. 5, 1973. The Dow, an index of 30 blue-chip stocks, lost 14.48 on the week but closed above the 800 mark at 802.17. Observers were encouraged that the break did not trigger heavy selling but that support developed at what is seen as a "psychological barrier" even by those who do not follow the charts.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, a broader indicator, lost 1.30 to 87.28. The NYSE common stork index dropped 0.67 to 45.92.

Of a total 1,933 issues traded, only 531 closed higher, with 13 at new highs for the year, while 1,137 were lower, with 531 setting new lows during the week.



TURNAROUND IN DETROIT — After years of promoting "big as better," an energy crisis and slumping sales have Detroit's automakers thinking small. This 1975 Ford Granada Ghia was spotted recently as its driver was heading to the test. The car, with all its options, will sell at close to $5,000.

Automakers think small

DETROIT (UPI) — After years of promoting "big is better," an energy crisis and slumping sales have pushed Detroit's automakers into thinking small.

Seven new small cars and two new intermediate models will join the lineup for 1975 along with the three subcompacts and 10 compact models already on the market. New gas-saving six-cyclinder engines and smaller V-8s will be offered.

It's all part of Detroit's attempts to change its image in the face of small car competition from foreign automakers and the dramatic shift in the American car-buyer's preference for anything that isn't big.

"The whole thing kind of hit us over the head," mused one industry executive. "Once the shock began to wear off, we decided the small car is here to stay."

The new models due this fall are just a preview of what the industry is planning in the way of minicars and new forms of engines for the rest of the decade. Those cars will start appearing in 1976 and 1977.

Small car luxury

For 1975, Detroit will be trying to sell luxury in a small package.

General Motors, caught with too few small cars in its lineup when service station lines began lengthening last fall, is adding four new small models based on its subcompact Chevrolet Vega. Two are sporty versions of the Vega originally designed with the Wankel rotary engine in mind and the Canadian version of the Vega sold by Pontiac dealers.

Ford, alone of the Big Three with a wide range of compact and subcompact models, adds two more compacts—the Ford Granada and Mercury Monarch that were originally intended to replace the Ford Maverick and Mercury Comet. Instead, they'll be luxury models in the $4,500-$5,000 price range.

American Motors, with 75 per cent of its production already in small cars, will introduce its Pacer in January. A sporty model with a luxury interior, it was originally designed for the rotary engine, but will be offered with a six-cyclinder engine until AMC decides to either buy one or build its own.

Chrysler Corp., still two years away from a subcompact model, instead will devote its efforts to two new intermediate models designed for the midsized personal luxury field. Known as the Dodge Charger SE and Chrysler Cordoba, the No. 3 automaker hopes they'll put Chrysler in the field dominated by the Pontiac Grand Prix and Chevrolet Monte Carlo.

Won't be cheap

One thing the new small cars won't be is cheap. The subcompact models with price tags now around $2,500 are coming out of factories so optioned-up that a $3,200 subcompact is not unusual. At about $3,500, the AMC Pacer probably will be the cheapest of the new breed of small cars for 1975.

One main reason for the trend to small cars besides the gasoline crisis is that people have just so much to spend on cars. Once they have their mind set on what options they want and the knowledge the government is forcing others on them, they go to a smaller model to stay within their budget.

"As the things they want and select and the things they don't want but have to take go up in price, the amount of money they have to spend on the car size goes down," observed one industry analyst.

An example of this is the Ford Maverick. About one-quarter go out of the factory with the luxury LDO option, 44 per cent with air conditioning, 76 per cent with the larger engine options and 95 per cent with automatic transmissions. Even the subcompact Pinto is affected with 58 per cent automatic transmissions.

The new sporty Chevrolet, built on the same chassis as the Vega, had been intended as GM's answer to Ford's Mustang II whose sales zoomed after introduction last fall. But problems in developing the Wankel rotary engine will leave the car powered by the conventional four-cylinder or a small V-8 engine.

Ford's Frustration

The sporty subcompact also will be given to the Oldsmobile and Buick Divisions to sell since they have been hit hardest by not having any small cars in the lineup. Pontiac dealers get the Astro, now sold in Canada and differing from the Vega only in its grille and taillight treatments.

GM also is giving its four compact models—the Chevrolet Nova, Pontiac Ventura, Buick Apollo and Oldsmobile Omega— a facelift for 1975. More glass area and a less boxy appearance will be the major changes.

After years of plugging away to shake the image of small cars and low prices, Ford finally gained leverage against GM in the big car market only to find the public's desires changing once again.

"We do get a bit frustrated about it," admitted Norman Krandall, director of Ford's Marketing Research Office. "We spent years beating the drums for our big cars, and got to the point where 60 per cent of our 1973 model sales were from our conventional and luxury lines.

"We were selling a lot of small cars, but we were selling more bigs than smalls—and what happens? We plan for a continued but reasonably gradual increase in our small-car mix, and then the Mideast erupts, and we really have to shift into high gear on small cars."

AMC, a company that shifted into high gear four years ago, will debut its Pacer early next year. All the company's 1975 models will be introducted at the beginning of the year, partly to avoid having to add on costly emission control devices when the other companies do in September.

Built from the same basic frame AMC uses for its small Gremlin and Hornet models, the six-cylinder Pacer has a sharply sloping front hood, a wide pillar behind the door and almost wrap-around glass.

New rules may aid in furniture

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Furniture shopping, at best, a bewildering and expensive experience, now may be a little less confusing—though no less costly—thanks to some new government rules.

Basically the new guidelines say that if a piece of furniture looks like something it isn't — plastic that appears to be oak, for instance, or vinyl that looks like leather —it must carry a tag clearly disclosing that to the buyer.

And perhaps more importantly, the rules are designed to end misleading advertising claims which in the past, for example, have said a bedroom set was available in "pecan, walnut or mahogany" but failed to mention that was the color, not the wood.

Now the advertising must state "walnut color" or fruitwood stain finish" if any reference to wood type is used. Something advertised and tagged as "solid maple" or solid anything must be exactly that. And a veneer must be identified as such —"walnut vanedged pecan solids," for example.

The Federal Trade Commission guidelines took effect March 21. One FTC official said he believes most of the manufacturers have gotten the word, although there are indications it has not filtered down to all the retailers.

Furniture on showroom floors must be retagged to comply with the rules. But it appears the FTC will make no effort to force furniture stores change labels in warehouse cartons intended for shipment directly to the consumer.

The rules are voluntary in the sense that the FTC put them out as guidelines; but they carry the force of law because the agency could charge offenders with violations of the laws against false and misleading advertising.

The biggest help for the shopper should be in the increased information available on furniture tags. Look closely when you shop and if you can't figure out what something is, let the salesman or store manager know you know you have a right to find out what you're really buying.

Overlapping government jurisdictions and confusion over statistics have left the buyer holding the bag again—this time where pet turtles are concerned. Both the Food and Drug Administration and the Consumer Product Safety Commission are studying the problem of the disease-carrying pets and whether anything can be done to prevent turtles from spreading salmonella infections to children.

The problem has been recognized for some time but the existing program —which attempts to keep infected turtles from interstate commerce — doesn't appear to be working. At the moment, the Product Safety Commission is trying to decide if it should ban turtles altogether, while the FDA is working on a label that would warn buyers of the problem. In the meantime the best advice is: Wash your hands thoroughly if you come into contact with a turtle.

Got a consumer gripe? Like to share a tip? Let us know care of Buyers' Billboard, United Press International, 315 National Press Building, Washington D.C. 20004. Letters will be answered as time and space permit.

PBS to explore TV art

By FRANK S. SWERTLOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you know the right artist, your television set can be transformed into a chic art gallery.

Monday night at 8 p.m. EDT, the Public Broadcasting Service will provide an interesting look at the expanding field of personalized television in "Video: The New Wave."

The 60-minute program highlights the alternatives to commercial network news programming, the field of abstract TV art, and the more personalized expressions of television artists.

Among the alternatives to network news will be a look at an underground television team's coverage of the 1972 Republican National Convention. The program also will examine the abstract works of Nam June Paik and Stephen Beck. And artists Joan Jonas and Peter Campus will show audiences their attempts to take a fresh look at everyday subjects.

The world of TV art—the use of cameras and TV sets as expression of art and not broadcasting—began in the mid-1960s with the development of portable cameras and videotape recorders. These allow users to pursue their own style of television.

Many art galleries already are converting their TV sets to broadcast these art forms. Some people are having videotape cassettes made for their own TV sets at home.

What is ironic, not so much about this program, but of TV art, itself, is that it will reach only a small audience through the instrument of television, a vehicle for the masses. Much of this show cannot be appreciated unless the viewer has a color set.

Art critic Brian O'Doherty, who narrated and wrote script, said in an interview that when he approached his subject he found the field too directionless and shapeless.

"Some of it followed the feeble vestments of a futuristic utopia for television," said O'Doherty. "Much of it was too feeble, and very dumb. What I tried to do was survey the field and put some common sense into it."

O'Doherty generally succeeds in his attempt, but there are instances the program becomes too repetitive.

One can see just so many quivering explosions of color from the world of abstract art. And there are times, particularly with the work of Joan Jonas, that segment becomes too "in." One can almost see a group of artists sitting before a TV set and smiling at her works as the definitive statement about life.

O'Doherty, who concedes that some of the art will exist only for salons and avant gardists, suggests that the field already has had its impact on television.

"To some degree commercial television already has used some of it," he said, "and, of course, educational television has picked it up."

Bomb found on campus

BERKELEY (UPI) — A pipe bomb that failed to explode was found recently near the campus police offices at the University of California.

Officers said several burned matches were found near the bomb's fuse which had failed to ignite.

A passerby made the discovery near the offices, which are in Sproul Hall.

No messages were found and no person or group has claimed responsibility for the device which held the equivalent of three sticks of dynamite.

"People Are My Special Interest"

Hello!

To those of you I did not meet at shopping centers, parades, fiestas, park dedications, factories, meetings, coffee hours, candidate nights, union halls, classrooms, churches, banquets, and a host of other "people to people" events —

You have the right to demand that a candidate for public office make every effort to meet you personally instead of hiding behind billboards and professionally packaged campaigns. I have tried to meet that demand since:

"People Are My Special Interest"

It was a pleasure to meet and to talk with thousands of you who also received emeryboards, matches and Axelrod Consumer Protection Information Cards.

I ask you to continue this people to people relationship by making me your candidate for the State Assembly from the 65th District.

Nicaragua postpone junta presidencial centro-americana

No se ha citado fecha nueva, para este parlamento.

Detalles en los motivos por este repentino aplazamiento de junta, fueron dados por Somoza, quien iba a hospedar esta conferencia, en su plantacio de tabaco, cerca del pueblo de Jalapa, 145 millas al norte de aqui, y cerca a la frontera de Honduras.

No obstante, el anunciamiento de Somoza vino despues de que el presidente de El Salvador, Coronel Arturo Molina, dijo en el Salvador, que no le seria posble atender.

El proposito principal para este planeado parlamento, ere el de atentar arreglar de una vez por todas, el conflicto continuo entre El Salvador y Honduras, que proviene de el tan llamado guerra "soccer" entre ellos, en 1969.

Somaza dijo unicamente que la junta se tendra cuando un estudio de antemano, de los propositas concretamente permitan hacer un temario que sea mas detallado.

Republica Dominicana

Releccion de Pres. Balaguer fue un triumfo personal

Aunque arreglos previos parecieran suficiente aseguramiento, el Presidente Republicano Dominicano, Joaquin Balaguer, prefirio en tomar su escapatoria de un accidente de helicoptero como una senal de Dios que "mis servicios tan modestos con como son, todavia pueden ser utiles a mis concuidadanos."

De alli fue Balaguer una semana despues, en 16 de mayo, a ganar la eleccion presidencial de la republica, una victoria quizas incitada por el hecho de que otras retiradas, lo dejaron como el unico candidato mayor.

Para Balgauer, el que una vez fue teniente del anterior dictador Dominicano, Generalisimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, su releccion a un tercer termino en una nacion con vividos recuerdos de Trijillo y sus excesos, y por consiguiente a una opocision construida a una larga continuacion en oficina fue un triunfo personal basado en un numero de razones, algunas de ellas en conflicto.

Ellos acusaron al gobierno de planear ganar con engano bajo de un arreglo permitiendo a los votantes echar sus votos en cualesquiera de los 5,000 lugares para votar en la nacion. Ellos dijeron eso les permitiria a los partidarios de partido prevaleciente reformista, a votar diversas veces en diferentes casillas.

Guzman, quien habia prometido establecer relaciones con Cuba y paises socialistas, se comprovo un sorprenderte y fuerte candidato. Algunos analyistas dijeron que en una eleccion justa y libre, el quiza hubiera podido desafiar muy seriamente a Balaguer.

Otro elemento fuerte en favor de Balaguer, fue la lealtad de el ejercito en el cual por los ultimos ocho anos el se lo habia ganado para si mismo, con regalos, promociones y traslados.

Un hombre que quezas le hubiera proviedo fuerte oposicion, el anterior presidente Juan Bosh se reducio asi mismo a un papel menor afectando su propio partido Revolucionario Dominicano.

En contraste los problemas economicas acosaban a muchas naciones del Caribe, la Republica Dominicana ha estrado experimentado una propsperidad que la elevada inflacion, apenas la obscurece en parte.

Grupo historico planea barbacoa

En este dia la sociedad commemorara su 58 aniversario y tambien tendra su barbacoa-septima anual en la vieja mansion Phillips, 2640 W. Pomona Blvd.

JUANITA BROWN

Juanita mixed up over mixtures

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — In this era, when black is beautiful commercially Juanita Brown has a problem.

She is one of those stunning creatures who is a product of crazy mixed-up genes. Her father is half-black, half-white. Her mother is half-white, half-Indian. The combination is devastating, esthetically, but where does that leave her, artistically?

She's been turned down for black parts because she looks too white and she's been turned down for white parts because she looks too black.

Still, in the two brief years since she's become an actress, she's come a long way. Her career is booming.

She's progressed from small parts to bigger parts and now she has a starring role in "Renegade Women." She's also seen to good advantage in "Foxy Brown," "Willie Dyanmite" and "uptown Saturday Night."

Juanita is a rarity in Hollywood for reasons other than her ethnic background. She is one of the very few actresses Hollywood has ever had who is a Phi Beta Kappa and magna cum laude graduate.

She comes from Michigan originally. Her father worked in Chicago but felt the rural life would be better for his children, so he got a farm in Michigan and commuted. Juanita grew up there but it was a lonely life. She says her best friend was her dog, Tootsie, and she would read Tootsie poetry and take her for long walks in the woods.

"I was a recluse as a child," she says. "I didn't fit into the world so I took refuge in books and was introspective."

She was a brilliant student and had several scholarships offered to her. She accepted the bid from Western Michigan and was in that institution's honors college.

She had been brought up in the Pentacostal Church which is so fundamental that Juanita's mother still refuses to go to the movies. She believes her daughter is "temporarily lost," and prays for her salvation.

Because of that background, "and the need to find out for myself about religion," she majored in the philosophy of religion. In her junior year, she won a fellowship and moved to Hawaii to study at the University of Hawaii.

She was married for a while. Then she "went off" with an architect but that didn't last. She came to Los Angeles to stay with the architect's mother-in-law, an old actress who persuaded her to take up acting.

She's doing well at it but she still isn't sure this is what she wants to do with her life.

"I love it now," she says, "but I have loved other things and the other things eventually paled. This may pale, too."

She finds acting as intellectually stimulating as academia, "and the fruits are more immediately seen." She says as a student you work all year for a piece of paper. In acting, you see the fruits of your labors more quickly and more tangibly.

West End Symphony elects new officers

He heads a committee that is screening candidates for a permanent conductor.

The orchestra performed last year in an abbreviated season under a series of guest conductors following the resignation of Robert Walton Cole who served as regular conductor for six years. Cole joined the Buffalo Symphony as associate to Michael Tilson Thomas.

At the meeting, directors unanimously named these officers for the new season: vice president, Mrs. James C. Fryman, Alta Loma; recording secretary, Charlene Bennett, Upland; corresponding secretary, Jeanette Harris, Upland; treasurer, Ed Kusick, Montclair; financial secretary, Marjorie Bungard, Ontario.

New members elected to serve as directors on the board were: Mrs. James Elmer Alsover, Mr. and Mrs. Don Hester and Delfine Segovia of Upland; Mrs. Harvey Wood of Montclair; Mrs. Robert Downey, LeRoy Elliott, Mrs. Sam Esrock; Jim Housel and Mrs. R. N. Smith of Ontario.

Jazz bands invited to competition

MONTEREY — Ten high school jazz bands and five combos have been selected to compete in the fourth annual California High School Jazz Band Competition June 8 at Monterey Peninsula College.

Bonita High School of La Verne, Corona High, La Sierra High of Carmichael, San Leandro High, Eagle Rock High of Los Angeles, Richmond High, Ygnacio Valley High of Concord, Mira Loma High of Sacramento, College Park High of Pleasant Hill and Reseda High have been invited to participate. Alternate bands are from Hemet and Burbank high schools.

The selected combos are from Eagle Rock High, Berkeley High, Grant Union High of Sacramento, Terra Linda High of San Rafael and Granad High of Livermore. Burbank High was chosen as alternate.

The competition begins at 9 a.m. in the college theater.

Firefighter dies in river

BLYTHE (UPI)—A bulldozer operator who was helping fight a brush fire which burned through more than 4,400 acres near here apparently accidentally dumped his vehicle into the Colorado River and drowned, police said.

The body of Fordner Van Fleet, Parker, Ariz., was found floating in the river about 30 miles north of here.

ROBERT E. WOOD

Griswold's exhibiting watercolors

CLAREMONT — An exhibition of watercolors by former Claremont artist Robert E. Wood is on view this month at Griswold's Art Gallery, Indian Hill and Foothill boulevards.

Wood is a graduate of Pomona College and holds a master of fine arts degree from Claremont Graduate School. He has been exhibiting for 20 years, and has had more than 80 one-man shows in the United States and Europe. He has won numerous awards at major watercolor exhibitions.

Since 1961, Wood has conducted a summer school of painting at his studio-home at Green Valley Lake.

Artist Phil Dike says of Wood, "The effect of his watercolors on the public and professional alike has been pronounced. In addition to painting, he has become an outstanding teacher and there are few watercolor painters today with his knowledge and facility."

Art exhibit being held in library

McRevey, a graduate of Montclair High School, plans to become a medical illustrator.

"Miracle Cure"

5,000 YEAR OLD CHINESE HEALTH REMEDY FOUND

PEKING (Special)— Health researchers in China have uncovered an amazing rare old Chinese herb remedy that possesses spectacular healing qualities and reportedly has been used for 5,000 years to cure or give relief to a host of the most common illnesses suffered by mankind. Dramatic claims are being made that this "miracle herb" called ginseng, may actually hold the key to a longer healthier life. Indeed, there is one historical case of a user living to be 256 years old.

Helps Many Illnesses

Like acupuncture, the many healing properties of this remarkable herb were once considered "folklore and superstition", but modern researchers around the world are suggesting that it may actually regulate many of the body's processes to increase SEXUAL potency, help heal ULCERS relieve ARTHRITIS, check graying or loss of HAIR, improve DIGESTION, slow down ARTERIOSCLEROSIS, relieve ASTHMA overcome FATIGUE, improve DIABETIC conditions, relieve inflammation of the URINARY TRACT, help chronic INSOMNIA, relieve BACKACHES and PAINS and generally improve your health by increasing your body's potential to heal itself.

Safe, No Side Effects

Ginseng is not a drug, but an herb or vegetable that is extremely rich in vitamins and minerals. What's more, this amazing natural remedy is completely safe and non-toxic with no side effects Unfortunately, high-grade ginseng is in short supply, and brokers and processors around the world are bracing themselves for a "run" on the market as the herb's purported "near miraculous" healing properties become more widely known to the general public.

Now Available in U.S.

Now you can get a generous 30-day supply of this amazing natural remedy direct from a major supplier by sending only $10.00 in check, cash or money order to Health Laboratories, Dept. I., Box 2142, Palm Springs, Calif. 92262. This wonder herb is said to have helped millions of other people, and it may help your health problem too. Isn't it worth a try?

Linda Lee to address art group

HACIENDA HEIGHTS — Linda Lee, artist and art instructor, will give a demonstration of her work at the monthly meeting of the Heights Art Association at the First Federal Savings & Loan Association, 2233 S. Hacienda Blvd., at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. The public is invited.

Mrs. Lee attended Pasadena City College and won a scholarship to Chouinard Art Institute. She has been an instructor at Pasadena City College and now teaches for Tri-Community Adult Education in Covina.

Upland artist plans exhibition and sale

UPLAND — Baila Goldenthal, painter, sculptor and printmaker, will hold an exhibition and sale of her works at her studio-home at 865 N. First Ave. from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday, next Sunday and the following weekend.

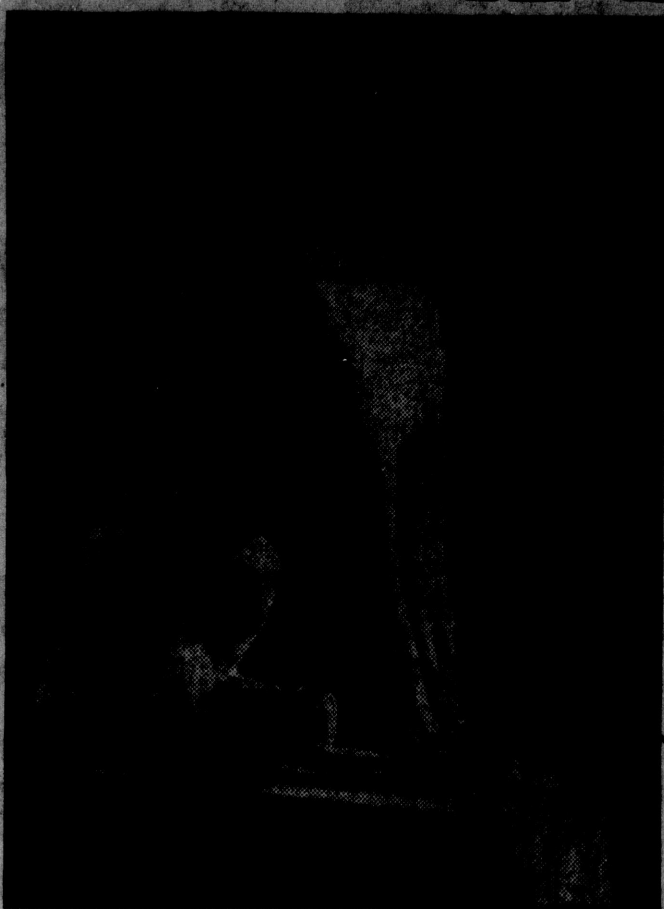
Miss Goldenthal studied at the Boston Museum Art School and under Morris Kantor at the Art Students' League in New York City. She had further training with Hans Hoffman.

Her works are in numerous public and private collections in this country and abroad. She has taught drawing, painting and sculpture in New York, San Francisco and Los Angeles, and has won awards on the East and West coasts.

An interest in the art and religion of India led the artist to spend more than a year in that country where she completed a documentary film and began work on the pen-and-ink series "Hindu Trilogy — The Faces of God," which will be previewed at the exhibition.

Signs of waste

Replacing and restoring deliberately destroyed and defaced traffic signs costs an estimated $16 million of the nation's yearly $110 million maintenance bill for signs, which ordinarily have a lifetime of five to seven years.



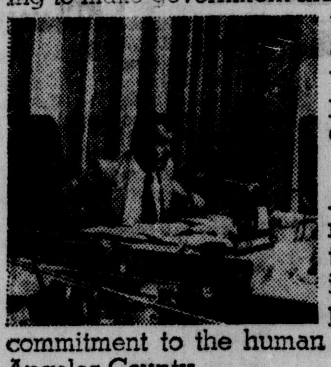
ANCIENT ART — This lion with cartouche of Tuthmosis III is one of 150 works of Egyptian art in the exhibition, "Age of the Pharoahs," being held through the summer at the county Museum of Art. The pieces, drawn from 14 major collections, dates from 4000 B.C. through the Roman era. This work is from the University Museum in Philadelphia, Pa.

Supervisor Pete Schabarum

He really works for you.

Concern is the hallmark of the administration of Supervisor Pete Schabarum. In little more than two years since becoming the First District Supervisor, Pete Schabarum has set into motion scores of programs and construction projects which have benefited not only the 1st District but the entire County as well.

These programs reflect the concern of a man endeavoring to make government more responsive to the needs of the people; to make it operate at a level of efficiency which will squeeze the most productivity out of each tax dollar.



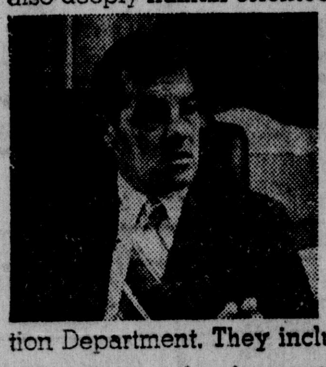
To be a Supervisor in Los Angeles County requires more than popular appeal to the voters. It requires a driving energy, a devotion to public service and a full time commitment to the human needs of the people of Los Angeles County.

Supervisor Schabarum successfully steered Board deliberations toward two successive decreases in the property tax rate; a 41-cent cut the first year and a 16-cent reduction the second.

The impact of his dedication to responsive, efficient government is evident in other areas as well, including:

Development of a comprehensive transportation plan for Los Angeles County ☐ Development of a preliminary General Plan, the first land use master plan in County history to establish initial guidelines for growth ☐ Initial studies to develop a health care services master plan to establish medical and health care priorities ☐ Development of a solid waste management master plan ☐ Development of a County Parks Needs Study to establish priorities for long-range park development ☐ Ordering a re-evaluation of the Capital Projects program to determine which are in balance with immediate needs ☐ Initiating cost-savings programs by consolidating some County services.

While all of these activities clearly demonstrate Supervisor Schabarum's fiscal responsibility, his concern is also deeply human oriented. It spans the age range from the very youngest to society's sometimes forgotten senior citizen.



More than a dozen recreation projects benefiting persons of all age groups have been made a reality under Schabarum's leadership and many more are currently on the drawing boards of the County's Parks and Recreation Department. They include:

Continuing development of the sprawling 2,000-acre Frank G. Bonelli County Regional Park in San Dimas ☐ Gunn Avenue County Park ☐ Farjado County Park ☐ Arcadia County Park ☐ Bassett County Park ☐ Stimson County Park ☐ Otterbein County Park ☐ Pamela County Park ☐ The 13-mile long San Gabriel River Bike and Equestrian Trail, connecting La Puente with Long Beach ☐ Improved and modernized the par 72, 18-hole Diamond Bar County Golf Course and Arcadia Park Golf Course.

At Supervisor Schabarum's insistence, miles upon miles of public streets in the First District have been improved, widened and resurfaced to make them safer and more enduring.

Schabarum's concern covers a broad spectrum of interests which have resulted in:

Construction of the Leland Weaver County Library in South Gate ☐ Construction of the Claremont County Library ☐ Expansion and improvement of Library services through reciprocal agreements with other library agencies ☐ Construction of a sheriff's sub-station in Pico Rivera ☐ Expansion and improvements at McLaren and Los Padrinos Juvenile Halls ☐ Signing of agreements with the California Youth Authority to provide housing for overflow juveniles in County custody ☐ Implementation of anti-graffiti program with community youth groups ☐ Establishment of San Gabriel Regional Health Care Services Center in Covina ☐ Establishment of County Service Center in El Monte ☐ Expansion and improvements at El Monte Airport and Brackett Field in Claremont ☐ Elmination of Barrio slum conditions at Hicks Camp outside El Monte relocation of low-income residents in modernized dwellings ☐ Appointment of specially trained deputies for duties in ethnically sensitive communities within the 1st District.

To Supervisor Schabarum these achievements are only the beginning of his service to the 1st District. They represent his concern for people and the tax dollars they pay to make government a viable, responsive part of our lives.

We can continue the progressive leadership of Supervisor Pete Schabarum by voting to re-elect him on June 4th. He's proved he really works for us. Let's re-elect a proven friend.

ENDORSEMENTS...

SCHABARUM RATES RETURN..."During two years in office he has consistently voted for economy in government and has refused to be bulldozed by county government bureaucrats into abandoning his responsibility as a representative of the taxpaying electorate of this district... Schabarum has served his consituents conscientiously and well. We believe he should be retained."

—DAILY TRIBUNE, February 8, 1974

SCHABARUM FOR SUPERVISOR..."The Daily News advocates the re-election of Supervisor Schabarum, based on what he has accomplished in the time he has spent in office, on the improvements he proposes in county government, and on his consistent effort to limit if not reduce the cost of that government."

—THE DAILY NEWS, March 14, 1974

EARLY ENDORSEMENT SYMBOL OF ESTEEM... "Schabarum's case for re-election is open and shut. Based on his record of achievement and his value to the communities he serves, Pete is the man for the job... One of the more remarkable qualities of Pete Schabarum is his ability to remain a "common man" despite a record of personal success that would swell the head of a lesser man..."

—THE SENTINEL, February 21, 1974

Re-elect a proven friend.

'March of the porcupines'

By ERMA BOMBECK

I was browsing in a music store last Saturday when the sound of a melody stopped me dead in my tracks.

I became rigid, my palms started to sweat and a wave of nausea swept over my body. Unable to help myself I was drawn like a magnet to the room where the music originated. Opening the door I said mechanically, "It's 'The March of the Porcupines,' isn't it?"

The teacher and the small child on the piano bench and the mother sitting on a chair nearby looked up startled, "Oh yes," said the mother numbly. "She's playing it in the recital."

There is something about the song your child plays in the piano recital that is as repetitive as a Hungarian cabbage dinner. It haunts you the rest of your life. I even knew one mother who underwent shock treatments and the only thing left in her memory bank was a haunting melody, "There's a Daffodil Left in the Bottom of My Teacup", a drum solo which her son performed in a music recital.

The first time my son played, "The March of the Porcupines" it sounded familiar. Later I realized I associated it with a friend of mine who once fainted over a keyboard. Mrs. Miller, our son's music teacher assured me that after nine weeks of practice, practice, practice, it would sound completely different.

When the recital was seven weeks away, I told my husband I didn't want to be a mother anymore. "The March of the Porcupines" was getting through to me and I felt that physically I was deteriorating. He assured me the mother of Van Cliburn had endured "The March of the Porcupines" and so should I.

When the recital was four weeks away, our bird died for no particular reason. However, it was suspicious that his wings were cupped around each ear.

The criticial period arrived two weeks before the recital. Our son was thumping, thumping, thumping (with feeling, feeling, feeling) through TMOTP, when my husband came home early one afternoon. I had a crown of flowers around my head and was sprinkling petals from a nosegay around the living room. "It's all right," he said softly. "Only two weeks to go."

The voice of the mother in the music store jolted me back to reality. "It doesn't sound like much now, but she has 11 weeks to practice. The music is familiar to you. Did your child play it in a recital?"

"Actually no," I smiled wanly. "He practiced it for nine weeks and came down with measles on the morning of the recital.

She was crying when I left.

Prof: Nixon just letting off steam

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Prof. Reinhold A. Aman of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee says he read "the whole (expletive deleted)" presidential transcripts, and found 1075 "unintelligibles" and 146 "expletives deleted" and "characterizations omitted."

Aman, who says he is an expert on swearing, listed 25 different profanities that he thought might have been edited out of the text. (Nearly all of them are unprintable in a family newspaper.)

"He (President Nixon) acted like anyone else," Aman said. "He had to get rid of his emotional steam. He could have kicked Pat or started a war. Or he could have sworn."

TOURIST BOOM — The millions in gold gouged out of the frozen Yukon in the 1890s is pouring back as tourist dollars, most of it hauled over the unique and historic White Pass & Yukon Railway. Much of the WP&Y's profit comes from its passengers who ride in obsolete rail cars to view the scenic wonders of the road's 110 miles between the Alaskan port of Skagway and White Horse.

This railroad loves people

WHITE HORSE, Yukon Territory (UPI) — Some of the gold gouged out of the frozen Yukon in the 1890s is pouring back as tourist dollars, most of it and its owners hauled over the unique and historic White Pass & Yukon Railway.

Short—only 110.7 miles, narrow—three foot gauge, and profitable, North America's only unsubsidized railroad links the deep water Alaskan port of Skagway with this capital of Canada's Yukon Territory.

Much of the WP&Y's profit comes from its passengers. An international road, it employs both American and Canadian train crews. Although Skagway has a population of only 758 and White Horse 12,000, the WP&Y carried a record 52,715 passengers last year and expects to do even better this year.

It's powered by modern diesels, but the coaches are the most obsolete still in use by any railroad. Heat in the varnished passenger cars is still supplied by wood stoves now modernized as oil burners, eliminating arguments over who would stoke the stove during winter runs when the temperature settles in around 30 and 40 below zero.

Although the railroad has never owned a dining car, White Pass passengers eat well. All the trains stop at the division point of Bennett, headwaters of the Yukon River and named for the famed American editor, James Gordon Bennett. Here Mrs. Mary Siggers presides over the biggest stove in the Yukon, a 12-foot monster that turned out 855 meals on Aug. 12 of last year, the biggest single day in the WP&Y's history.

Scenery and history

The famed "sourdough" meals—which substitute bakery rolls for sourdough bread—are included in the $25 ticket and always include homemade pie, be it breakfast, lunch or dinner.

Scenery and history are the White Pass's biggest attractions. It climbs nearly 3,000 feet in 17 miles after leaving coastal Skagway, offering some of the most spectacular views of Alaska as it crawls through the St. Elias mountains. Five diesel units are needed to drag each of the mixed passenger and freight trains up the face of the mountains. In some stretches, old "Shake, Rattle and Roll" climbs 80 feet for every 1,000 feet of track.

The route follows one of the two passes through which the thousands of gold seekers poured into the Yukon in the gold rush of '98. There were only two sensible routes to the gold fields near Dawson, 400 miles down the Yukon: Assault the St. Elias range via White Pass or Chilkoot Pass and float down the Yukon from Lake Bennett to Dawson via White Horse. Or sail around the Alaska Peninsula into the Bering Sea and take a paddlewheeler the thousand miles up the Yukon to Dawson. The vast majority of goldstruck Americans invaded Canada via the Chilkoot and White passes.

Educated track-layers

British money and a Canadian Irishman named Michael J. Heney built what historians agree was the toughest railway construction job ever attempted. Work started in May, 1898, using black powder, sledges, picks and shovels wielded by some of the best educated minds ever to lay track. The labor force was made up mostly of flat-broke doctors, lawyers, engineers and even preachers who ran out of money long before they hit the gold fields.

Twenty-seven months later the road was completed to Caribou Crossing on the Yukon. Sternwheelers hauled the gold seekers downstream to Dawson where they found the best claims already staked and most of the gold gone.

The WP&Y has stayed in business ever since, sometimes so broke that there was trouble meeting the payroll. During World War II the White Pass became one of the most important railroads in the far north, and was run by the United States Army. The great bulk of the freight needed to build the Alaskan Highway was hauled into White Horse by old "Shake, Rattle and Roll."

But hauling humans is still an important source of WP&Y revenue, particularly the one-day excursions from Skagway to Bennett. All through the summer the tourists will pour off the cruise ships at Skagway, board the big-windowed coaches for the day's outing at the old ghost town of Bennett. The WP&Y fills them full of scenery and food; the tourists fill the WP&Y'S cash registers, a rare phenomenon in modern railroading.

Medical doctors fleeing India; drastic shortage there prevails

NEW DELHI, May 14 (UPI) — It is widely acknowledged in Britain that its health services would suffer drastically if the more than 4,000 immigrant Indian doctors living there were turned out.

In the U.S., according to recent figures, the number of foreign doctors mainly from India and South Korea seeking employment outnumbered Americans graduating from American medical institutions.

The Indian government regards this situation as an alarming brain drain problem as more and more young Indian doctors flee to advanced countries in search of more money and better working conditions because they are unable to find employment here —where they are badly needed.

"We need our doctors desperately and we want them more than ever to serve our people, particularly in the rural areas," a Health Ministry spokesman said.

He admitted the doctor brain drain problem is even more severe than the flight of scientists, engineers and other skilled Indians.

Acute shortage

Although there is no exact estimate of the number of Indian doctors abroad, officials say it runs into tens of thousands in the countries of Europe, Canada, the U.S. and Australia.

In India the doctor-population ratio is one doctor for every 5,000 persons but in several thousand Indian villages a doctor cannot be found within a radius of 20 miles.

"With the increase in the number of Indian medical institutions more and more doctors are looking for employment but a majority of them are unwilling to go to rural areas where, we agree, working conditions are atrocious," an official said.

"There is no way we can ban their (doctors') travel to other countries," the Health Ministry spokesman said.

New policy

U.S. Surgeon-General S. Paul Ehrlich during a recent visit to New Delhi explained the problem in an interview with an American correspondent.

"This is a problem," he was quoted as saying. "The lesser developed countries like India have been helping to subsidize the medical manpower needs of the United States. In the next few months a policy will be evolved in the federal government to deal with this problem."

He was referring to a request by Indian Health Minister Dr. Karan Singh that something be done to stem the outflow of Indian doctors.

Having ignored the problem for years, the Indian government woke up to the situation after the three-month strike by New Delhi's 2,400 junior doctors which crippled health services in the capital. The doctors demanded higher salary and better working conditions in the incredibly overcrowded city hospitals.

Strike settled

Whereas an intern in a country like the U.S. earns upward of $400 a month, his Indian counterpart gets less than $30. In some cases an Indian intern makes considerably less than an office peon in a business firm.

After tortuous negotiations, the Health Ministry settled a strike last month with an offer of $46 a month for an intern and $66 for a house surgeon.

"What the hell do you expect us to do with this money when in a city like Delhi or Bombay a man needs a minimum of $80 just to be able to eat two meals a day," a junior doctor complained. "If we go to a rural area where our services are badly needed, we can't afford to buy even a bicycle and we will have to do everything from delivering a baby to treating cancer."

The United Nations, which now has taken up the issue, said in its Secretary General's report, "The net outflow of trained personnel from developing countries is significant enough to justify the international concern."

Compensation urged

The developed countries should not regard the existence of a potential supply of trained personnel from the developing countries as a supplementary source to fill the demand for trained cadre," the report said.

However, unable to suggest an immediate solution, the report urged "compensating the developing countries for the trained immigrants" through bilateral agreements.

"Any plan for compensation for the brain drain must be in addition to, and not at the expense of, development assistance to the developing countries," it added.

"Such a solution is not going to solve the problem for the doctor who can make about $100,000 a year in a country like the U.S. but can't make even $1,000 in India," another official remarked.

Division answer to rat multiplication

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: It seemed Roxanne and Rudolph Ratnik hit it off from the very first. There was no doubt of it when Roxanne's first litter arrived. That was exciting, but since then it's become exhausting. They've been littering all over the place and I'm kept busy frantically trying to find new volunteer rat owners. Do I have to have Roxanne spayed to slow the flow? I hate to subject her to surgery, but I've got to do something and fast. We're just getting too many rates around here. — W.W.

Dear W.W.: A simple, safe and inexpensive way to reduce your rodent population explosion (at least as far as Roxanne and Rudolph are concerned) is separation. Simply set Rudolph up in adjoining bachelor quarters: Absence may or may not make the heart grow fonder, but if the Ratniks remain permanently separated, at least one pressing population problem is solved. The same technique can be applied, of course, to any of their offspring who might also be littering up the premises.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We suspect this cat that's wandered in on us might be old. At what age do a cat's teeth begin to loosen? — V.S.

Dear V.W.: The feline first has loose teeth when only a few months of age. These temporary teeth are lost as they're displaced by the permanent teeth beneath them. Aging ivories leave home most typically in the cat beyond nine or ten years of age. Injury can cause tooth loss at any age, of course. Gum diseases are common in cats and are often responsible for loosened or lost teeth in middle-aged or even young animals. Loose (adult) teeth in any feline, including your newfound friend, are an indication that dental help is past due. Your veterinarian can provide an estimate of the cat's approximate age, using teeth as one of the guidelines.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Sam Snake (I don't know what kind he is) I think is losing weight. But he eats. How much should a snake be fed a week? — V.M.

Dear V.M: In Sam's case, probably more. It might also be advisable to have Sam checked out for internal and external parasites. Sam would normally need rations totalling about two per cent of his body weight per week, though if he was very active, ration requirements could at least double.

JESSIE HAVER BUTLER
The First Lobbyist for Women at the Capitol, Washington D.C.
ENDORSES
FOR
35th CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT U.S. CONGRESS
MARY MONTES IS A CITIZEN ADVOCATE!
Her life-long residency in this area has given her a firm grasp of the needs of the people in this area. Born in Chino, the 35 year-old candidate was educated in the Pomona schools, Mount San Antonio College, U.C.L.A., Cal State University at Los Angeles and is currently finishing her dissertation at the Claremont Graduate School. She holds an Associate of Arts and Bachelor of Arts degrees and expects to receive her Ph.D. before June, 1974. She is a recent recipient of a full Ford Foundation fellowship in Administrative Leadership.
MARY MONTES HAS BEEN INVOLVED IN MANY COMMUNITY-ORIENTED PROJECTS. PROFESSIONALLY SHE HAS WORKED AS AN EDUCATOR in Chino, Pomona and at the Claremont Colleges.
"Every voter in the 35th Congressional District and every mother and father should swarm to their voting booths on June 4 and vote to send Mary Montes to Washington to serve the needs of American women, children and families of today."
"Let me explain. Recent news inform us that our country loses more babies in the first week of their lives than any other civilized country. Also, our country is 11th on the list of nations which loses more babies the first years of their lives than any other civilized country. Last year 10,000 children less than 3 months old died in their cribs at night. 1,000 to 1,500 of those babies died in California. Also last year infant mortality was the 5th leading killer in the United States—the richest country in the world."
"Mary Montes knows this. She also has had years of the best training that California's educational system has to offer. She is concerned about the quality of care the young receive—at home and at school."
"I speak for women and also for men and fathers who suffer from the effects of poor child care."
"Although many fine men are running in the 35th Congressional District our state needs MARY MONTES in Washington. She knows our needs and knows what to do there."

Employes have no problems with this boss

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Bookkeeper Stan Robinson and his 11 co-workers at an appliance store here set their own wages, take as much vacation as they want, and collect profit-sharing bonuses.

"They're happy as a lark," Robinson says. Before the pay plan was introduced five years ago, he said, "The fellows were kind of grumbling, thinking they should get more money.

"Now they just ask me and they get it. I don't even talk to Art about it, or Morry."

Owners Arthur and Morris Friedman said they began to let employes set their own wages to implement "the words we've heard—so many pretty words in our lives from ministers and other people."

It was, explained Arthur, a way of "practicing what we preach."

The Friedman brothers never argue with their employs. They allow them to choose the customers they want to wait on, borrow company trucks for their own personal use and never discuss salaries with them.

Arthur Friedman, 51, estimates that the service men, truck drivers and a warehouseman are making about $1,000 a month, more than the union scale for retail clerks. Most of them are union members for health and welfare benefits.

The store itself has been showing about the same rate of profit the past five years as before, with $750,000 in total volume.

"We don't like to profit off the effort of some other guy," Friedman said.

"Some of my friends say, 'They're going to call you a dirty commie.' But how can they since I own a business?"

The Friedmans have discovered that their employes now watch the store's profits as carefully as they do, as if checking their own wallets.

They are:

Truck driver Robert Ryan, 27, said he keeps tabs on business to help him make salary requests. "We do not want the company to go under."

"All the employes know you can't go hog wild," said semi-retired service man Elwood Larson, 64. "To get what we asked for we have to produce— otherwise the company will be in trouble."

Larson said he adjusts his pay hikes with jumps in the cost of living. "I figure what I need and ask for it.

"I never ask what the others are getting. Never paid any attention to it and they've never asked me."

Robinson, the longest - tenured employe and the man who keeps the financial figures straight, says the salary requests are not exorbitant.

"Last week one of the fellows asked for $25 a week more. But he hadn't taken a raise for about a year. He might be happy for a couple of years now," Robinson said.

"I was short last week. I gave myself 10 bucks but I cut down this week."

Arthur Friedman said he prefers having such "fantastically conscientious, model employes" to whatever profits he might lose to wages.

"People can't believe we're as offhand as we are," he said. "But there are simply more important things than making an extra buck."

For an employer to open the payroll to his employes, Friedman explained, takes "nerve, or the guts or the faith to try."

"The biggest thing is convincing the people that you really mean it ... that no matter what they ask of you, you'll give it."

The owners found some of their employes either couldn't believe them at first or were uneasy with the responsibility of naming their price. One man refused to ask for a raise for months because "maybe it was too much for him to handle."

And then there is the service man who makes less than a coworker but doesn't ask for a raise because he feels he would have to work harder to rate it.

Would the plan work in factories and other, larger firms?

Arthur Friedman doubts that many will try because "most guys in business are unwilling to relinquish any of their power and their potential profit.

"I'm sure there might be a few people who would take advantage," said deliveryman Ryan. "But a lot of people, you treat them like a person and they'll act like one."

"It's not going to work if you have someone who wants to chisel," advised Larson, adding that skeptical onlookers tend to think the Friedman employes are "a bunch of damn liars."

They are wrong, he counters.

"It's really a crazy mixed up profit-making deal."

70-year-old New York City landmark closes

By RONALD G. BURNS

NEW YORK (UPI) — A half-dozen old men stood around a shabby doorway on Manhattan's Lower East Side. It was a warm, muggy day, but the men had their hands in their pockets and their collars turned up.

They had spent their lives waiting tables at the restaurant behind the doorway, a unique eatery known as Ratner's, which offered a strictly "kosher dairy" cuisine. No meat was served.

Now, for the first time in its 70-year history, the restaurant, once a thriving center of the dwindling Jewish neighborhood, had closed its doors.

When—or if—it would reopen was uncertain.

"I'm 77 years old and I've worked here 20 years," said one of the men, Abe Klein. "What else have I got to do?"

The other men shuffled their feet and nodded. Without Ratner's, they said, their futures looked bleak.

And though a spokesman for the restaurant said the owners hoped to get back in business after "alterations and reorganization," most of the men said they were ready to start looking for other work.

The restaurant closed Monday night after the long illness of its principal owner and general manager, Abraham Harmatz. Harmatz died less than 24 hours later and was buried Thursday.

Ratner's, which operated 24-hours-a-day since it first opened in 1905, was one of a dwindling number of restaurants in New York City that kept late-night hours.

It became a key establishment in the Lower Manhattan neighborhood that exploded with Jewish immigrants in the years before World War I.

As the area thrived in the 1920's and 1930's—producing countless political and artistic leaders —Ratners grew with it, moving half-a-block from a small location at Second Avenue and 6th Street to the large building it occupies today.

Wine tasters speak a language all their own

CHICAGO (UPI) — "Full-bodied, robust, supple . . . sometimes I don't know if they are talking about a girl or a wine."

Irving C. Dobrow, a New York banker turned wine buff, admitted he is sometimes surprised at the way people describe wine.

Wandering through a crowded room of wine tasters during Heublein's Sixth Premium National Auction of Rare Wines, Dobrow, a Heublein consultant, said wine also could be "woody, corky, flinty, fruity, velvety — even even mousey if it's not good."

Okay, we said, glass at the ready. Tell us about wine tasting.

"Anything that is edible or palatable has to appeal to the eye. So we look at the color," said Dobrow, holding a glass of red wine close to a white table cloth.

If it's cloudy or milky, it has lost its eye appeal and may not be so good, he said, "but sediment is perfectly okay as long as it settles."

"Then the bouquet or aroma," Dobrow said, gently sniffing a 1959 Inglenook Charbono. Pleasant, but "not much nose to this," he said.

Dobrow said in general, whites should have a flowery smell and the quality reds "an overpowering aroma. Your senses are immediately alerted."

"Taste is a matter of personal preference," he said, "Most people prefer white wine to be very dry, to be eaten with bland food, like fish. Red wine is smooth, velvety and most pleasant."

Its auction price was listed at $25 to $35 a bottle.

Professional wine tasters usually nibble on a bit of Swiss cheese or dry bread between sips. Dobrow said he liked an unsalted cracker and "certainly no smoking."

He said the professionals believe the best time to taste wine is in the morning "and they will not use tooth paste or mouth wash" beforehand, lest they make a difference.

"Your mind, your taste buds —all your senses —are most at rest in the morning," Dobrow said.

Dobrow was an assistant vice president in a small New York bank at the end of Prohibition in 1933 when he decided to go into the wine importing business.

"In those days all anyone knew was hard liquor. If someone had mentioned Beaujolais or Chablis then, no one would have known what he was talking about," Dobrow said.

Dobrow learned. In 1944 he was able to obtain a few cases of a new Portuguese wine from Lisbon, a sparkling rose in a handmade clay jug.

The first imported wine to hit the United States in the latter stages of World War II, the rose became an instant success under the company's Lancers label.

By 1964, when he sold his Vintage Wine Inc. to Heublein, more than 100,000 cases of the sparkling rose were being imported, and the figure is now up to 500,000.

Short supply to hike price of oranges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumers can expect a sharp increase in orange prices beginning late this year and lasting at least until the late 1970's, Agriculture Department economists warned today.

Experts said they based their warning on a study showing that per capita supplies of both fresh and processed orange products will drop in the 1974-75 harvest season and may not climb back to current levels until the 1979-80 season.

With demand for frozen orange concentrate growing steadily, officials said, the declining supply means shoppers had better brace themselves for "significant increases" in prices.

A report published by the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service (ERS) traced the coming dip in supply to low prices in the late 1960's. With production then running ahead of consumer demand, growers found their profits lower, and there was a corresponding slowdown in planting of new orange trees, especially in Florida, the report said.

"By 1980, however, Florida's acreage of bearing trees should be back to the high levels of 1970-71," the report added.

Reform sought in food safety laws

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A bill calling for major reforms of federal food safety laws, including annual mandatory government inspection and registration of every food plant in the country, was approved recently by the Senate Commerce Committee.

The measure would also require for the first time that food manufacturers include open dating on all food labels, and that food labels list color additives and other flavor and spice ingredients not now required on labels.

QUALITY OF LIFE — PEOPLE ORIENTED CAMPAIGN

THE TAX STRUCTURE PLACES UNFAIR BURDENS ON THE AVERAGE WAGE-EARNER! Tax reform can come about when those who formulate tax policy become accountable to the individual wage earner. The tax-exemph system presently used is not an equitable system.

JOBLESSNESS IS CRITICAL IN THIS AREA! We need training centers for those seeking employment or higher levels of employment.

WE NEED STRONG LOCAL SCHOOLS! Local programs must be strengthened further. Educators need additional support systems which will provide students with higher levels of achievement.

THE ENERGY CRISIS IS MUCH MORE THAN HIGHER FUEL PRICES! Most people have yet to recognize that the malfunctioning of their vital energy supply stems from a basic deficiency in the political process: American governmental institutions (let alone the American people) lack the power to insure a rational public energy policy.

HONEST GOVERNMENT SERVES THE AVERAGE-AMERICAN BY DESIGN! The need for full representation is apparent. The gap between the average citizen and government representatives is too great. We need new arenas like the "Town Hall" concept where citizens can address themselves to issues which affect them and their families. We all need more honest exposure to the facts.

MARY MONTES IS A CITIZEN ADVOCATE! Her life - long residency in their area has given her a firm grasp of the needs of the people in this area. Born in Chino, the 35 year old candidate was educated in the Pomona schools, Mount San Antonio College, U.C.L.A., Cal State University at Los Angeles and is currently finishing her dissertation at the Claremont Graduate School. She holds an Associate of Arts and Bachelor of Arts degrees and expect to receive her Ph. [illegible] before June, 1974. She is a recent recipient of a full Ford Foundation fellowship in Administrative leadership.

PROFESSIONALLY SHE HAS WORKED AS AN EDUCATOR in Chino, Pomona and at the Claremont Colleges. She has worked as a teacher, master teacher training young teachers from the local colleges, consultant in areas of curriculum development, Counselor and Assistant Dean of Students.

Zinc fever spreading in Yukon

WHITEHORSE, Yukon Territory (UPI) — The historic cry of "Gold! gold! gold!" is heard again in the Yukon, blended today with shouts of "Zinc! zinc! zinc!"

The gold that made the Yukon and the Klondike famous in 1898 is attracting hundreds of modern prospectors who have been lured to this northern Canadian Territory by the more than quadrupled price of the yellow metal.

But the big excitement in this territorial capital is with the unglamorous zinc, copper, lead and manganese finds which Canadian geologists say will prove richer than any wealth conceived by the stampeders of '98 who took tons of gold out of the frozen Yukon wilderness.

The record gold prices have overshadowed the all-time highs established by the base metals, all of which this Canadian territory is digging out of its 207,076 square miles of mostly virgin real estate.

"It's 1898 all over again," said prospector Ronald Granger. "There isn't a gold claim in the territory that hasn't changed hands at least once at prices never dreamed of five years ago."

And like '98, all the good claims were staked out long ago, leaving the new arrivals with rich experience and empty pockets.

"There has certainly been an increase in prospecting activity for gold,' said Blake R. Baxter, the supervising mining recorder for the Yukon Territory, "but it is no boom, and certainly no rush."

Baxted pointed out that most of the Klondike had been tramped over acre by acre since the first strike in 1896, and the big producing placers had long ago been washed clean of most of their color.

"There has not been a staking rush for gold claims," Baxter said, "as there are only so many creeks in the Yukon and most of those have already been staked."

The Territory records show that whereas only 59 placer claims were filed two years ago before gold took its big jump, last fiscal year the total was 234, an increase of 296 per cent. Quartz claims were up from 7,358 to 10,368, a jump of 41 per cent.

Cam Ogilvy, manager of the Yukon Chamber of Mines, described the splurge as a "mini gold rush."

"Due to the high price of gold —around $170 an ounce —there has been a substantial increase in placer mining activity in the Yukon," Ogilvy said, "particularly around the Dawson area where the big finds were made in the 1890s."

But he emphasized that most of the precious metal activity was by individuals working part time, or just during the summer months.

"The last dredging operation ceased about seven years ago," Ogilvy explained, "and the placer mining is being done pretty much the way it was in the 1890s, by individual or small groups of young prospectors. The Yukon Consolidated Gold Corp., which holds most of the Yukon leases, hasn't done much except sub-lease or sell some of its claims."

Ogilvy then produced the wealth figures for the territory which showed the $15.5 million worth of mineral production in 1967 had leaped to $147 million this year.

"And this," he forecast, "is only the beginning. Most of that increase is from the Anvil Mining Corp.'s open pit operation 130 air miles northeast of Whitehorse, and from the Whitehorse Copper Mines Ltd. just outside town. From all indications, the new Barrier Reef discovery in the Bonnet Plume River, 300 miles northeast of Whitehorse is the biggest zinc-silver-lead find in the territory."

The area is so remote that everything must be flown in, and not even a dirt road has yet been built into the valley. Construction of the road is expected to begin this summer.

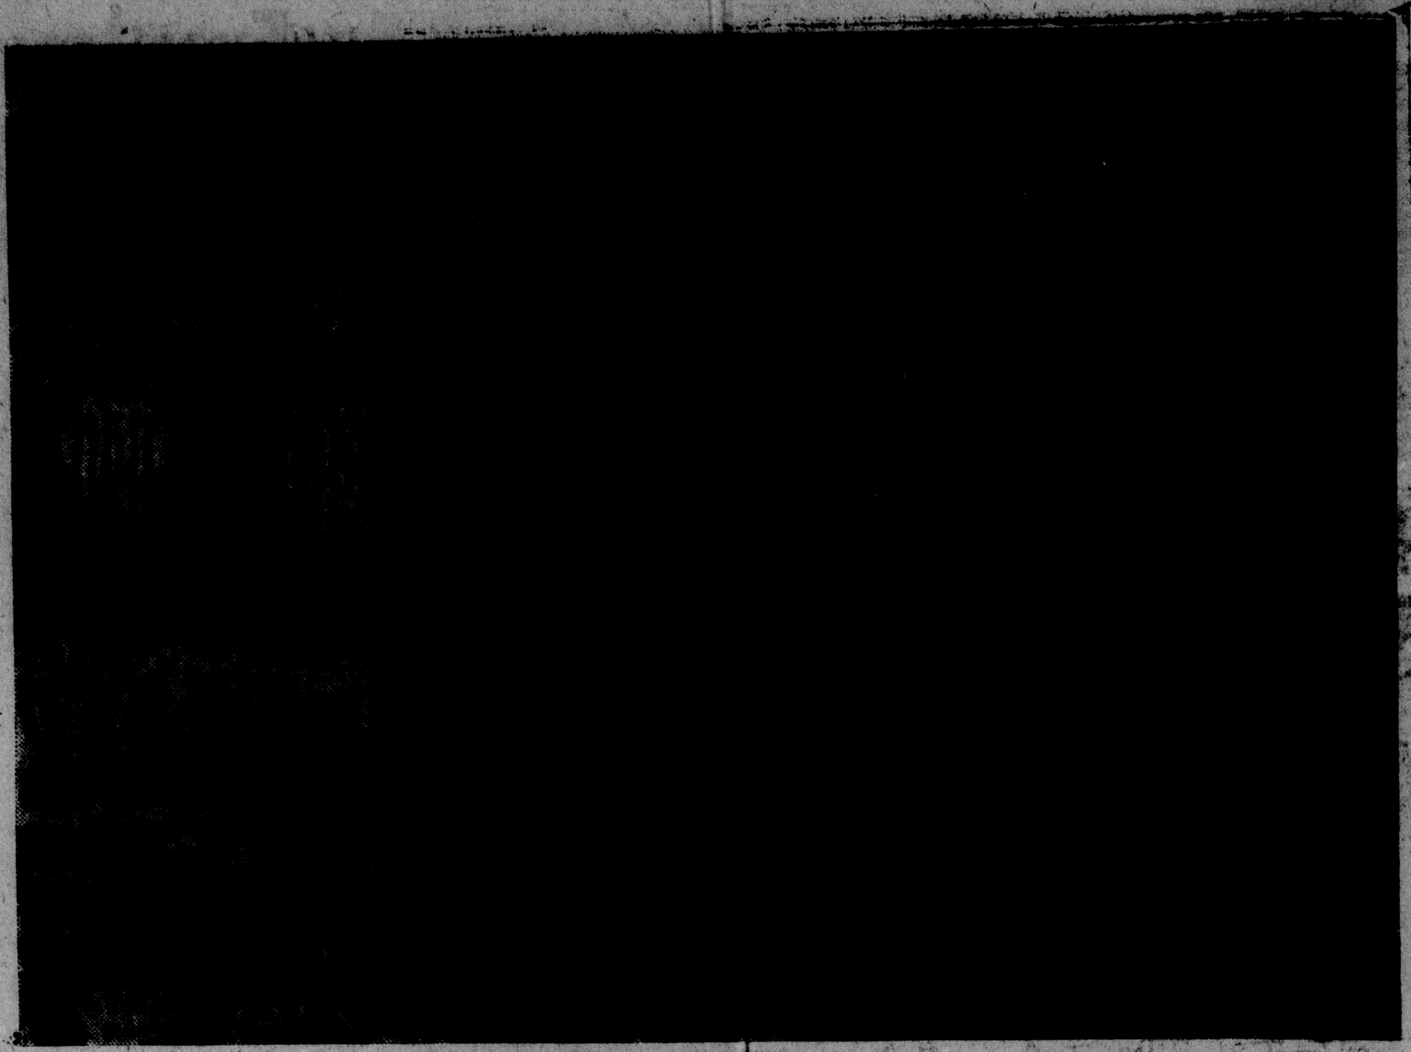
There was no road into the Anvil area, either, until the strike was made there in the early 1960s. Now ore trucks loaded with 15 tons of zinc-lead concentrates make the 150-mile run from the Anvil mine to Whitehorse every 20 minutes day and night, hauling the concentrates to the railhead at Whitehorse. From there it is moved by the narrow gauge White Pass and Yukon Railway 110 miles over historic White Pass to Skagway for shipment to West Germany and Japan. Even with these tremendous shipping costs, the high price of zinc makes the Anvil operation one of the most profitable in the Yukon.

Information officer Don Sawatsky of the Yukon Territory government confirmed that there had been discussions of extending the WP&Y on down the Yukon to Dawson, and also preliminary studies made on building a smelter at Whitehorse, but that both proposals were still in the talking stage.

"There have been several good copper finds in the Territory," Ogilvy said. "The United Keno Hill Mines about 300 miles northwest of Whitehorse has two years supply of ore in sight, and we estimate that the territory now possesses at least 10 per cent of the world's tungsten supply. The Cassiar Asbestos Corp. has two big operations, one at McDame Mountain in British Columbia just south of the Yukon border, and the other at Clinton Creek, 50 miles northwest of Dawson."

Each of the mining men is convinced that the present exploitation and development is only the beginning.

"Our biggest need now is energy," Ogilvy said, "either through development of our hydroelectric sources, or the proposed natural gas pipeline from Prudhoe Bay and the MacKenzie Delta which will be going right past our front door. If we can tap that source of energy and use it to refine our ores, the Yukon has the potential of becoming one of the biggest mining-industrial complexes in Canada."



GOLD RUSH — Locomotives of a White Horse and Yukon Railway train haul a string of ore cars in Canada's Yukon Territory where the cry of "Gold" is heard again, blended with shouts of "Zinc, zinc." The rising price of the yellow metal that made the territory famous in 1898 is attracting hundreds of modern prospectors, but the big excitement is with zinc, copper, lead and manganese finds which geologists say will prove richer than any wealth conceived by the stampeders of 1898.

Eudora Welty

Pulitzer author looks back

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Eudora Welty said she "didn't know any better" when she started sending her short stories to magazines as a young woman just out of her teens.

"I would write things and send them in and they would come back—always with rejection slips—they always came straight back," she recalled with a smile.

Sitting in the sunny and quiet living room of her girlhood home. Miss Welty said that she was touched with "luck and ignorance and innocence" when she first began submitting her stories of familiar characters and places to small circulation magazines during the Depression.

"It was luck because in those poor years there were a lot of magazines where an unknown author could be printed," she said.

"Petrified" Esquire

But she described how the larger publications sent her early stories back to her. She especially remembered mailing a story called "The Petrified Man" to Esquire magazine.

"They accepted the story and then they found out I was a woman," she said "They wrote me and said they did not know I was a woman and could not use the story."

She didn't allow such early setbacks to deter her from her chosen profession and over the years has become one of America's foremost authors.

The Pulitzer Prize which she received last year was among numerous awards and critical acclaim won by Miss Welty since the first publication of one of her stories in 1936 in a small magazine called Manuscript.

Her novel "Losing Battles" was a Pulitzer Prize nominee in 1971, and "The Ponder Heart" won the William Dean Howells Medal of the American Academy of Arts and Letters for the most distinguished piece of American fiction to be published in the five years before 1954.

Success Brings Problems

She also was recognized in 1972 with the Gold Medal award of the National Institute of Arts and Letters, which had been won 10 years earlier by fellow Mississippian William Faulkner.

But success, she said modestly, had brought problems and interrupted her coveted privacy with activity that "was not my normal way of going on... there was the excitement, but my life is pretty quiet."

"I look for whole, dear days to work without interruption," she said. "I'm pretty priggishly conscientious. I try not to be priggish, but I probably am because I have a lot of pride in my work."

Miss Welty, the only daughter of a prosperous Jackson insurance executive, attended Mississippi State College for Women and graduated later from the University of Wisconsin with a degree in English. She also studied advertising at Columbia University.

WPA was a help

"When I first got out of college," she said, "the country was in the Depression and there weren't any jobs so I took a part time job. It left me with time to write, which I had wanted to do all the time."

She worked for a while as a "general factotum" at a Jackson radio station owned by her father's insurance firm, but it was her rambling criss-crossing of Mississippi by bus and car as a WPA publicist that gave her much of the material for her stories.

"I have trained my memory well," she said. "I have a visual mind and a love of accuracy." During her travels, her keen eye caught infinite qualities of Southern small town living and the characters within.

Those small towns, she said fondly, are "much more likely a setting for a writer—they define a space and simplify your work—you treat it like a family."

Back home in the upstairs bedroom of her chocolate-brown brick house, Eudora Welty wove her many stories on an upright typewriter which she has often said she'd rather use then talk.

"My ideas come out of a typewriter," she once said. "I can put them down on paper but I'm not very good at just talking them. I like the noise and I don't feel I've really done it until it's been through the typewriter."

She said the people in her stories are mostly composites of people she has known "a lifetime," mixed with a measure of her own feelings.

She said characterization is "the most important thing" in her work. "It's essential; it's what makes you want to write to begin with, a feeling for other people. I cannot write about emotions I have never had.

"You cannot describe something you haven't felt—it's dishonest."

But she said her own emotions "are not acted out the same in a story as it was in my life."

Ideas nurtured slowly

Miss Welty said she usually nurtured the ideas for her stories for a long time before putting them on paper. "I think over some kind of general theme, usually things in the world that bother me. Then all of a sudden something will give you a clue, maybe something you've heard," she said.

"Then you realize the form into which you can put these feelings, you can put it in in a hurry. It could be thinking and feeling over a year without even knowing you are doing it."

After a pause, she continued: "You have to have an idea so strong that it compels you to write. Only a strong idea has vitality and you give it all you've got."

Miss Welty, who has never married, lives alone in the big house and still sleeps in her old "private bedroom" where a pink floral carpet covers the floor. Scores of books line the walls.

Forgets to eat

Except for a housekeeper, she said, she works alone in the house often wearing "an old shirt or a housedress and sometimes barefooted." She said she sometimes gets so involved in her work that she might forget to eat except "sometimes I like to fix myself a peanut butter sandwich quickly and get back to work."

"I am very hard on myself and I hope I always will be," she said.

Although she shuns publicity, she is not a recluse. She enjoys driving around Jackson in an old powder-blue Ford and visits her neighborhood grocery almost anonymously. "You can move around just the way you want to here," she said.

And her life isn't all work. She said she likes "to knock off work in the late afternoon, meet a friend and go out to dinner or play records and read. I like to travel and to entertain and I have good friends in different places."

Mystery fan

Some of her favorite books, she said, are mystery stories.

Among her current projects is compiling her nonfiction writing into a book, including lectures, book reviews and speeches that she has made over the years.

When taking vacation:

Plan security for your home

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thieves can add considerably to the cost of a summer holiday so the wise family will add home safeguards to holiday planning.

From Pinkerton's, Inc., private security firm, and others some hints on procedures:

—Don't talk in public about your travel plans, household possessions or personal valuables. You never know who's listening. Above all, don't announce your vacation plans in the local newspaper; wait until you've returned if you really must oblige the society reporter.

—Aim for an "at-home" look while you are gone. One way is to have someone you trust "house sit" —live in while you are away. City friends might enjoy the change if you live in the suburbs; if yours is a city home, look to out-of-town friends. This also enables you to leave pets at home.

Almost as good, if there are pets, is to leave them at home and arrange for a reliable neighborhood youngster or a friend to stop in two or three times a day to take care of them.

—For most families, probably the most practical way is for neighbors to cooperate, to keep an eye on each other's homes.

Automatic lights

—Before you take off on vacation, invest in automatic timers for a few lamps —in the living room and kitchen, a room or two upstairs. Set them to turn on around dusk and go off later in the evening as they would if you were at home. Stagger them so they don't turn off and on at the same time. You might put a radio on one. This is a good year-'round measure, too, for anytime the house is going to be empty.

— Don't draw window shades. Leave them as you would if you were at home. It's a wise idea, however, to put out of sight any valuables —a silver tea service, for instance.

—Have a cooperative neighbor pick up your newspapers for you. One burglar, Pinkerton's said, had a tip-off man working in a newspaper subscription office to learn of families that were stopping their papers temporarily.

—Neighbors also can turn on the sprinklers in your lawn, have their guests or members of the family park in your driveway, even put rubbish in your garbage cans.

—If you'll be away for any length of time, arrange to have the grass cut.

—Lock up ladders and tools and garage doors.

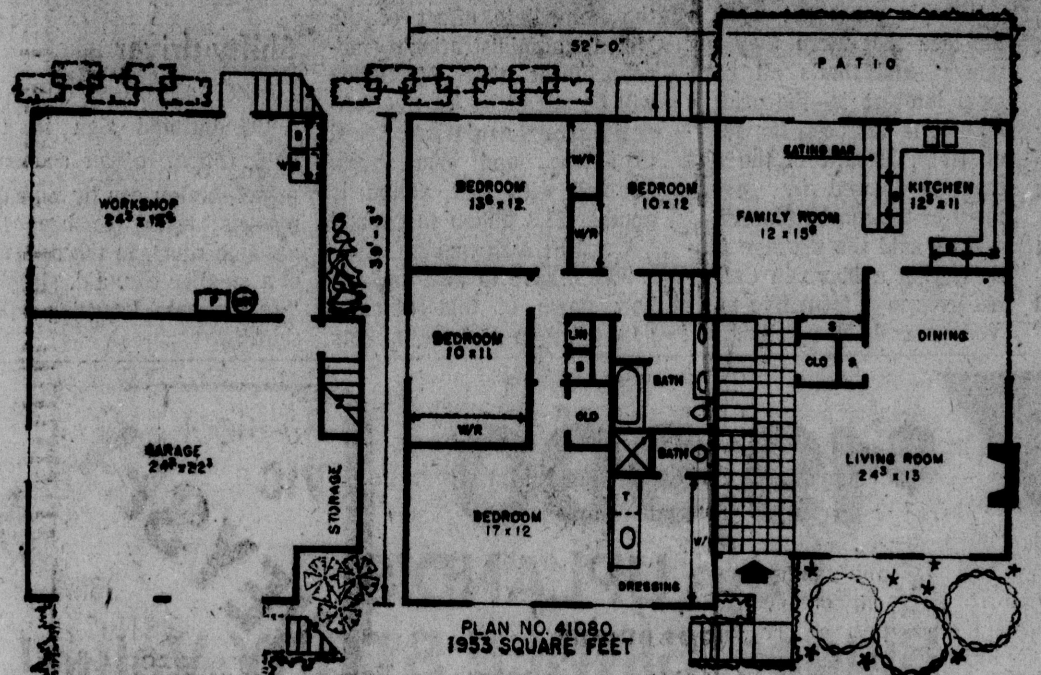
—Notify police that you will be away.

A final thought —Pinkerton's notes in some cities, block associations give members a warning whistle as a signal in case of street crime. In suburban areas, other neighborhoods are forming associations to hire security patrols. Along with the extra benefits of getting to know who lives near you, Pinkerton's says, crime drops sharply.

There are residential patrol and inspection services with two-way radio cars and uniformed guards behind the wheel. A central office acts as dispatcher and relays any trouble reports to police headquarters. When a family is away, the radio patrol acts as a special watchman.

Good security need not cost a lot. In fact, the best measures are often the least expensive — getting to know your neighbors and taking some simple common sense precautions.

Progress-Bulletin Real Estate



House features cedar roof, louver shutters

The graciousness and formality of the facade of this home is characterized by its attractive cedar shingle roof, the brick veneer and the large windows framed between louver shutters.

Although the home has been planned as a split level design, it could easily be constructed on a level lot by lowering the one-story portion of the plan until it is on approximately the same level as the garage.

Twin doors open to a center hall entry which offers excellent traffic circulation to all areas of the home. Entry access is also available directly from the oversized two-car garage. Such a feature will really be appreciated during inclement weather. From the entry one has a direct view of the attractive fireplace in the huge living room.

Only cabinets — including an eating bar — separate the kitchen and family room. Not the storage complex consisting of closets opening to the family room and dining plus a guest closet at the entry. Sliding glass doors open from the family room to the patio while a wide pass through window above the kitchen sink offers a convenient method of serving drinks or food on the patio.

The location of the family bath and the private bath off the master bedroom allows the economy of back-to-back plumbing. There is a twin lavatory in the family bath. A pullman lavatory in the dressing area of the master bedroom suite continues to form a dressing table.

Laundry facilities plus a furnace and water heater have been located in the roomy workshop just back of the garage.

This same basic exterior is also available in a three bedroom design, at a different price structure, and is illustrated in our book, Hallmark Homes.

Complete working drawings for plan 4108 can be purchased for only $12.67 for the first set and $6.36 for each additional set ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these special prices until September 12, 1974. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. A specification booklet is available for $1.06. A large reproduction rendering of the exterior is available for $1.06. Send all orders to: Hiawatha Estes, P.O. Box 404-PO, Northridge, CA 91324.

Woman earns realty award for sales

UPLAND — Margaret E. Bradford, sales woman for Lewis Homes of California, has been awarded a "Million Dollar Circle" citation by the National Association of Home Builders' sales and marketing council.

She was honored for personally contributing to more than $1 million in sales last year at the Lewis Homes—Prestige development in Upland.

The Lewis Homes organization, with headquarters in Upland, builds residential developments in California, Nevada and Utah.

City officials issued in April building permits for 49 single family homes with a $1.3 million valuation.

Builders propose measures to boost housing production

WASHINGTON — Concerned over inflation, tight money and high interest rates which depressed housing production, the National Association of Home Builders has proposed a program to alleviate the situation.

Lewis Cenker, NAHB president, said the group's 1,100 member board recommended these measures at their spring meeting:

— Establishment of a system of national priorities of allocation of financial resources and holding down unnecessary government spending which would lead toward balanced budgets.

— A system of credit allocation to create an equitable flow to those sectors of the economy hardest hit.

— Reinstitution of some form of economic controls so as to monitor firmly wage and price adjustments.

— A less restrictive money policy than now being adhered to by the Administration.

— Creation of a capital issues committee to regulate the flow of borrowing demands in the market place.

In a board statement, members said that housing, a major segment of the economy, is being "disproportionately depressed" by the inequalities of national policies.

"While there has been some attention focused on housing problems by the President's recent announcement of additional secondary mortgage market support, it must be recognized that the $10.3 billion price tag sounds like more than it is," they noted.

An accompanying resolution condemned current economic policy and the Federal Reserve Board's reliance on tight money and high interest rates as a device for containing inflation as "not only self defeating but a contributor to that very inflation it is intended to cure."

The NAHB called for Congress to establish immediately a program to make mortgage funds constantly available at reasonable and stable rates.

Firm to warm new building via computers

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Heat generated by computers as they turn out business data will be used to warm a new building here.

The Hartford Insurance Group estimated computers work up enough energy to ultimately save 120,000 gallons of oil annually.

The computer heat will circulate through a nine-story building, now under construction for The Hartford. Computer heat formerly was regarded as an unwanted by-product of data processing.

Young people are entering realty field

LOS ANGELES — The real estate profession is drawing younger and career minded sales people.

"Many persons buying homes or seeking help in finding an apartment are quite young. Therefore they relate better when dealing with a young Realtor or salesman," said Richard C. Farrer, vice president of the California Real Estate Association.

"This is probably because they understand each others lack of money," he added.

"The trend is escalating to require a college degree to become a broker in the near future. And young people in real estate practice are the result and the cause.

"Many times today you'll find college educated men and women involved in real estate, bringing new ideas to a fast growing element of our society," said Farrer.

Orchard Lane reports most homes sold

UPLAND — More than 80 per cent of the Orchard Lane homes here have been sold.

The $3 million condominium community, developed by the Fredricks Development Corp., is located at Spencer Avenue and Seventh Street.

Buyers have their choice of single story homes having two or three bedrooms and one or two bathrooms.

The homes feature wall-to-wall carpeting, drapes, kitchen ranges and ovens, dishwashers, luminous kitchen ceilings and "no wax" vinyl floors, and central air conditioning.

The development has a large heated swimming pool, hydro-therapy pool, cabana and children's playground. Maintenance of landscaping, recreation area and exterior of the homes is under the supervision of the homeowners association.

The homes are priced from $19,900 with conventional financing available. Furnished model homes are open daily.

Despite interest rates:

Homes in California are still good investment

C. Larry Hoag, president of the California Real Estate Association (CREA), gave this opinion in response to President Nixon's announcement that he is infusing $10 billion into the mortgage market.

"On the short term, that will help make money available for some types of housing," said Hoag. "But it doesn't really get at the root of the problem. That's inflation and the monetary policies of the federal government.

"People must get used to the idea that when they rent money—and that's all mortgage interest is—the price is higher. It has been for several years, in spite of the fluctuations caused by government or the marketplace."

Hoag said the average family buying a home in California lives in it from five to seven years before selling. "If they wait six months to buy, hoping the interest rate will go down, they're playing dodge ball with their future.

"And in all probability they will still be hit by inflation while trying to dodge high interest rates."

A $25,000 house would increase in value about $1,250 in six months at recent inflation rates, more than using up any savings they may make, he noted.

"Even if they keep the house for seven years, the added interest they pay in their montly payments will in all probability be more than offset by the rising value of their house."

Hoag was cautious about the immediate effect of the Nixon administration's announcement that $4 billion will be advanced by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to savings and loan firms. Coupled with that action is another $3.3 billion to expand VA and FHA financing.

"We'll have to wait and see how much of that actually gets down to the grass roots where the average person is," he said. "This might help the eligible veteran to get a VA loan, but FHA's main problem will still be there."

Hoag said the big reason FHA isn't used extensively is unreasonable requirements for cosmetic repairs before approving a loan. Then added the high cost of points and typical delays in processing, and it's no wonder sellers shy away from FHA.

"Even if the President's action makes more money available for loan through savings and loan associations, the likelihood of it at a substantially lower interest rates is remote," said Hoag.

Shifty driver

UPLAND HOME — The second phase of Lewis Homes — Upland will add 39 homes to the community located on 14th Street, a half block west of Mountain Avenue. The homes, part of the Classic Series, will feature cedar shake roofs, wood burning fireplaces and garden kitchens.

Lewis Homes completing model homes

These will serve as prototypes for the 39 homes in the new unit, said Richard A. Lewis, president of Lewis Homes.

"Actually, all 39 homes are in a sense display models for the community," he noted. "Because they are in various stages of construction, they afford shoppers of new homes an opportunity to see the materials and workmanship that go into our houses, even in the parts of the structure that are not visible to the eye once the house is completed."

Buyers will have their choice of one and two story models. The homes are designed with cedar shake roofs, wood burning fireplaces and garden kitchens.

The homes are priced from $33,950 with VA buyers offered 7¾ths per cent loans, equivalent to 8¼ per cent annual percentage rate. Cal Vet terms of 4¾ths per cent interest and conventional financial are also available.

March building shows gain in nation's 200 large cities

NEW YORK — March building permits in the nation's 200 largest cities totaled $1.5 billion. This was a 33 per cent increase over February's $1.1 billion, reports Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.

And while the permit valuations were the highest since August, they lagged below the March, 1973, volume of $1.6 billion.

In New York, a sharp increase was noted as builders filed plans valued at $165,142,318, almost three times the previous month's total of $58,814,075. This was also the highest value since November, 1972.

Strong month-to-month gains were noted in the boroughs of Bronx and Richmond.

Outside of New York, permit valuations in the other 199 cities climbed 25.5 per cent during March to $1.4 billion, a seven month high from $1.1 billion.

Registering large gains were Chicago, Dallas, San Diego, New Orleans and Columbus. The 199 cities excluding New York trailed the $1.5 billion in March 1973.

The 200-city aggregate for 1974's first quarter reached $4,058,768,128, a slight drop from the same period last year of $4,347,300,441.

Cities in California registered these March building valuations and three month accumulative totals:

Los Angeles, $63,101,326 and $175,247,142; San Francisco, $8,536,227 and $32,944,197; San Diego, $39,858,496 and $71,701,799; San Jose, $21,384,446 and $43,902,404; Long Beach, $2,707,625 and $11,125,270; Sacramento, $5,309,225 and $14,945,890; Anaheim, $3,791,702 and $23,463,047; Fresno, $6,259,616 and $14,323,331; Santa Ana, $6,848,763 and $20,140,941; Riverside, $1,091,464 and $7,004,804.

Torrance, $7,711,965 and $11,551,686; Glendale, $5,224,246 and $10,401,768; Garden Grove, $3,449,387 and $8,396,590; Berkeley, $384,942 and $2,723,993; Pasadena, $614,647 and $3,268,827; Stockton, $4,363,844 and $14,762,646; San Bernardino, $1,661,513 and $3,345,976; Fremont, $2,960,550 and $7,501,325; Sunnyvale, $3,190,583 and $7,668,136; Hayward, $2,140,574 and $6,873,354.

Norwalk, $3,441,120 and $5,307,640; Inglewood, $576,880 and $2,220,622; Burbank, $666,750 and $2,098,285; Downey, $827,817 and $2,156,884; Santa Monica, $4,255,593 and $9,700,441; Santa Clara, $6,376,864 and $12,970,384; Pomona, $236,771 and $1,366,072; and Fullerton, $7,548,968 and $18,732,247.

Printing problems delay tape report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica has delayed until next week release of a final report by technical experts of their findings on wht caused erasure of 18-½ minutes from one of President Nixon's Watergate tapes.

Sirica had said earlier this week the voluminous report — which will cost $10 a copy — would be available by Friday or on Monday at the latest, but said Thursday that it would be delayed until about Tuesday because of printing problems. ——

But all 38 are attorneys

Impeachment committee is a microcosm of the House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Regardless of how far the impeachment process against President Nixon goes, the initial decision has to be made by the 36 men and two women who make up the House Judiciary Committee.

They are nearly a microcosm of the entire House.

Liberal Democrats like Reps. Jerome R. Waldie, Calif., a gubernatorial candidate, and Robert F. Drinan, Mass., offset conservative Republicans like Reps. Lawrence Hogan, Md., and Delbert L. Latta, Ohio.

The committee has bright members —one a Rhodes scholar —and some not so bright. It has the lethargic and energetic, reasonable and unreasonable, strident and reserved, formal and informal, quiet and talkative, shy people and publicity seekers.

It has its share of large-state representatives and those from the smaller states, East, West, North and South. It has three blacks, 21 Democrats and 17 Republicans, and there is a cross section of liberals and conservatives from each party.

They range in age from the 72 years of Rep. Harold D. Donohue, D-Mass., to the 32 years of Rep. Trent Lott, R-Miss.

All that is reflective of the makeup of the entire House of 434 members.

But the committee departs from the House makeup in that all 38 of its members are lawyers. They are different kids of lawyers. Most gained experience with law firms, but there also are former prosecuting attorneys, a state attorney general, two assistant U.S. attorneys, a law professor, county judge, justice of the peace, district attorney and assistant D.A., corporation lawyer and four former FBI agents.

Almost all say publicly they have not yet made up their minds about impeachment, but estimates are that 17 lean in favor of it, 13 against and 8 undecided.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., wants the evidence supporting an article of impeachment —if there is any — to be overwhelmingly convincing. He doesn't want to recommend an article of impeachment by a partisan vote. He wants it to be clean and unmarred by any possible charge of partisan politics.

To avoid that, Rodino has been especially cautious about making concessions to the Republicans, who have been under constant pressure from the House leadership and the White House to protect the President's interests.

He has been so cautious in conducting the panel's impeachment business that it has taken nearly seven months, since it first received the impeachment assignment, to reach today's stage of presenting evidence.

If it weren't for impeachment, the committee would be mainly concerned this year with measures such as rewriting the rules of courtroom evidence, prison reform and drawing up a bill to protect newsmen from disclosure of sources.

At times the House of Representatives is bothered by "runaway committees" and committees whose membership do not reflect the makeup of the whole House. It doesn't have to worry about Judiciary on either score.

Chou slowly dropping out of the public eye

HONG KONG (UPI) — Premier Chou En-lai is continuing his steady and studied withdrawal from the frontline of administrative leadership in China.

The withdrawal process that began early this month during visits by two heads of state has followed the same pattern during the current visit of a third foreign leader, Archbishop Makarios, president of Cyprus.

Chou failed to show up at the airport to greet the Cypriot leader. Chinese officials, the most prominent of whom was Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, gave Makarios a collective welcome instead of the one-man show usually given by Chou until last month.

Chou greeted Makarios at the guest house in downtown Peking. He later joined in the first round of talks, along with Teng and other Chinese officials.

The Chinese premier also accompanied Makarios to a meeting with Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung. But he missed the second round of talks at which Teng headed the Chinese side.

The welcoming banquet for Makarios was given in Chou's name. But Teng hosted it and made the welcome speech usually given by Chou.

"I am entrusted by Premier Chou En-lai to be host at the banquet this evening," he told the guests in Peking's Great Hall of the People. He gave no explanation for Chou's absence, the fourth such banquet he has missed this month.

Chou's possible withdrawal was signaled in early May when he failed to appear at a farewell banquet given by President Leopold Senghor of Senegal.

The withdrawal process was virtually confirmed a few days later when Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan arrived.

Chou did not turn up at the airport, greeting Bhutto at the guest house instead. He talked of being old and tired. He was not too old and tired to join in talks with Bhutto and accompany him to a meeting with Mao.

It was in that meeting that analysts specializing in Chinese affairs noted a change in the seating arrangements in Mao's study. Instead of being on Mao's right, Chou sat on the chairman's left, with Bhutto between them. Teng sat in Chou's usual place.

The same arrangement was followed for the Makarios' meeting with Mao.

Loss of sex drive by aged is a myth

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ideas that old people lose their sex drives are myths that should be dispelled by doctors and the general public, a research psychologist says.

In fact, Dr. Robert N. Butler told a national conference sponsored by the American Medical Association, many elderly men and women can and do perfect the art of lovemaking to new levels of satisfaction.

"The evidence clearly points to a continuing physical capacity and sexual desire throughout life, even into the advanced eighties," Butler said.

He said there are many serious myths about sexuality among the aging that contribute to misapprehension, fear and uneasiness among older people and their families.

"There's the [illegible] myth that holds that anybody over 45 is on a sexual decline," Butler said. "Then there's the 'over the hill' myth that declares that the decline has reached its nadir and sexuality is over. This is usually pegged as occurring somewhere between 60 and 65.

"Then, of course," he said, "there's the 'fragility' myth that presents the belief that sexual activity might somehow be dangerous either in terms of heart attacks or broken bones or something of that sort."

Butler, who serves on the faculties of the Washington School of Psychiatry, Howard University and George Washington University, said it is very important for physicians to help older people understand that "these myths" are simply myths.

"Not only must doctors learn this," he said, "but the public at large must learn this and our whole cultural sensitivity towards old people should be changed so that we are not ridiculing, laughing or making jokes about sexual activity or any other activity that older people may engage in."

Butler said men and women learn throughout life and many of those in the middle and late years of life perfect the "second language of sex," which is related carrassing, touching, tenderness and quality.

"With the children gone, with more leisure and with retirement, older people can spend more time working at —and it does demand working at — developing the character of their relationship," Butler said.

"The second language of human sexuality is vastly underdeveloped and old age is a time of life filled with possibilities for its exploration. We already know that the old are physically capable of sex. What we are beginning to learn is that many of them could raise the art of lovemaking to a new development."

He's no Don Quixote, but he's ready to do battle with windmills

HAMILTON, Ill. (UPI) — Edwin Wingfield may be the last full-time windmill repairman in the nation. He says he knows of no others in his line.

"At 59, "it's not an easy way to make a living," he said in an interview.

From his Hamilton home — across the Mississippi River from the Iowa-Missouri border —he travels hundreds of miles to jobs. Sometimes he just cruises rural roads looking for a windmill that needs fixing.

"I can size up a windmill in two minutes. I can tell you how old it is, what repairs have been made, and what's wrong with it," he said.

When he spots an ailing windmill from the road, he pulls up to the farm house, introduces himself as "the windmill man," and offers services. Often the people have been trying for years to find someone who could repair their windmill.

Wingfield said he "never had any trouble' with the door to door approach. "Everyone likes to talk windmills, but some don't want to have them fixed," he said.

Wingfield is a self-taught repairman —he was in construction until a day 23 years ago when a friend asked him to help repair a windmill.

"I have sort of a categorical mind when it comes to windmills," he said. "I remember them like I remember faces."

About once a year Wingfield, his wife and their 15-year-old son ride the Santa Fe to California to visit relatives. One reason they take the train, he said, is "so I can look at windmills."

"I bet I know every windmill on both sides of the tracks between here and Los Angeles," he said.

At one time, Wingfield said, 19 to 20 companies manufactured windmills and sold them to farmers and ranchers from coast to coast. Today, he knows of only one firm that makes the small-bladed, American-type windmill and its plant is in South America, where windmills are in demand for large cattle ranches.

Wingfield said the windmills now in use are mostly pre-World War II types, some of them manufactured 75 or more years ago. Fixing them has its hazards.

Wingfield must climb the spindly-legged windmill towers —generally about 50 feet high —to get at the mechanism that connects the wind-driven wheel to the pump.

The wheel and the large metal vane that keeps it pointed into the wind can shift suddenly and deliver a damaging and possibly fatal blow.

Sometimes the platform near the top of the windfall gives way, leaving him dangling in space by a nylon safety line.

"That's something you never get used to," he said.

Vet prefers house calls for sick pets

CHICAGO, Illinois (UPI) — Veterinarian Leon Schwartz makes house calls because sick pets respond to treatment better in familiar surroundings.

"House calls are much easier on the sick animal," Schwarts said. "Many city animals seldom get outdoors at all.

"Imagine what it's like to be a cat or dog acccustomed to certain surroundings and people. Then you're transported in a strange vehicle to a strang place full of freightening sights, sounds and smells. Then you are put on a table to be poked, proded, and stuck with needles by strangers."

Schwartz, whose standard consultation fee for most calls is $10, also firmly believes a pet's best nurse is its owner.

He said some pets do require hospitalization but "many procedures can be performed in the home and this can be best for the animal, for the owner and for me.

"The greatest advantage of home care is the quality of the nursing the pet receives. It's hard to get efficient and compassionate nursing care in an institutional setting, even for human patients. In an animal hospital, the problem is far more difficult."

EASY EVERYTHING $15,500

Easy living in the two bedroom home; easy to expand on the huge R-2 lot; easy to assume the existing loan; easy to move in because it's vacant now; easy to dial our number, to see it, and to buy it. Make it easy on yourself — do it now!

A "HOMEY" ONE! $21,950

This is a good all-around home for a good all-around family. It has four bedrooms, 1¾ baths, and more than 1200 sq. ft. It's loaded on a cul-de-sac and is convenient to schools, transportation, and shopping. All terms are available. Let's go see it now!

COMPLETE COMFORT $24,950

was built into this cozy Claremont home with it's four bedrooms, 1¾ baths and a dining room included in its spacious, gracious 1350 sq. ft. All terms are available, including an assumable 6% VA loan at $172.00 per month. To delay is to miss out, call now.

GHQ FOR A BIG FAMILY $32,000

The specifications say it all; four bedrooms, 1 + ¾ + ½ baths, family room, rumpus room, a kitchen with all built-ins including the refrigerator, two fireplaces, over 2200 sq. ft., a three car garage, automatic sprinklers in the lawn, a covered patio, and a 15' x 30' heated pool. Oh, yes, all terms too. Wow! You've got to see this one. Call today.

A COOL ONE $28,000

Central air conditioning keeps this home cool throughout all of its 1730 sq. ft., which includes three bedrooms, a family room, and 1¾ baths. Its cool outside also, because of the 11' x 21' covered patio. You'd be "cool" to see it right away. We're waiting on our hot-line, so do it!

THE 'OL SWIMMIN' HOLE $45,000

That's the atmosphere suggested by the evergreens surrounding this 20' x 38' heated pool. The home itself is long and low and nestles amid a profusion of colorful plants and shrubs. The living space includes over 2000 sq. ft. with four bedrooms, three bathrooms, a family room and a den. We can go see it today if you'll dial our number now!

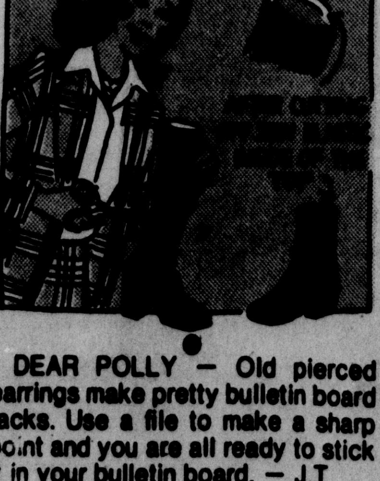
Pointers

DEAR POLLY — If you have a pair of thin, crinkled wet-look patent boots that are perfectly good, still fit your feet, but are now too small around your legs, turn into pants boots. Cut off just above the ankle and sew down the raw edge. Measure two pieces of elastic around your leg and sew them to the inside of the tops of your "new" pants boots. — TAMMY.



DEAR POLLY — Old pierced earrings make pretty bulletin board tacks. Use a file to make a sharp point and you are all ready to stick it in your bulletin board. — J.T.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, % this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — You'll do a better and more accurate job of cutting out garments to be sewn if you first press the usually very wrinkled pattern pieces. Iron gently, using low heat and no steam. — BARBARA.

DEAR POLLY — My manmade fur shortie coat needed washing. I followed the manufacturer's directions, but I did not like the coat's looks after it was dry. I brushed it with a hair brush and now it looks as good as new. — ANGELA

DEAR POLLY — There never seemed to be a pen or pencil at hand to jot down a phone message, so I taped a small pencil sharpener to the phone as a holder. I never lose the "point"! — CECELIA.

DEAR POLLY — Don't throw away those empty thread spools. Wind yarn or crochet thread around them. Stick a wire through the hole and bend so it can hang on your chair arm as you knit or crochet. — RUTHANN.

DEAR POLLY — When buying new sheets and pillowcases it is more ecomical to buy only sheets with an extra flat twin size, to use for making pillowcases. I make three pairs from one sheet. — SANDY.

DEAR POLLY — The case from an old vacuum bottle makes a fine yarn caddy. First, remove the lid and top collar. Discard the glass liner. Pierce the lid. Place yarn in the case, replace the collar, run yarn through the hole in the lid and replace it. This caddy is a real help to me! — MRS. W.S.G.

DEAR POLLY — My mixing bowl slipped and went crashing to the floor. Until I could replace it I started using a heavy glass quart-size measuring cup and found it so convenient I do not want a new bowl. The cup does not slip around, has a useful handle, a spout and now serves two purposes. — MRS. A.E.L.

I'M MAILING OUT 35 INVITATIONS TO MY BIRTHDAY PARTY NEXT SATURDAY.
I INVITED CAROL FINLETTER, JENNIFER BLAKE, GEORGIA YATES, DEBBIE HARWELL...
...SUE ANN HODGES, ALEX DUNCAN, MARY SUE WILKS, JAMIE BERRY...
...ROBBIE MAYES, NICOLE LEONARD, STEVIE HEARN, BARBIE WALLACE...
HEY, I DIDN'T HEAR MY NAME IN THERE.
NO, AND YOU DIDN'T HEAR HENRY KISSINGER'S NAME, EITHER.
SO YOU SEE, YOU'RE IN VERY GOOD COMPANY.

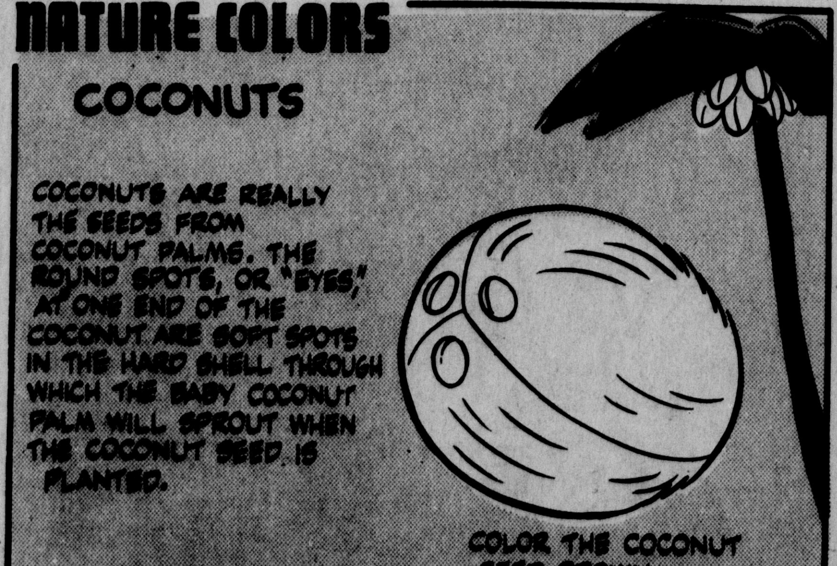
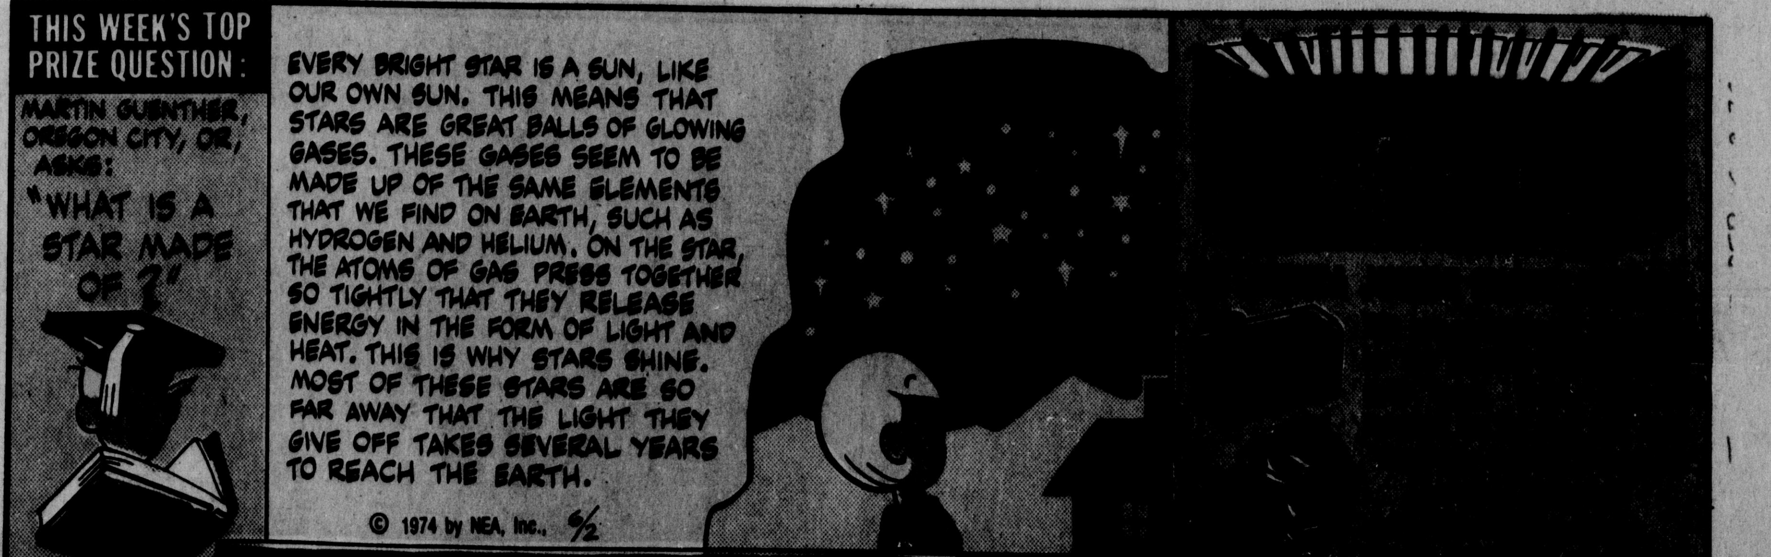
COCONUTS



COCONUTS ARE REALLY THE SEEDS FROM COCONUT PALMS. THE ROUND SPOTS, OR "EYES," AT ONE END OF THE COCONUT ARE SOFT SPOTS IN THE HARD SHELL THROUGH WHICH THE BABY COCONUT PALM WILL SPROUT WHEN THE COCONUT SEED IS PLANTED.

COLOR THE COCONUT SEED BROWN



THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

MARTIN GUENTHER, OREGON CITY, OR, ASKS: "WHAT IS A STAR MADE OF ?"

EVERY BRIGHT STAR IS A SUN, LIKE OUR OWN SUN. THIS MEANS THAT STARS ARE GREAT BALLS OF GLOWING GASES. THESE GASES SEEM TO BE MADE UP OF THE SAME ELEMENTS THAT WE FIND ON EARTH, SUCH AS HYDROGEN AND HELIUM. ON THE STAR, THE ATOMS OF GAS PRESS TOGETHER SO TIGHTLY THAT THEY RELEASE ENERGY IN THE FORM OF LIGHT AND HEAT. THIS IS WHY STARS SHINE. MOST OF THESE STARS ARE SO FAR AWAY THAT THE LIGHT THEY GIVE OFF TAKES SEVERAL YEARS TO REACH THE EARTH.

CALIFORNIA JAM

"California Jam," one of the more successful outdoor concerts ever held in the United States will be telecast on ABC's In Concert series on Friday (June 7 and 21) at 11:30PM. An ABC Entertainment production, "California Jam" was attended by nearly 250,000 young people. The "Jam" was held in early April at the Ontario (Calif.) Motor Speedway and featured eight outstanding rock groups—Seals & Crofts, Eagles, Rare Earth, Earth, Wind & Fire, Black Oak Arkansas, Black Sabbath, Deep Purple and Emerson, Lake & Palmer. The trouble-free concert ran for a total 13½ hours and also featured fireworks, ballons and skydivers.

BIG AL

Al Molinaro, who portrays Murray the cop on ABC's The Odd Couple, (Fridays at 9:30PM), is everybody's idea of the prototype of a New York City cop. But Molinaro was born in Kenosha, Wisc., and only recently visited Manhattan for the first time. He was most impressed. Al's most obvious physical attributes are a generous-size nose and brown eyes as guileless as a puppy's. Overall, he has the aspect of a man who keeps taking wooden nickels, misses the bus by seconds and gets a busy signal whenever he dials. A professional actor only since 1969, Al arrived in Hollywood 21 years ago as part of a four-piece combo touring the country. Al, who plays piano and guitar, fancied the idea of doubling in brass as an actor and remained on in Hollywood when the other sidemen split the scene. He landed a $75 a week job as staff producer at a local TV outlet, and within three years began packaging and selling his own video programs. From there he took the plunge into TV as a performer. He bungled an assignment on a foreign car commercial, but it was so funny the producer decided to play the blurb for laughs. The commercial ran two years. Al enrolled in a Hollywood acting school and was seen in a play there by writer-producer Garry Marshall who later signed him for the role of Murray the cop.

COVER CLOSE-UP

'BOBBIE GENTRY'S HAPPINESS HOUR'

It was a few years ago—3:30 AM in a Las Vegas hotel room. A young performer had just returned home after another grueling round of shows. Unable to sleep, the creative urge compelled her to enlarge on a line she had scribbled some time before on a scrap of paper: "The day Billy Joe McCallister jumped off the Tallahatchee Bridge." Four or five hours later the sun was up and a new song was finished; a song that within a coule of months would have millions of people wondering what it was that Billy Joe had thrown off that bridge. "Ode To Billy Joe" won three Grammy Awards in 1967 and started Bobbie Gentry on her way to international recognition.

This Wednesday (8:00–9:00 PM) Bobbie Gentry will debut in her own mini-series on CBS, replacing The Sonny & Cher Comedy Hour for each of the four Wednesdays in June. Titled "Bobbie Gentry's Happiness Hour," the new show will give its star ample room to display her talents as a performer as well as a composer and lyricist. It will feature a versatile, sophisticated and glamorous Bobby Gentry—a far different star than the "country singer" image she's conveyed because of the Southern flavor of her songs.

The show's producers, Frank Peppiatt and Eric Lieber, have fashioned a dazzling combination of music, dance, comedy and guest stars to frame the Gentry talents. Emmy-winner Bill Davis is directing the hour-long segments which will feature the new young comedians Michael Greer, Valri Bromfield and Earl Pomerantz in the regular cast. Many of Miss Gentry's musical friends—such as Jim Nabors, Glen Campbell and Wayne Newton—will be guests.

"Ode To Billy Joe" was just the touchstone which put Bobbie Gentry on the road to her own television series. She soon was much sought after as performer on a variety of musical shows. "I often thought I was over-paid for what I did on those shows," she says. "I knew that I was capable of adding much more to the program than the few songs I was asked to sing." It was in England where she was able to hone her hostess talents to a fine edge during four years as the star of a BBC series. She continues to have a weekly disc jockey program on the American Armed Forces Radio Network, runs her own production company (Gentry, Ltd.), continues to write and record songs and has moved from the lounges in Las Vegas to that town's most sophisticated dinner rooms.

Although she is now much at home with the bright lights and fast pace of Hollywood and Las Vegas, she began life quite differently. She was raised by her grandparents on a farm in Chickasaw, Miss., where indoor plumbing and electricity were considered unconscionable luxuries. Her playmate and best friend was a dog, social life revolved around the local church, and the high point of the week was Saturday night and a trip to the county seat.

The Gentry musical talent started to display itself at seven with her first song: "My Dog Sergeant Is a Good Dog." Imitating the chuch pianist, the song is played mostly on the black keys. "From where I sat, it seemed that's the way he played." In her early teens she went to live in Palm Springs, graduating from high school in that California resort city. It was there she started performing and received encouragement from holidaying Hollywood personalities.

After a session at UCLA studying philosophy, she put her Las Vegas act together: a singing and dancing group for which she did all the writing and choreography. The group was a modest success but Bobbie's songs were gaining exposure. When she felt the time was right, she headed for Los Angeles determined to wager her entire savings on a concentrated attack on the recording companies. Finally "Ode To Billy Joe" was pressed by Capitol and the Gentry rocket took off. She has published 72 songs since then and still has time to let her creative juices flow in renovating her big home in the Hollywood Hills, paint, and design all of her own clothes, until now.

"Bobbie Gentry's Happiness Hour" is her all-consuming project at the moment. "I haven't been this excited since the first day of 'Billy Joe,' " she says.

FOR LOWELL THOMAS, newsman*

Is there anyplace in the world you haven't been that you would like to explore? (You can see by my name why I'm curious!) – Lowell K. Thomas, Canton, Ohio

● Yes, Mr. Thomas, there are at least two thousand places on this planet I'd like to visit. Recently, Astronaut Neil Armstrong told me he thought it would be an excellent idea for me to join one of the space flights. The next time I see Dr. Fletcher, head of NASA, I'm going to urge him to arrange this. As for the innumerable places here on earth I'd like to visit, there is the far back country in Brazil, the northern half of Siberia and a mountain range in Antarctica that bears my name–and yours. Oh, yes, and I'd also like to visit Canton, Ohio, home of the Football Hall of Fame and Lowell K. Thomas!

FOR SEN. BIRCH BAYH (D-Ind.)*

Why doesn't Medicare pay for Pap tests? After all, the mortality rate from cervical cancer is highest among older women.–M. O., Ocala, Fla.

● The only reason I can discover why this test is not now covered is the exclusion from the Medicare program of "routine physical checkups." But I agree that a test for uterine cancer should not be in the same class as a checkup. If we wait for a complaint to develop–in which case the Pap smear would come under Medicare–it may be too late.

FOR SISTER JANET MEAD,

the nun who sings "The Lord's Prayer" to rock time

Many of my older Catholic friends are taken aback by your singing "The Lord's Prayer" to rock time. How do you reply to such criticism?–M. S. Moore, Atlantic City, N.J.

● I see Christ as a person with a vision of drawing all people together in happiness, and I see my work as part of His vision–to bring people to God through music.

FOR LUCILLE BALL

How many TV shows have you made?–Vincent L. Kelly, Woodcliff Lake, N.J.

● At the conclusion of this year's production of "Here's Lucy," I will have filmed 483 episodes, which include the old "I Love Lucy" series and "The Lucy Show."

FOR MICHAEL DOUGLAS,

starring in "The Streets of San Francisco"

Were you made to give up car racing and flying when you went into the series "The Streets of San Francisco"?–S. K. T., Yreka, Calif.

● Yes. The reason is that I totaled my formula Ford racing car at Riverside. I hurt my knee, and I didn't feel I could afford to take that kind of chance while I was in a series. Also, I am very competitive, and to be best you have to practice constantly. I just didn't have time. I still fly occasionally. I'm checked out for single-engine planes.

FOR CHAD EVERETT

You portray the role of Dr. Gannon on "Medical Center" very convincingly, and I wonder if you ever had an inclination to the medical profession?–Mrs. Walter Pitts, Lake City, Mich.

● Let's put it this way: If I found it necessary for some reason to forsake the acting profession and start a new career, I seriously believe I would consider the medical profession. And thanks for the compliment.

FOR BOB HOPE

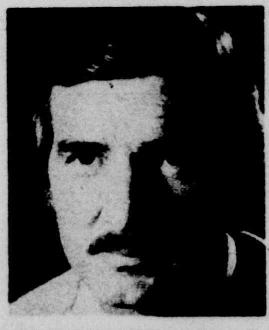
Why did you change your name from Leslie to Bob?–Dan Turnblom, Brigham City, Utah

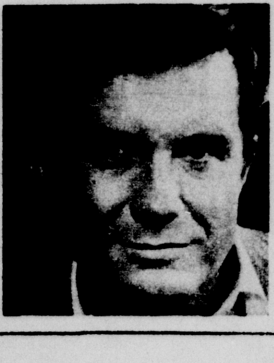
● When I first started in vaudeville I was going to use my own name, Leslie, but I thought Bob sounded more like "one of the boys." Even though people shortened Leslie to Les, I never liked it. But changing it to Bob didn't help much either. Once they put my name outside the theater as "Ben Hope." When I protested, the manager said, "Who'll know?"

FOR DENNIS WEAVER

Is the accent you use on "McCloud" your own, or do you use it just for the TV series?–S. J., Charlevoix, Mich.

● I made it up, but it's pretty close to my own. I was born in Joplin, Mo., and attended the University of Oklahoma. But now I use the accent purposely. People from the country relate to it. It helps them like the character of McCloud. Makes them think he's sort of a nice, friendly fellow.





FOR CLIFF ROBERTSON

Is it true that you are an expert skier and have won more medals than anyone in Hollywood?–Ellen Smith, Chicago, Ill.

● No. I've only been in one ski race–the Sun Valley Pro-Am, which teams up amateurs like myself with professionals. I was teamed with two marvelous skiers, Harold Stuefer and Jack Beattie. We came in second. Had I known I was racing against the president of Warner Bros., I would have started slower. Incidentally, Jim Brolin was first.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Why doesn't Ann-Margret use her last name?–Ray Sawman, Miami, Fla.

● Ann-Margret, who is married to actor Roger Smith, decided not to use her maiden name, Olsen, when she started in show business because she knew people in the public eye are always the targets of vicious gossip and rumors. Aware of her parents sensitivity in this area, she wanted to shield them from any adverse publicity, and felt that if she dropped her last name, they'd be cloaked in anonymity. But before she made the decision, Ann-Margret had the approval of her parents, of whom she is fiercely protective. She has often been heard to say: "When it comes to my family, I'm like a jealous tigress."

"I know you are scared. So was I. I had my left leg removed to the hip. . . . I am nine years old."

Joan Kennedy Shares the Poignant Letters to Her Son

By Frances Spatz Leighton

The letter to Joan and her husband, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, was from a stranger:

Seventeen years ago we had a similar decision to make for our 13-year-old daughter Mary. Amputation was done. . . . Mary is 30 now, has received her education, including a master's degree. She is married to a teacher, has two children, drives a car, and is a well-adjusted individual, wife, mother and teacher.

At the time when the surgery was performed, we were very fortunate to receive the counseling of Dr. Emily Hess, a rehabilitation specialist in Cincinnati. The advice was: "You will be doing her no favor by doing things for your daughter that she could be doing for herself. The first time you raise even one finger to 'help' her, you have made the first move toward making her a dependent, resentful and unhappy person. If you must cry—and you will—don't do it in her presence. She needs understanding and love, not pity. Let her live a normal life—don't make excuses for her—let her have the responsibilities she naturally would as part of the family." What may have sounded a bit harsh was very sound advice. It was not always easy, but a combination of faith, common sense and a good sense of humor on Mary's part has helped her a great deal.

The very best wishes to Teddy and to both of you. . . .

The letter had a profound effect on Joan Kennedy. Not that she wouldn't have come to the same conclusion herself, but the letter helped give her courage. As soon as Teddy was back home and at school, Joan asked her servants and her son's teachers at St. Albans School for Boys to give her son absolutely no special treatment or favor him in any way. "Be tough," she said.

Wide World

Joan was amazed at the diversity of the people writing. For example, one prisoner at Missouri Training Center for Men, who couldn't even afford a stamp, wrote:

"I didn't really have the money to buy this stamp for this letter so I borrowed it. In some way I had to let you know that me and many more of my brothers dig you and your family. . . . I can't seem to understand why such a nice family of people have such bad luck in life."

Joan doesn't know either. Friends close to the Kennedys say that of all the family, Joan took the news the hardest. Her husband had to be the one to break the news to his son—she could not bear to. But once the initial shock was over, she was like a rock, spending all her time at the hospital. "I have to be not only a mother but a friend," she said. "Teddy needs both."

She was very proud of the way her son reacted. He was very adult, being concerned about her welfare above his own, and even—though she gulped and choked a little at the time—announcing that he wanted the severed leg to be used for medical research. "And can you imagine," she told friends, "he apologized to us for upsetting our schedules!"

Joan is also proud of how Teddy's sister Kara, 13, and his kid brother, six-year-old Patrick, have behaved, keeping things light and cheerful and making gag gifts for his homecoming. Even more remarkable, she feels, is the performance of his best friend, Teddy Tunney, the son of his father's friend and colleague, Sen. John Tunney. Teddy Tunney was told about the serious condition of his best friend's health even before her son knew it. Teddy Tunney, who is also 12, rose to the occasion, keeping the secret and being a good playmate. He kept up a good show until the operation was over. Then he visited Teddy Kennedy at the hospital, came home and fainted.

But the letters are what have given Teddy Jr. and his parents most of their confidence. Like the one from a New Jersey man who has worn an artificial leg for "50 years now and I don't use a cane or any support." The letter offers to teach Teddy "all the tricks" of walking so that he, too, can throw away the cane. Or the letter from the parents of an eight-year-old girl who, a year ago, in South Dakota, had exactly the same operation, and who tell Joan and the Senator:

> Children have a strength and acceptance that we adults can't begin to match. This can be a devastating experience, but we have found it a very positive growth experience in our family. Holly has a dimension to her that many people never acquire in a lifetime, and an inner strength far surpassing many. She has given us more than we could possibly give her. We know that no matter what happens she is an example and an inspiration to many people.

Or the Richfield, Ohio, father who wrote that "just 13 months ago today my son Steven, then 13, underwent an identical operation. . . . For whatever comfort and encouragement that it may bring to you, I would like to tell you that within five months after his operation Steve had played golf at the PGA National, now rides his regular ten-speed bicycle proficiently, engages in fairly normal social activities and has returned to school, where his academic achievements have been at least equal

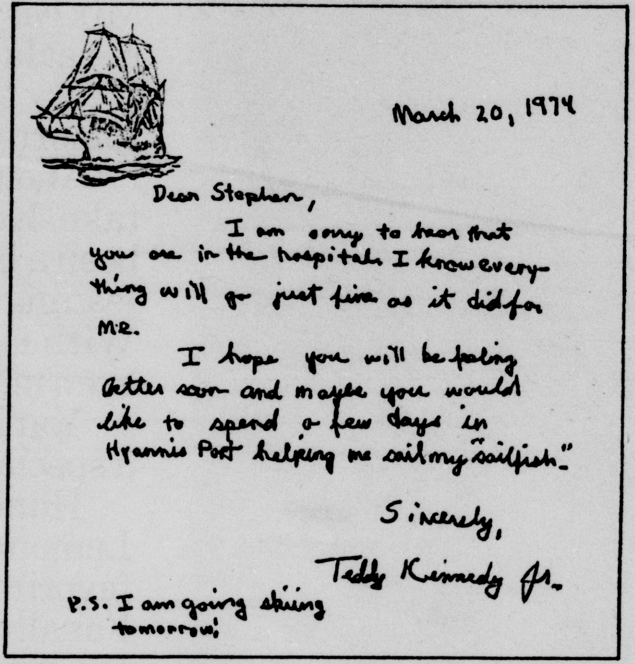
"Losing a leg does not mean to sit on the sideline and let life pass you by."



March 20, 1974

Dear Stephen,

I am sorry to hear that you are in the hospital. I know every-thing will go just fine as it did for me.

I hope you will be feeling better soon and maybe you would like to spend a few days in Hyannis Port helping me sail my "sailfish".

Sincerely,

Teddy Kennedy Jr.

P.S. I am going skiing tomorrow!

This is the letter Teddy Jr. wrote when he heard that 13-year-old Stephen Sutherland of Miami suffered an amputation for the same reason he did.

to his preoperative level. . . . This year has been one of real accomplishment and growth, both for Steve and his parents."

To that last line Senator Kennedy echoes an amen, for he has frankly stated that he feels the tragedy has brought he and Joan closer together in spirit than they have ever been.

A mother in Bellevue, Wash., sent a message in caps that Joan felt struck just the right note of "upbeat philosophy":

> LOSING A LEG DOES NOT MEAN TO SIT ON THE SIDELINE AND LET LIFE PASS YOU BY. PLEASE DO NOT DESPAIR WHAT HAPPENED TO YOUR SON TEDDY. IT WAS A VERY BIG TRAGEDY. BUT AS ONE PARENT TALKING TO ANOTHER, THE SAME HAPPENED TO OUR SON WHEN HE WAS 14 YEARS OLD. NOT FROM CANCER BUT IN AN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT. BESIDES LOSING HIS LEG HE HAD A COMPLETE KIDNEY FAILURE AND HE PULLED OUT OF IT OKAY. HE IS NOW 21 YEARS OLD, GOES TO COLLEGE, SWIMS, DIVES AND WATER SKIS. I HOPE A FEW NOTES LIKE THIS WILL HELP YOUR SON.

The letters that have touched Joan the most, however, are those from the children who have had the same operation, and who write directly to her son. For example, this one from a teenager who writes on lined notebook paper:

> Hi, my name is Matt. I'm 15 and I live in New Mexico. I've had my right leg gone almost a year now. I had bone cancer in my knee. I know how you feel to lose your leg, but what the heck. You can do just as much with a artificial leg as you can a real one. That is if you want to. I know you'll go through a lot of pain and hurting but you'll come through just fine. After you get your artificial leg its pretty cool: If anybody cuts you down cause of your leg, don't let it bother you. If their so low that they have to use your leg to try to bring you down to their level their pretty sick. I got my artificial leg in April & I've gone camping a lot & this last week I even went deer hunting. I got a deer too. I even passed Drivers Education with an "A" and now I can get my drivers license.

The letter ends with a bit of philosophizing that only a kid could truly appreciate:

> One thing good for us is that we had time to except the fact that we were going to lose a leg. Just think how you'd feel if you got your leg cut off in a car wreck or like a friend of my brothers, who lost his leg when he got bit by a rattlesnake.

Another prized letter, also on lined loose-leaf notebook paper, is amusing for its slightly superior air, though it is written by what 12-year-old Teddy considers "a little kid":

> Dear Ed,
> How are you doing?
> I know you are scared. So was I.
> I had my left leg removed to the hip.
> The doctors found out when I broke my leg in a bike accident in June.
> After that I was swimming with my friends, riding a bike, playing tennis, playing kickball, hiking and volleyball.
> You will learn, too. I am nine years old.
> Good luck and take care.
> Your new friend
> Matt
> P.S. Please write back.

By now, Matt, who lives in LaCrescent, Minn., has probably received a card with his "new friend's" own handwriting reproduced on it in blue. It was Teddy's own idea to write a card that could go to his thousands of well-wishers.

Ted's letter, on a five-by-seven heavy-paper, off-white card, says:

> Thank you for sending your feelings, notes, and thoughts and remembering me in your prayers. The little time it took you to write these notes encouraged me greatly, and now I am just beginning to walk. Thank you very much for thinking of me.
> love

Needless to say, Teddy has not seen all the 50,000 letters received—only those that are "upbeat and inspiring or humorous," Joan says. Like one that reads, "Get well and shake a leg!"

It's hard to know whether they belong in the inspiring or humorous category, but some of Teddy's best letters come from little girls, one of whom wrote, from Fairhaven, Mass., "I saw your picture in the paper and I think your cute, for an older man."

How has the ordeal changed Teddy Jr.? His family and teachers and friends agree that it has made him a little more introspective and also a little more anxious to take life lightly and see the humor of things. He is spending more time with the telescope that his father gave him, scanning the skies and mulling over the mysteries of life. He also has a bugging device, and he teases his family and the servants by threatening to bug them all.

But every once in a while Teddy gets a faraway look in his eyes as he gazes at an oar leaning against his bedroom wall. It is one of those that was used on the raft on which he and his father and Teddy Tunney and his father shot the rapids on the Colorado River in Utah last summer. It arrived at the Georgetown University Hospital with a letter that is still one of Joan's favorites and is Teddy's choice for the most inspiring:

> While running rivers, my boatmen and I sometimes find ourselves thrown off course and in rapids almost too big to handle. When this happens and we are sucked into the throat of a big hummer, there are always two things we tell each other: Hang on and row like hell!
> Right now you are faced with big water. My boatmen and I wish you the best and give you this advice, Hang on and row like hell. The best part of the river is still ahead!

The letter is signed by the oarsmen on the Colorado River.

The First Annual Hamilton Mint

FATHER'S DAY INGOT

"Under The Old Oak Tree"

by Thomas Rubel

Proof finished, limited edition ingot of Pure Silver and 24 Kt. Gold on Pure Silver

When it comes to people who are difficult to choose gifts for . . . fathers are notorious! But here is a Father's Day idea that captures the spirit of Father's Day.

This year you can choose a gift that is, at once, unusual, exciting and sentimental: The Hamilton Mint's First Annual Father's Day Ingot.

The ingot, a full ounce of precious Silver, carries an original work of art by Thomas Rubel. Entitled "Under the Old Oak Tree," Rubel's composition expresses the warm companionship of the Father-Child relationship. The design was interpreted for the ingot in high relief by master sculptor, Alfred Brunettin. The Proof Quality Finish, combining a frosted image against a mirror-like background, heightens the effect of the relief sculpture.

An unusual gift, the ingot will show your thoughtfulness and imagination. It's sentimental value is assured; it's investment potential is an exciting plus.

Choose Silver or 24 Kt. Gold on Silver

"Under the Old Oak Tree" is available in a limited edition of one full ounce ingots of .999 Fine Silver—the purest Silver you can buy . . . for just $12.50 each. And, for an even richer, more valuable interpretation, the work is available in a deluxe edition of 24 Kt. Gold on .999 Fine Silver for only $16.00 per ingot.

This Father's Day Edition is a Strictly Limited, First Annual Issue

In the medallic art field traditionally and historically, first annual editions have been especially prized and sought after. And because rarity can add substantially to the potential for increasing value of artwork executed in precious metals, The Hamilton Mint has placed a limitation on the minting of these First Annual Father's Day ingots.

Ingots will be struck to fill the orders postmarked by June 15, 1974. Once those orders are filled, the dies for the work will be destroyed and no additional "Under the Old Oak Tree" ingots will be minted—ever! This limit protects the value of your ingot, whether it is intended as a gift or as an addition to your own collection.

Handsome Presentation Case Included at No Extra Charge

With each ingot you order, you will receive an attractive presentation case designed especially for your ingot. The case is particularly built to display the ingot and also ideal for storing the valuable item.

A Certificate of Authenticity, attesting to the owner's status as one of a limited number of collectors possessing this limited-edition medallic artwork, will also accompany each ingot.

Interview by Helen Dorsey

Edward (Lou Grant) Asner:

"My Life Is Like My Garden... I Wish I Were a Better Gardener"

"Nancy and I want our children to find their own identities."

> "I'm a big talker about loving my kids and wanting to do things for them, but when it comes to creating time for them each day or each week, I fail miserably."

Ed Asner and his wife Nancy, their ten-and-a-half-year-old twins, Matthew and Liza, their seven-year-old daughter Kate, plus an assortment of animal friends, live in a beautiful, rambling stucco house in Bel Aire, Calif. Nancy's main concern has been to turn what Ed describes as a "Yuk" of a house into a beautiful, warm, open home. Ed's main concern is the maintenance of the grounds—a profusion of wildlife, plants and trees. Ed, dirty and sweaty from working in his yard, talked as he walked around. His cats and dogs followed us.

"I'm a worrier and a fretter. I'm compulsive about life. I don't spend enough time with my son. I'm too busy picking up sticks. That's just like frittering away life. Picking up sticks implies narrow vision and limited scope, bothering with petty details. That's my problem.

"Both my parents were hardworking people. My father [Morris Asner] was a quiet, strong, alone-type man. He was a beautiful man, and I loved him very much. Since I was the youngest of five children, I became Mama's baby, more shielded from the other children.

"I really didn't get to know my father until I went to high school and began working in his scrapyard. My brothers shunned the physical side and wanted to get into the business end. They were right, but I never wanted the business side of it. I wanted the drama of it, the manhood of it. I never wanted to do anything but load, unload, break, chop, stack and sweat.

"My mother Lizzie was always a busy beaver. Even though she took good care of her family, I'm sure there were times she would rather have worked with my father.

"I'm proud of the way we live, but I don't spend enough time with my children. I'm a big talker about loving them and wanting to do things for them, but when it comes to creating the time for them each day or each week, I fail miserably. Still, I suppose my kids are aware that I'm here if they need or want me.

"My wife and I are concerned about our children finding their own identities and developing their own potentials. This is particularly true with the twins, Matthew and Liza. They have been separated in school since they were three. Matthew is a bright boy, but lazy. He needs a lot of encouragement. He's fascinated with baseball. Liza is very bright, gifted, very sweet, and nosy about life! But she's so thorough about what she does that our only problem may be inspiring her to do the big things in life, rather than picking up sticks like her father!

"Seven-year-old Kate is a pistol! She'll probably start some new cult or something when she grows up. Her sensitivities are very delicate. She draws beautifully.

"Sometimes I become overwhelmed by having too much house. I look around and say, 'Oh, how I'd like the four walls of a condominium! I'd get lots of books, turn on the hi-fi, play all the music, spend three hours a day playing tennis rather than worrying about the maintenance and upkeep of a house, the grounds and the animals I'd take trips.' Now, I say all this. I'm sure Nancy would be the first one to call me a liar, but it's something to shoot for!" fw

20 mg. "tar" [illegible]

Most athletes compete against other athletes, or against time and the record book. But a few find ultimate satisfaction in competing against fear. Here, they tell what it's like to take the field in sports so risky that injury and death can sometimes be odds-on favorites.

The Death-Defiers:

What Makes So Many Sportsmen Tempt Fate?

By Larry Bortstein

"Security is mortals' chiefest enemy." That line from Shakespeare amply describes a band of modern-day adventurers who are engaged in sports you won't find being played in stadiums or on ball fields.

Rather than find their competitive thrills on football, hockey or polo teams, these sportspersons—men and women—prefer the exhilaration of the individual challenge. They dare to risk pain—and even life itself—deliberately, gratuitously and, perhaps, compulsively.

FAMILY WEEKLY wondered what kind of people are tempted by high-risk sports. Are they united by some common bond? Motivated by some overwhelming drive? Perhaps we can understand what makes them participate in their hazardous activities after we read what some of these adventure-sports stars have to say.

BOB WILLS, Hang glider

Bob Wills, 23, of Santa Ana, Calif., and his younger brother Chris, 21, are America's champion hang gliders. (The sport is also known as sky surfing.) Bob holds the hang-gliding record for altitude gained above takeoff (1,070 feet), and also holds the flight-endurance record of 8 hours, 24 minutes.

"Flying has always been a thrill, and hang gliding—well, it's the most exciting thing I've ever done. And I've driven race cars and motorcycles and all sorts of stuff.

"Probably the most exciting thing I've done so far occurred last September when Chris and I took off from the edge of the crater of Haleakala in Hawaii and landed near the Maui shore, 10,000 feet lower.

"Though this is a pretty young sport, there are different types of competitions. There's target gliding, where you try to land within a specified boundary; and gliding for form, where you make turns and spins; and high-speed diving, and so forth. Last October the first national hang-gliding championships were held in Sylmar, Calif. Chris won, and I took second.

"I think more and more people are going to get into hang gliding because it's not all that dangerous. You have to learn something about what air can do to you, and a few other technical things, and you're susceptible to all the things that can happen to an airplane. But you're flying much slower than a plane—rarely more than 35 miles an hour.

"When you get to the top of your takeoff point, you have to wait for the wind and then get up the nerve to take two steps out. Suddenly you're flying. But for a newcomer to gliding those first two steps—off a sheer cliff—are the hardest."

Continued

Bob Wills, above, describes some of the fine points of hang gliding: "When you get to the top of your takeoff point, you have to wait for the wind and then get up the nerve to take two steps out."

Debbie Lawler broke her back in three places.

Adrian Studio

DEBBIE LAWLER,
Motorcycle jumper

At 21, Debbie Lawler is an unlikely looking daredevil. But since entering the sport of motorcycle jumping in 1972, she has become one of its most accomplished performers, as well as the most physically appealing.

"I guess if I ever was going to get out of motorcycle jumping, I would have quit after my crash at the Ontario Motor Speedway in California this past March 3. I made my longest jump that day–about 140 feet–but the last 35 feet or so came after I had lost control of my motorcycle and my hands came off the handlebars. I rolled along the ground, hit the wall, and broke my back in three places.

"The crash taught me something about myself and about my sport. The day I crashed was very windy, and when you're as small as I am and riding a lightweight bike like I do, wind can give you a lot of trouble. But I never thought for a minute of quitting. A few days after the crash the doctors let me out of the hospital for a couple of hours to appear on a television show so I could let my fans know I'd be back. The fans have really come out for my jumps all over the country, and motorcycle jumping has become very big. For a long time Evel Knievel was the only big name in the sport. He's a great guy and has given me plenty of encouragement. He's still the king of motorcycle jumping. But I'm the queen. And I want to continue being queen for a long time.. The money and the fame I can get in this sport beat anything I ever could have hoped for.

"I always thought I would do something connected with motorcycles. My dad was a professional cycle racer and I learned to ride when I was a young girl. I figure I have nothing to fear on a cycle. I've already had one scary experience: When I was 18, I had a mild form of breast cancer, which the doctors were able to cure without surgery. Actually, I can think of only one thing I'm scared about. Getting married! It's about the scariest thing I can imagine. I don't like someone else telling me what to do."

CRAIG BREEDLOVE,
Speed seeker

Craig Breedlove, 37, of Torrance, Calif., was the first man to travel 400, 500 and 600 miles per hour on land. He is supervising the construction of a vehicle in which he hopes to exceed the speed of sound.

"Every time I've stepped into a car–whether it was a 200-mile-per-hour dragster or a 600-mile-per-hour land speed machine–I've experienced fear. You have to be at least a little apprehensive. It helps you concentrate better. I've had my share of crashes. The most spectacular was probably at the Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah in 1964, when I averaged 526.28 mph for two runs across the measured mile. But I lost control on the back run and the car went off course, knocking down two telephone poles and sending me into the water. Miraculously, I came out of it with only a cut leg.

"In thinking about breaking the sound barrier on land, a different type fear comes into the picture: the fear of the unknown. Nobody questions that man can build a vehicle capable of exceeding the speed of sound—about 720 mph. But nobody knows what might happen to man and machine. Will the car explode or disintegrate? Will the man survive? What? These are things we don't know. But I'd like to be the guy who finds out. It would be the culmination of a drag-racing career that began when I was 16. Last summer, in the English Leather Special, a prototype of the car I'm building now, I set a world acceleration record by reaching 377.75mph in 4.76 seconds from a dead start.

"The sound-barrier car will be a long, thin machine, about 50 feet in length. There'll be 3,500 pounds of extremely powerful fuel in two tanks. When I start the engine they will combine and generate 35,000 pounds of thrust, or 70,000 horsepower, which will be enough for one run of less than 30 seconds. I don't know when we'll be ready to go for the sound barrier, but I'm really looking forward to it."

CHUCK COLLINGWOOD,
Parachutist

Chuck Collingwood is a 24-year-old Army staff sergeant at Fort Bragg, N.C., and a member of the Army's "Golden Knights" sport-parachuting team. From June 16-21, at Tahlequah, Okla., he will be defending the national championship he won in 1973.

"I made my first jump on February 7, 1970, and I've made more than 2,700 since. I had a lot more fear in the beginning than I do now. But now I have complete confidence in my ability and in my equipment, so that I'm not worried at all. Of course, you have to be prepared for a possible malfunction in your parachute, and then you have to react quickly to correct the problem. In all my jumps, I can remember only three when there was a malfunction, including one at last year's national championships. In case of a malfunction, I cut loose the main parachute, which is strapped to my back, so that there can be no tangling of wires when I open my supplementary parachute, which I carry on my chest. You're supposed to open your parachute at 2,000 feet; which you can read on your altimeter, so there's plenty of time to get the supplementary parachute out.

"We usually jump out of a plane—which is traveling at about 85 or 90 miles an hour—from heights that range between 2,500 and 12,000 feet. In parachuting for style, my favorite kind, there are five or six judges on the ground who judge your form and maneuvers in a free fall of 6,600 feet. Last year, I won the style competition, as well as the overall national championship, by averaging 7.9 seconds for 15 jumps over a five-day period."

FRANCIS deMONTEREY,
Rock climber

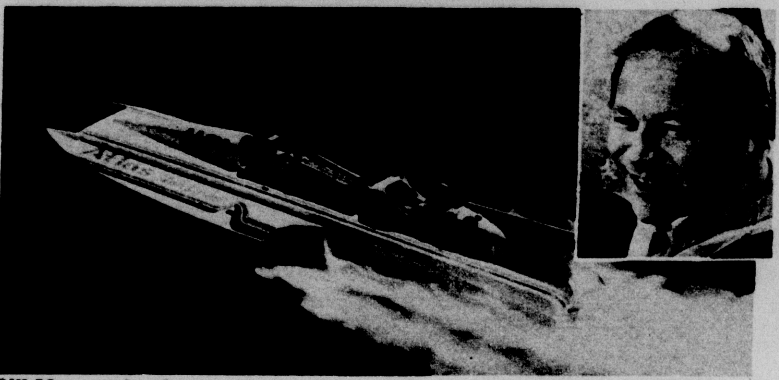
A 51-year-old polymer chemist in New York City, Francis deMonterey is an Austrian who began rock climbing in his native country when he was seven.

"Rock climbing is part of mountaineering, and is not to be confused with mountain climbing. When people climb mountains, they do some rock climbing as they go higher, but rock climbing involves negotiating sheer surfaces, rather than traversing the ledges and slopes of mountains. There's a certain amount of danger, which is why it's usually not wise for anyone to go up a rock by himself.

Francis deMonterey climbs sheer rock surfaces.

"Many of my colleagues and I don't like rock climbers who drill into rocks in order to insert pegs to support their weight. This is done in mountain climbing, but drilling is destructive. We prefer free climbing, in which we use our abilities, together with pieces of hardware, ropes and other equipment, to help us get to the top. There is a type of climber, called a boulderer, who uses no equipment, and tries to get as high as he can by using only his hands and feet.

"There are many famous rocks that attract the top climbers. Maybe the most famous is The Old Man of Hoy, a 450-foot rock off the island of Hoy in the North Atlantic. For years it appeared to be an impossible climbing job. Nearly the entire thing is one sheer wall of rock. There are no easy footholds and virtually no natural holes on its surface. One false step means almost certain drowning in the ocean. But a six-man team finally conquered it a couple of years ago."



Bill Muncey is always unconscious at the end of a serious accident.

BILL MUNCEY,
Hydroplane racer

Bill Muncey, 45, of Seattle, is the most successful driver in the history of unlimited hydroplane racing. He has won the Gold Cup, the biggest event in the sport, five times.

"There's danger in my sport. What else can you call it when you're going 200 miles per hour in a machine that has no brakes and can be spilled or sent airborne by changes in wind or water conditions? But I put fear out of my mind when I'm out on a course.

"I've had a lot of serious injuries in more than 25 years, including a permanent case of 'floating kidneys.' Probably my most famous accident was in 1958 when I sank a Coast Guard cutter. One writer said it was my second most incredible achievement. The first was living to tell about it.

"I was qualifying for the Gold Cup in Seattle and had won the first heat. We were starting the second heat and I was about a half-second behind as we hit the starting line. There was a lane open right next to the buoy line. I was doing about 160 mph and thought I could duck through there and leave everybody. Trouble is, when you're on 2,500 horsepower, as we were then (today's boats have 3,000) you've got an awful lot of torque. The boat wanted to go to the left. I was trying to balance it up before hitting a corner where I had to turn. But the wheel wouldn't turn. Just then, I spotted a 40-foot steel patrol boat directly ahead. Five Coast Guardsmen were aboard. I knew I was going to smack it. I turned off everything that might make the boat explode and was down to about 120 when I hit the boat amidships. It went down in 11 seconds, but the Coast Guard guys got out easily. When the boat hit, I must have gone over the top. I landed about 40 yards on the other side of the Coast Guard cutter. The people who picked me up didn't think I was breathing. I was, but I didn't know it. I have this reflex, that when I hit, I never can remember it. I've always been unconscious at the end of a serious accident. That's fortunate, because I have a relatively low threshold of pain."

Smoking.

What are you going to do about it?

Many people are against cigarettes. You've heard their arguments.

And even though we're in the business of selling cigarettes, we're not going to advance arguments in favor of smoking.

We simply want to discuss one irrefutable fact.

A lot of people are still smoking cigarettes. In all likelihood, they'll continue to smoke cigarettes and nothing anybody has said or is likely to say is going to change their minds.

Now, if you're one of these cigarette smokers, what are you going to do about it? You may continue to smoke your present brand. With all the enjoyment and pleasure you get from smoking it. Or, if 'tar' and nicotine has become a concern to you, you may consider changing to a cigarette like Vantage.

(Of course, there is no other cigarette quite like Vantage.)

Vantage has a unique filter that allows rich flavor to come through it and yet substantially cuts down on 'tar' and nicotine.

We want to be frank. Vantage is not the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you can buy. But it may well be the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you will enjoy smoking.

Vantage. It's the only cigarette that gives you so much taste with so little 'tar' and nicotine.

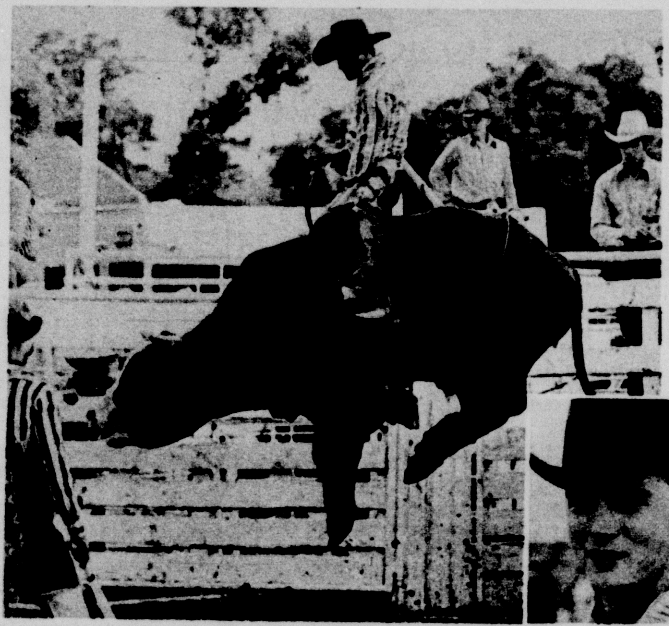
than 500 feet. The current world record is about 575 feet.

"The approach run in ski flying is much steeper than in ski jumping. You go down a steep slide of about 250 feet, and by the time you reach the bottom you're traveling about 80 miles per hour. In the air you reach a height of about 30 feet, and you have to keep your body as far forward on your skis as possible to reduce wind resistance. It seems longer, but you're in the air only seven or eight seconds. The landing slope suddenly rushes out to meet you, and then you really feel the speed. The slope is a blur of white.

"Naturally, when you're covering more than the length of two football fields in a few seconds, there's a certain amount of danger involved. Guys constantly get injured in ski flying—broken legs, broken arms, and one flier last year landed on his back and was paralyzed.

"To be successful in ski flying, you have to put all thoughts of danger out of your mind. If you're hesitant or show fear, the air pressure might knock you off your skis, and that's when real trouble starts. You have to be aggressive."



Jerome Robinson: Getting gored isn't the biggest problem.

JEROME ROBINSON,
Bull rider

One of the top bull riders in U.S. professional rodeo is Jerome Robinson, a 26-year-old native of Brandon, Neb., who also conducts a school for bull riders in Fort Collins, Colo.

"Bull riding is the most dangerous event in rodeo. Bulls are unpredictable, and when you're on top of a raging animal that weighs between 1,300 and 2,200 pounds, with huge horns and hooves, there definitely are risks involved. You have to stay on a bull for eight seconds to get a score for the ride. If you get thrown sooner, you're out of the competition.

"Maybe the most interesting thing about our event is that you don't want the bull to be docile. We're scored on the basis of our form on the animal, and on how tough a ride the bull gives us. So you want an ornery animal. We get a bull to buck and jump by tying a sheepskin rope around his flank and rubbing it against him. Many people think we're hurting the bull, but the rope really creates a tickling sensation.

"Of course, some bulls are bad natured to begin with and become known as unmanageable animals. There's one bull now, Iron Duke, that practically always throws his riders.

"During a ride, while your insides are being jostled, the bull may rear back his head and get you with his horns. A rider has to watch the bull's head at all times. But getting gored by a bull isn't as big a problem as hitting the top of his head with your jawbone. A bull's head is very hard, and we bull riders make a lot of work for dentists. Our teeth get knocked out a lot."

Smart Cooking Day Before Payday

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen shows how to use potatoes as a main dish. Says Marilyn: "When your budget is down to almost nothing, bake a potato for each person and top with this hearty, protein-rich sauce."

Turn a Simple Potato Into a Delicious Meal!

Tuna-Sauced Spuds: Easy on the cook and easy on the budget.

TUNA-SAUCED SPUDS

4 large (2½ lbs.) Idaho or russet baking potatoes
Vegetable oil
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion or 2 teaspoons instant minced onion
¼ cup flour
1¾ cups milk
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
3 drops liquid hot-pepper sauce
1 tablespoon snipped fresh dill or dillweed*
2 tablespoons dill pickle juice or lemon juice
¼ cup chopped dill pickle or pickle relish
2 cans (6½ or 7 ozs.) tuna, drained and flaked
Grated Parmesan cheese
Paprika

1. Preheat oven to 425°F. Scrub potatoes well. Rub with a little vegetable oil. Prick with fork to allow steam to escape during baking.
2. Place on baking pan and bake 1 hour, or until fork-tender.
3. Make sauce: In medium saucepan melt butter. Sauté onion about 3 minutes, stirring. Stir in flour smoothly. Add milk all at once. Bring to boiling, stirring with wire whisk, until bubbly. Season with salt, pepper, hot-pepper sauce, dill, pickle juice, pickle.
4. Stir in tuna chunks. Heat gently until bubbly. Keep warm.
5. To serve, cut potatoes lengthwise and crosswise about 1½ inches deep. Press ends to fluff up potatoes. Place on plates. Spoon a generous amount of sauce over each potato. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and paprika.
Makes 4 servings, 3½ cups sauce

*Or use fresh snipped chives or scallion tops.

ORANGE 'N' CARROT ASPIC SALAD

1 pkg. (6 ozs.) orange-flavored gelatin
1½ cups boiling water
1 can (12 ozs.) carrot juice
1 can (8¼ ozs.) crushed pineapple, undrained
½ cup finely chopped celery
2 tablespoons grated onion
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
3 drops hot-pepper sauce
Crisp lettuce leaves
Sour cream, optional

1. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Stir in carrot juice, pineapple, celery, onion, vinegar and hot-pepper sauce.
2. Pour into a 7x11 or 8x8x2-inch pan. Refrigerate. Stir a few times during chilling to blend ingredients.
3. Cut into squares to serve. Place on lettuce leaf on individual plates. Top with a small spoonful of sour cream if desired. Makes 8 servings

PANTRY BREAD PUDDING

Trim crusts from 4 or 5 slices dry bread; then toast and cut into ½ inch cubes. Arrange half the cubes in a shallow 1-qt. baking dish or pie pan. Prepare 1 pkg. (3¾ ozs.) vanilla instant-pudding mix as package label directs, with 2 cups cold milk, adding ⅛ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg, ⅛ teaspoon cinnamon and ½ teaspoon vanilla before beating. Pour half over bread cubes. Add remaining bread cubes and top with remaining pudding. Combine 2 tablespoons chopped nuts or crispy rice cereal and 1 tablespoon light-brown sugar and sprinkle over pudding. Broil 2 minutes 4 inches from heating element, until lightly browned. Chill. Makes 3 cups, 5-6 servings advertisement here I was, counting my daily thousand calories and studying every health-food book in sight. And I ame up with what were, for me, four little friends that made me skinny." This reporter discovered a eight-loss secret that worked for her and even surprised her doctor. Is it right for you, too?

The amazing Cider Vinegar, Lecithin, Kelp, B-6 Diet

By MARY ANN CRENSHAW who has been writing on beauty and fashion for the New York Times for ten years.

THERE ARE TWO sensible safe and ested diets that can make you lose eight, all right. If, and only if, you pick ne of them after reading this book and hecking with your doctor and then stick ith it – and stick fast. One is a high-rotein, low-carbohydrate (notice we aid high-protein not high-fat) diet, and he other is a low-calorie diet – aided nd abetted by my four fabulous iscoveries.

"I didn't discover them all at once, you nderstand. One at a time I tried them. And when I had counted all four, I eemed to have come up with a formula hat was, for me, seemingly infallible for making my weight come off with a sudden rush that surprised even ever-doubting me. It may just work for you, too!

"The four were lecithin, cider vinegar, kelp and vitamin B-6. I can only say that I put them all together and came out thin! In two weeks, I lost 12 pounds. I found it difficult to believe. My doctor had to be shown before he would believe it, and it seemed pretty ludicrous for him to be asking me how I did it. But there I was – thin again and still healthy.

Has Never Failed to Take Off Pounds

"Now, since this fortuitous fat-off formula fell into my lap by sheer luck, I have tried the same recipe on many guinea-pig friends. So far, the mysterious mixture of these four ingredients has never failed to take off pounds, as long as a low-calorie regimen was strictly adhered to. For I wouldn't dream of suggesting that these four, together with unlimited food intake, would make you lose weight. If you ever come up with a formula like that, you've no doubt got a ready million waiting for you. And for now, those of us who wish to get our weight down and keep it there will have to diet in one form or another. But my four little friends sure did make things easier . . . and quicker, which is the best part of all.

"Now, I wish I could tell you that I had vast numbers of control subjects and laboratory tests on the usefulness of these four seemingly magic weight-losers. I can't. But I have tried them. My friends have tried them. We have all lost weight, rapidly. And each of them is nothing more than food – with the single exception of B-6, which is just what it says it is, a vitamin – so I don't see how it could hurt you to try. Of course, you should check with your own doctor, anyway. I did."

Introducing Mary Ann Crenshaw's "four little friends that made me skinny."

Friend #1. Lecithin.

In "The Natural Way to Super Beauty," Mary Ann Crenshaw introduces you to the first of her "skinny friends," Lecithin. Pronounce it "less-i-thin" and call it a miracle. For lecithin is a substance that, while not exactly misunderstood, is perhaps not yet fully understood. It is found in egg yolks and in some vegetable oils. But mostly lecithin is a little soybean stuff you may take as you like – in oils, in capsules, in granules. It is a food, not a drug. Miss Crenshaw reports of a doctor's experiment in which it was found that lecithin produced as much as a 30% decrease in cholesterol. Another thing she discovered with lecithin is that it appears simply to shift your weight around to where you want it. And if perchance you are skinny, but have lumpy hips or thighs, it seems to streamline them!

Friend #2. The Cider Vinegar Brew.

Mary Ann Crenshaw reports how she experimented with that old folk remedy of one teaspoonful of cider vinegar in a glass of water. How she began to drink vinegar brew every day, after every meal. And inches is what she lost!

Friend #3. Kelp.

Along with lecithin and cider vinegar brew, Mary Ann Crenshaw next discovered her "third friend" in her diet, Kelp. She tells you that kelp contains iodine, and iodine is what makes the mysterious metabolic system burn up the fuel the way it should. Since her metabolic system burns everything too slowly (perhaps like yours) so that fat tends to pile up, she reveals how this wonder food acts in some mysterious way to make the fat grow thin! On her "help me, kelp" program she tells you how many tablets of kelp she downed with her vinegar brew – and kept getting thinner!

Friend #4. Vitamin B-6.

Mary Ann Crenshaw reports next how she came across a mind-blower! A Texas physician noted the slimming effects of Vitamin B-6, in the course of treating patients' leg cramps and numbness in fingers and toes with B-6, he discovered that they were losing weight and inches, especially around their waistlines – without changing one other element in their diets! According to the doctor, B-6 works with the sodium and potassium in your body to set up a balance that regulates body fluids and prevents water retention – the same water retention that makes your clothes tight and shows up as extra weight! By adding B-6 to her diet, Miss Crenshaw saw her body getting slimmer by the day! Every meal was ended with cider vinegar brew that washed down the kelp. And now the B-6. Suddenly, miraculous things began to happen. Her clothes actually hung on her. All of the weight she didn't want went off, and then some. And the inches went off as well. Maybe yours can, too!

Even if you don't reduce your present caloric intake, merely adding these four "wonder foods" to your diet may still help you reshape your shape. But Miss Crenshaw makes it easy for you to lose faster – by cutting down on your calories without giving up the nutrition you need! She has researched the most complete, most accurate nutrition charts you've ever seen – charts that tell you everything you need to know about everything you eat. And she has expressed them in terms and quantities that really make sense – the sort of quantities you can easily measure for yourself when you prepare your meals. The information is so exact and so complete, it makes it easy for you to custom-plan your diet to enjoy the greatest possible amounts of the foods you like best, right down to the last calorie. And you'll find all kinds of useful tips on how to chart your diet to fit in with your family's eating habits – to make your shopping and your cooking easier. You'll find that the charts alone are more than worth the cost of the book!

She Lost 12 Pounds in 2 Weeks.

Mary Ann Crenshaw shows you step by step how with the help of her "four friends" – Lecithin, Cider Vinegar, Kelp and B-6 – she lost 12 pounds in only two weeks! Better yet, she found that these amazing allies did as much to heighten her health as to lessen her waistline! Between them, this healthsome foursome not only shifts fat (to reduce ugly bulges), prevents water retention and washes out weight-adding water . . . they also, reports Miss Crenshaw from interviews with doctors, normalize your thyroid, and help maintain the sodium/potassium balance your body needs. They can make it easier for you to take in fewer calories without getting hungry, irritable, and tempted to cheat on your diet. And they're just part of her wonderful head-to-foot beauty diet that can strengthen your hair, toughen your nails, tone your skin . . . and do your health a world of good! Learn everything about this marvelous diet now.

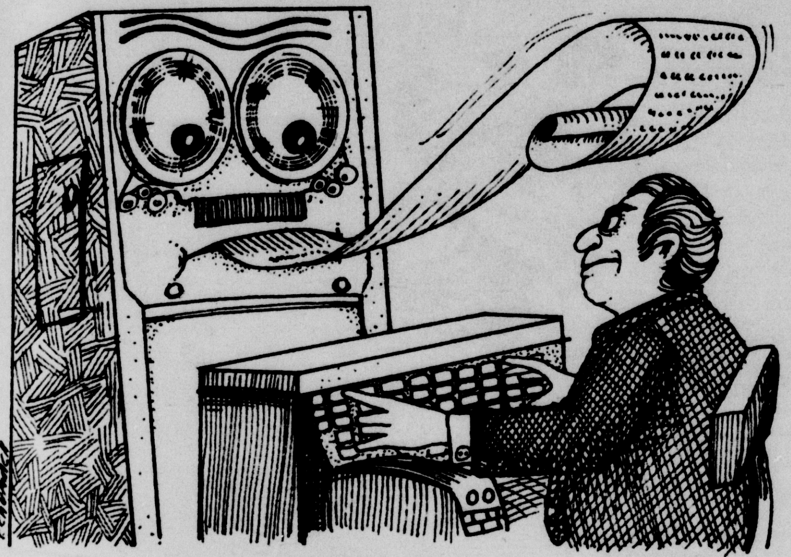
People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Do You Know Your Own Levels of "Smart"?



True or False: Thinking machines (computers) are smarter than people. (See number 5)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you have a good sense of time, it is an indication that you have a higher than average IQ.
2. The ability to think critically tends to go hand in hand with certain personality traits.
3. You don't have to have a high IQ to score in the top brackets in what psychologists call "social intelligence."
4. The thought processes of accident-prone drivers are different from other people's.
5. Thinking machines (computers) are smarter than people.
6. If you smoke, working in close proximity to a non-smoker will affect your ability to think.

ANSWERS

1. True. In studies at Yale University, where findings of leading researches were evaluated, it was found that the ability to estimate the duration of brief intervals of time and the accuracy with which a person can estimate the time of day without looking at a clock have a direct bearing on how high he is likely to score on an IQ test.

2. True—as shown by studies at Memphis State University, where students with high critical thinking ability (the capacity to analyze and evaluate objectively) were found to be "generally more imaginative, more independent, less conscientious, more stable emotionally, more trusting and less controlled than students of low critical thinking ability."

3. True. Social intelligence is defined as the ability to understand others and to act wisely in social situations. It includes "the ability to get along with people in general, social technique or ease in society . . . and insight into the moods and underlying personality traits of friends and strangers." University of California studies have shown that persons with relatively low IQ scores can be gifted in these qualities of social perception. Other findings on social intelligence: It increases with age; and women are better at it than men.

4. True—as evidenced by psychiatric studies comparing accident-prone drivers with others. It was found that accident-prone drivers have personality characteristics that make them respond suddenly and impulsively when they encounter frustrations. This results in an "all or nothing type of thinking" that causes the driver to assess the hazards of particular driving situations differently—and to make instant take-a-chance decisions. It's also noted that this type of thinking causes the accident-prone driver to perceive social situations differently from others, and to respond to other people differently.

5. False—according to a comparison study of machine and human intelligence conducted at the Imperial College of Science and Technology (London), which characterized man as "slow, sloppy and brilliant" and the machine as "rapid, rigorous, but stupid." The purpose of the study: to determine if there is reason to assume that proposed intelligence machines may be able to exhibit qualities of the best in both worlds.

6. True—as demonstrated by experiments at Mills College that were designed to determine whether the performance of hundreds of students on mental tests would be affected by having smokers and non-smokers in the same room. First, tests were administered with all the subjects in the same room. Next, tests were given with smokers in one room and non-smokers in another. Findings: Both the smokers and the non-smokers made significantly better scores when the groups were in separate rooms. Conclusions: "That the non-smokers earned lower scores in the presence of smokers may reflect physical reaction to the smoke as well as emotional reaction to the smokers. That the smokers earned lower scores in the presence of the non-smokers may have been reaction to, and possible guilt feelings from, the observable irritation and disapproval expressed by the non-smokers toward the smokers."

Do you suffer from painful elimination?

First of all, you should know that you are not alone. Thousands of people experience pain from dry, hard stools. The reason is often constipation or hemorrhoids. What's needed is something that will soften intestinal waste for smooth, comfortable relief.

And that's exactly what Serutan does. Serutan is a softening laxative that helps relieve painful elimination. It forms a smooth, mild gel that supplies moisture and bulk to bring effective relief without strain or griping.

Serutan is the same formula as the laxative prescribed by many doctors to give their patients the relief they want with real comfort.

Do you suffer from painful elimination? Try the Serutan way to gentle regularity. Soon you should discover that elimination can be as smooth, easy and comfortable as nature intended.

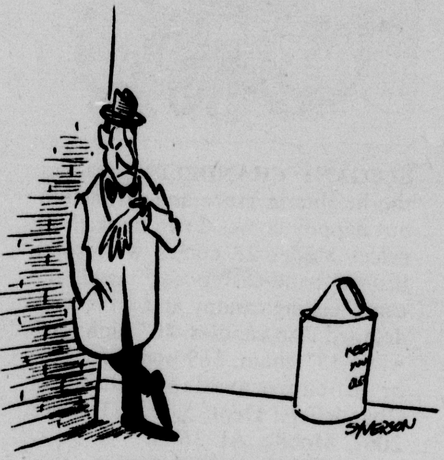
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

By Richard Armour



WAIT ON MY MIND

No argument and no debating,
What is, I ask you, worse than waiting?
I don't know anything forlorner
Than waiting, waiting on a corner
Or waiting by a ticking clock
Or waiting for a ring or knock
Or waiting for a card or letter
Or waiting payment by a debtor.

There's really nothing I hate more—
Unless it's being waited for
And knowing, hard though I may strain,
I just can't make it, can't explain,
While waiting at the other end
Is one who is (or was) a friend.

NEWS NOTE

World affairs show such stormy
  weather
As a matter of fact I don't know whether
To listen to the six o'clock news
And eat my dinner sunk in the blues
Or wait till eleven o'clock and keep
Myself so upset I cannot sleep.

—Georgie Starbuck Galbraith

During a heated family argument, a husband turned to his wife and demanded, "Don't you remember promising to love, honor and obey?" "Of course I do," she said. "What else could I do? I didn't want to make a scene."

SAM ERVIN
Always vote for yourself

Sen. Sam Ervin's first try at running for office: "I would have been editor of the 'Daily Tar Heel' [the student newspaper at the University of North Carolina], but I made a mistake. They had about 16 of us in nomination for the post, and in those days I was more modest than I am now. I wouldn't vote for myself in preference to somebody else. So I voted for a boy named Jimmy Hoover from High Point, and Jimmy beat me—Jimmy was elected with eight votes and beat me by one. So ever since then I have always voted for myself." From "Just a Country Lawyer: A Biography of Senator Sam Ervin" (Indiana University Press, $8.50).

Want to get away from it all? If you think joining the Forest Service is the answer, think again! For 6,000 jobs in the Forest Service each year, at least 100,000 applications are received from Americans who want to get away from traffic, crowds, smog, noise and the rat race. For every 40 ranger positions offered annually, 1,000 people apply. Even a routine announcement of an opening for a buffalo rancher in a remote corner of Arizona brought 800 telephone calls, telegrams and letters of inquiry from nearly every state in the nation. "We shudder every time somebody writes a story about the glories of working in the Forest Service," says a member of the staff.

Isaac Hayes

Isaac Hayes of "Shaft" fame loves to spend money on houses, clothes and cars. "I don't have time for hobbies like golf or tennis, so I have beautiful houses because I live in them; beautiful clothes because I wear them; and beautiful cars because I drive in them from one place to another. I have a Mercedes and a Cadillac that I keep in my town house in Washington, D.C.; two Jaguars, two Cadillacs—gold-plated – an Eldorado and a Mark IV that I keep at my home in Memphis, Tenn."

PEG LEG PERCY
Doing the penguin strut

Have you ever seen a penguin flying? Well, don't worry if you haven't, because penguins don't fly. Not even when they have broken legs. This poor fellow, who is appropriately nicknamed Peg Leg Percy, hails from Sydney, Australia. He fractured his left leg during a storm. Fortunately, he was rescued by a family who nursed him back to health by setting his leg with a splint. While recovering from his injury, Percy still strolls out to sea for his daily swim. His swimming is unimpaired by the broken leg—it just means he has to move his paddle-like wings even harder.

Scary statistics about freeways:

- A four-lane road built to freeway standards requires a 300-foot right-of-way, and, every four miles, an 80-acre interchange.
- Every 100 miles of expressway takes 5,640 acres out of the property-tax base.
- A $50-million-a-mile commuter freeway—although usually "free" of tolls, charges, taxes and regulations—costs the city for which it was built $150,000 per mile per year in lost jobs and lost taxes on institutions the road wiped out.
- American cities and towns currently subsidize freeways by more than $3.9 billion per year.
- One-third of all civil-court costs relates to automobile and highway travel.

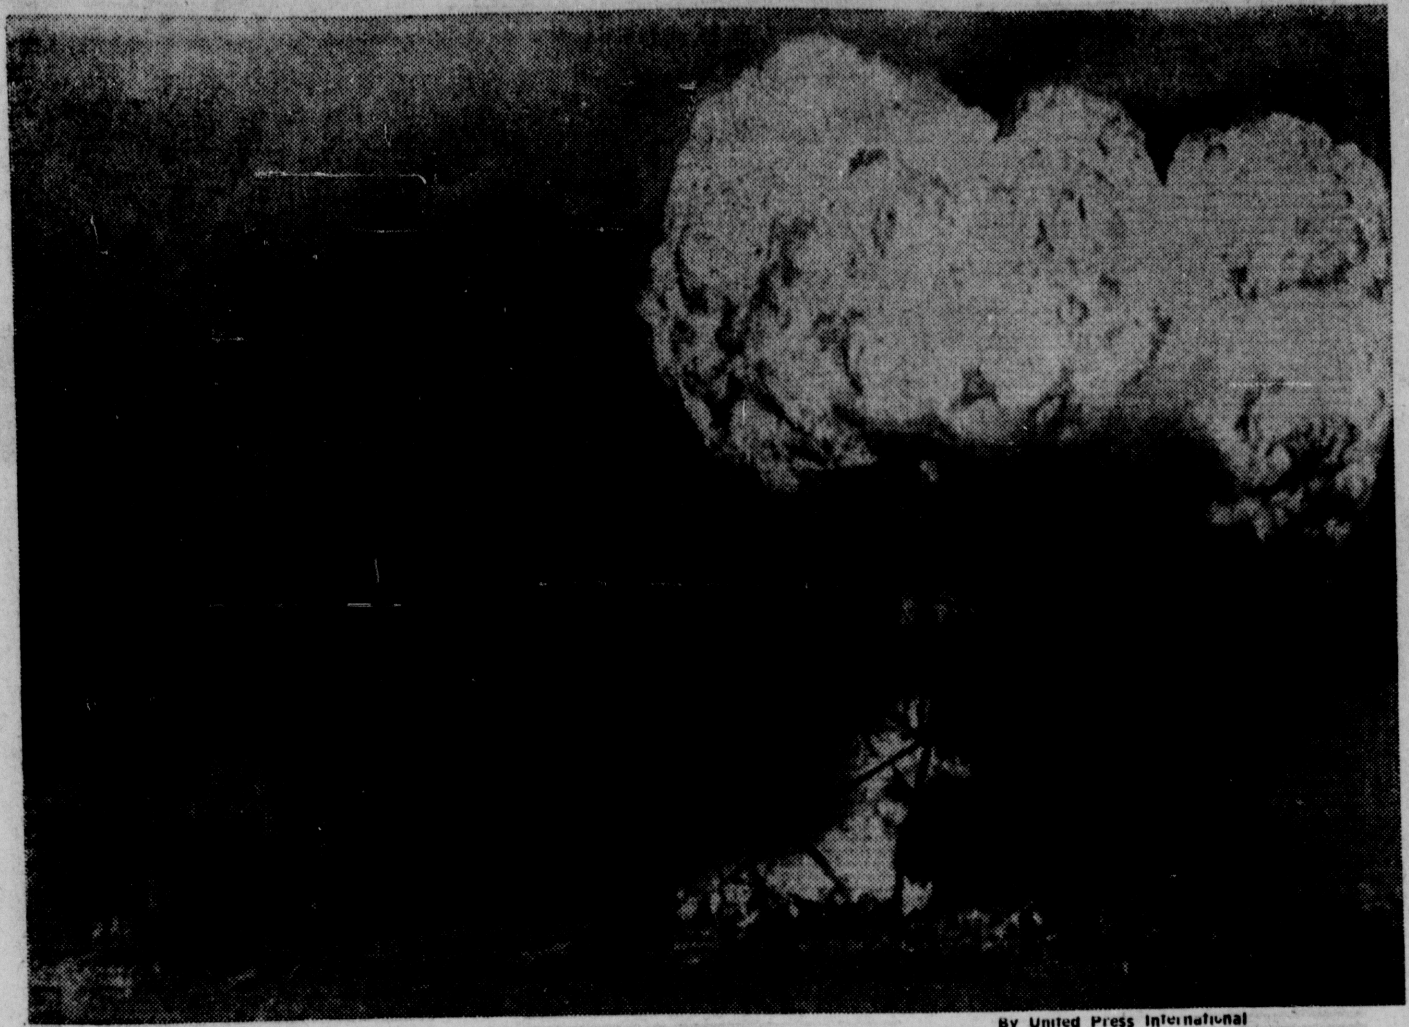
Dozens feared dead in chemical blast



By United Press International

MANY MISSING, INJURED

A massive explosion rips through chemical works in Scunthorpe, in northeast England, Saturday leveling the plant and sending a plume of smoke and poisonous fumes a mile into the sky.

British villagers flee deadly fumes

SCUNTHORPE, England (UPI)—An explosion ripped through a chemical plant in northeast England Saturday, leaving scores missing or injured and sending residents of surrounding villages fleeing from toxic fumes.

"The whole place is about flat," said an ambulance driver. "It's as if a bomb had hit the area."

The blast may have been Britain's worst peacetime industrial accident.

Firemen said between 20 and 30 persons were missing and feared dead. Most of them were workmen manning a weekend shift at the Nypro (UK) Ltd. chemical works in nearby Flixborough, 160 miles northeast of London.

Another 62 were treated at Scunthorpe General Hospital for injuries suffered in the blast, which was heard 30 miles away.

More than 150 firemen fought the blaze for four hours before bringing it under control.

Fearing the effects of toxic gases, firemen ordered 2,000 residents of six villages, including Flixborough, to leave their homes. Most were taken in army trucks to evacuation centers in Scunthorpe.

"There was a small bang, then a huge explosion. Everything went black as hell and we were blown off our feet," said Lawrence Harry, 31, processor working about 150 yards from where the explosion occured.

Caborn said the explosion appeared to have taken place near a control room in the plant where 30 people usually work.

"It doesn't look as though anyone got out of that area," he said.

Firemen wearing gas-masks hauled injured out of the rubble and put them in dozens of ambulances called to the facility, which is jointly owned by the Dutch State Mines and Britain's National Coal Board.

The previous highest death toll from a blast in peacetime was in 1971 when 21 people died and 57 were injured in a gas explosion that tore 10 shops apart at Clarkston Toll in Scotland.

Flixborough has a population of 310, many of whom work at the plant, police said. They said the explosion apparently occurred when the day and night shifts were changing over —and the maximum number of people were at the plant.

Mideast heroes' welcome

POWs traded

By United Press International

Israel and Syria traded wounded prisoners Saturday in the first phase of the troop separation treaty POW exchange and gave them emotional heroes' welcomes with an outpouring of tears, flowers, cheers, song, and back pay.

Guns were silent on the Golan Heights where the fighting stopped Friday with the signing of the Israel-Syria disengagement agreement after 81 days of intermittent artillery and tank fighting.

"I think this is the end of the first stage of the war," Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said at Tel Aviv airport,

San Dimas pilot jailed after buzzing his home

SAN DIMAS — Frank Redfield was flying high Saturday but his plane wasn't.

That was the whole problem, according to sheriff's deputies, who jailed the 43-year-old San Dimas man for flying while intoxicated.

Deputies said Redfield apparently was buzzing his own home, and others in the 1900 block of Linfield St., about 4:40 p.m from an altitude of 150 feet.

Redfield's single-engine Cessna 150 aircraft was spotted by deputy John Rondina flying in a "circular pattern," at the low altitude.

Rondina notified Brackett Airport, and then traveled there in time to witness Redfield's "touch and go" landing.

The deputy reported that Redfield was in a "stuporous" condition and he could detect the odor of alcohol on his breath.

The suspect was booked for flying while intoxicated, flying too low, and for not having a pilot's license in possession.

Deputies said the Federal Aviation Administration is conducting a separate investigation into the incident.

Explosion, fire in house kill 5; three are saved

JEISEYVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — Fire believed started by an exploding gas heater destroyed a five room house early Saturday and killed five persons, burning them beyond recognition.

Three others escaped the smoke-filled house by groping their way to a window and breaking through to safety in this small town in central Illinois.

Christian County Coroner Thomas Doyle identified the dead as Mrs. Mildred Fecho, 54; her son Dennis, 20; two daughters, Faith, 12 and Phyliss, 10; and her grandson Clarence Moore Jr., 3.

The survivors were Clarence Moore Sr., 25, his wife Sharon, 18, who was another of Mrs. Fecho's daughters, and their infant son Brian, 3 months. The Moores live in Stonington, Ill.

Doyle said the fire started about 5 a.m. and "a gas heater may have exploded."

"Moore told me that the baby awakened them and the house was full of smoke," Doyle said. "They were in the rear bedroom. The smoke was so dense they couldn't find their way out. He said he beat on the wall until he hit a window. He broke the window and got his wife and son out but he couldn't find his other boy. He tried to enter the front of the house but the heat was too intense.

Nixon travels may include western Europe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon met with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim Saturday to discuss implementation of the recently negotiated Syrian-Israeli agreement.

The half-hour meeting, held in the White House Oval Office, came as Nixon aides prepared for an intensive round of presidential diplomatic travel.

In addition to trips to the Middle East and Moscow this month, an administration official said Nixon may also embark on a third foreign tour —a swing through Western Europe—later this summer.

Planning was still in the tentative stages but a target date was set between late July and mid-September for the European trip, the official said. Nixon would confer with European allies on the prospects for further military cutbacks in Europe and on a realignment of trade with the Common Market, the official said.

WEDDING CELEBRATION

It was all smiles for bride, Mrs. Angel Johnson, left, who watches her husband of five minutes wrestle with a champagne bottle following the couple's marriage Saturday in the Lucky Six bar. The couple first met each other in the bar where Mrs. Johnson is presently employed.

She clamps off at 147 pounds

NOTTINGHAM, England (UPI) — Mrs. Shirley Turner weighed an ungainly 247 pounds last Nov. 14, so her doctors fitted her with a silver clamp to make her keep her mouth shut.

Mrs. Turner, 37, took the clamp off recently and hit the scales 101 pounds lighter.

At 146 pounds, she is still 17 pounds heavier than her targeted "bikini weight." But she says she would be laughing if her mouth didn't hurt so much.

Couple married where it all began--at a Pomona tavern

POMONA — For most couples, the thought of getting married at the place they first met is a romantic idea, but one usually lost to more conventional standards.

Not so for Pomona residents Angel Jean Falls, 36, and David Lee Johnson, 27, who were married Saturday morning where it all began — at the Lucky Six bar on south Garey Avenue.

With the soft light from beer signs falling on the nearly two dozen guests, who sat perched attentatively on their bar stools, the couple was married by Ed Holtrust, minister from the Chapel of the Bells in Ontario.

The bride works at the bar as a barmaid, while the groom is a sheet metal worker at Freightliner Corp. in Chino.

"She works here, and I feel like I was born and raised here," grinned the groom shortly before the brief ceremony.

And they don't plan to change that arrangement.

She'll continue setting 'em up, and he'll continue to be her best customer.

FBI may ask legislation for use of wiretaps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI may push for adoption of new wiretap legislation to help agents combat spreading terrorist activity in this country, FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley said Saturday.

Under present requirements court approval is required in every case involving wiretaps for domestic surveillance. Kelley said new techniques are needed.

"We have given serious thought to this problem and have concluded that our capabilities in this area definitely need to be broadened in the use of certain techniques we cannot now employ," he said.

12 Golden Agers die as bus careens down hill, crashes

BAIE ST. PAUL, Que. (UPI) — A bus full of old people on their way to an island picnic apparently lost its brakes on a steep hill near here Saturday and careened off the road, killing 12 persons and injuring 32, police said. said.

A Quebec Provincial Police spokesman said the bus was one of two carrying members of a La Tuque, Que. area Golden Age club to a one-day outing at Isle Aux Coudres.

He said it appeared the bus lost its brakes as it was coming over a hill near St. Joseph de la Rive and plummeted down the incline at high speed before finally running off the road and turning over.

The spokesman said most of the 47 persons aboard the bus were women. The injured included 15 in serious condition.

He said surviving passengers reported there was no warning prior to the accident, which occured about 3:30 p.m. on a rural highway about 10 miles from here and 60 miles northeast of Quebec City.

Ontario man arrested after 100 m.p.h. chase

UPLAND — A 19-year-old Ontario man is in custody after he led six police units on a high-speed chase through Upland and Ontario early Saturday morning.

Lawrence Eugene Ross of 1217 Corona Ave. was arrested on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon and failure to appear in court on a $5,000 grand theft auto warrant.

The chase began when Upland Officer Tom Fitzpatrick came upon Ross in a parked truck in an alley in the 500 block of Richland St. at about 2 a.m.

During the chase at speeds over 100 m.p.h., according to police, Officer Fitzpatrick was joined by five Ontario Police units and a San Bernardino Sheriff's helicopter.

The 10-minute chase ended at Woodlawn and Campus avenues in Ontario when Ross attempted a high-speed turn, lost control and crashed into a utility pole.

He was treated for minor injuries at San Antonio Community Hospital and later booked into West End Jail.

PET SHOW FUN

Impeachment delay?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's Republican supporters on the House Judiciary Committee are demanding that the panel call many witnesses before taking a vote on whether to recommend that Nixon be impeached.

Their demand conforms with the White House's apparent strategy of seeking to delay an impeachment vote in the House and a trial in the Senate as long as possible.

If the committee Republicans prevail and dozens of witnesses are summoned to testify, the panel's timetable, calling for a decision in early July on whether to recommend impeachment, will be thrown off for weeks, perhaps more than a month.

This, White House supporters hope, will give some of the anti-Nixon feeling in Congress and the country time to die down.

The committee has heard all the evidence its staff has gathered on the President's possible involvement in the Watergate cover-up and is scheduled to focus attention on the ITT and dairy industry contributions cases this week. The meetings, resuming Tuesday, will continue to be closed.

At a press conference last Monday, House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona, a Nixon loyalist, signalled the new Republican tactic.

He said the committee was "mesmerized" with getting access to Nixon's tapes and urged members to get on to summoning witnesses for direct testimony.

Since then, Vice President Gerald R. Ford has called on the committee to turn to witnesses and away from the tapes. White House officials —a different one nearly every day —have said the same thing.

At a public committee meeting Friday, Rep. David Dennis, R-Ind., a Nixon supporter, produced a list of 13 persons he wanted subpoenaed as witnesses to testify on the single question of whether Nixon authorized the payment of hush money to Watergate break-in conspirator E. Howard Hunt.

Dennis' list included many of the big names —John W. Dean III, John N. Mitchell, John D. Ehrlichman, and H. R. Haldeman among them.

Damien graduation

Share in future promised seniors

LA VERNE — The first woman ever to address a Damien High School graduation exhorted the graduates Saturday night to "be prepared to share the future in a way no generation shared the past."

Mrs. Constance Downey, deputy director of the federal Women's Programs Office, predicted that the 125 graduates will be part of a second American revolution.

She said it would be the only revolution "with any chance of success."

The first significant social changes for any generation in a long time will be part of the graduates' lifetimes, Mrs. Downey added. The revolution won't be a bearing of arms, she said, but a "transfer of power."

Mrs. Downey warned that many persons will be trying to "sell uniformity" and "sameness" to those entering society. She told the graduates not to accept it.

"It's dependent on us to shape the future. You must be yourself and not accept other beliefs without questioning them."

Valedictorian Paul McNamara, in a brief speech, said those entering society must "be your own best man, relate to people and be prepared for failure." Most important, is to "retain your individuality."

MAN IS NOTHING ELSE
WHAT HE MAKES OF HIMSELF

WHAT IT'S ALL FOR

Rev. Monsignor William J. Barry, pastor of Our Lady of Assumption Church, presents diploma to Damien High School graduate during the school's 12th commencement Saturday night. Event marked the culmination of high school years for 125 graduates. At right is Rev. Michael Maher, teacher at Damien. The graduates heard speech by the director of the federal Women's Programs Office.

SOME TENT

POWs . . .

where he greeted the POWs.

Dayan said the prisoner exchange of 408 Syrians and Arab allies and 58 Israelis should be completed by Friday, after the Syrian and Israeli military delegations in Geneva work out a timetable to carry out the rest of the disengagement agreement.

"No troops will move until we get our prisoners back," he said.

In Damascus, Information Minister George Saddekni said while welcoming 24 Syrian and one Moroccan POWs the troop disengagement agreement was "not an end in itself" and "full liberation" remains Syria's objective.

In Cairo Arab guerrilla leaders gathered for a conference to decide how to deal with the current drive for a Middle East settlement. Their meeting was expected to last three or four days.

Chartered international Red Cross airliners that carried 25 wounded Arab and 12 Israeli POWs took off from Tel Aviv and Damascus simultaneously.

As the Israeli prisoners filed off the plane wearing bright orange and green shorts and tee-shirts, a waiting group of 100 persons broke into applause and unfurled a sign reading, "Welcome home heroes of Israel."

The first man off the plane jumped out its front door, raced limping across the airport tarmac past two police barriers and joined his shouting and waving family about 50 yards away. He later rejoined the others and was taken to an army base for a check-up and debriefing.

Dr. Mordechai Shani, who checked over the men, said all except one POW were in "reasonably good" condition and would require only rehabilitative treatment.

He said three men had leg amputations and one lost a hand.

Itamar Barnea, 23, a fighterbomber crewman, lost a leg when his plane was shot down over the Golan Heights.

Chocking back tears, Barnea wrapped his arms around both wife and daughter and sobbed, "How do I hold her?"

In Syria 2,000 relatives and well-wishers were waiting at the airport and thousands of others lined the 12-mile highway from the airport to downtown Damascus, where the POWs were taken in motorcade to Damascus Military hospital.

Governors predict Ford, Kennedy as '76 opponents

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Most governors willing to make early political predictions see Vice President Gerald R. Ford and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy as 1976 presidential election opponents.

An even stronger majority of governors surveyed by United Press International on the eve of their 1974 national conference look for big Democratic gains in the congressional elections this fall. And most believe those gains would be cut considerably should Ford become president before November.

UPI also asked governors if they expected the House to impeach President Nixon or the Senate to remove him from office. Of 14 willing to make public guesses, 11 indicated they either expected impeachment or saw an increasing prospect of it. None predicted the Senate would vote to remove Nixon from office.

On the question about leading presidential contenders, 19 of 20 governors who rated Republicans named Ford and 14 of 16 who listed Democrats included Kennedy.

Gov. Ronald Reagan of California got 10 mentions and former Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York got seven on the GOP lists. Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., was listed 12 times and Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., and Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, four times each on the Democratic side.

Other Republicans listed as leading contenders were former Texas Gov. John Connally, 3, and Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, Gov. William Milliken of Michigan and Gov. Daniel Evans of Washington, one each.

Other Democrats mentioned included Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, Tex., Frank Church, Idaho, and George McGovern, S.D.; Rep. Morris Udall, Ariz.; and Govs. John Gilligan, Ohio, Jimmy Carter, Georgia, Rubin Askew, Florida, Daniel Walker, Illinois, and Dale Bumpers, Arkansas.

Most governors who declined to list presidential contenders said they thought it was too early and a number said they were waiting for this year's election results before predicting prospects for 1976.

Twenty-one of the 27 governors who replied when asked if they expected a Democratic landslide this fall replied yes or said they foresaw substantial gains. Of the 21, 15 were Democrats.

Thirteen of 22 governors who replied to a question about the political effect of a Ford succession to the presidency believed Republicans would be helped in the congressional elections.

Castro was reluctant to take missiles--Khrushchev memoirs

NEW YORK (UP) — Nikita Khrushchev talked a reluctant Fidel Castro into letting the Soviets install missiles in Cuba in order to get a no-invasion agreement from the United States, the late Russian premier reveals in his memoirs.

In excerpts from the soon-to-be published memoirs, printed in the current issue of Parade magazine, Khrushchev said he argued heatedly with Castro over the idea of setting up the missiles in 1962.

According to Khrushchev, the only reason the Soviets wanted to position missiles in Cuba was "to give the new progressive system created in Cuba by Fidel Castro a chance to work."

"Without our missiles on Cuba," he wrote, "the island would have been in a position of a weak man threatened by a strong man. I'm not saying we have any documented proof the Americans were preparing for a second invasion. We didn't need documentary proof. We knew the class affiliations, the class blindness of the U.S., and that was enough to make us expect the worst.

"When Castro and I talked about the problem, we argued and argued. Our argument was very heated, but at the end, Fidel agreed with me. Later on he began to supply me with certain data that had come to his attention.

"'Apparently what you told me was right,'" Khrushchev said Castro told him. "That in itself justified what we did."

Opposition builds quickly to business near S.D. park

SAN DIMAS — Residents north of San Dimas Canyon Park are organizing to fight a zone change application that would permit Picnic Services, Inc., to conduct private parties for large groups on seven acres near the park at 1809 San Dimas Canyon Road.

The applicant, which also conducts a similar operation in Maple Leaf Park in La Puente, is seeking a zone change from residential agriculture 10,000 to open space zoning. The open space designation permits park use with a conditional use permit.

But nearby residents, some whose property adjoins the seven-acre parcel, believe the enterprise isn't a park but a commercial venture that will create a great deal of noise and traffic problems on Saturday and Sundays.

The firm caters large parties and reportedly uses a public address system.

Residents are getting geared up for a Planning Commission meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. when the application will be presented for the zone change and a conditional use permit.

Jim Sandiford, who lives within 300 feet of the proposed project, is spokesman for the residents of the Eagle Cliff homes, Gray Oaks Estates, Mesa Oaks and residents who live further up into San Dimas Canyon.

Sandiford said petitions are being circulated among the residents and many will attend Tuesday night's meeting to protest the development.

Sandiford said the main objections he and other residents have to the project is the noise it would create. He said it is enough for canyon residents to live as close as they do to the popular San Dimas Canyon Park which also attracts large groups. On a pleasant Sunday, several thousand visitors come to the county park to picnic.

Another concern of residents is traffic on San Dimas Canyon Road which Sandiford says is now congested and heavy for what he says is a "narrow county road."

The development's proposed plans show parking for 300 cars which Sandiford said could be the potential for 1,200 visitors to the proposed picnic area.

"The city claims that San Dimas Canyon Road can handle 500 cars in an hour," Sandiford said, but added that he doubts this figure because his home fronts on San Dimas Canyon Road and is aware of the congested traffic conditions.

"Most of us moved to San Dimas to get away from the hustle and bustle and don't want a commercial enterprise adjacent to our homes," he said.

He said the residents wouldn't object to the property being used for single family homes.

County fair activity starts early for 10 coeds seeking queen title

POMONA — Friday, Sept. 13, is still a few months away, but it can't come too soon for 10 Southland coeds vying for the title of queen of the Los Angeles County Fair.

Chosen from five area colleges, the girls will spend the remaining months in posing for pictures, making radio and television appearances, and being goodwill ambassadors for the annual fair.

On the opening night of the 17-day exposition, one of the 10 will be crowned queen by Kathy Grothe of Cal Poly Pomona, who reigned over the 1973 fair.

Competing from Azusa Pacific are Valerie Hill, a 21-year-old brunette from Covina, majoring in special education to work with mentally retarded children, and Karen Kumlander, 18, a blonde from Upland, majoring in English and communications and planning to teach on the elementary school level.

Cal Poly's representatives are Debbie Dugally, a 19-year-old green-eyed blonde from Whittier, who wants to teach high school but also wishes to continue raising and training horses, and tall, brown-haired 19-year-old Carol Jean Gearhart of Pomona, a home economics major who wants to enter the field of nursing or physical therapy.

From Citrus College are Elvira Crawford, a 5-foot brunette from Covina majoring in cosmetology and homemaking and wanting to be a social worker, and red-haired Debbie Taylor of El Monte, an 18-year-old majoring in physical therapy because she'd like to work with handiapped children.

La Verne College's entries are 20-year-old India-born Smruti Bhagat who wants to teach on the elementary level, and Kathy Randolph, 21, of Phoenix, Ariz., a physical education and social science major who would like to teach on the high school level or go into some type of business.

Representatives from Mt. San Antonio College are Geni Arvidson of West Covina, 18, a long-haired blonde who has chosen nursing as a career, and brunette Yvonne Rios, a 19-year-old El Monte resident majoring in airline transportation with hopes of becoming a stewardess.

Hearings to open on break for taxpayer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., announced Saturday his Senate Finance Committtee will hold hearings on various proposals to give the ordinary taxpayer a better break by increasing the levy on wealthy individuals and businesses.

He said the hearings will open at 10 a.m. Wednesday, with Treasury Secretary William Simon as leadoff witness.

Simon will present the administration's position on the series of tax proposals ranging from an end to the oil depletion allowance to an increase in the minimum tax assessed against wealthy persons who avoid payment through shelters and loopholes.

Long noted that measures to increase the tax liability of corporations and wealthy persons have been offered as amendments to a minor House-passed tariff bill scheduled for Senate debate late next week or the week of June 10.

The six tax hike proposals could increase individual and corporate taxes from $7 billion to $8 billion in the current tax year, Long said.

Several liberal senators, led by Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Walter Mondale, D-Minn., are seeking to lower individual taxes and increase them for corporations and rich persons to make up for the loss in revenue.

They have proposed increasing the personal exemption for income taxes from the current $750 per individual in a family to $825. There is an alternative proposal to allow each person a $190 tax credit instead of personal exemption.

Key among the income generating proposals to finance the individual tax break is an end to the oil depletion allowance, alone estimated to raise about $2 billion a year.

House votes to end OEO, continue aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has voted to abolish the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), the 10-year-old war on poverty headquarters, but to continue its major programs of aid to the poor for three years under a $3.7 billion authorization.

The House voted 331-53 Wednesday to approve a "Community Services Act," which would repeal the 1964 law that created OEO as a major Great Society program. It had been under constant congressional criticism for waste and mismanagement of funds.

The bill was sent to the Senate, but President Nixon has implied he would veto it cleared that body, mainly because the measure keeps the Community Action program alive.

The measure would transfer Community Action to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare with its own director. The agency nearly would be free from HEW control. A total of $990 million would be authorized for the program over three years.

Community Action gives grants covering 80 per cent of the cost of operating a local or state program designed to lift the poor out of poverty by training and schooling. It has supplied nearly $20 billion to such public and private agencies since 1964.

2 Claremonters receive CGS Distinguished Alumna Award

CLAREMONT — Ruth S. Lamb and Hazel N. Morgan, both of Claremont, received the 1974 Distinguished Alumna Award from the Claremont Graduate School Alumni Association at the recent Alumni Day reunion.

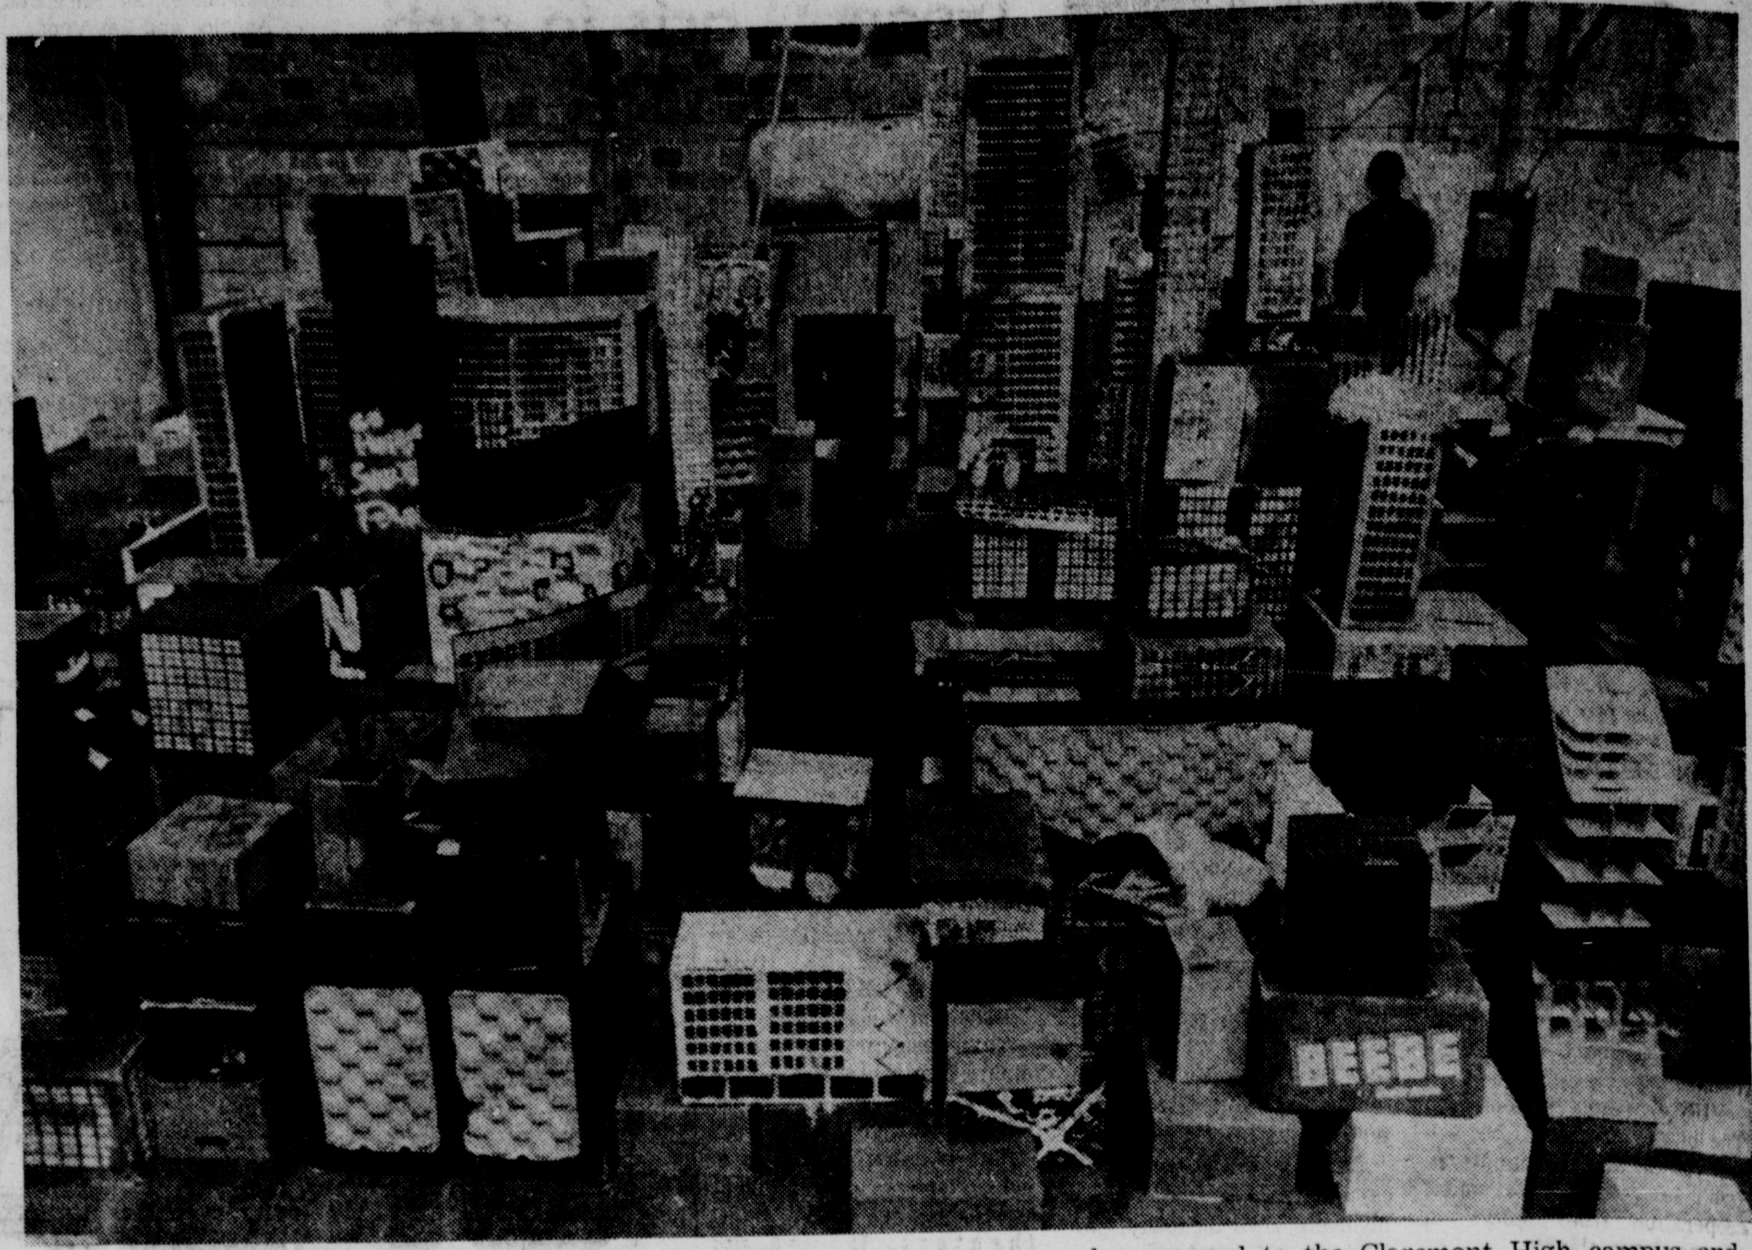
Byron Taylor of San Diego received the Distinguished Alumni Service Award. The presentations were made by Lorraine F. Tilden, president of the association, at an awards luncheon.

RUTH LAMB

HAZEL MORGAN

Mrs. Lamb is professor of Spanish and Latin-American literatures at Scripps College and the graduate school. She has lectured and conducted ressearch in Brazil, Argentina, Rumania, Chile, Mexico and Spain and has written six books and three plays.

Mrs. Morgan is a musician and writer. During her professional career she was supervisor of elementary school music in Lincoln, Neb., and supervisor of music for Claremont public schools, and taught at the University of Minnesota, University of Nebraska, Northwestern University, the University of Hawaii, Kent State University, UCLA, the American Institute of Music Education in Boston, and the Claremont Summer Session.



SOUNDS OF THE CITY

Nine students in Miss Ingrid Petersen's fine arts class at Claremont High School took over a portion of the old lemon packing house on First Street to convert cardboard boxes, soft drinks cartons, and egg flats into a sizeable model city, complete with lights and traffic noises. The model city has been moved to the Claremont High campus and will be viewed Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m. by parents on the first day of an Art Fair Celebration. The celebration will be held for students Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Stan the Man

ST LOUIS (UPI)—Stan Musial set more than 50 major and National League records for batting and durability during 22 years with the St. Louis Cardinals. He also played in 24 major league all-star games, the "extra" games being accounted for by the fact two games were played each year from 1959-62.

Pomona council to air vandalism issue

POMONA — The City Council at its Monday, 8 p.m. meeting will consider a citizens' petition urging that something be done about problems connected with a pedestrian walkway between Washington Avenue and Rialto Way.

The petition, carrying 34 signatures, claims that adjacent homes have been subjected to vandalism and other problems brought on by persons using the walkway.

Public Works Director Ronaid Kranzer said that since the problems were brought to his attention, a number of steps have been taken by City Hall.

He said the maintenance services department has painted out all graffiti on the walls adjacent to the walkway, police have been asked to provide additional surveillance and Kingsley Elementary School has been requested to bring the matter to the attention of the teachers and the PTA for their assistance.

The walkway provides a direct path to the school and Kranzer said closing it would create problems for the children now using it.

He suggested the matter be reviewed during the summer school session after which a report would be presented on the legalities involved in the vacation of the walkway.

Among other items to be considered by the council is a resolution setting charges for sewer services for properties outside the city limits, a recommendation for the extension of General Revenue Sharing agreements with the Mexican-American Opportunities Foundation and La Escuelita.

The council also will consider a resolution supporting Proposition 1, the state park bond issue, a recommendation to purchase office furnitre for the Valley Association of Cities, and a request by the American Cancer Society to hold a bike rally on June 8.

McVittie says state consumer help weak

POMONA — Chino City Atty. Bill McVittie, a candidate for the Democratic nomination in the 65th Assembly District, has charged that the California Department of Consumer Affairs is ineffective in protecting the public against consumer frauds.

Speaking before a recent meeting of the Chicano Urban Coalition, McVittie said the centralized offices of the department in Sacramento and Los Angeles defeat the purpose of the agency.

"Regardless of the number of consumer laws enacted," he said, "they're only unnumbered pages in dusty code books unless diligently enforced. It's imperative that consumer affairs offices be established in local communities so that close liaison may be maintained with local prosecutors of these laws.

"State agency structures should be revamped in order to reduce delays, eliminate referral runaround and vest final decision-making authority in the hands of public representatives."

District attorney

Cramer cites training for S.B. County post

UPLAND — Asst. Dist. Atty. Jim Cramer said he was selected as second in command of the District Attorney's Office last year because of his record in running the Ontario office for eight years.

And in his position as assistant to Dist. Atty. Lowell Lathrop, Cramer said he has contributed to the policy judgments made in that office.

He reported the policy judgments have been successful, resulting in a 91.3 per cent felony conviction rate.

Regarding the plea bargain issue, he described this as a tool, like a trial, used to get results. "If we can't get the results we want, we go to trial. Our interest is to protect the citizen."

Cramer said his opponents have minimal experience in the administration and leadership of trial prosecutors.

Promotions

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Coach Bo Schembechler of the University of Michigan has seen three of his football assistants graduate to head coaching jobs in the past three seasons.

Jim Young went to Arizona in 1973, Frank Maloney succeeded Ben Schwartzwalder at Syracuse in 1974 and George Mans assumed the top job at Eastern Michigan in 1974.

Cancer group has non-event to raise funds

Valley residents received invitations to the Northeast Lost Angeles County Unit of the American Cancer Society Phantom Ball, a fund-raising "non-event."

Invitations state that the ball would be held on "May 32," the time, anytime that suits you"; and the place, "wherever you are happiest.'

Contributions to the non-event are tax-deductible. No expense is incurred for decorations, food, drink or entertainment, so proceeds advance directly to the society's research, education and service programs in the valley and neighboring areas.

Contributions of $5 permit the donor to miss the ball; $10 to $25 donations permit the donor to miss the ball and cocktail party; $25 to $100 gifts entitle the donor to miss the ball, cocktail party and reception with guests of honor; and donations over $100 entitle donors to miss the whole evening and receive a special invitation to miss next year's ball.

Mrs. Robert Margid of Covina is chairman of the non-event. Committee members include Mrs. Kelly Young and Mrs. Gordon Carlson of San Dimas.

L.V. nursery school film to be shown

LA VERNE — The La Verne Nursery School is the subject of a slide-film story that will be shown Tuesday night as part of school preregistration for fall.

The program begins at 8 p.m. in the library of the Church of the Brethren, sponsor of the school.

Mrs. King was on a study leave and made the films while serving as an assistant at the nursery school.

Children will be registered at 7:30 p.m. for the fall term. The school is a parent cooperative for children between the ages of 2 years and 9 months through five years of age, with sessions of two hours in either morning or afternoons two days a week.

Mrs. Ruth Hersch is the director, and Mrs. Lena Willoughby and Mrs. Sue Dyer are the teachers. All able college trained and experienced teachers. Inquiries can be made by calling 593-1364.

For Sunday, June 2, 1974

ARES — (March 21-April 19) You'll do very well today if you're involved in something of a secretive nature. Advantages will come through unusual channels.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone you'll be associating with is very lucky for you. This is a male. He has good contacts with large groups.

GEMINI—(May 21-June 20) Extremely favorable conditions are developing in an area where you perform some type of service for others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This is your kind of day. Brighten yourself up and get out where the action is. Someone you know only slightly is lucky for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your greatest source of pleasure today will come through associating with persons with whom you share close emotional ties.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The bigger the idea, the better you're able to handle it. Don't be reluctant to solicit cooperation from others to advance your plans.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Opportunities of a material nature are still circulating at this time. If one pops up, don't treat it indifferently.

SCORPIO — (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Have you noticed how many good ideas you've been getting lately? Don't you think it's about time you acted on a few of them?

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your best course of action is to continue to keep to yourself plans you've been hatching.

CAPRICORN — (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You could make a real contribution if you were involved in committee work for a club, especially if it is for charitable purposes.

PISCES—(Feb. 20-March 20) This will be one of your lucky days, especially if you first convince yourself. After that, convincing others will be easy.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
June 2, 1974

You're going to get more breaks this year than you have for quite a while. If you handle them wisely they will prove to be quite profitable.

For Monday June 3, 1974

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll come up with better answers today after you've had time to think things through. Don't be rushed into decisions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Something you're working on will develop into more of a problem than you thought at first. Hang in there till you find a solution.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can be quite persuasive. You will use this quality to turn another around to your way of doing things.

CANCER(June 21-July 22) Your frivolous plans will be changed to take care of a responsibility that will pop up. Anyway, you're getting tired of putting it off.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Most of the day will be rather burdensome, but something will come up this evening that will give you a chance to kick up your heels.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A material matter that's caused you some concern recently is on its way to being worked out. This will give you peace of mind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You haven't been digging deeply enough for an answer to a problem, but today you will. The solution will surprise you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be extra-sensible in your financial dealings over the next few days. Count your pennies as carefully as a banker does.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're getting a better perspective on an important issue, but you're not out of the woods yet. Move cautiously.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Cut down on your outside involvements a bit today, particularly if they take you near a person you don't dig too much anyway.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Sometimes victories are due solely to timing. Know when to back off and when to push. Don't oversell.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The pieces just don't seem to fit together in some of the things you'll be doing today. Don't give up; later it will all go together nicely.

Your Birthday June 3

Industrious effort will pay you surprising dividends this year. Be sure to fully complete projects once you have initiated them.

General acts to curb arrests in Oceanside

OCEANSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — During a six-month period ending the first of March, 858 Camp Pendleton Marines were arrested by Oceanside police, and base commander Maj. Gen. Robert Nichols didn't like it.

He set out to do something about it and the results have been encouraging, although some of the businessmen in this resort city of about 50,000 aren't too happy.

"I'm distraught that any antisocial behavior or misconduct by Marines can impair the honor of the Corps," Nichols said. "Some folks think we carry our pride to the extreme.

"We do—deliberately so."

Nichols' first step in lowering the trend was to put arrest information into computers to see what they would come up with. One major finding was that most of the arrests occurred on payday nights that fell on Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday.

Next, disguised as an ordinary Marine on liberty, the general made two tours of the "Tenderloin" section of town.

This is a four-block strip of bars, topless entertainment establishments and X-rated theaters. The area also housed massage parlors but they recently were outlawed.

"Marines were elbow to elbow in bars." Nichols said. "One could get the feeling in walking around that this is a sin city."

Nichols said Marines are capable of making their own decisions but he feels the Tenderloin is a negative contribution to the behavior of the Marines downtown.

"There's no question that some of the places there are a source of overindulgence with spinoffs into what some people call an increase in crime. That kind of activity does not help our situation."

Action to reduce the rate of overindulgence by the 26,000 men stationed at Camp Pendleton took three forms.

First, paydays were changed to every other Friday, instead of the traditional first and 15th of the month.

Second, a public subscription drive was launched to relocate the Armed Services YMCA away from the Tenderloin area. At last report, $150,000 had been raised for the project.

Third, the Marines' human relations program was re-emphasized. This involves all Marines from private to general attending 20 hours of lectures and discussions on social topics.

"We want to reawaken in young Marines the void created in our society by the absence of the kind of upbringing in the home, in the church, in the school, of the old American traditions regarded as the basic Christian ethic," he said.

"That is the concept of 'I am my brother's keeper' that is the heart of our program."

While no figures were available regarding overall crime and arrests, police said there was only one major crime, a rape, involving Marines since early March.

A recent Sunday night tour of the Tenderloin area gave one the impression of a ghost town.

A survey revealed only about 300 of Pendleton's 26,000 Marines were spending their weekend at Oceanside bars, X-rated theaters and book shops and novelty shops.

Nichols said his study indicated that when Marines were paid on weekends they preferred to take trips outside the Oceanside area and seemed to stay out of trouble.

Of the Marines interviewed on the base, 80 per cent said they planned weekend visits to such places as Ensenada, Los Angeles and Las Vegas.

It is too early for the overall effect of the program to be evaluated, but as Police Lt. Ernest Michels said, "As far as the Marines go, there seems to be a downtrend in violence."

Hives make jail a sweeter place

PLEASANTON, Calif. (UPI) — It'll be sweeter at the Alameda County Rehabilitation Center.

The county Board of Supervisors approved a request to place 100 beehives in the jail's northwest corner.

John Scroggs, a part-time beekeeper, said the county would receive 60 pounds of table honey a year as a result of the hives.

STRIKING silhouette was captured on film when an amateur photo buff saw this lass quenching her thirst in a way some may consider most unladylike. Regardless, what else can a thirsty girl do without a glass?

Doctor urges buffaloes for Indians

MUSKEGON, Mich. (UPI) — Dwain W. Cummings, an osteopathic surgeon known as the "buffalo doctor," thinks it's time that the government give some buffaloes back to the Indians.

"We've been working on the idea of getting the federal government to supply Indians with the 1,000 or so surplus buffaloes in our nation's parks," he said.

Cummings has a vested interest in both buffaloes and Indians. He is part Sioux and is free on personal recognizance bond after being indicted on a charge of interferring with federal officials because he helped airdrop food and medicine to the Sioux during the 73-day occupation of Wounded Knee, S.D., last year.

Buffalo dance

He is known as the buffalo doctor because of his knowledge of bison and the fact he and his wife have a herd of about 30 of them on his farm at Stanwood, Mich.

Cummings said buffalo would be an "excellent protein source" for Indians on reservations, including many who now go hungry.

"They are still starving on reservations," he said. "Little children suffer from lack of protein in their diet and the average life expectancy of an Indian is 40 years.

"The buffalo have a unique protein in their muscle. The meat is higher in essential amino acids and lower in cholesterol and saturated fatty acids."

Herds growing

He said in the last 10 years the government has learned how to breed buffalo, so the herds are growing.

"We do have a surplus, and the Indian should get it," he said.

"Two years ago, I gave 13 buffaloes to the Chippewa Indians at the L'ance Reservation in the Upper Peninsula, but I can't afford to give animals to all Indians from my small herd.

Cummings said he has had one success in eight years of experimentation in trying to cross breed a holstein cow with a bison.

"We call her 'Barely Kicking Von Holstein,'" he said.

"These cross breeds are very interesting because the offspring are bigger than the parents.

"They grow rapidly without estrogen or hormonal stimulation and when they get to be about four years old, they can weigh 3,400 or 3,600 pounds."

That's about 1,600 pounds more than a buffalo, and almost double a cow's weight.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The word "ostracize," meaning to exile someone from the group, comes from the ancient Greek "ostracon," a piece of clay upon which was scratched the name of a man the voter wanted exiled, the World Almanac notes. The person whose name appeared most often on the "ostraca" was exiled for 10 years.

Preacher's wife teaches belly dancing

DECATUR, Ga. (UPI) — Emma Stanford is a preacher's wife who believes there is more to life than teaching Sunday School or playing the church organ. For her, it's belly dancing.

It may be shocking to those who believe the minister's wife should be at the church whenever the doors open, but Mrs. Stanford wants the congregation to know that when they hire her husband they are not hiring her.

"I am a bonus to the package," quipped the slender, brown-haired Mrs. Stanford, who teaches belly dancing at a local YMCA.

Her husband, Richard, a former Florida parole officer, is winding up his studies at the Columbia Theological Seminary. He proudly acknowledges his wifes belly dancing when interviewed by church committees for jobs.

No real opposition

"There have been some people at the seminary that have registered their disdain by giving us the silent treatment," said the bearded Stanford, but he said he has run into no real opposition to his wifes hobby.

Others at the seminary have accepted Mrs. Stanfords belly dancing, including the wives of seven senior students who recently took "secret" lessons from her as a present for their husbands' graduation.

"One of the reasons one of the girls was doing it was so she would have a tool for getting her husband out of late church meetings," said Mrs. Stanford.

"It will probably be effective, too," her husband added.

The Stanfords agree the stereotyped role of the prim minister's wife is archaic. "I almost feel rebellious about it," said Mrs. Stanford. "I don't want people to feel that just because I am married to a minister they can take advantage of me."

Taught Sunday School

She has taught Sunday School in the past and enjoyed it and may do so in the future "if I feel like it. But I want them to know they are not buying me.'

Mrs. Stanford and four other seminary wives began taking belly dancing lessons over a year ago.

"I think it gets your mind in shape and in perspective about where you are," she said. "It helps you be yourself, to be more relaxed. Its very freeing of inhibitions.

"It also helps the figure. One girl has lost a half inch everywhere, even her knees."

Mrs. Stanford, who has also taught her daughters, ages 7 and 8, a few routines, disagrees with those who find the scanty costumes indecent.

"What's pornographic about doing something that's good for you and good for your marriage?" she asked.

A new record for Guinness

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jim Dawson claimed the record for the world's longest continuous radio appearance, after completing six days and six hours on the air recently.

Dawson, 19, broadcast for 150 hours on KBLA, the campus station of Cal State Los Angeles, alternating between small talk and records. He set out to break the mark listed in the Guinness Book of World Records —144 hours by Royal Air Force broadcaster Peter Jackson, set in Yorkshire, England in April, 1972.

Can motorists be convinced?

Innovations may do away with spare tire

DETROIT (UPI) — New developments from the tire industry could make the spare tire about as necessary as the hand crank.

Whether the tire and auto manufacturers will be able to convince motorists they don't need a spare is another story altogether. Thousands of tubes are sold each year although tubeless tires have been on the market since the 1950's.

The B. F. Goodrich Co. has developed a tire that will seal most punctures while the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. has followed a different route with a tire that can be driven 50 miles after going flat. Both could eliminate the need for a fifth tire.

The energy crisis has pushed Americans toward smaller and more economical cars and, at the same time, has left automakers looking for ways to cut down the weight of their cars. Automotive engineers would love to be able to eliminate the space and weight taken up by a spare tire, its wheel and jack.

Test Drive Made

"It's a kind of emotional subject trying to get motorists to rely on just the four tires on their car," observed one Firestone official during a display of the company's Steel Radial 500 ACT (Advanced Concept Tire).

Firestone engineers said tests have shown that a flat ACT tire can be driven about 50 miles at about 40 miles per hour, depending on what caused the tire damage and added there was an even greater margin built into the tire. A conventional tire would be ruined if driven only a fraction of a mile at that speed.

To prove the capability of the tire to run while it's flat, a crew drove 245 miles in a Ford Pinto on which the front tire was punctured and the air valve stem removed to make sure the tire was flat.

The demonstration for newsmen covered the distance between Firestone headquarters in Akron, Ohio, to a ski lodge at Clarkston, north of Detroit, over turnpikes, freeways and city streets. They maintained a legal speed limit of 55 miles per hour on the turnpikes and freeways.

Bump Designed

The tire runs so smoothly while flat that engineers have decided to design in a "bump" that will cause a slight vibration while it's running flat. The "bump" would warn the driver that the tire needs attention, but would not affect the steering or handling of the car.

While company officials say no price has been set for the tire when it is finally introduced during the 1976 model year, it probably will be more expensive than conventional steel radial tires. One objective, however, is to make four cheaper than five of the present tires.

The ACT steel radial tire is constracted in such a way that should a flat occur the tire would settle down onto the wheel rim. The tire would not flop on the rim, as does a conventional tire when air pressure is lost. It is the flopping that results in steering control difficulty and damage to both the tire and the wheel.

Richard A. Riley, Firestone president, said that flat tires are becoming less common with the increased use of belted tires.

"But our surveys show that one-third of car-owning households had a flat tire during the past year," Riley said.

Punctures Sealed

He added that 72 per cent of these occurred within two miles of a service station, while 5 per cent were more than 10 miles from a service facility. The survey also showed that 38 per cent of the tires which went flat were well worn at the time.

While Firestone looks for a way to let a driver keep going even though he has a flat tire, Goodrich would rather design a tire that probably won't go flat in most cases.

Goodrich put its self-sealing, Golden Lifesaver steel radial tire on the replacement market in January. It has a cellular liner system that has successfully sealed punctures up to one-quarter inch in diameter.

The idea of mending tire punctures through the use of a built-in puncture sealant isn't new.

Technical Problems

In 1891, a patent application filed with the U.S. Patent Office described an air-cushioned tire with a "lining or partial lining of viscous or plastic rubber, which will provide for the closing up of holes made in the air-cell of the tire...will close up the pierced opening when the piercing object is withdrawn."

Goodrich marketed a selfsealing tubeless tire in the early 1950s, but by the end of the decade only a few brands of tubeless tires with a sealant feature remained on the market, mainly because of technical problems with the sealant. The superior quality of tubeless tires themselves made the extra-cost feature uneconomical.

When the tire is punctured, the individual cells that contain the same pressure as the tire itself expand to seal around the puncturing object. This is a mechanical reaction, entirely different from the behavior of soft, sticky sealants that depend on fluidity for their sealing properties.

When the puncturing object —such as a large nail —is pulled out, a coating on the interior of the tire casing helps in the hole-plugging operation and the tire can continue to provide normal service with no repairs.

Scholarships would honor Harry Truman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation to establish scholarships in the name of former President Harry S. Truman was introduced by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., recently.

Four-year scholarships would be awarded annually to one student in each state and the District of Columbia to prepare them for government careers, financed with $30 million in Treasury funds.

Nixon: if guilty, I'd get out of here fast, but I'm not

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon told a group of conservative Congressmen recently that "if I was guilty, I'd get the hell out fast, but I'm not guilty."

Nixons words were reported by Rep. G. V. (Sonny) Montgomery, D-Miss., one of 11 conservative lawmakers who accompanied Nixon on a three-hour dinner cruise on the Presidential yacht Sequoia on the Potomac River.

Montgomery, who said he took notes on the discussion, said Nixon was reluctant to even talk about impeachment but he did express concern about the impact of "such a drastic step" on future Presidents.

The Mississippi congressman said Nixon described the House impeachment inquiry as "basically a fight for what the office (of President) stands for." He cited a "great balance" that has existed between the executive and legislative branches of government in the past and expressed concern that "if something happens now, it would throw that balance off and this could happen to every president who disagrees with Congress."

Governor's race the most expensive in state history

California's gubernatorial primary election Tuesday is the most expensive contest in state history with candidates collecting nearly $8 million from campaign contributors.

The previous record for primary elections was recorded in 1966 when candidates of both parties spent $2 million.

According to documents on file with the office of the secretary of state, the top fund-raiser in this year's primary was San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto, who collected about $1.6 million for his Democratic campaign for governor.

The Democratic frontrunner, Secretary of State Edmund Brown Jr., raised about $1.4 million while Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, another Democrat, took in $1.2 million.

Republican gubernatorial candidate Houston I. Flournoy, the state controller, reported collecting more than $1.1 million. His opponent, Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, raised $350 thousand.

In other campaign developments Thursday:

A student poll conducted by California Junior State shows California high school students favor Brown as the next governor. Of 15,000 students polled in 89 high schools, 22 per cent favored Brown, 13 per cent Moretti, 12 per cent Alioto and seven per cent Flournoy.

Flournoy told the Oakland Rotary Club that a governor's council of economic advisors should be created to fight inflation. He said the proposed council, composed of economists and representatives from business, labor and the academic world, would study how state policies affect California's economy.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, a Republican candidate for state controller, proposed giving California renters the same property tax deductions on their federal income tax that homeowners now enjoy. Bagley told a Sacramento news conference his plan would enable renters to deduct from $100 million to $300 million a year in property taxes from their federal income tax as homeowners now do.

Herman Sillas, Democratic candidate for secretary of state, called for candidates to be prohibited from buying television commercials for their campaigns. Sillas said TV coverage of campaigns "must be publicly funded, equally distributed and limited to live actual debates of issues."

During a government institute in Sacramento, Gov. Ronald Reagan repeated his opposition to Prop. 9, the "political reform" initiative on Tuesday's ballot. Reagan said Prop. 9 would, among other things, replace existing conflict-of-interest law with "less stringent" requirements.

Orange price hikes predicted for fall

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumers can expect a sharp increase in orange prices beginning late this year, an Agriculture Department report said recently.

Experts said supplies of both fresh and processed orange products will drop in the 1974-75 harvest season and may not climb back to current levels until the 1979-80

Latest California poll

Looks like Brown, Flournoy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Unless there is a major change in the voters' minds in the closing days of the campaign, the latest California Poll indicated today that Edmund G. Brown Jr. and Houston Flournoy should win next Tuesday's gubernatorial primaries.

The poll reported today that Brown still holds a commanding lead over his many rivals for the Democratic nomination. It found that 34 per cent support the secretary of state with Joseph L. Alioto now in second with 16 per cent.

Robert Moretti has dropped to third with 14 per cent with no other candidate commanding over 7 per cent support.

Told of the poll results in Los Angeles Thursday night, Brown admitted he was "very pleased with the results" and "very confident" of victory. He also said it indicated he felt the poll showed that his two stormy debates with Moretti represented "a resounding victory for my campaign."

He said the results are "just another indication that political reform is an extremely important issue to the elections in California as it has been in my campaign."

Brown has been a staunch supporter of Proposition 9 and the poll found that 37 per cent of the voters will support the complex measure aimed at reforming campaign practices. Only 10 per cent plan to vote no but a majority of 53 per cent still have not made up their minds on the measure.

Flournoy, who trailed Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke as recently as last April, now is supported by 44 per cent of the Republican voters. Reinecke has 27 per cent support but 26 per cent still have not made up their minds. Three per cent support other GOP candidates.

Jerome Waldie has moved into fourth spot among Democrats with 7 per support. William Matson Roth is next with 6 per cent while Baxter Ward has 3 per cent support, Herb Hafif 2 per cent and other candidates 1 per cent. Seventeen per cent of the Democratic voters are still undecided.

Replica of ship in 'Two Years Before the Mast' to be launched

By FRANK BARTHOLOMEW

MONTEREY, Calif. (UPI) — A replica of the brig "Pilgrim," the setting for Richard Henry Dana's classic "Two Years Before the Mast," is scheduled to be launched in Portugal today and set sail to recreate the voyage of her famed predecessor.

However, it will be only "one year before the mast" for the crew of the new Pilgrim.

The new ship, to slide down the ways at Setubal, Portugal, will makes 32 ports of call and sail three oceans before reaching her home port of Monterey.

The 100-foot brig honors the historic 180-tonner in which Dana sailed from Boston harbor 140 years ago.

The new Pilgrim will be under the command of Capt. Ray Wallace, a naval designer and architect. He researched every detail of the first Pilgrim and had the replica built by a small shipyard in Portugal which specializes in handcrafting.

In addition, there will be three experienced officers and a doctor aboard along with a crew of 15, mostly teenagers.

The Pilgrim will follow part of the general sailing course of its predecessor, from Boston to the West Coast. But it will avoid the perilous Cape Horn passage by transiting the Panama Canal.

Arrival at home port here in Monterey is scheduled for April, 1975. The Pilgrim will call at Gibraltar, Las Palmas, Barbados and St. Thomas before entering her first American mainland port at Portland, Maine.

Other ports of call will be Portsmouth, Gloucester, Salem, Boston, Plymouth, Newport, Mystic, New London, New Haven, Kings Point, and New York City, on Oct. 5 this year.

The Pilgrim will then head southward to call at Newport News, Charleston, and Savannah. She is scheduled to arrive in Miami Nov. 5, and then depart for the canal.

Her first Pacific Ocean call will be Acapulco, followed by Mazatlan; then to American ports again at San Diego, Dana Point, Los Angeles and Morro Bay.

After arrival "home" at Monterey, she is to go into service as a training ship.

Successful blacks beginning to return to rural South

By BERNARD BRENNER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A few successful blacks who earned good pensions in the urban North and West are beginning to trickle back to the rural Southern areas they left decades ago, an Agriculture Department population specialist says.

But so far, said David L. Brown, census figures show only faint signs of this movement of blacks "who have made it in the city and are retiring to the country, often back home."

But Brown thinks the movement will continue.

"The South is definitely going to see a gradual return of successful blacks to rural areas, just as the national trend is toward more people staying in or returning to the countryside," Brown said in an article published today by the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service.

The back-to-the country move will not, however, be as great in this decade among blacks as among whites, Brown added. And he said it would fall far short of offsetting the heavy tide of blacks leaving the rural South during the past 20 years.

"Over the past two decades, nearly 3 million blacks — mostly young —have left the rural South on a net basis. The main reason was the lack of jobs,' Brown explained. He said black employment on farms dwindled sharply as cotton and peanut production were mechanized and tobacco began to follow the same trend.

For whites, the loss of farm jobs was offset in recent years by rapid growth in nonagricultural employment in the rural South. But for blacks there were either few such opportunities or they were not attractive enough to outpull the lure of a potential better life in places like Chicago, Los Angeles and New York, Brown said.

During the 1950's, Brown's article said, nearly 3 million whites and about 1.5 million blacks left the South's small towns in rural areas. In the 1960's, with growing job openings for whites in new rural nonfarm jobs, only 123,000 white people left the rural South on a net basis compared to 1.3 million blacks.

A study of four rural farm counties underlined the trend.

In predominantly-black Wilcox County, Ala., which Brown described as typical, black employment in agriculture dropped 80 per cent during the 1960's while nonagricultural employment for blacks declined 3 per cent. During the same period, nonfarm employment for whites in the county rose 40 per cent and the white population increased while black numbers were dropping.

To seek chairmanship

Sparkman to walk in Fulbright path

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI) — Sen. John J. Sparkman D-Ala., says he will follow much the same course as Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., if he succeeds Fulbright as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Sparkman said he would seek the chairmanship next January, when Fulbright, chairman of the committee since 1959, leaves the Senate. The Arkansan was defeated in a primary election Tuesday by Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers. Sparkman is next in line for the post.

"I think the Foreign Relations Committee has functioned quite well (under Fulbright)," Sparkman told UPI at his home here. "I don't plan to change the course of it.

Sparkman could point the committee in a more conservative direction, but the committee is filled with Democratic and Republican liberals who might be able to outvote Sparkman on key issues.

Sens. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, said they did not expect Sparkman to attempt to block liberal legislation.

Sparkman said he favored negotiations with Communist nations on issues such as the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) between NATO and Warsaw Pact countries and presidential efforts at detente with Russia.

"I believe strongly in a mutual balance of arms — mutual force reductions of armaments,'' he said. "That means something worked out whereby there would be proper reduction on both sides.

"We ought to encourage trade between the United States and Russia and do whatever we can —as long as it is matched by Russia —to establish and maintain good relations," he said.

Sparkman will have to give up the chairmanship of the Banking Committee to take the Foreign Relations post because Senate rules bar a senator from heading two major committees.

Taxes wiping out gains by aged, poor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gains by poor people under the latest Nixon administration budget may not be as big as first thought, according to three Brookings Institution economists.

Increasingly burdensome taxes are wiping out recent advances in federal spending for social security, Medicare, food stamps, and other programs aimed at helping aged and low-income Americans, the economists said.

The analysis was part of an annual review of government fiscal policy published Friday by Brookings, a respected private research organization headquartered in Washington.

The study notes that in fiscal year 1975, which begins July 1, the administration has earmarked $98.2 billion for "cash income maintenance." This is a full 32 per cent of the $304 billion that the government plans to spend during the next 12 months and is a much higher percentage for such programs than in recent years.

Government money for "essentials" such as medical care, food, housing and education programs has swollen to $33 billion, or 11 per cent of the total '75 budget, also a bigger slice of the pie than in earlier spending programs.

But these gains are, in part, offset by a tax system that the Brookings study says is increasingly regressive —meaning that low-income people are carrying a heavier share of the tax burden relative to their incomes.

For example, after examining all sources of government revenue, the Brookings group concluded that "social insurance (security) taxes that weigh relatively heavily on low-income people are growing the most."

At the same time, tax breaks for farmers, oil producers and other business sectors have reduced the effective yield of corporate income taxes as a revenue producer.

"If you just looked at expenditures, you would think that the overall effect was to give poor people a lot," said Edward M. Gramlich, co-author of the report. "But when you look at the tax side, it turns out to be much less true."

The Brookings report also said defense spending "seems poised for a turnaround from a steadily declining share of the budget to substantial real increases for 1975 and future years."

Chimp learns to 'talk' by computer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chimpanzees have no natural language, but psychologist Duane M. Rambaugh says Lana has learned to communicate with her keepers by using a computerized keyboard.

Three-year-old Lana is part of an experiment at the Yerkes Regional Primate Research Center, in Atlanta, Ga., to find out if chimpanzees can learn a language.

The chimp, according to Rambaugh, types out such messages as "Please machine give Lana coke" or "Please Tim come into room and tickle Lana"

"She's big on tickling," said Rambaugh, "and Tim can punch, 'Does Lana want Tim to tickle Lana?' to which she almost invariably responds by pushing the yes button."

Rambaugh said Lana has learned to read and type 75 words and symbols in the past 18 months and hopes to expand her vocabulary to 100 symbols soon.

Cameras filmed her at her keyboard late one night typing out, "Does Lana want to be groomed?," Rambaugh said. And a few minutes later, "sure enough the cameras recorded that she then settled down to grooming."

43 in running for state, federal offices

Valley ballot is loaded with candidates

By PAT SPENCER
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Valley voters will have a record number of candidates for federal and state legislative offices to select from in Tuesday's direct primary election.

A total of 43 candidates, representing four parties, are contending for nominations for Congress, state Assembly and state Senate in six newly reapportioned districts.

Three Republicans and 10 Democrats are running in the 35th Congressional District which includes Pomona, Ontario, La Verne, San Dimas, Montclair, Upland, Chino and Walnut.

The Republican candidate is Rep. Del Clawson, 23rd Dist., of Compton. He is running unopposed for the party nomination and is seeking his fourth term.

In the 62nd Assembly District, which includes Claremont, La Verne, San Dimas, Glendora, Covina and West Covina, one Republican and two Democrats are running.

In the 64th Assembly District, which includes Walnut, Diamond Bar, Hacienda Heights, Whittier and La Mirada, four Republicans and two Democrats are running.

Two Democrats, five Republicans and one American independent are vying in the 65th Assembly District which includes Pomona, Chino, Montclair, Upland, Ontario and Cucamonga.

Democrats include Gene Axelrod of Pomona, city attorney for La Verne, and Chino City Atty. Bill McVittie.

In the 32nd Senatorial District, state Sen. Ruben Ayala, 20th Dist., is the Democratic candidate seeking his first full term; San Bernardino attorney John Marcus is the Republican candidate; and wholesale grocery manager Ray Clark of San Bernardino is the American Independent candidate.

The senatorial district is made up of the 65th and 66th Assembly districts and includes Pomona, Ontario, Montclair, Chino and other San Bernardino County cities.

The winners of these various primaries will face each other in general elections on Nov. 5.

Regional elections also abound with issues and candidates. Two stories on B-3 review what's going on in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties.

Abandoned houses are difficult to purchase

Much controversy has been noted in the paper about the boarded up houses in Pomona.

We have been tyiing to purchase one of these homes but much to our dismay we can't even see the inside of the house.

We have contacted mainy real estate agents. We also contacted the city government many times but to no avail.

Finally we called the head of the Federal Housing Administration in Los Angeles. That was a waste of time.

Can you please find out why these houses can not be sold to a qualified buyer? Taxpayers are pouring tax money into the homes every day they are boarded up. Also, they are an eyesore. —Mrs. F.H., Pomona.

We put you in touch with West America Corp., 1636 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, telephone 623-1475.

The corporation has been called a glorified babysitter for the abandoned houses. The official description of its function is that of area managment brokers in charge of the abandoned houses but without authority to sell.

For the corporation to sell the houses would be a conflict of interest, the government has decided.

However, West America will tell you the status of the property, its approximate condition and the approximate time it will go on the market.

You then must deal with private brokers, who receive listings from the government.

The Valley Association of Cities is working hard to effect a program for handling all of the 1,000 abandoned houses in Pomona and eight neighboring cities.

I have cancer and my husband is somewhat disabled as he had an industrial accident and lost two fingers.

Neither of us receive much money.

Our only enjoyment is television. The picture tube of our set is going and I know it is expensive to replace.

If someone could get us a new picture tube cheap, we would appreciate it. I am not asking something for nothing. —E.L., Pomona.

You told us that your set was a Curtis-Mathes. We contacted Reliable TV Service in Pomona, which repairs sets of that and other makes.

Mrs. Marie Leak of Reliable told us the firm often receives calls from senior citizens and other people with limited incomes and takes into consideration ability to pay.

A few days later you wrote to us that the firm cleaned your TV and put in two new tubes at a price you considered very reasonable.

We placed an order for some ground cover three months ago with the House of Wesley in Illinois.

We waited two weeks after our canceled check came back to us for delivery of our order. Then we sent a copy of the check with a letter asking about the delay. We received no answer.

Last month we wrote again asking the same thing. We still have had no answer.

Any help you can give us will be welcome. —Mr. and Mrs. W.A., Montclair.

The answer to our letter to House of Wesley was accompanied by a copy of a replay dated the same day and sent to you.

House of Wesley told you that your ground cover was on the way.

PLASTIC DILEMMA

Since we wrote of a valley firm which gave up recycling plastic containers because people turned in too many dirty bottles, we have had several inquiries from people hoping there was someone else offering the recycling service.

We know of only two outfits which collect plastics for recycling and their service in that field is very limited.

Although Trinity United Methodist Church, Pearl and Gibbs streets, Pomona, collects aluminum, glass bottles, newspaper and cardboard, the only plastic containers it handles are egg cartons.

Alta-Dena dairies recycle their own plastic bottles.

We add the information that aluminum cans are recognizable because they do NOT have seams up the sides. The reverse erroneous description appeared in a recent Action Line column.

Quakes could be forecast closely, far ahead of time—with money

By ED PRATHER
P-B Staff Writer

It begins as a vague confusion of the senses on the very edge of consciousness. "What's happening?" races silently through the brain.

In a split second, the answer violently jolts the mind, sinking to grip a pounding heart. Time suspends amid an avalanche lurching sensations.

Earthquake!

In the eternity of a dozen seconds, blurred images of destruction—even death—mix with the sudden reality of human frailty.

When it is over the experience will be deeply etched into the memory.

Any California resident who has felt the power of a big quake will remember, years later, where he was, what he was doing and how he felt. It is an experience quite unlike any other.

The damage caused by major quakes, both in lives lost and property destruction, is often staggering. Unfortunately, much of the loss could be avoided if only there was some warning—even if only minutes.

Technology here now

At the seismological laboratory at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, the premier earthquake laboratory in the world, scientists now say they possess the techology to provide that warning—not in minutes or hours, but in months and years.

The only thing that stands in the way is money.

"We could do a very adequate job of earthquake prediction for the cost of an aircraft carrier" said Dr. Don Anderson, director of the laboratory.

Given the equipment and financial support, Anderson explained, earthquakes of major proportions could be predicted up to two years in advance. The general location, intensity and time could all be determined.

That, of course, would do nothing to prevent the quake or the damage it would cause. It would, however, allow for some elementary precautions that could save lives, said Anderson.

Emergency equipment, ambulances and fire trucks, could be left outdoors so as not to be trapped in the rubble of a collapsed building. Dams could be drained or homes situated below them could be evacuated.

Also, new construction near the expected quake center could be prevented. (In the Feb. 9, 1971, quake in the San Fernando Valley, Olive View Hospital had just been completed at a cost of $23.5 million. It was a total loss.)

More stations needed

There are currently about 40 seismological field stations in Southern California, with the heaviest concentration in the San Bernardino-Riverside area along the San Andreas fault.

A field station consists of small monitoring equipment that is placed in a vault below ground. The equipment monitors "velocities," the speed of vibrations, in the earth and records them, via telephone lines, at the seismological laboratory.

Cost of the equipment for a field station is about $3,000, with another $1,000 per year for the phone link to Cal Tech.

"What we need is a much denser network of stations," Anderson said. "In order to make accurate predictions, we would need four seismometers within five kilometers (three miles) of the epicenter."

Such a network, Anderson admits, would cost tens of millions of dollars, and he is not optimistic about government support for such a system.

"After a big earthquake, when a lot of damage has occurred and people are killed, politicians are very interested in earthquake predictions. But when it comes to spending the money later on, their interests are in other areas," he said.

It is a price that will have to be paid, Anderson continued, if earthquake predictions are ever to be made with the kind of accuracy needed to save lives.

There is simply no other way of providing the data necessary to forecast a quake. For while a quake is a violently powerful occurrence, it is only the rapid climax to a very long and subtle buildup of stress.

To show how subtle the measurements of movement in the earth have to be, Bill Gile, director of instrumentation for the laboratory, describes his equipment's capabilities as "almost in the realm of black magic."

One of the more exotic pieces of equipment is a quartz extensometer, which is a quartz rod 30 meters long. Several of these devices are located at various spots in the world and are capable of measuring earth movements of only two billionths of an inch.

"It's like measuring the width of the United States to within the size of a human hair," said Gile.

This type of precision is needed because the relative motion along the San Andreas fault, which runs from San Francisco Bay to the Gulf of California, is only an average of one inch per year.

The fault is actually where the Pacific and North American plates, two of the giant sections of the earth's crust, abut each other. The Pacific plate, to the west of the fault, is moving northwest toward Alaska.

As the two plates rub against each other, stress builds at various point and eventually the rock factures, causing an earthquake.

While the average movement is only one inch per year, movement actually occurs in periodic surges. For instance, explained Anderson, during the 1971 San Fernando Valley quake, the ground in Sylmar moved 30 inches in those few brief seconds.

That quake measured 6.5 on the Richter scale (named for C. F. Richter of Cal Tech), which is considered a major quake, but not a giant one.

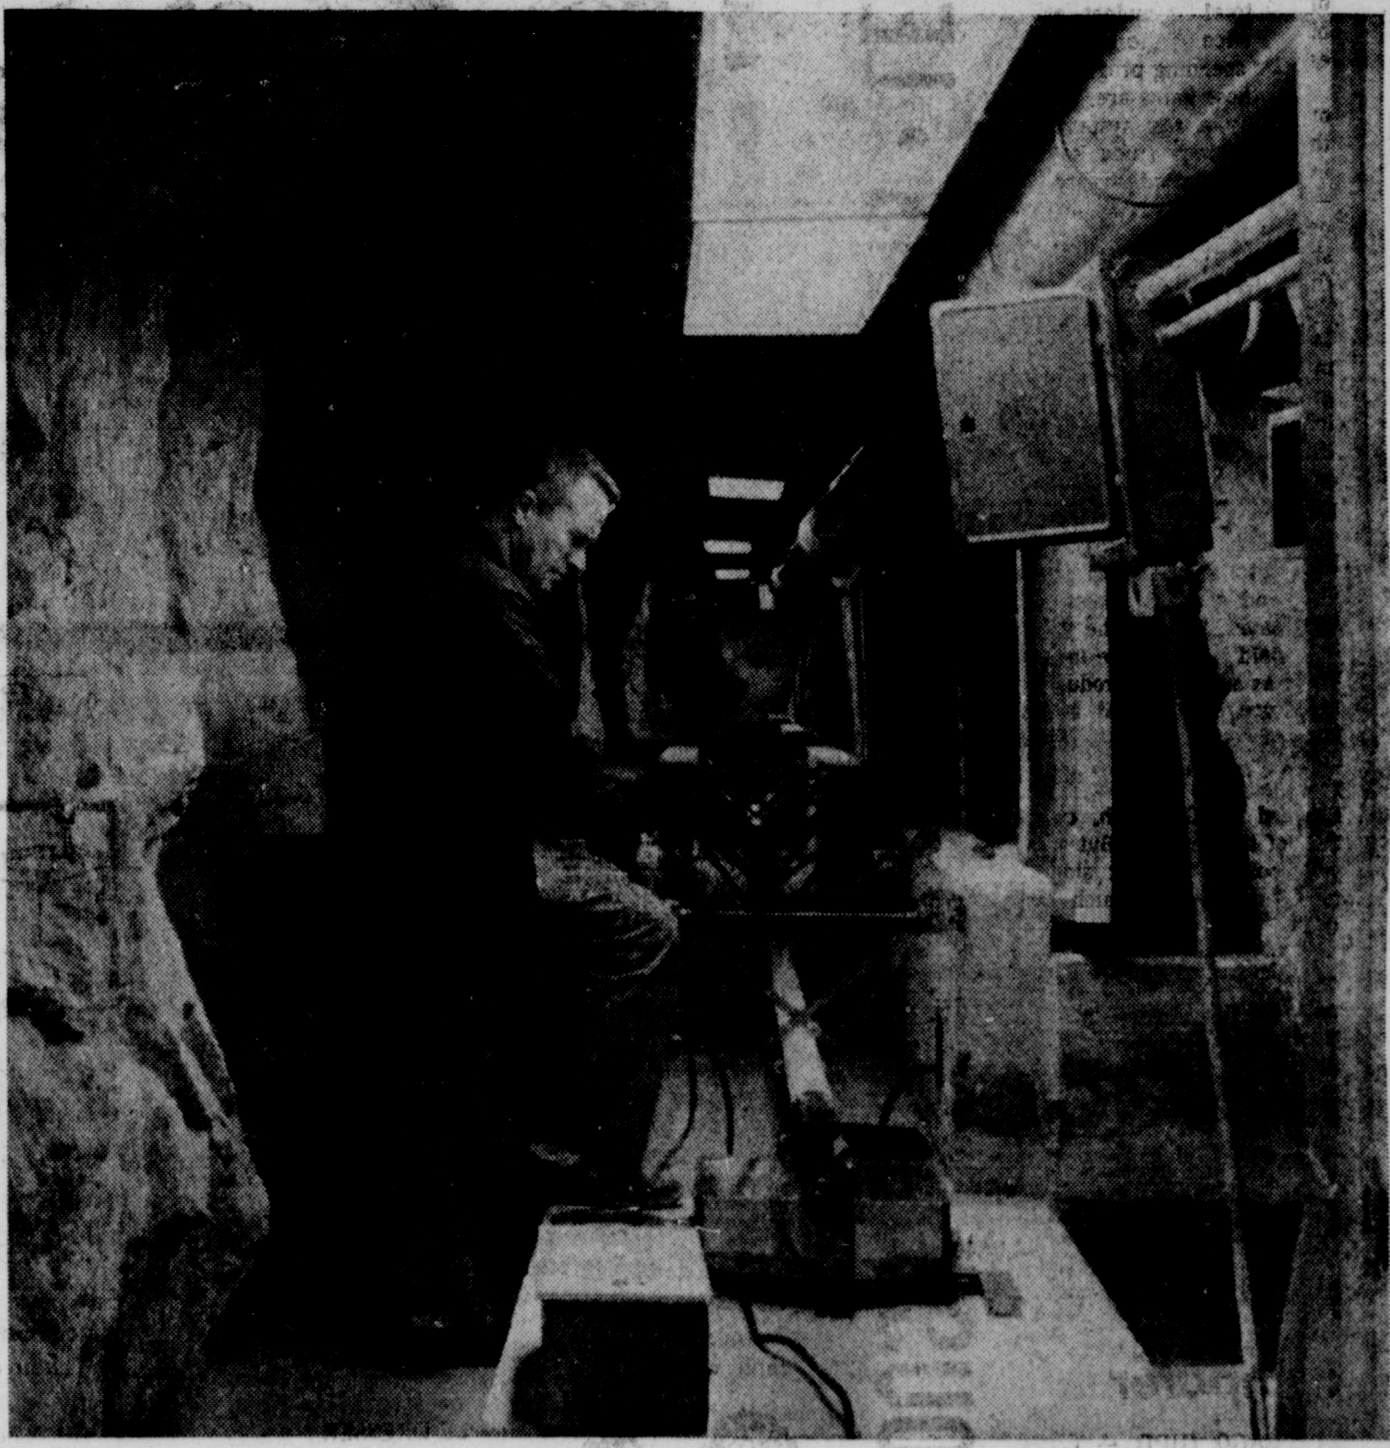
A giant quake, said Anderson, would measure 8.5 or more, or about 100 times stronger. There has not been a giant quake in California since the infamous San Francisco earthquake of 1906.

But it could happen tomorrow, or next year, or 50 years from now.

"If you live in California, you should expect a large earthquake in your lifetime," he says succinctly.

That explains the quiet sense of urgency at Cal Tech for more government funding.

"We know what happens. We know what to look for. But our resources are limited," Anderson concluded.



MOVEMENT IN THE EARTH

A Cal Tech scientist examines a quartz extensometer located in a mountain tunnel near Lake Isabella. The device is used to measure earth movement along the San Andreas fault and is one of the reasons scientists now say they know how to predict earthquakes up to two years in advance.

P-B recommendations in Tuesday voting

The statewide primary election on Tuesday will decide party nominees for state and federal offices, and the fate of state propositions.

Voters in the valley will also cast their votes on candidates for judicial posts, county measures and offices, and in some communities and school districts there are special school or city council elections.

Customarily, the Progress-Bulletin does not endorse in the primary of partisan elections. However, it does endorse in nonpartisan races, in judicial contests which are certain to be decided in the primary, in special elections, and recommend for or against county and state measures.

For the guidance of its readers, the Progress-Bulletin recommends the following candidates, and "Yes" or "No" votes on the various measures.

Nonpartisan Races

State Supt. of Public Instruction
KENT LLOYD

Los Angeles County Sheriff
PETER J. PITCHESS

WASHINGTON — Bruce Biossat, dean of America's national political writers whose syndicated column appeared in the Progress-Bulletin and more than 400 other newspapers died in his sleep the morning of May 27, apparently of a heart attack. He was 64.

Mr. Biossat was found in his bed by his wife, Barbara, at their home. He had been in general good health and was preparing to attend the National Governors' Conference in Seattle next week.

An inveterate traveler, collector of political information, folklore and friendships among the nation's political great, Mr. Biossat was generally regarded among the most knowledgeable of reporters about the procedures and intricacies involved in the making of presidential candidates.

As chief Washington correspondent and columnist for the Newspaper Enterprise Association, Scripps-Howard affiliate, he visited leading politicians in most of the 50 states every election year and often in-between, building up a network of sources that few of his colleagues could match.

In both 1968 and 1972, he compiled convention delegate counts for NEA and the National Observer that were guideposts for other political reporters. He covered his first national convention in 1940 and every one after that.

Born in Chicago on Jan. 10, 1910, the oldest of the six children of Harry Biossat and the former Marie Reich, he attended the Universities of Washington and Chicago and worked in a steel mill and as a cookie taster in a biscuit factory before breaking into journalism.

He showed up one day in 1940 in the Chicago bureau of what was then United Press and besieged the Midwestern manager, Boyd Lewis to hire him. Lewis had no job but invited young Biossat to send him samples of his work.

In the next four months, the would-be reporter flooded Lewis' desk with stories from all over the city, state and country, hitchhiking to Philadelphia to cover the Republican National Convention that nominated Wendell L. Wilkie and filing daily reports for his special readership of one.

The young man's persistence — which became a trademark of his career as a political writer and columnist — finally was rewarded with a job covering the state legislature in Springfield, Ill. From there he went to Harrisburg, Ill., the Washington bureau of UP, the Chicago Daily News as a political reporter and the Washington bureau of the AP.

In 1948, he was reunited with his old boss, Lewis, who hired him to be chief editorial writer for NEA in New York, a job he held for 12 years until he moved again to Washington, first to write editorials and then to succeed Peter Edson as NEA's chief Washington correspondent and columnist.

Since then, Mr. Biossat had written four columns a week from every corner of the country and overseas, particularly Japan in which he developed a special interest in his last years.

A gentle man with a dry sense of humor and an incredible memory for detail, he was considered and used as a walking encyclopedia of political history by his colleagues. A full and flowing mane of gray-white hair made him look older than his years and made him the brunt of endless jokes and gags by his political associates. He was once referred to unwittingly by a young reporter as "that old codger," and his colleagues never let him forget it — to his undisguised amusement.

His news sources were numerous in both major parties and among liberals and conservatives alike, but the Kennedy brothers — John, Robert and Edward — had a special treatment for him, and for his doggedness as a reporter. They needled him endlessly but affectionately, to his delight.

Once when Sen. Edward M. Kennedy was campaigning for re-election, Mr. Biossat accompanied him one morning first to a casket manufacturing factory and then to an old people's home. Kennedy told his reporter friend the itinerary had been arranged for him. Another time, while speaking at the college in Massachusetts, Kennedy introduced Mr. Biossat to the faculty as his father.

During the 1968 presidential campaign of Sen. Robert Kennedy in California, the press bus was stalled on a hot afternoon and Kennedy's press secretary and a longtime friend of Mr. Biossat, Richard Drayne, jumped off and came back with a case of cold beer. When Mr. Biossat complained and asked what he'd brought for the non-beer drinkers, Drayne told him he'd tried to buy "a six-pack of Geritol, but they didn't have any." On Mr. Biossat's next birthday. Drayne came to a party for him with the six-pack.

On a presidential campaign flight a few years ago, as deadline time approached and reporters began pounding their typewriters, one of them got on the public-address system and inquired whether "anybody aboard has a quill pen, because Bruce Biossat wants to start writing."

He interviewed and knew many Presidents, but his closest association was with John F. Kennedy. In November, 1960, shortly after Kennedy's election, the President-elect was enroute to the airport to make a speech in New York when his limousine passed Mr. Biossat on a Washington street. Kennedy stopped and asked him if he'd like to go along — obviously a chance for an exclusive interview. No, the reporter said with aplomb, he was delivering a raincoat to his daughter at a school nearby, and besides he had his car with him.

Although his friends included most of the leading political figures of his day he was as well as a friend to the greenest of reporters who embarked on the political beat, steering many of them — and some not so green — away from error in fact and judgment on the campaign trail.

"No one knew more about politics in this country, or about politicians, than Bruce did," Sen. Edward Kennedy said yesterday. "And no one brought more zest and humor to the art of political journalism. He was great fun, and he was a great man, and we will miss him."

In addition to his wife, Mr. Biossat is survived by a daughter, Susan Patton of Virginia Beach, Va.; four sisters, Marzalie Stevens and Barbara Snow of Chicago, Mary Warde of Denver and Suzanne Andrews of Prescott, Ariz.; and a brother, Bayard Biossat of Chicago.

Burial, in Washington, was private. A memorial service was held in the library of the National Press Club on Saturday.

Mrs. Biossat has requested that remembrances be in the form of contributions to the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, which she and her husband attended often.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

You mean cow didn't jump over the moon?

Who among us did not grow into adulthood absolutely convinced that the cow was an altogether wonderful beast?

Does not the cow give us patties for our hamburgers, milk for our double-malteds, leather for our catcher's mitts, horns for our gunpowder, fertilizer for our gardens, glutinous protein for our calf's foot jelly and other goodies too numerous to mention?

A veritable bovine cornucopia, the cow.

Yet my duties as a card-carrying correspondent oblige me to report that we may have been deluding ourselves.

There is presently underway what appears to be a concerted campaign to downgrade the cow, to sully its image and alienate its many aficionados.

As recently as last week one Barbara Ward, identified as an economist associated with the International Institute for Environment and Development, accused the cow of contributing to the world food shortage.

She told a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee that feeding grain to beef cattle was an "enormously wasteful way to obtain protein.

A far more efficient method would be to use the grain directly for human consumption, rather than channeling it through the cow, she said.

The cow, she said, is "technologically a very unimproved animal."

Gad! If cows have become counter-productive, what is there left to believe in?

Traditionally, in situations of this sort, someone hires an efficiency expert to make a time-and-motion study and try to pinpoint where the deficiency lies.

So I paid a call on Sidney Watchcloque, a local functional analyst, who told me why cows are impractical. They spend too much time ruminating.

"A cow's stomach has four compartments, which is three too many for peak efficiency," he said. "The food passes through two compartments, then is returned to the mouth for additional chewing. After which it goes through all four compartments. What an incompetent system!"

I said, "It sounds like something Rube Goldberg might have invented."

Watchcloque nodded. "We need to bypass three of the compartments to speed the digestive process. The grain the cow eats then will be converted to protein 75 per cent faster, and cows will become economically feasible."

More important, it will restore our faith in barnyard technology.

Gossip for today

Day by day in every way old age gets better and better. All one has to do is hang in there long enough and eventually every day's a holiday and skies are always blue. To make growing old all the more worthwhile, our Governor has signed a bill which states that from here on out free flu shots for the elderly will be provided by the state. And as if that weren't enough, a group of doctors just announced that wine drinking is beneficial to older folks. Add all that to increased social security benefits and the prediction that before long medical science will make possible artificial pancreas implants, and the first thing you know envious young Americans will start shouting discrimination. They may even go so far as to demand legislation that will guarantee equal benefits for youth. — So maybe we old freeloaders had better start making the most of our many blessings while there is still time. All too soon, in the interest of fairness and equality, we may be asked to pay full price for bus rides and maybe even be forced to share our Senior Citizens reduced-fee golfing privileges on county courses with a bunch of young upstarts.

Los Angeles County

Supervisor race spices election

A three-way race to represent the First District on the Board of Supervisors heads the elections on the county level in the east end of Los Angeles County.

Supervisor Peter F. Schabarum of Covina is being challenged for his first full term by Charles Ruggles, a county engineer from Diamond Bar, and by Walter Binney, a county sound technician from Valinda.

Possibly the most controversial election will be that involving Superior Court Judge Charles Older, who rose to fame on the heels of the Manson murder trial three years ago. Older became a central figure when he jailed reporter William Farr for refusing to name his sources of information during that trial.

Judge Older is opposed for re-election to Office 41 by Alex Kanowicz and Christopher W. Smith.

Much interest is also shown in the judgeship vacated by Prentiss Moore, who is retiring from Office 20 after seven years of service.

The post is sought by eight candidates: David J. Aisenson, Vincent N. Erickson, Joseph R. Grillo, Joan Dempsey Klein, John J. Lynch, Bonnie Lee Martin, Joseph R. Ruffner and Howard J. Thelin.

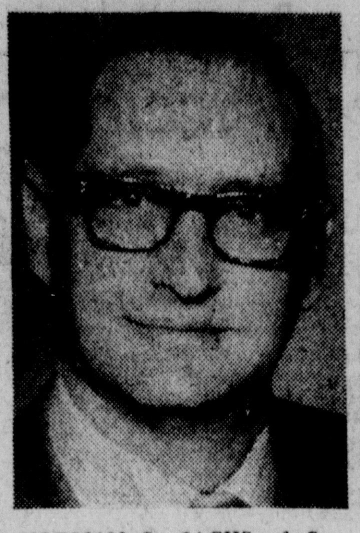
In Office 12 of the county Superior Court the incumbent Edward J. O'Connor is being challenged by Earl J. McDowell, and in Office 18, incumbent Robert W. Kenny is opposed by Bela Botos.

The only countrywide proposal on the ballot will be Proposition A which asks the voters to decide whether rebates from motor vehicle taxes now used to repair local streets should be used to construct a mass transportation system.

Because county offices are nonpolitical, both Democrats and Republicans will be voting for the same candidates. Any candidate who polls more than 50 per cent of the total votes will automatically be elected.

One special election will involve only Claremont residents. There, a vacancy on the City Council, left by the resignation of Craig McManigal is sought by Eleanor Cohen, Teena Ann Boyk, Joseph Armendarez and William McLaughlin.

And those who live in the Pomona School District will vote on a 72-cent per $100 assessed valuation tax override—described by the district as a school tax revenue limit election.



NORMAN S. JACKS of San Dimas has been promoted to assistant vice president at Security Pacific Bank's Lake and Colorado Branch, Pasadena. He formerly was manager of the Bank's Arrow and Azusa branch.

Tri-City to act on state job counseling agreement

POMONA — Adoption of a memorandum of understanding with the State Department of Rehabilitation will be considered at a meeting Monday of the Tri-City Mental Health Authority.

The authority's board of directors will meet at 4 p.m. in the Pomona City Council Chambers.

Tri-City has an agreement under which the department provides vocational rehabilitation counseling services. The agreement, adopted last July, calls for an annual review which is followed up with a memorandum of understanding between the two agencies.

Other matters to be considered by the board include recommendations to establish an hourly rate of $3.46 for doctor-level student professional workers, to retain the services of Dr. Steven L. Abrams, psychiatrist, for 10 hours a week, and for the purchase of a closed circuit television system.

S.B. County ballot crowded, lengthy

Decisions, decisions, decisions.

That's what faces San Bernardino County voters Tuesday when they step inside the voting booths to cast their ballots for their favorite candidates.

There are 261 persons seeking some type of office, which includes federal, state and county leveles. Each voter however, won't have that many names to consider since not all offices are countywide.

And in addition, candidates for state and federal offices will be divided according to political party. These are Democrats, Republicans, American Independent and Peace and Freedom.

"This is the largest ballot I have ever seen," declared William H. Clinton, county registrar of voters. "The ballot will consist of 11 or 12 pages, depending on the locale."

Some communities he explained, have special issues. Examples are Cucamonga where voters will decide on the reorganization of their fire district and the Chaffey Union High School District with a proposed property tax rate increase.

The 707 polling places within the county will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Officials hope to have the ballots tabulated by 3 a.m. Wednesday.

Those candidates seeking county offices won't be divided by party affiliation since these offices are nonpartisan. The offices and candidates are:

County Supervisor, fourth district, (includes south Ontario, Montclair, Chino and south Fontana)—Robert O. Townsend, Chino, incumbent; Henry C. Mizysak, Fontana, sheriff's supervisor, businessman; John Yuhas, Chino, administrative assistant; Harold Hayes, Montclair Montclair mayor; and Howard L. Terdick, Chino, businessman.

County Supervisor, second district, (includes north Ontario, Upland, Cucamonga and Alta Loma)—Daniel D. Mikesell, Ontario, incumbent; and Cal McElwain, Upland, metallurgical control specialist.

Auditor—John H. Bulmer, San Bernardino incumbent.

County Clerk-Recorder—V. Dennis Wardle, San Bernardino, incumbent; and Sam Frisone, San Bernardino, businessman.

Superintendent of Schools—Roy C. Hill, Redlands incumbent.

District Attorney—James M. Cramer, Upland, assistant district attorney; Stan Tomlinson, Redlands, attorney; Ralph Prince, San Bernardino, San Bernardino City Attorney; and Anthony Piazza, Victorville, attorney.

Public Administrator-Coroner—Bill Hill, Upland, incumbent.

Sheriff—Frank Bland, San Bernardino, incumbent.

Treasurer-Tax Collector — John A. Gartner, San Bernardino, incumbent.

Judge candidates for the seven Superior Court offices are:

Office No. 1—Marshall Miles, Redlands, lawyer; Kenneth Ziebarth Jr., Montclair, Municipal Court judge; D. Larry Thorne, Cucamonga, Justice Court judge; Tom Parry, San Bernardino attorney; and Charles A. Bierschbach, Redlands, attorney.

Office No. 3—Margaret J. Morris, Redlands, Superior Court judge

Office No. 4—James J. McCartney, San Bernardino, Municipal Court judge; and Joseph A. Katz, San Bernardino, Superior Court judge.

Office No. 7—Rex W. Cranmer, Redlands, incumbent.

Division No. 2—Ray W. Ferguson, Ontario, incumbent.

Division No. 3—Ernest L. Keechler, Chino, incumbent; Division No. 4, Jack F. Comstock, Fontana, incumbent; John G. Bilday, Fontana, production supervisor; and John T. Kinsey, Fontana, insurance agent.

Teacher pay proposal due in Claremont

CLAREMONT — A proposal to house a seventh grade at Sycamore Elementary School, a salary proposal from the Certificated Employes Council (the teachers), and pre-enrollment figures for Claremont High School's many options program next fall will go to the school board when it meets Monday at 8:30 p.m. at Sumner Elementary School.

A parents study committee, headed by Principal John Bobo, has looked into the possibility of using empty Sycamore classrooms for seventh graders in a pilot program instead of sending them on to junior high school. He has requested approval from the school board to try out the idea next fall.

The district teachers council will present its proposal for a salary increase for the coming school year after studying minimum and maximum salaries paid to teachers in the 43 unified districts in the county.

The board will receive a progress report on the 1973-74 vocational education cooperative work study program conducted at Claremont High.

The board also will receive bids and may award a contract to the low bidder for a new wall separating Cahuilla Park from the Claremont High campus, and will call for bids to lease Mountain View classrooms during the coming school year.

Also received by trustees will be pre-enrollment figures for students who wish to attend either a five-period day, the traditional module schedule, or the extended day program which includes nighttime classes.

Accident turned into film career

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Paraplegic David Harvey turned a $600,000 car accident settlement into a movie spoof of pornography and a new career in film production.

Harvey had just been released from the Navy in June, 1970, when the accident happened. On his way to a job interview in Richmond, he had stopped at a stoplight when a large moving truck rammed into his car from the back.

It took seven hours for firemen to remove him from his crumpled auto. For four days he was unconscious and then it was another seven months before the young business school graduate was released from the hospital. And when he left, it was in a wheelchair. The crash had damaged his spinal cord and Harvey was paralyzed from the waist down.

As part of a $2 million suit against the moving company — the suit that resulted in the $600,000 settlement —Harvey's lawyer, Anthony Brookman, hired a couple of filmmakers to make a 45-minute movie titled "A Day in the Life of David Harvey," designed to show the jury what it was like to be a paraplegic.

Although the truck driver never showed up in court and the case was settled without having to use the movie, the filmmaking process rekindled a college interest in theater and Harvey decided to use the settlement to pursue that interest.

"My first love is the theater," Harvey, 33, said in an interview. He said he had majored in drama at Sacramento State University before turning to management and he also appeared in many school productions. "I saw this (the settlement and his introduction to filmmakers Barry Spinello and Paul Artow) as a chance to get back into the theater."

He talked to Spinello and Artow, viewed some of their other work and decided to back their next venture, a satire on pornography titled "Bizarre Devices."

Harvey says the film is "hilarious" but he regrets it has an x-rating. "This isn't exploitation —it's satire," he says. "A violent film like 'The Godfather' is much more pornographic."

Harvey said the movie, which is scheduled for release next month, received the x-rating because of frontal nudity.

During the filming of "Bizarre Devices," Harvey formed Cinema Development International, of which he is president, executive producer and chairman of the board. He has hired an adviser, an advertising agency, an accountant, an attorney and a secretary. And he also has access to American Zoetrope Studios in San Francisco, which are run by "Godfather" director Francis Ford Coppola.

Harvey plans to begin production on "Recluse," a film he describes as "a suspense-horror story about a mother, her two retarded children and a social worker." He also has bought rights to a "good, honest love story" that he predicts will win an Academy Award for its theme song.

Harvey, who has sold insurance and worked as a magician, loves his new career despite its lack of security.

"This business is high risk — you can lose your shirt." he says. "But it's fun. You can actually see a product. You say, 'Hey, I did that' or 'I made that.' Whether it's good or bad, it's my baby. It's fun and exciting."

Harvey said that he had invested some money in the stock market. "But it gets a little boring reading the Wall Street Journal everyday."

Currently, Harvey runs Cinema Development International out of his apartment, which is piled high with scripts and books that have film possibilities. He also has to make time to meet with a therapist five days a week at his home and he's involved in an experimental drug program under the University of Oregon.

Eventually, he says, he would like to open a small studio off Jack London Square here. But he is adamant about keeping his company in the Bay Area.

Americans buying home canning equipment as if it were jewels

By JEANNE LESEM

Demand way up

Americans are buying home canning jars and lids as if they were diamonds selling at rock bottom prices.

Pressure canners are back-ordered for the fourth consecutive summer. Community canning centers are proliferating.

The reason: a home canning boom of unprecedented size.

Its causes: high food prices that have encouraged more home gardening, forecasts of shortages of commercially packed food, changing life styles and the energy shortage that is keeping more people home.

Demand Way Up

"The demand (for jars and lids) never quit from last year," said Harold Metsker, general manager for the consumer products division, Kerr Glass Mfg. Co., Sand Springs, Okla.

"We've been shipping jars, caps and lids since January. We're running like the seed industry, about 40 per cent above last year."

Metsker and John W. Fisher, president of Ball Corp., another jar and lid manufacturer, said the industry's problem is the same as last year—not enough soda ash for making jars or enough tin-plate for lids.

"We're currently running three and four weeks behind on our shipments and have been all along," Metsker said.

He blamed the current shortage largely on panic buying by consumers, rather than shortages of materials. He had this advice for shoppers:

Advice: cool it

Cool it. Buy only as many jars and lids as you can use. Give manufacturers a chance to catch up and there will be enough for everyone.

(You also can stretch supplies by packing jams, jellies, preserves and marmalades in reusable commercial canning jars from mayonnaise, instant coffee and the like. Anything that can be sealed safely with melted paraffin can be packed this way.

(But only home canning jars are safe in water bath or pressure canners, which are necessary for safe canning of low-acid foods such as meat, seafood, poultry and most vegetables.)

"(The boom) really began in the Pacific Northwest," Metsker said. "The people in Washington, Oregon and California were still buying during the winter when nobody else was even thinking about it."

He said jar sales in the Tulsa area skyrocketed recently after a syndicated newspaper columnist wrote that the United States was heading for the most severe shortages of canned and frozen produce in years. The columnist also predicted 25 to 100 per cent price increases.

Short supply, high demand

Fisher reported an equally great growth in jar and lid sales. He said demand for them and for freezer bags and boxes made by his company rose 46 per cent in 1973 pany rose 46 per cent in 1973 first quarter this year was unprecedented.

Both Fisher and Metsker anticipate higher prices because of short supplies and high demand.

Three major retail chains told UPI there is a tremendous increase in demand for canning supplies.

The J.C. Penney Co., Inc., said its Des Moines stores had sold out their season's stock of jars and lids by the end of February—months before that area's canning season—and reordered.

Andrew J. Santulli, a housewares buyer for Penney, added that his company's stock of pressure canners and other supplies is tight but adequate. He thought some smaller chains and independent stores might run short.

Midsummer shortage

Both Sears, Roebuck and Co., and Montgomery Ward and Co., reported a tremendous increase in consumer demand, beginning last year and growing in momentum since early 1974. A spokesman for Montgomery Ward added that if it keeps up, there's a good probability of a shortage by midsummer.

Many smaller merchants are pessimistic.

Dave Brown of the Pay 'n Takit grocery, Vancouver, Wash., told UPI: "We're getting (only) about 50 per cent of our orders (for jars) filled." Other stores in western Washington state reported a shortage of lids as well as quart jars.

Reports of heavy consumer buying were echoed in many areas around the country.

Dr. Ed Hefron, assistant chief of the food inspection division of Michigan's Department of Agriculture, said some farmers bought up a year's supply of canning equipment last fall in anticipation of a shortage.

The few stores in San Francisco that stock supplies the year round said the turnover is rapid. A spokesman for the Farmers' Market said manufacturers were limiting orders. Stores that stock canning supplies only during the summer also reported difficulty in getting orders filled.

Community Canning Centers

In Utah, where home canning is traditional, customers who usually buy only during the season are stocking up early. Two retailers — the K-Mart chain and Warshaw's Giant Foods Store—said buying was more rapid than usual.

In Atlanta, however, supermarket manager Stan Moon said he saw no unusually early or larger-than-usual sales and no shortages were foreseen.

Meantime, community canning centers, first established by a jar and lid manufacturer as a public service during the Depression, are booming. They were very active during World War II, but died out during the postwar period.

Ball Corp., revived the program in the mid-sixties. By last year, 50 centers for low-income households were operating in 15 states. The company expects to double the number this year.

Almost two tons

Some centers occupy specially built quarters but most are in schools, churches, donated halls and even abandoned gas stations, drive-in cleaners and slaughterhouses. Large pressure cookers and cooling baths operate up to 10 hours daily in some centers.

Last year, supervisors in Bernalillo and Sandoval County, N.M., helped low-income familes preserve almost two tons of produce.

The only metropolitan self-help canning center, the Farmers' Market, Atlanta, Ga., put up 90,000 quarts of food between May-September, 1973, under USDA sponsorship.

Another male field is making way for the women

DETROIT (UPI) — In the early 1940s, Blanche Parent Wise walked into an auto dealership in Detroit in search of a job.

Instead of tucking her away in the office, where women had filed invoices and answered telephones for years, John Hetteche hired Mrs. Wise as a saleswoman—the first auto saleswoman in Detroit and possibly the nation.

At least 14 women are currently employed as auto saleswoman in and around Detroit the city that feeds and thrives on the auto industry, and most are aware that they have broken barriers in a traditionally male-dominated field.

They are young and old, divorced and married, black and white —but most have the common goal of proving that women can sell a car just as well or better than a man.

"This business takes a gal who can keep her emotions under control, who doesn't moan and groan once a month," said Mary Ellen Miller, 31, the official Jeep consulatant at Village American in Birmingham, Mich.

Need flexible mind

April Clemons, 33, has been selling cars for almost a year, most recently at Porterfield Wilson Pontiac in Detroit.

"I would say that it's definitely a male-dominated field," she said, "but once you get to know the other salesmen, there's no problem.

"A woman has got to have a flexible mind in this line of work. Sometimes I have to have the mind of a teen-ager and other times the mind of a grandmother. In the car business, you have to be a doctor, lawyer, Indian chief and even a psychiatrist."

Mrs. Clemons, a widow with two sons, said it takes a very strong woman to survive the long hours, competition and hassles with customers.

Most of the women interviewed got into the business for strictly economic reasons, but several wanted challenge, a chance to meet people or just a switch from secretarial jobs.

Very few of the women had previous experience in selling cars, but many had been involved in other types of sales or supervised their own businesses. Three were housewives looking for a change.

Some resentment

Many of the car salesladies were forced to contend with resentful salesmen at first, but feel they gained acceptance once they proved they were not there "for fun and games."

"When a new salesman comes in he thinks he can outsell me," Lolita Clark, 31, saleswoman at Falvey Motors in Ferndale, Mich., said. "He will try to take advantage of me, like running out on the floor when it's not his turn."

Joanna Mackie, 42, a saleswoman at Ver Hoven Chevrolet in Detroit since last August, said she still has problems with her male coworkers.

"I'm the only gal here with 18 men and they feel resentful," she said. "Without the help of one salesman, I would have fallen flat on my face. A woman has to push her way in and then continue to dominate the job with personality and perserverance."

Judy Sullivan, 33, who was a medical secretary for ten years before landing a job at Jim Vance Dodge in Wyandotte, Mich., met with great resistance from the other salesmen.

It's a living

"They wanted to make it uncomfortable for me so they could run me out," she said. "But it just made me more determined to do a good job because, after all, I'm here to make a living."

Miss Sullivan, a member of the Dodge Delta Sales Club in recognition of her outstanding sales achievement, said her coworkers eventually began even think about another job now."

In addition to salesmen who are not willing to admit a woman into the fold, saleswomen must often face rude customers who would rather see a woman in the office than behind a sales desk.

Kim Malecki, 43, who came to the U.S. 20 years ago from Japan, seems to have the opposite effect on customers at North Bros.

Not Sex Appeal

"I will approach a man looking at the cars and their eyes get real big and they say 'are you a salesman?'," she said. "I get more cooperation and can get away with more because I am a woman."

None of the saleswomen who talked about their jobs felt they tried to use their sex as an advantage in selling a car.

Virginia Patterson, 26, a former artist and model who sells cars, vans and buses at Seaway Motors in Detroit, said she tries to handle everything in a very businesslike manner.

"Sometimes I have to feel out a customer to see if he is really interested in the car or me," she said. "It's a matter of outpsyching them, and letting them know that I am not available as one of the car's options."

Age barrier worries her

By JEAN ADAMS

ONE YEAR: (Q.) Label me razy, but please believe me. am in love. I don't mean ex. I mean love. I am not an rdinary girl. I believe in caring.

I am 17. Two years ago I met a strange boy whom I care for very much. Only thing stopping us from getting together any more is he is 16 and his pride is very strong.

I still see him and he comes around when least expected. When he doesn't which is often, I miss him very much. I would like to know if you feel that age is a barrier, and if it is, if there is a way to jump it. —Love Him in Pennsylvania

(A.) The one year between 17 and 16 is not too big a barrier. The next time you see him tell him Jean Adams said so.

LONG DISTANCE: (Q.) Last summer I met a girl from Down South while she was visiting relatives up here. I met her the day before she left. We talked for about two hours and since then have written fairly regularly. She's 15 and I'm 18. The thing is that I hardly know her but I want her very much. You'd think I was in love or something. Can I really love her? Is our age difference too great? —Lonely on Long Island

(A.) You do not mention dating or interest in any other girl. I suspect that you are more lonely than in love. Take out a local girl or girls on dates and see if your Southern intensity still holds up.

Specifically, it IS possible to fall in love in two hours time. And 18 and 15 are a little far apart but not usually too far.

MIGRANTS — North Africans arriving at Marseille, France, have their papers checked by French immigration inspectors. Throughout the world illegal migrants soon find there is no promised land. The International Labor Organization, at its annual Assembly which begins Wednesday and continues through June 26, plans to help both legal and illegal migrant workers who get the toughest and most dangerous jobs, the lowest pay and the worst but most expensive accommodations. Migrants have no sickness insurance or legal protection.

New Zealand burglars eligible for compensation for injuries

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (UPI) — The New Zealand Accident Compensation Commission is waiting for the first burglar to claim compensation for an injury received during working hours. When he comes along the commission will pay him.

Since April 1 the commission must, by law, pay compensation to anyone in New Zealand injured by accident, whether at work or not, and whether a New Zealander or a visitor to the country.

In its first month the commission paid 1,000 claimants and it expects before long to be paying many thousands more each month.

The Accident Compensation Act under which the commission works is believed to be the first of its kind in the western world.

Property damage

It abolishes all court actions for damages for personal injury happening after April 1, 1974. But the courts will be busy for years clearing old claims.

The act does not apply to damage to property, for which New Zealanders may still sue for redress through the courts.

When in top gear, the commission expects to pay out $100 million a year for everything from death by accident to loss of earnings because of a sportsman's sprained little toe.

The chairman of the commission, Kenneth L. Sandford, says the scheme covers employes and the self-employed, road accident victims and everyone else, including non-earners.

Financing differs

"The three schemes differ mainly in the way they are financed and not in the payments made to accident victims," Sandford said.

"Employers and the self-employed are levied a payroll tax to pay for the earners' scheme."

Vehicle owners pay for the motor accident plan through vehicle registration fees.

Sandford says general taxes pay for the supplementary scheme.

Lump sum payments

An employe off work because of injury is paid 80 percent of his usual wages whether he is injured at work or elsewhere.

"He is, if he is permanently injured, paid an additional lump sum up to a maximum of $7,000 plus a maxmum of $10,000 for loss of employment or life, disfigurement, pain and mental suffering. His wages compensation continues until he is old enough for a pension."

The commission pays all doctors' fees for all accident victims.

"The self-employed pay one per cent of their incomes to the commission and receive 80 per cent of their usual earnings if they are disabled by injury. They also qualify for lump sums." Sandford said.

No punishment

Sandford says a widow whose husband dies by accident receives half of his earning entitlement, plus $1,500 for herself and $2,200 for each child.

The commission pays for the funeral.

A child disabled by accident will receive compensation when he or she turns 16.

If a housewife is disabled, she will be paid a lump sum and her husband will receive earnings compensation if he has to stay home to look after her.

Sandford surprised many New Zealanders when he pointed out that the brawler, the drunk and even the burglar blowing a safe who may be injured will not receive a dollar less than his innocent victim who may be similiarly injured.

"At what conduct would we draw the line? The commission is set up to award compensation, not to punish people for their action," he said.

Australian inquiry

The act largely follows recommendations made by a royal commission headed by a supreme court judge, Justice Woodhouse.

Woodhouse, at the request of Prime Minister Gough Whitlam, has since taken part in a similar inquiry in Australia.

Insurance companies and lawyers have expressed forebodings at the effects of the act on their businesses.

Lawyers certainly will be affected but nothing in the act prevents anyone from taking out extra insurance against injuries caused by accident to themselves or their families.

The government has promised to investigate the possiblity of extending the accident scheme to cover all illnesses however caused.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Moving into a new house or apartment can be a hazardous adventure, even beyond the financial and legal problems.

The last thing most consumers think about is accidental injury; but government statistics indicate the people most likely to be moving — young couples for instance —run the worst risk of getting injured.

Stairs are a particular problem. According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission stairs and related structures account for about 356,000 emergency room cases every year. And it is neither the very young nor the infirm who are the most likely victims.

Persons aged 25 to 34 account for more stair-related injuries —15 percent of the total—than any other group. The next highest group, with 11 per cent of the stairs themselves, junk left on them, loose railings and —not the least of it —the victims themselves who run, jump, act careless, think they don't need to use the hand rail or are in their stocking feet.

The statistics covering other household injuries are no less conforting. The commission says there are 153,000 emergency room cases every year involving non-glass doors, including garage and screen doors, and another 178,000 accidents requiring emergency treatment that involve architectural glass, such as doors, shower enclosures and windows.

Speaking of moving, the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) has a booklet for consumers offering tips about the moving business and detailing your rights as a buyer of their services. The publication, called "Information on Moving Your Household Goods", is available for 20 cents by writing to Consumer information, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Okay Detroit, here's a gripe no doubt shared by many car owners and pedestrians. Writes John M. McCartney of Cumberland, Md.:

"My gripe is about the way American automobile manufacturers design the bodies of their cars so the wheels set out from under the fenders and throw everything that is on the road up along the sides of the car instead of up under the fenders. My personal experience has been with 1967, 1969 and 1973 Chevrolets.

"When the roads were wet or have had slush, salt etc., on them a short drive of five to 10 miles and both sides of the car look as though they have been sprayed. Where a side rear view mirror is on a car the spray from the front wheels hits the mirror and in a very short time the door glasses are completely covered, obstructing one's side view.

"I have always been under the impression a fender was made to contain the spray set up by the wheels, but I do believe the car designers have overlooked this basic fact..."

We'll second that.

'Lord's Prayer' makes the charts

By PAUL R. ALLERUP

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Our Father, who art in Heaven" da da da da da da.

That was my teen-age nephew, working on his motorbike, singing and humming what sounded like the Lord's Prayer. And, in fact, was.

"John," I said, "you suddenly got religion?" It was a barbed question. His lack of visible interest in things religious has been a point of contention between us for some time.

"Nope," he said. "It's on the charts. Haven't you heard it?"

Charts? "The pop charts, Unk. You know, the top 20. The top selling records."

"Let me hear it again, how does it go?"

Fingers began to snap, then: "Our Father, who art in heaven, hallow-ed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done, on earth as it is in heeaaaven."

"A good beat to it, huh, Unk?"

Yes, I agreed. A good beat. "Good words, too," I said. "You think about them?"

"Ah, Unk. There you go. It's a song. It's good. I like to listen to it. I dig it. So, okay, the Au words. It's this nun, see. From Australia, I think." And she's got this group. They sing songs like that. She writes the words, I think."

"She writes the words? She wrote that?" Heavy sarcasm in the voice.

"Aw, come on, Unk. I know who wrote the words. At least I know where they came from. Said them often in Sunday school when I was a kid."

"Well, I'm glad of that, anyway," I said.

"Look," the boy said. "So what's wrong with putting them to a song? A song you like to sing. So what's wrong with that?"

The kid had me. I couldn't think of what's wrong with that.

As I walked away I suddenly realized I was singing "Our Father, who are in heaven, hallow-ed be Thy name . . ."

I went back to my nephew, still puttering with his bike.

"Are there any more words?" I asked. "Does the song have the whole Lord's Prayer?"

"Yeah," he said. "All the words. I think so."

"Okay, let's sing it together, all the way through this time. I'll follow you on the tune."

"Sorry, Unk. Now you really got me. All I know is the first two lines."

Well, I thought. Two lines is better than none. And went back to my lawnmower humming, "Our Father, who art in heaven..."

LIGHTHOUSE TENDER — George Hupman, a General Electric executive from Philadelphia inspects a light stand which once housed the lenses for the Tillamook Lighthouse off Tillamook, Ore., which Hupman purchased. Hupman plans to convert the five tender rooms into bunk rooms and the light room at the top of a flight of 60 stairs. When the renovation is complete the 94-year-old lighthouse will be a vacation home. The top of the structure, which was abandoned in 1957, stands 132 feet above the ocean surface, and on more than one occasion storms have sent solid water over the top. Hupman also is getting a new set of business cards printed, which will read, "George Hupman, lighthouse tender."

Over opium poppy agreement

U.S., Turkey on collision course

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Since Turkey succumbed to U.S. political pressure and economic blandishments three years ago and agreed to plow under its vast opium poppy fields, the supply of heroin in the United States has slowly been drying up.

Now, however, the delicate U.S. arrangement with Turkey seems to be disintegrating. The forces of a newfound Turkish nationalism, economic hardship among Turkish farmers, possible underworld corruption in Ankara and pressure from major U.S. pharmaceutical companies are converging.

As a result, Congress, the administration and the Ankara government seem headed for a collision over opium later this year that could have a major impact on U.S. strategic interests in the Middle East.

At stake, beyond Turkey's tenuous agreement to cooperate with the United States in halting the ravages of illicit heroin traffic, is Turkey's pivotal role in the NATO alliance in the Mediterranean and the durability of Turkish-American relations.

Strategically, the Turks control the Dardanelles, passage for the Soviet Mediterranean fleet to its home ports on the Black Sea. Moverover, a network of U.S. monitoring outposts in Turkey provides vital electronic intelligence on all kinds of military activity in southern Russia.

Also, Turkish restraint in its conflict over Cyprus with another NATO member, Greece, has prevented a major eruption there and permitted Britain to maintain its naval installations on the island.

All this might be jeopardized by two major approaching and essentially political battles.

One is between Congress and the administration over whether opium should be allowed to be grown in the United States —even under tightly controlled safeguards —to relieve what drug companies say is a growing shortage of legal supplies of the narcotic for medical purposes.

Another struggle seems likely between Congress —with or without administration backing —and the Turkish government over whether the Turks should permit renewed poppy cultivation.

A powerful coalition of liberals and conservatives, led by Sens. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and James L. Buckley, R-N.Y., has introduced a resolution urging President Nixon to cut off all military and economic aid to Turkey, amounting last year to $300 million including military sales credits, if poppy farming is resumed.

In addition, Mondale and other liberals are intent on killing an administration proposal to grow opium at government compounds outside Phoenix, Ariz., and Walla Walla, Wash. They say the United States can hardly insist on a poppy ban in Turkey if poppies are grown domestically.

Federal drug enforcement officials and congressmen who have studied the issue agree the Turkish ban has been highly effective in suppressing a major part of the illicit U.S. heroin trade.

Although a "nickel bag" of heroin still costs just $5 on the streets of New York, the actual average heroin content in each bag has been cut in half —from 8 per cent to 4 per cent, according to Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y., whose district includes Harlem.

As a result, the per-milligram price of heroin in the typical street sale has risen from 44 cents to $1.50, and the cost to an addict of maintaining just an "ordinary" habit of 50 milligrams per day has gone from $25 to more than $75.

The situation is such that the Justice Department's Drug Enforcement Administration, which three years ago was warning of a heroin "epidemic," reports a reduction in drug-related crime, overdose deaths and incidents of injection-related hepatitis.

And the official estimate of total active addicts has dropped from half a million to about 200,000.

Concern that the anti-heroin campaign might be undermined first arose in March, when the Turkish government announced it was authorizing a group of state farms to plant a "seed crop" of poppies.

Ostensibly this was simply to germinate seeds that had been stored at the end of 1971 and would have died without planting this year. But it was obvious that the Ankara government might also have been keeping its options open for lifting the ban in response to intense political pressures.

These presssures stem fundamentally from economic need. Until 1971, Turkey was one of seven countries that raised opium legally, and the livelihood of perhaps 80,000 families on the Anatolian plateau depended on it.

The sale of opium gum, laboriously harvested pod-by-pod from poppy plants, was the main source of cash income for these families, who sold it both legally to state-controlled traders at artificially low prices, and to smugglers for a much higher return.

The farmers also extracted cooking oil from the seeds, used them in bread, and fed the leaves and stalks to domesticated animals.

In either case, the ban severely disrupted the Turkish farm economy.

As part of the deal for the ban, the United States agreed to pay $35.7 million to compensate the farmers for their cash losses from legal sales and to help them shift to other crops.

But Rangel and Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., said in a report last week that the U.S. payments not only were inadequate but had not reached the farmers.

They said there never was any intention to compensate farmers for their losses in illegal sales. No money was given to licensed farmers who failed to plant during the 1971 season, and there was no provision to cover losses of small business men who made a living pressing oil from poppy seeds.

Washington and Ankara have been inefficient in administering the payments program. In mid-March, when Wolff and Rangel visited Turkey, many farmers were still waiting for their promised 1974 compensation.

Of the $15 million budgeted for compensation to Turkish farmers, only $10 million had been delivered. Of the remaining $20.7 million for aid in diversion to other crops, the United States had paid only $10 million.

The Turkish agriculture ministry likewise has been slow to relay the funds, and the substitute crops recommended —sunflower seeds for oil, and barley for fodder and domestic consumption —neither satisfy the Turkish palate nor provide the same substantial profits as poppies.

Charges that the former Turkish military government had bowed to U.S. pressure in 1971 helped stir nationalistic resentment that contributed to the government's defeat in last year's elections. The present prime minister, Balent Ecevit, has tried to ease national resentment, but the political pressure is becoming well-nigh irresistible.

Rangel and Wolff wrote that both the press and irresponsible politicians are pushing the view that the ban of "a traditional crop ... closely associated with the lifestyle of some Turkish farmers is an inappropriate response to an international drug problem."

The United States is accused of trying "to solve one of its problems inexpensively and inadequately by providing minor compensation to a poor country," they said.

In the shadows are other pressures, including the well - known corrupting influence of the payoff money of illegal opium's traders and smugglers. Opium money has been a powerful factor in the politics of other producing countries, such as Laos and Thailand, and there is no reason to believe Turkey's opium underworld would shrink from bribing a few politicians if it thought it would help get the ban lifted.

On top of this unknown degree of pressure from the underworld is the lobbying power of the big pharmaceutical manufacturers who are complaining of a shortage of opium as a raw material.

Some of Turkey's production was supposed to be shifted to India to compensate for reduced legal supplies, but Indian weather conditions are unstable and production there has fallen short of expectations.

At the same time, U. S. sales of opium-based codeine cough syrup have burgeoned, from 20,000 pounds in 1969 to an estimated 40,000 pounds this year.

Legal opium prices have risen along with the illegal since the ban was imposed. At least two big drug companies, Merck and Mallinckrodt, have complained recently about a medical shortage and are lobbying vigorously for a resumption of Turkish production as well as a legal U.S. crop.

There is concern in Congress that if the Turks resume production, the "French Connection" may be re-established and illicit heroin once again could flood the U. S.

Even recognizing Turkey's strategic importance, Rangel and Wolff say, "if Turkey disregards the real dangers which renewed poppy production presents to the American people, then this matter must be brought before the Congress to review any and all agreements between the two nations."

If the ban is resented in Turkey for nationalistic reasons, the possibility of its abandonment could become an intensely emotional issue in Congress. If the issue were cast in terms of a vote for or against heroin in the veins of American youth, relations between the two countries probably would be the loser.

PUC rejects firm's plea for fare hike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The state Public Utilities Commission denied permission Wednesday to the Southern Pacific Co. to increase its fares on the San Francisco Peninsula by an additional 3 per cent.

The firm had been granted a 6 per cent boost on its commuter fares to offset federally required increases in payroll retirement taxes.

It then asked for an additional 3 per cent which was rejected because its figures differed from those of the PUC staff.

Baker sees primary route, if he runs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., says that if he decides to run for President in 1976, he expects "to go the primary route."

He also said in a speech to the National Press Club recently that he doubts the American people, after the experiences of Watergate, will let politicians choose presidential candidates next time.

Tick-borne Rocky Mountain fever on rise in two states

By United Press International

More than 25 cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever have been reported in Maryland and Virginia this year, and health officials are trying to determine if the rare, tick-borne disease was responsible for the death of a 1-year-old child.

Dr. Kenneth Crawford of the Maryland Public Health Department said the disease appeared to be intensified this year because a larger than usual number of rodents and rabbits survived the warm winter.

"So did the ticks they were carrying," he said. "If there is a severe winter, there is a greater die-off."

Crawford said three confirmed cases and 12 suspected cases of the fever had been reported in Maryland.

Twelve cases of the fever have been reported in Virginia this year three of them last week, state epidemiologist Robert S. Jackson said Tuesday. He said the number of cases so far is about normal for the state at this time of year.

"It's a pretty serious disease if it is untreated, and the mortality rate becomes about 20 per cent," he said. "It should be zero if antibiotics are available."

Dr. Manuel Cockburn, a pathologist at Physicians' Memorial Hospital in LaPlata, Md., said the disease was suspected in the death last week of 1-year-old Ernie Lee Ramsey. Diagnostic tests have not yet been completed by the Maryland Health Department. The boy's brother, Kenneth, 2, is being treated at a Washington D.C. hospital for the disease.

John Ramsey Jr., 29, their father, said the boys became ill overnight.

"They were lying around and they had little red bumps all over them, mostly on their faces and arms," he said. "They got worse. All they wanted to do was sleep —just lie around and sleep, and they wouldn't eat."

He said ticks were found on Kenneth, but not on the younger brother who died.

Symptoms of the fever, named after the region where it was first diagnosed, are a headache, rash, and fever. Symptoms occur between several days and several weeks after a tick carrying the disease is removed.

10 airmen now listed as dead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department has announced that 10 airmen previously listed as missing in Indochina have now been declared dead as a result of hostile action.

There remain 1,059 men listed as missing.

One Westerner was on the latest list. He was Capt. Donald B. Bloodworth, husband of Mrs. Tamera L. Bloodworth, 22300 SW 108th, Sherwood, Ore.

Conservation Down Under

CANBERRA, Australia (UPI) — Since assuming office a year ago the Labor government has taken steps to outlaw the export of crocodile and kangaroo skins in an effort to protect them from possible extinction. Import of whale meat has been stopped as well as trade in other endangered species of mammals, birds and reptiles.

Leopards face Lewis today with optimism

By DON BRADLEY
P-B STaff Writer

ST. JOSPEH, Mo. — La Verne's Dan Drake has a hunch about today's 3:30 p.m. (PDT) game with Lewis University.

Drake, assistant baseball coach under Ben Hines, thinks the Leopard baseball team will come up with a stellar effort against the Lockport, Ill. school, seventh-ranked in the country.

"There were kind of mixed feelings about Friday's (4-1) game with Point Park," Drake said. "There were a number of good things, but the players generally didn't feel like they played their best. I think that will really make a difference today."

The Leos will send lefthander Robb Mayhew (9-3) against the Flyers, who are now 36-12 and riding a 13-game winning streak. Lewis coach Gordon Gillespie has indicated he will counter with Don Markelz (8-2).

Markelz is a little (5-10, 170-pounds) sophomore. He goes into the game with a 1.52 earned run average. In 71 innings, Markelz has struck out 61 and walked 30.

"I think the Lewis team may be the surprise of the tourney," Drake commented. "The Flyers have good pitching and their first baseman (Ray Crowley) can hit a ton. That's one reason we will use Mayhew."

Crowley is a lefthanded power hitter with a .349 average and 13 home runs with 61 RBIs. The big (6-4, 205-pounds) slugger had a two-run double that broke open Friday's win over third-ranked High Point College of North Carolina.

Drake sees one strange difference between this year's Leo team and the 1972 national champions on which he played.

"On the '72 team, we played up to our maximum ability all the time," he related. "I think this team has been holding back a little for some reason. We had it all together at Arizona State and in the first two playoffs games at Lewiston. But the rest of the time, I think we fell a little short of our potential."

Like shortstop Nick Leyva and catcher Don Snyder, who were also on the national championship squad that posted a 44-9 record in 1972, Drake feels the only difference in the indivdual makeup of this year's team is in the outfield.

"We had two All-American outfielders in Jim Beal and Willie Norwood," he agreed. "But this year we have a more consistent level of high quality throughout the lineup.

"When we started the season," he continued, "we didn't know if we would have a centerfielder. Art Sanchez has really come along. He put it together when we went to Arizona over the Easter holidays."

Another player who has developed rapidly is Ontario's Wayne Redfearn. The freshman rightfielder had a double and single in Friday's game to riase his average in eight playoff games to date to .375.

"Working with Wayne is a real pleasure." Drake commented.

"He is a great guy and a super competitor."

Drake, like Hines, feels the La Verne pitching will be the key in the playoffs.

"I think the pitching will be good for all teams through Monday's games," he said. "After that, I think our pitching will make a difference."

Ryan hurls two-hitter in 4-1 win

ANAHEIM (UPI) Nolan Ryan pitched a two-hitter and Joe Lahoud slammed a two-run homer to lead the California Angels to a 4-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers Saturday night.

Ryan hurled no-hit ball for the first 7 1-3 innings before Mickey Stanley singled as the second batter in the eighth inning to drive in a run. Ed Brinkman had reached first on an error and advanced on a wild pitch.

Ryan struck out 10, walked seven and hit one batter in gaining his seventh victory in 12 decisions and his sixth straight over the Tigers, going back to 1972.

California scored its first three runs in the first inning off loser Joe Coleman, 6-5. Coleman suffered his fourth defeat in a row.

Two successive throwing errors on the relay of a one-out double allowed Denny Doyle to score the first run. La- also scored Frank Robinson, on base houd's homer over the right field fence after forcing John Doherty, who had walked in his first major league at bat.

Ellie Rodriguez drew a two out walk in the seventh and scored on Dave Chalk's double for the Angels' only run.

Sandoval leads SoCal fighters

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — An inexperienced amateur boxing team representing Mexico was no match for Southern California fighters in an international AAU boxing show at the L.A. County Fairgrounds Saturday afternoon.

The Southern Californians, some whom will represent the Southern Pacific Association of the AAU (SPAAU) in the national championships later this month in Knoxville, Tenn., won four of five bouts with the fifth ending in a draw.

Defending national light flyweight (106) champion Albert Sandoval of Pomona started the rout with an impressive decision over Jesus Castro of the Mexican team.

Ahead on points through the first two rounds, Sandoval knocked his opponent down in the third for a mandatory eight count.

It was Sandoval's 83rd victory in 94 amateur fights. The Cal Poly freshman will defend his title at the nationals as a stepping stone to the AAU world championships in Havana and eventually a shot at the 1976 Olympics.

Still more impressive was Manuel Castrejon, a 132-pounder who, like Sandoval, fights out of Pomona's Sacred Heart Athletic Club. Castrejon knocked out Ignacio Cabarabias in the third round.

Decisions were won by Francisco Flores of Pacoima over Abalardo Suarez in a 125-pound battle, and by Chris Carrillo of Whittier over Jesus Armenta in a 139-pound bout.

The most impressive Mexican fighter, Francisco Solario, fought to a draw with Johnny Jensen of Los Angeles in a 119-pound bout. Solario was clearly the most experienced fighter among the visitors.

In preliminary bouts, Bruce Henderson of Hollywood, who fights out of the Sacred Heart gym, decisioned Dan Campbell of Los Angeles in a welterweight match-up.

In a middleweight bout, Jimmy Kassel of Pomona dropped a unanimous decision to Zeffie Gonzales of Los Angeles.

A listless no-decison heavyweight exhibition was fought by Fred "Young Sanford" Houpe and a novice from Sacred Heart, Bernie Roberts.

Houpe, a protege of entertainer Redd Foxx, expects to turn pro following the national championships. In 99 amateur fights, Houpe has won 85 with 54 knockouts.

The Pepperdine University law student missed a trip to the 1972 Olympics, losing a split decision to eventual silver medalist Duane Bobick in the Olympic trials.

Scott takes second, Law grabs sixth

BAKERSFIELD — Upland High's strong-running half miler Steve Scott captured second place in state Saturday at the high school state track and field meet here.

Scott finished behind state champion John Musich of Burbank High in 1:52.4. Musich, the runner-up in the Masters Meet last weekend at Cerritos College, won the half mile in 1:51.0. Masters champion Tom Lloy of Edison High finished fifth in 1:52.7.

Chino High sophomore Jayson Law settled for a sixth-place finish in the 220, recording a time of 21.9 seconds. Law, the San Antonio League 220 and 100 champion, was left in the dust with the rest of the field, led by Millar Hampton of Silver Creek High in San Jose. Hampton won in 21.1 seconds.

Muir High, the CIF 4-A and Masters champion, finished the year as the state champion with 23 points. San Francisco Wilson High finished a distant second to the CIF and state champion with 14 points.

Plunkett to WFL?

PORTLAND (UP) — Boston attorney Bob Woolf confirmed Saturday that the Portland Storm of the World Football League has been conducting negotiations with quarterback Jim Plunkett of the New England Patriots.

Cey's 7 RBIs pace Dodgers

CHICAGO (UPI) — When third baseman Ron Cey of the Los Angeles Dodgers comes to Wrigley Field, he can boast of his own cheering section.

With 20 members of his family looking on, Cey led the Dodgers to a 10-0 triumph over the Chicago Cubs by driving in a club record seven runs with a pair of homers and a single.

Probably the most excited person of 19,558 was Cey's youthful wife, Fran, a willowy, attractive social worker who grew up in Chicago.

"I was screaming, jumping up and down, and kissing my entire family after Ron hit his second home run of the day. I don't know anything about records," Mrs. Cey said, "but, it had to be the greatest day of our lives from a baseball standpoint."

Cey has been on a hitting rampage all week. His three-run homer Wednesday night beat Bob Gibson in St. Louis. Cey attributed his first home run, a three-run shot in the second inning, to a mistake by Cub starter Ken Frailing. "The count was 3-2 on me and Frailing should have come in with a breaking pitch," Cey said. "After all there was the possibility of my hitting into an inning double play but Frailing hit me a fastball down the middle and I just swung away."

After singling home two runs off Steve Stone to highlight a four-run third inning, Cey again faced Stone with Joe Ferguson on base and two out in the fourth inning.

"With a count 0-1, Stone threw a fastball that was high but was over the plate. It was a good pitch to rip and it sailed out of here," Cey explained.

Cey's greatest praise went for Andy Messersmith who was knocked out of the box in each of his last two starts.

"Andy really had it today and I was glad we could give him an easy win," Cey said.

Messersmith allowed six hits and went the distance for the fifth time this year in boosting his record to 5-1.

The Dodgers staked him to an early lead with three runs in the second inning.

Steve Garvey reached base in the second inning when Matt Alexander fumbled his easy ground ball. After Ferguson singled, Cey drove a 3-2 pitch out of Wrigley Field.

The Dodgers sent 10 men to the plate in the third inning and scored four runs. A single by Bill Russell and walks to Jimmy Wynn and Garvey loaded the bases, bringing on Stone. A walk to Ferguson forced in Russell. Cey then drove a shot to the left of shortstop Don Kessinger to score Wynn and Garvey.

After two out in the fourth, Ferguson doubled and Cey followed with his sixth homer of the season to wind up the Dodger scoring.

Bruce Henderson (left), who fights out of the Sacred Heart Athletic Club in Pomona, avoids a punch by Los Angeles' Dan Campbell during an preliminary welterweight bout prior to the international AAU fights at the Pomona Fairgrounds Saturday. Henderson won by a decision over Campbell.

Heard charges into lead

Californian up by three in Kemper Open

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (UPI) — Californian Jerry Heard, shrugging off threatening clouds and a host of pursuers, shot a seven-under-par 65 Saturday to build a formidable three-stroke lead after three rounds of the $250,000 Kemper Open golf tournament.

Heard, winner of this year's Florida Citrus Open at Orlando, birdied four straight holes on the backside to run his three-day total to 69-66-65--200.

Heard started the day one stroke behind second-round leader Lee Trevino and started out with two birdies on the front nine. He spurted after the turn with consecutive birdies on the 10th through 13th holes to take a three-stroke lead over Trevino and surprising Bob Menne into today's final round.

"I just started making a lot of putts," said a smiling Heard. "They just started to go in."

Former PGA champion Billy Casper, steady Hubert Green and J. C. Snead were four strokes back at 204.

Veteran Ray Floyd, who started fast with five birdies on the first eight holes, struggled on the backside and finished with a 68-205. He was tied with Bert Yancey, who also had a 68, and Gibby Gilbert who had a 70.

The day's best round was carded by young Tom Kite, the former University of Texas star from Austin, who equalled the course record 64 set Friday by Trevino, moving into a five-way tie at 10-under-par 206, six strokes back of Heard.

Jack Nicklaus, grousing that the manicured greens over the 7,085-yard Quail Hollow Country Club course put too much of a premium on putting, had a respectable 69-208, eight strokes down.

Arnold Palmer, for the first time in his illustrious career, missed the cut for the third straight week and did not play Saturday.

Gary Player, considered a favorite after his victory last week in the Memphis Classic, had a 72-214 and was out of contention.

First round leader Tom Watson ballooned to a 73-208 and fell out of contention.

Trevino, whose unspectacular 69 was marked by five birdies and two bogeys, was confident about his chance of taking the $50,000 first prize.

"I still have a chance, I think," he said. "Jerry and I are real good friends and we relax each other."

Menne, who had to play an 18-hole qualifier to get into the elite field for the "designated" tournament, had a bogeyless round with five birdies en route to his 67.

"I'm trying to be very patient," he said. "I'm trying very hard not to make a mistake."

WFL Texans ink Wells, Salb

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Houston Texans of the World Football League have signed wide receiver Warren Wells and collegiate shot-put champion Karl Salb.

Wells, 6-1, 195, played five years for the Oakland Raiders and Kansas City Chiefs of the National Football League.

One stroke up

Rankin holds lead

TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — Defending champion Judy Rankin withstood challenges by hometown favorite Carol Mann and Susie Berning Saturday to retain a one-stroke lead heading into the final round of the $40,000 Baltimore Golf Championship.

Miss Rankin, of Midland, Tex., tired on the back nine at the Pine Ridge course, but she finished with an even par 73 Saturday for a 36-hole total of 144.

Four women were tied for second place with scores of 145 after the second round. They were Miss Mann, the 1972 Baltimore champion; Miss Berning, the 1969 titlist; all-time leading money-winner Kathy Whitworth and Marilynn Smith.

"I played almost as well as I did Friday, but ran out of zip on the back nine," Miss Rankin said after Saturday's round. She shot a 39 on the final nine holes after a 34 on the front nine.

Miss Berning, from Lake Tahoe, Nev., shot a sizzling four-under-par 69 for the afternoon's best effort. She had five birdies in rebounding from a first-round 76.

Miss Mann, of Towson, Md., had four birdies in her second round 72, but suffered three bogeys on the gruelling back nine that prevented her from taking the lead.

Miss Whitworth, of Richardson, Tex., stayed in the thick of things with a 73 on a second straight afternoon featuring rain showers and soggy conditions. Miss Smith, of Tequesta, Fla., entered the second round in fifth place but shot a three-under-par 70 to position herself for a challenge in Sunday's final round.

Mary Wolfe of Beaverton, Ore., and Beth Stone of Muskogee, Okla., both finished play Saturday with 146 scores.

Valley teams in mixed B.B. luck

Valley Legion, Thorobred, and Big League baseball squads were all in action Saturday, with mixed results for the locals.

LaVerne Legion edged San Gabriel Connie Mack 4-3 in a non-league encounter, the Walnut Thorobreds nipped Charter Oak 9-8 in a San Gabriel Valley loop game, Rowland dropped a 5-4 decision to LaPuente Legion in a District 18 league game, San Dimas posted a 8-5 Pomona Valley Big League win over Pomona Southwest, and Pomona National was also a winner in Big League action, beating Pomona Northwest 4-3.

LaVerne rode to victory on the pitching arm of Bill Bumstead, who fired a four-hitter.

Marty Schroedter drove home two of the four LaVerne runs as they improved their season mark to 8-3.

The Walnut Reds held off Charter Oak to win their opener in the San Gabriel Valley Thorobred League. Sefio Purcell, Jeff Corkill, and Bob Adams paced the Reds' attack, while Jim Vallandingham pushed his mound mark to 3-0 with the win.

LaPuente pushed across a run in the 11th inning to beat Rowland Legion in their District 18 debut. Dave Bourque pitched the distance in dropping the hill decision.

Ray Etchebarren led the Rowland offense with four hits.

In the other District 18 game Saturday, Claremont and South Pasadena suspended action after eight and one-half innings with their score knotted at 7-all, due to a curfew. The two teams will resume the game today at 1 p.m. at Pomona College, and then play a regularly slated contest immediately afterward.

San Dimas survived a late Southwest rally to post a 8-5 win and stay atop the Big League standings with a 6-1 mark. Rich Espinosa hurled the win for S.D.

Pomona National also posted a Big League win, as Doug Seiner's fine relief job and triples by Mike Forsyth and Mike Willett netted a 4-3 decision over Pomona Northwest and pitcher Cleve Porter.

The 1974 Leo baseball team has what Drake terms "a pretty good mixture of youth and age." And he adds one more very important ingredient.

"This is really a close-knit team," he observed. "Just like we were in '72. Last year we weren't. Like 1972, everything now is positive. Last year there were some negative feelings."

One thing about coaching has surprised Drake greatly. "I feel more tired by the time a game ends now then I did as a player," he grinned.

TOURNAMENT TOPICS — In Saturday's games, High Point (N.C.) became the first team to be eliminated. Point Park College (18-4) edged the third-ranked Purple Panthers (31-10) 2-1.

Sam Houston State righthander Jim Miller (11-) hurled a two-hitter as the fifth-ranked Bear Kats blanked Fort Hays State 5-0. Second-rated David Lipscomb got three-hit pitching from big Mike McLaughlin (13-4) in beating Wisconsin-Oshkosh 6-0.

Fort Hays St. (26-17) plays Wisconsin-Oshkosh (27-10) at 11:30 a.m. (PDT) today. La Verne and Lewis meet at 3:30 p.m. (PDT), and David Lipscomb (46-9) clashes with Sam Houston State (39-9 at 6 p.m. (PDT).

Lewis University is without its regular shortstop in the national tourney. Jim Alessio, who batted .329 and drove in 48 runs, broke his hand on a fishing trip Tuesday.

The Flyers' leading hitter is leftfielder George DiMatteo who sports a .428 average in 38 games. The team average going into the finals was .324, second highest among the eight teams.

USC must sweep today

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — First baseman Blaine Calder's two-run homer capped a three-run rally after two out in the ninth inning to give Pepperdine a 4-2 victory over University of Southern California Saturday in the first game of the NCAA District-8 baseball finals.

USC, winner of the NCAA title the last five years, must sweep a doubleheader from Pepperdine today to capture the best-of-three game set and advance to the College Baseball World Series June 7 at Omaha, Neb.

Pepperdine trailed 2-1 entering the ninth inning. But John Guarino reached base on a throwing error by USC's Marvin Cobb, advanced to second on a sacrifice, and after a fly out scored the tying run on a single by Carlo Mejia. Calder then drilled his third home run of the season off losing pitcher Jorn Racanelli (7-4).

Pat Murphy (13-2) was the winner for Pepperdine, now 38-10 for the season. USC—winner of nine NCAA crowns—is 43-19.

DIAMOND BALLET — Pittsburgh Pirate third sacker Richie Hebner leaps to catch a wide throw as Cincinnati's Joe Morgan slides into third with a stolen base in Saturday's 14-1 Buc victory.

National League roundup

Pirates pound Reds with 18-hit attack

By United Press International

The Pittsburgh Pirates pounded five Cincinnati Reds pitchers for 18 hits, including homers by Richie Hebner, Rickie Zisk and Bob Robertson, en route to their easy 14-1 victory Saturday over the Reds behind the eight-hit pitching of Ken Brett.

The victory was the sixth this season against three losses for Brett and ended a Reds winning streak at seven games. The Pirate lefthander, who walked two and struck out two, contributed a single and a double to the assault.

Robertson's bases-empty home run was his seventh of the season and fifth in his last three games. Hebner's homer came with two men on base and Zisk's with one on. Zisk and Willie Stargel, who doubled twice, each had three hits for Pittsburgh.

In other National League games the Los Angeles Dodgers opened their West Division lead to eight games with a 10-0 win over Chicago, New York beat Houston 3-1, St. Louis nipped San Diego 3-0, Philadelphia whipped San Francisco 6-2, and Montreal slipped by Atlanta in 10 innings, 7-6.

Rusty Staub belted a double and single to drive in two runs and pace New York and Tom Seaver to victory over the Astros.

Don Hahn opened the game with a triple off loser Dave Roberts. Felix Millan singled home Hahn and scored on Staub's double to right center.

Seaver, in going the route for his third victory in eight decisions, allowed only a solo homer by Cesar Cedeno in the fourth — Cedeno's 11th of the year — for the Astros' only tally. Seaver walked two and struck out 11.

Mike Schmidt drove in four runs with a pair of homers to lead the Phillies to their victory over San Francisco and give Jim Lonborg his 100th major league triumph.

Schmidt connected for his ninth homer in the first inning after Dave Cash was safe on an error and Larry Bowa hit his first of three singles.

Ken Singleton singled home the winning run with one out in the 10th inning to give Montreal its dramatic 7-6 come-from-behind victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Bob Bailey led off the Expos' 10th with a single and Larry Lintz sacrificed him to second. Losing pitcher Lew Krausse then walked Willie Davis intentionally to pitch to Singleton, who singled sharpy to shallow centerfield to score Bailey.

The Expos, trailing 6-2 with two out in the ninth, rallied for four runs to tie the score at 6-6, with pinch-hitter Bob Stinson's three-run homer capping the rally.

American League roundup

Dempsey rescues Yankees in 13th

By United Press International

Rick Dempsey drove in the tying run with a single in the ninth inning and the winning run on a fielder's choice in the 13th Saturday as the New York Yankees defeated the Minnesota Twins, 6-5.

Fernando Gonzalez singled with one out in the 13th and took third on a single by pinchhitter Gene Michael. Dempsey grounded to shortstop Luis Gomez, whose throw to second forced Michael, but Rod Carew threw wide of first to erase the inning-ending double play chance and allow Gonzalez to cross the plate with the winning run.

The game, which was delayed 45 minutes by rain and took 4:11 to play, was highlighted by the appearance of 36 players, two male streakers and the ejection of Minnesota Manager Frank Quilici by first base umpire Jim Odom.

In other American League games, Oakland downed Milwaukee 4-1, Cleveland beat Kansas City 5-2, Boston defeated Chicago 8-0 and Texas trimmed Baltimore, 4-2.

Deron Johnson, mired in a season-long slump, drove in three runs with a homer and double to lead the Oakland A's to victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Leron Lee belted two home runs including his first major league grand slam, driving in all the runs, and Jim Perry tossed a four-hitter to pace Cleveland to a win over the Kansas City Royals.

Carl Yastrzemski homered and singled twice to drive in three runs in leading Boston to its win over the Chicago White Sox as Luis Tiant notched his second shutout of the season.

The Red Sox jumped on Stan Bahnsen for two runs in the first, one in the third and two in the fourth while handing the White Sox' righthander his fifth loss in 10 decisions.

Toby Harrah and Tom Grieve each homered to power Texas past Baltimore before the largest Ranger home crowd ever — 39,269.

The bat night crowd exceeded Arlington Stadium's official capacity by over 4,000 and boosted this year's Ranger attendance — tops in the American League — to 160,000 over last year's figure at this time. Texas has now drawn more than 381,000 in 24 dates.

Padres release Jim McAndrew

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The San Diego Padres are asking waivers on pitcher Jim McAndrew for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release, a spokesman for the National League club said Saturday.

McAndrew was replaced on the team's 25-man roster by Lowell Palmer, who already has joined the club, the spokesman said.

McAndrew, 1-4, appeared in 15 games with the Padres. He posted a 5.57 ERA, had 16 strikeouts and 13 walks and gave up seven home runs.

McAndrew had been acquired during the off-season from the New York Mets in exchange for a minor league pitcher, Steve Simpson.

Palmer, 26, a right handed New York Yankee pitcher, was obtained by the Padres Friday. He had a 5-1 mark and 48 strikeouts in 43 innings with the Yankees' Syracuse farm club in the International League.

Christian quits at Upland

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

Another local coaching dynasty is coming to an end.

His presence will be missed not only by his own players but also the players and coaches of the other San Antonio League teams.

He's never been known for giving Knute Rockne type of pep talks. In fact, he's more easily identifiable by the tape recorder hooked to his belt when he sets foot on the baseball field.

The competitiveness of his teams is illustrated by the fact that the Highlanders tied for the SAL crown in 1968, 69 and 71 and in 1974 won the championship outright while advancing to the CIF 3-A quarter-finals.

Herb Christian is stepping down after 145 victories and 11 years as head varsity baseball coach at Upland High.

"I felt I'd been at it long enough," said the former Claremont High graduate ('49). "After 16 years of coaching and with my classroom hours making me be constantly on my feet (10½-11 hrs. per day). There are just some things I couldn't do any more.

"When I get to the point where I can't do the things I want to do all season long it's time to get along.

"It'll also give me a chance to do a lot of other things I'd like to do. My 11 year-old son is playing little league ball and I'd like to spend more time with him. I'm just fortunate to go out a winner."

The UC Santa Barbara graduate (54) is going out a winner.

Christian guided Upland to its first San Antonio League solo championship (12-2) and its best overall season ever (20-6) this year. Both set new school marks for league wins and yearly victories in a season.

The '74 Highlander version also downed Los Amigos and Corona before losing to Nogales in the CIF3-A baseball playoffs.

Christian feels that momentum has been the key to his success.

"If the kids look forward to each game then baseball will be more exciting for them and for the fans. I try not to let the kids stand around and so I try to make the practices more interesting.

"Since practices are so important — important in that the kids work hard — I try not to let the practices get boring by doing different things during batting practice and infield practice. Hopefully we work on the fundamentals and game-type situations that they get to the point where their reactions are automatic."

"Since I rarely give them a Knute Rockne type of pep talk, I try to get them mentally prepared by trying to build up momentum which is the key to success," continued Christian.

"We had momentum this year until the Montclair game in the first round. They started propelling themselves right after the Pomona tourney and peaked in the 6-1 win over Damien. The whole team played real well up until the final two games of the season which made me concerned for the playoffs."

"But we had a good attitude against Los Amigos and Corona and we lost to a very good Nogales team, which was proven by their win over El Segundo.

"The most rewarding part is working with the kids in the game of baseball. I've had super kids all the way through, even the early years when the teams were down," said the not so successful hitter in college. "I've really enjoyed working with the kids and helping to develop them into baseball players."

Holy cow! It will sure seem strange not seeing Herb Christian next season with that tape recorder hooked on to his belt. But even morely missed will be his favorite slogan after one of his players drops a fly ball — Holy cow!

Quarrie wins 100 in Kennedy meet

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Don Quarrie, the little Olympian from Jamaica, nipped world record holder Ivory Crockett and Steve Williams in the 100-yard dash at the Kennedy Games Saturday, then became a double winner when he took the 220 in a breeze before a crowd of about 11,000.

Quarrie, Crockett, who took the world record to nine seconds flat three weeks ago, and Williams, who shared the old mark of 9.1 with five others, all were clocked in 9.4 over the relatively slow cinder and clay track at Edwards Stadium.

In the 220, Quarrie had little competition and won easily in 20.7, but had to share honors for the day with Maren Seidler, who broke the American women's shotput record for the second week in a row.

Miss Seidler, who took her own American mark to 56-½ a week ago in the Cal Relays at Modesto improved on that mark by 5-½ inches but still is nearly four feet off the world record of 70-4 ½ set by Nadezhda Chizhova of Russia a year ago.

While most of the crowd focused its attention on Crockett, who took the world mark to nine seconds flat three weeks ago, and Williams, who shared the old standard of 9.1 with five others, Quarrie sneaked up fast on the inside to win by an eyelash.

The shotput and discus were two other fine events with world record holder Al Feuerbach winning the shot over George Woods for the second time in less than 24 hours and John Powell taking the discus over a so-so field.

Feuerbach, who won the U.S. Track and Field Federation title over Woods at Wichita, Kans., Friday night, won Saturday with a throw of 69-11. That was 11 ½ inches shorter than his Friday victory.

Woods, who did 70-3 ½ Friday, was second at 69-2. In head-to-head competition this year, Feuerbach has beaten Woods, who holds the world indoor mark at 72-2 ¾, only four times in 14 matches.

Powell, who had a 223-4 discus throw a week ago at the Cal Relays, won this time while throwing into a wind at 215 even.

In other events of note, Peter Farmer, the Australian champ from UTEP, took the hammer with a throw of 222-4, Arnie Robinson won the long jump at 25-9 ½, and the University of California upset the Philadelphia Pioneers in the 440-relay in 40 seconds flat.

Cards trade for Heidemann

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Cleveland's Jack Heidemann, the 24-year-old utility infielder who was the Indians' No. 1 draft choice in 1967, was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals Friday night for Ed Crosby and Louis Alvarado.

Heidemann and catcher Ray Fosse were traded to Oakland in March, 1973, for catcher Dave Duncan and outfielder George Hendrick.

Heidemann, who was hitting .091 in only 12 games this season with the Tribe, was reacquired on waivers in March of this year.

Alvarado, also a utility infielder, broke into the majors with the Boston Red Sox and was traded to the Chicago White Sox before coming to St. Louis. Alvarado had started in five of the Cards last six games as their regular shortstop the past week.

Braves' Gentry out for season

ATLANTA (UPI) — Atlanta Braves' pitcher Gary Gentry will apparently be out for the rest of the season after undergoing surgery on his throwing arm Friday.

The Braves said bone chips were removed from Gentry's right elbow in his second operation in two years since being acquired from the New York Mets.

A Braves' spokesman said doctors were optimistic about Gentry's chances for a comeback next season. He had pitched only 6 2-3 innings with no decisions this year.

Walton likes Oregon, will live in Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Bill Walton, looking at the Oregon sunshine from his hospital bedroom, said Friday he likes it so much here that he may never go back to Los Angeles.

Walton, the UCLA basketball superstar recently signed by the Portland Trail Blazers of the NBA, is recovering from minor knee surgery.

He has purchased riverfront property just south of Portland.

"I'm going to live here a long time," he said. "I wouldn't have come up here if I didn't like it in Oregon."

He was asked if he would keep in contact with UCLA coach John Wooden,

"I don't know. He's staying in Los Angeles and I don't know if I'll ever go back there again."

Walton said he was anxious to backpack through Oregon's scenic country. His backpack lies near his bed and books on Oregon bicycle trails are in his room.

He said he didn't know when he would be up and around. "I get up three times a day now, but getting around again is a different story."

When asked what he planned to do with his riverfront land he said, "I'm going to try and grow some food to eat. You can't do that in Los Angeles."

Votaw selected Scot's MVP baseball award

CLAREMONT — Tony Votaw was the recipient of the Most Valuable Player award at the Upland High award sports banquet held at Griswold's Thursday night.

The senior right fielder broke four school records in helping lead the Highlanders to the San Antonio League baseball title and the quarterfinals of the CIF 3-A playoffs.

Votaw, who finished with a season batting mark of .338, set new school marks in home runs and runs batted in. His RBI standards were for driving across 15 runs against league opposition (the old mark was 14) and 24 on the season, better the old mark of 23.

The left handed hitter also smashed four league roundtrippers and six on the season, both establishing new marks.

The Best Pitcher Award went to Steve Iles. The senior righthander won nine of 11 decisions on the year, including a perfect 7-0 SAL slate. He also broke four records for lowest ERA (0.97 in league), most strike-outs in league (62) and on the season (102), and for the highest won-lost percentage (1.000) in league.

Mark Schneekluth was voted the Most Inspirational Player. The Scot co-captain wound up with a .307 average. And the Most Improved Player award went to Jeff Martin, who wound up batting .250 in league after a slow start.

Several other school marks were set. Individual standards were recorded by catcher Russ Feaster who tied a record with 12 walks in league play while Stu DuVall tied Votaw in league homers with four. The first sacker also tied the Upland record in triples with three.

Coach Herb Christian guided Upland to its best overall season ever, 20-6, and the Scots equalled their previously high number of league wins with 12.

The fourth annual Corona National Championship, one of the few 36-hole stroke play tournaments in the southland, will be played Saturday-Sunday, June 15-16 at Corona National Golf Club.

The entry fee, which includes greens fees, is only $20.

Host pro Tom McHugh said competition will be in four flights, the championship and three handicap divisions.

"In the handicap flights, we'll have one prize for low gross and four net prizes. And we'll have a couple of prizes for gross and net in the championship," said McHugh.

Entries close June 12.

Entries may be mailed to McHugh at Corona National Golf Club, 1500 Greenbriar Road, Corona, Calif. 91720. The telephone is (714) 737-2303. From Orange County, 539-2362.

AUTO RACING celebrities will join with Hollywood personalities and stars of the sports world in the annual Econo Auto Center-Tuborg 400 Invitational Golf Tournament Saturday at Riverside's challenging Indian Hills Country Club.

The golf tourney is a prelude to Sunday's doubleheader race classic, the Tuborg 400 and the California 100 at the Riverside International Raceway.

A number of special prizes will be awarded, including a Datsun 260-Z sports car for a hole-in-one on the 11th hole.

VALLEY RESIDENTS will have the opportunity to watch television and motion picture celebrities team with local amateur golfers in the Hollywood Hackers Celebrity Golf Tournament Friday at South Hills Country Club, West Covina.

The tournament is sponsored by the Auxiliary of Inter-Community Hospital with proceeds going toward the new coronary care pavilion now under construction at the Covina hospital.

Gallery admission will be open to the public starting at 11:00 a.m. Gallery tickets, selling for $2.50 each, went on sale this week and are available in the volunteer office of Inter-Community.

Amateur golfers will team with a Hollywood celebrity in each of the 36 foursomes competing in the shotgun fourman, best ball tournament.

THE FIFTH annual memorial Don Edwards golf tournament will be played Saturday at El Rancho Verde near Rialto. The tournament is sponsored by the Citrus College Department of Athletics. All proceeds from the tourney are turned over to the Don Edwards Memorial Scholarship Fund and in turn handed out in the form of financial aid to needy students to continue their education at Citrus.

Entry blanks for the shotgun start tourney may be obtained by calling the athletic department at (213) 335-0521, extension 304 or 263. Entry fees of $15 include greens fee, buffet dinner, and prizes. The fee is tax deductible. Checks should be made out to the Don Edwards Memorial Scholarship Fund and mailed to the College at 18824 East Foothill Blvd., Azusa, CA 91702.

Hollypark greets Agitate

INGLEWOOD — Agitate, whose perfect career record is marred only by third-place finishes in the Kentucky and Santa Anita Derbies, will open a campaign aimed at Hollywood Park's rich "Double Crown" when he makes his Inglewood debut today in the $60,000 Argonaut Handicap.

Trainer James Jimenez hopes the Meeken Stable three-year-old will complete his Hollypark agenda with a trio of victories that also will include the $100,000 Swaps Stakes, Hollypark's newest event for sophomores, on June 30, and the $150,000 Hollywood Derby, July 14.

Sunday racegoers, in addition to seeing Agitate in action against the cream of the western three-year-old crop, also will have an opportunity to compete for $41,000 in prizes in "Sunday Sweep", the weekly contest that rewards patrons for their handicapping skills.

Modus Vivendi, conqueror of previously unbeaten Miss Musket in the recent Railbird Stakes, also will race this weekend at Hollypark, as she is set to contest the $40,000 Princess Stakes on Saturday.

Agitate, who overcame traffic trouble to be third in the Run for the Roses, recorded a sensational mile workout in 1:34 3-5 preparing for the Argonaut and the Californaa Deby victor is likely to be a solid favorite for the mile and-one-eighth main-trrack event.

Heading his opposition will be Stardust Mell Shirley's Champion and Battery E., one-two-three finishers in the El Dorado Handicap two weeks ago. The field also will include Aloha Mood, unplaced in the El Dorado but second in the Santa Anita Deby and the Arcadia meet's top-ranked three-year-old.

The mile and one-sixteenth Princess will find Modus Vivendi, a winner of five of seven starts, seeking her first score around two turns. In her one prior distance try, she was pulled up during the Santa Susana Stakes when unable to handle a muddy track.

Fleet Peach and Special Goddess, who accounted for California's two richest races for juvnile fillies in 1973; Lucky Spell, Stone Cottage and Bedknob all are regarded likely foes for Modus Vivendi.

ARGONAUT PREP—Meeken Stable's Agitate will make his Hollywood Park debut today when he faces the West's best three-year-olds in the $60,000 Argonaut Handicap. Bill Shoemaker is the regular jockey.

Elliott Maddox?

That's right, a guy with a .239 lifetime batting average has now followed into the footsteps of guys like DiMaggio and Mantle.

Maddox, who's noted by trivia experts mainly for being a throw-in when the Detroit Tigers unloaded Denny McLain on Bob Short, has suddenly found himself in the midst of a major controversy.

Yankee manager Bill Virdon, unhappy with Murcer's fielding in center, has decided to shift Murcer to right and play Maddox in center. Virdon, a fine fielding centerfielder in his day, knows the way the position should be played—and he thinks Maddox plays it better than Murcer.

That means Maddox is getting a lot of attention these days but he's treating a ticklish situation with a sense of humor.

It isn't every day that a guy who was a benchwarmer in Texas beats an All-Star performer out of his position.

"When is the last time you saw this many reporters around your locker," one writer asked Maddox after Virdon put the change into effect on May 28.

"Not since I set fire to my high school gym," Maddox smiled.

He added, "I don't like being in the middle of this thing but I had nothing to do with it. Virdon's the boss and he did what he thought was best for the team. Murcer's a pro and I'm sure he realized the move was for the best of the club."

Maddox came off the University of Michigan campus in 1968 as the Big Ten batting champion when he signed with the Detroit Tigers.

Since then he's impressed baseball observers with his glove but his hitting has left something to be desired. After all, if you can't break into the Texas Rangers' lineup, you have problems.

But Maddox has a familiar complaint—one heard from nearly every benchwarmer. He says he never really got a chance to play regularly to prove if he could hit.

"Baseball is fun for me again," he said. "It's been a frustrating four years. I just haven't had the chance to play every day."

Virdonsi

Virdon is indicating that all Maddox has to do to keep the job is to hit .260. Old-timers would cringe at the thought of a Yankee centerfielder hitting .260. But Maddox, now hovering around .280, figures he can keep his average close to .280 if he stays in the lineup.

Maddox spent the 1968 and 1969 seasons in the minors and hit .248 in 109 games for the Tigers in 1970. At the end of that season, the Tigers were trying to get rid of McLain. Bob Short, who then owned the Washington team, wanted him badly. Short didn't realize McLain was finished.

In one of the great heists in baseball history, the Tigers got Joe Coleman, Aurelio Rodriguez and Ed Brinkman— who've all helped the club— along with Jim Hannan, for McLain, Norm McRae, Don Wert—and Maddox.

Maddox spent the 1971 season in Washington and then shifted to Texas when the franchise was moved in 1972. In three seasons, he was at bat 258, 294 and 172 times a year. He hit .217, .252 and .238 those three seasons and that left him with a .239 lifetime average.

'Wulfe' leads North roster for All-Stars

COSTA MESA — All-time CIF scoring champion Mark Wulfemeyer of Troy High School will lead the North contingent in the ninth annual Orange County High School all star basketball game scheduled for June 15 at Orange Coast College.

North coach Nash Rivear of El Dorado High is hopeful that Wulfemeyer can provide the punch to break the South's three-game winning streak in the classic. This will be the final prep appearance of the Troy flash who scored a total of 2,608 points during his high school career. He is set to play for coach Bob Boyd's USC Trojans next season.

The all star contest, sponsored by the Costa Mesa Kiwanis Club, features the country's top graduating seniors. Tipoff is slated for 8 p.m. in OCC's Peterson Gym. The South holds the series edge, 6-2.

Other outstanding stars on the North roster include a trio of 6-5 forwards in James DeWeese of El Dorado, Mat Porter of Kennedy and Jeff Welshans of Katella. Bill August is a strong 6-8 center from Lowell.

The remainder of the North squad includes: Brian Platt Anaheim; Allan Ames, Kennedy; Steve Jesser, Savanna; Randy Forgette, Lowell; Mark Piepkorn, Buena Park; Barrie Elliott, Orange; and Bill Webright, Western.

Contreras-led South stars are announced

COSTA MESA — South coach Jim Stephens of Marina High School has announced his roster for the ninth annual Orange County High School all star basketball game slated for June 15 at Orange Coast College.

The contest features the country's top graduating seniors and is sponsored by the Costa Mesa Kiwanis Club. Tipoff is scheduled for 8 p.m. in OCC's Peterson Gym.

This year's Rebel quintet is paced by Huntington Beach High School's flashy 5-10 guard, Raul Contreras.

Contreras led the Oilers to a tie for the Sunset League title this past season and was an All-Sunset League first team choice in addition to being All-CIF. He averaged 23.5 points per game.

Other outstanding stars on the South roster include forward R. B. Jamison of Santa Ana Valley and Dan Malane of Fountain Valley, and guards Bob Yoder of San Clemente, Jim Swain of Costa Mesa and Brendon McCaughey of Mater Dei.

The remainder of the South squad includes: John Cummins, Costa Mesa; Dave Walsh, Westminster; Brian O'Flaherty, Newport Harbor; Keith Koeller, Marina; Bill Fick Marina; and Matt Parker, Tustin.

Self-imposed cool

Cedeno stays quiet

HOUSTON (UPI) — Cat-quick Cesar Cedeno, called out on an attempted steal at second base, shot to his feet.

He thought he had hooked around the tag of San Diego's Derrel Thomas and he wanted to protest. Oh, how Cedeno wanted to tell the umpire how he did it.

But any trouble, on the field or off, is like an 0-25 batting slump these days for the Houston Astros' young superstar centerfielder. He avoids both.

Cedeno may be a better ball player for his new self-imposed cool.

Coach Preston Gomez doesn't think an off-season shooting incident, in which Cedeno pleaded guilty to the involuntary manslaughter of a young Santo Dominican girl, has changed the athlete.

"This boy has handled the situation as good as anybody could handle it," Gomez said. "And the fans, the players, both at home and away, they've been outstanding with this boy because they see the great athlete he is.

"There is no question about it. They understand it was an accident just like he told me and he has told everybody. And it's gone by."

Cedeno, 23, a five-year veteran who has led the Astros in batting the past two years, refuses to discuss the incident which threatened his already brilliant career.

Reporters are asked about their intentions before interviews. But talking "beisbol"—that's a different matter.

Despite hitting .290 before the Astros left town recently for an extended road swing, Cedeno said there was no problem.

"There hasn't been no problem," he said in broken English. "It's just that sometimes you go out there and you do something wrong. It take you a while to find out, especially when I been hitting home runs I really get in trouble, you know, because I always try to hit the ball out of the park."

Although injury-prone the past two seasons, Cedeno has been playing regularly so far. Only Lee May has shared Cedeno's position in not being moved around in the batting order.

After 47 games, Cedeno led the team in home runs with nine, RBIs (38), doubles (12) and stolen bases (25). He had committed just two errors.

But one thing bothers him. The Astros, one game out of the National League West early in May, slid to 10 straight losses to drop way behind Los Angeles.

"Nothing is the matter," he said. "It's just the same way you can win 10. You can go out there and the same way we have been losing, we can win.

"It would be the same feeling, I mean, we are hardly pressing at all. We know we are going to win. This is not a last place ball club. We don't have to worry about it."

Catchers around the league are fretting more this season because Cedeno has a free pass to steal. And the swift 190 - pounder is going first class—he takes off every chance he gets, unmindful of the resulting bumps and bruises.

"I don't mind about the stolen base crown," he said. "I was third last coupla year. I do it for the ball club. I don't wanta get no stolen base title. I don't wanta become that type of ball player."

And the batting title?

"I would love that; I would love it," said Cedeno, breaking into a broad grin. "Every year it looks, the last couple of years, like I am going to win it. I'll be there again this year."

Gomez agrees.

"I tell him, I say Cedeno, anybody that's as gooda hitter as you are, sometimes you have to give credit to the pitcher, they gonna get you out.

"But he is one to be perfect, you know. He's not satisfied with hitting just .290 or .301, he just wants to hit, because he knows he's a gooda hitter, and he's a gooda hitter, no question about it."

Cedeno, like his fellow Latin American and confidant, Gomez, loves the game. They both arrive at the ball park early. They both prepare exhaustively and because of Cedeno's readiness, the centerfielder earns his team's respect.

"You take our players," Gomez said. "They look up to him. They call him 'Nino, meaning in English, baby,' and it just amazes our players to see some of the things he does in the field.

"He might be the best ball player right now in baseball."

It was Gomez, more than anyone, who sat down with Cedeno after he returned to the United States following the shooting incident and trial. The two could be seen talking late into the Florida night. Cedeno was reminded to cool it when the going got hot.

And, according to one Astro teammate, the burner under Cedeno heated up quickly.

"It happened in Winter Haven, Fla.," the player recalled. "Cesar popped up and then headed for the dugout. A couple of guys sitting behind the dugout yelled real loud at him, 'Hey, Cedeno, why don't you shoot the pitcher?'"

"Cesar stopped, looked at the guys, and then lowered his head and trotted into the dugout.

"The same two guys came up to Cesar after the game and asked for his autograph."

NEW YORK (UPI) — Finally, inevitably, the sludge from Watergate has spilled over and begun to contaminate baseball.

The effects keep growing more and more apparent in ballparks all over the country— Candlestick Park, San Francisco; Riverfront Stadium, Cincinnati; Dodger Stadium, Los Angeles; Arlington Stadium, Arlington, Tex.; San Diego Stadium in San Diego and Shea Stadium right here in New York.

Richard Nixon, President of the United States, stands on the threshold of impeachment.

He keeps saying he won't resign, and he sounds like the baseball manager who has lost control of his ball club but keeps saying, don't worry, we're going to bounce back soon.

The lawmakers in this country aren't at all sure he will.

Much more important, the people aren't sure. They're confused, alarmed and anguished over what happened at Watergate. They have difficulty distinguishing right from wrong anymore and few places has their general despair become more evident than at the baseball parks.

Baseball fans have taken to verbalizing their dismay and it comes out in a terrible Exorcist form of raw abuse upon the ballplayers. Fan abuse and rowdyism in baseball aren't really anything new, but now they seem to be reaching unprecedented proportions.

Bad incidents

Houston outfielder Bob Watson runs into a wall in Cincinnati and some imbeciles throw beer on him while he lies injured on the ground...Pete Rose of the Reds has obscenities hurled at him in San Francisco and Los Angeles, obscenities so vile that no man possibly could endure them...Sitting in the visitors' dugout at Candlestick Park, Hank Aaron is hit by a thrown orange...Kids have to be stopped by police from turning over players cars at Shea Stadium ...Cleveland catcher Dave Duncan is so enraged after being splashed by beer in Arlington that he tries to lead a group of players into the stands...and with the Reds due back at Shea Stadium next Monday night for the first time since last Fall's playoff with the Mets, at which some fans went berserk following a run-in between Rose and Bud Harrelson, there is some question as to the reception Rose will receive.

One emininent psychologist, Dr. Lucille Blum, training analyst and senior supervisor at New York's Post Graduate Center for Mental Health, sees where the general mood of people today easily can translate itself into the type behavior being manifest so often now in the ballparks.

"Everybody is quite apprehensive," she says. "The uncertainty of the future is a little more intensified now because of our national condition, and whatever resentment people have, the ballpark is a very compatible atmosphere in which to show it. This is a form of aggressive or immature behavior with them. The words these people are using on the ballplayers are ones they are normally prohibited from saying. Throwing beer is also a child-like action which fits into the general pattern of repression."

Pete Rose has a theory which pretty much coincides.

"We have to face it," he says. "People's frustrations seem much greater today today than they were, say, 20-25 years ago. Stop and think a minute. What better place for someone to relieve his frustrations than in a baseball park? The ballpark is warm and comfortable. It's outdoors and affords a perfect opportunity for free expression. Where else can a guy walk in and call someone making $100,000 anything he wants, practically to his face, without being answered back?

Vulgar language

"Some of the things I heard the fans say to me from the stands in San Francisco and Los Angeles I just couldn't believe. I've heard vulgar language in my life, but nothing like this. In San Francisco, I went back to catch a fly ball and an ice cube was thrown at me. Then came the language. I thought maybe I was getting it because I beat out Bobby Bonds in the MVP, or because Harrelson comes from right across the way (Hayward, Calif.). Then in Los Angeles, I'm playing leftfield, there are 38,000 people there and this one group of 20 guys keep yelling 'Rose, Rose, bleep Rose!' So loud, you can hear it in our dugout all the way down near home plate. Later they begin throwing things. Ice, garbage, a whiskey bottle and a big firecracker. In San Diego, it was so bad the first night we were there, Sparky Anderson told me to wear my helmet in the field, and I did.

"Boos are part of the game," Rose concedes. "You don't mind them so much, but some of the guys sit there all night and say things about your wife and your mother that nobody in the world can take. How is a man supposed to concentrate when he hears things like that? I went 0 for 13 in those three games in Los Angeles. I found myself playing half out of position. One thing I want to emphasize —it's never ALL the fans. Ninety-eight per cent of the fans in Los Angeles are great. They stand up and clap when I go out to my position. But those other two per cent...absolutely unbelievable."

Pete Rose isn't a complainer.

If he complains, there's good reason, and if Watergate is responsible for much of this, which it seems to be, then that's bad. Very bad.

Richard Nixon loves baseball and used to come out to the ballpark. No more. Do you wonder why?

McGriff leads Tuborg field into qualifying today at RIR

RIVERSIDE — Hershel McGriff, at 46, one of the oldest active auto race drivers, heads a list of 60 entries who will be on hand today at Riverside International Raceway when qualifying begins for the California 100 next Sunday.

The California 100 will be part of a classic doubleheader on next Sunday's card that features the Tuborg 400 Grand National race for an $80,000 jackpot, as well.

Riverside's 2.62 mile, eight turn road course, has been a particular favorite for McGriff. He opened the current racing season by winning his third Permatex 200 and is the defending champion in the California 100.

Last year McGriff piloted his 1969 Olympia Chevelle to a narrow victory over Simi Valley's Ron Hornaday, Sunnymead's Roy Bleckert, Ivan Baldwin of Highland and Ron Esau, San Diego. All four have again, filed entries for next week's race.

McGriff, a lumberman in Bridal Viel, Ore., when he is not racing weekends, is a former winner of the Mexican Road Race and a frequent visitor to the winner's circle in Grand National West competition.

Also entered in the California 100 is veteran Clem Proctor, of Paramount, one of the most dominant drivers in Riverside's sportsman events over the past five years. Proctor drives a 1968 Ford Torino.

Among those expected to take qualifying runs today to determine the 40-man starting grid are the Esau brothers Ronald and Larry from San Diego Danny (Duke) Dunn, Riverside, Ray Johnstone, San Bernardino and Don Puskarich, Garden Grove.

Practice begins today at 9 a.m. with qualifying starting at 1 p.m. Race time for the California 100 next week is set for 11 a.m. with the Tuborg 400 following at 1 p.m.

Tickets for the doubleheader classic can be purchased at all Ticketron and Liberty agencies and at Riverside Raceway.

Wohlhuter enters AAU meet

LOS ANGELES — World record holder Rick Wohlhuter and three of the most accomplished distance runners in the world have been added to the field for the 86th annual National AAU Track & Fiepd Championships at UCLA's Drake Stadium June 21-22.

New Zealand stars Rod Dixon and Dick Quax, along with Irelands's Neil Cusack, the winner of this year's Boston Marathon, will also run in the meet, which is being sponsored by the Los Angeles Times with proceeds going to youth activities in Southern California.

Wohlhuter, a 1972 Olympian, holds he world's record at 880 yards (1:44.6) and is the No. 1 ranked half-miler in the world.

The 25-yard old Chicago insurance man will be gunning for Marcello Fiascanaro's world record at 800 meters (1:43.7) at the Nationals. In his last outdoor appearance in Los Angeles, Wohlhuter ran a 1:43.9 at the Coliseum to set the 800 meter world mark, but Italy's Fiascanaro claimed the world mark a month later in Europe.

Dixon, the No.3 ranked miler in the world last year, and a bronze medal winner at 1500 meters in the 1972 Olympics, should prove to be a formidable foe for America's young milers led by world indoor record holder Tony Waldrop of North Carolina.

The 23-year old Dixon lost only one race during the 1973 season, running a 3:37.3 1500 meters at Oslo behind Filbert Bayi of Tanzania. His personal best at the distance was recorded last February at the Commonwealth Games when he ran 3:33.9, again behind Bayi.

Quax was ranked No. 5 in the world at 1500 meters in 1973 at 1500 meters and No. 2 at 5000 meters. His lifetime best at 5000 meters the distance he will run at the AAU Meet, is 12:18.4 at Stockholm in '73.

Cusack, a student at East Tennessee State, will compete at 10,000 meters. His Boston Marathon win was only his second attempt ever at that distance.

Other entries already announced by meet director Glenn Davis include Waldrop and Marty Liquori in the 1500 meters, New Zealander John Walker in the 800, Commonwealth Games gold medalist Dic Tayler in the 10,000 meters and a remach in the 100 meters between Steve Williams of San Diego State, the No. 1 ranked sprinter in the world in 1973, and Ivory Crockett of the Philadelphia Pioneers, the first man to run the 100 yard dash in 9 seconds flat.

Tickets for the meet are now on sale at the UCLA Athletic Ticket Office, Times Special Events, 212 W. First St., Pacific Stereo, 637 S. Hill St., and all Mutual Ticket Agencies.

Oldest homer mark

BOSTON (UPI) — The oldest major league batting record was set in 1894 when Bobby Lowe of the Boston Braves became the first man to hit four home runs in a single game.

Battle continues for NASCAR lead

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Four-time NASCAR champion Richard Petty and Cale Yarborough, a winner here in January, resume their Winston Cup Grand National point battle next Sunday.

The scene will be the $80,000 Tuborg 400 at the Riverside International Raceway.

In last Sunday's World 600 at Charlotte, N.C., Petty finished second to David Pearson to move ahead of Yarborough with 987.155 points. Yarborough, who came in 11th in the longest race on the Grand National stock car circuit, has 952.835 points.

However, the 33-year-old Timmonsville, S.C., veteran holds the money lead with $124,770 this year to Petty's $115,635.

In the Western Winston 500 at Riverside five months ago, Yarborough, driving a Junior Johnson-prepared Chevrolet, edged Petty's STP Dodge by just three seconds.

The two stock car rivals have taken nine of the 13 Grand National races this year. Yarborough, who has never won the national title, has captured five events and Petty four.

Pearson and Bobby Allison are the only other winners on the 1974 NASCAR circuit.

In addition to Riverside, Yarborough has scored victories at Bristol, Atlanta, Martinsville and Dover. Petty's wins were at Daytona, Rockingham, North Wilkesboro and Nashville.

Petty's Grand National career victory total now stands at 158, more than twice the number of any other driver in NASCAR history.

It's Blalock vs. 15 men in celeb tennis tourney

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Janie Blalock, a touring golf pro, has been working on her tennis game in preparation for the fourth annual Dewar's Sports Celebrity tennis tournament June 3-4.

All the other 15 entrants are men, including seven pro football stars. One of them will be drawn as Miss Blalock's partner for the round robin doubles competition.

"When I was at Rollins College, I played golf and tennis and almost chose tennis as a career," said Janie. "I think I can play tennis as well as any of these men."

No big advance sale

Rose back to N.Y.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pete Rose thinks, "they'll never forget it there."

But the New York Mets fans seem to be less than overwhelmed about the return of "Charley Hustle" to New Yorks Shea Stadium for the first time since his celebrated fight with Bud Harrelson in the National League playoffs last season.

"Theres been no big advance sale," said business manager James K. Thomson Thursday for the Mets' game against the Cincinnati Reds on Monday night.

The Reds are here Monday and Tuesday night and then, after an off day on Wednesday, they also play on Thursday afternoon.

"We feel we have good fans and we expect a peaceful game," Thomson said. But he didn't want to comment on any queries about whether extra police were being assigned to the game.

Rose and Harrelson met for the first time on the field since last year in Cincinnati last week when the Reds played at Riverfront Stadium. Harrelson was booed by the Cincinnati fans but there were no incidents.

While Harrelson has been getting almost no reaction from fans around the league, Rose has been the target off boo - birds in several cities—and was the target of ice cubes in San Francisco.

The fight took place in the third game of the playoffs last year when Rose barreled into Harrelson at second—Harrelson insisted Rose threw an elbow at him—and the two players started scuffling.

Wayne Garrett of the Mets came running from third and jumped and Rose's back and the two benches quickly emptied.

The Shea Stadium fans were enraged and the fans in left field showered Rose with paper and litter. But when one fan tossed a whiskey bottle at Rose, manager Sparky Anderson pulled his team off the field. The Mets had to send a delegation to left field, including Willie Mays and Tom Seaver, to pacify the fans before the game could continue.

Rose hit a game-winning homer in the fourth game of the playoffs and held his right fist clenched in the air as he circled the bases.

He was also booed vociferously throughout the game and the fans brought many signs— several of which couldn't be printed in a family newspaper.

The booing continued in the fifth game and Rose was on base when the game, which the Mets' won, ended and he made a dash to the dugout as fans engulfed the field. Some Reds' officials and their wives were overrun in the melee.

Rose, who hit .338 last year when he was named the National League's Most Valuable Player, has been slumping and the the booing he's been getting seems to be bothering him.

"What do you tell your kid when he asks you why they're booing you?" Rose asks. "It takes some of the fun out of the game."

California stays no. 1 for fishing

LONG BEACH — California remains the undisputed fishing capital of the nation, leading all states in numbers of licensed sport fishermen.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service reported that California last year accounted for nearly 10 percent of all fishermen in the country, topping second-place Texas by 600,000. California issued 2,199,190 fishing licenses during the year.

Other leading states and the numbers of paid fishing license holders were: Texas, 1,599,905; Minnesota, 1,465,501; Wisconsin, 1,395,493; and Michigan, 1,076,982.

California ranked fifth during the year among states in hunting licenses with 641,319. Pensylvania, the leader had 1,141,385, Texas had 822,968, Michigan 753,808, and New York 652,468. The California Michigan and New York totals all were down from those for the previous year.

MATCH RACE DOUBTFUL — Plans for a winner-take-all match race for $110,000 between the champion quarterhorse mare, Charter Bar, and a 'mystery' gray thoroughbred from the Southwest named Beduino at Los Alamitos in mid-July have apparently fallen through.

Charger Bar's owner, George Allred, and Justo Fernandez, who owns Beduino, reportedly were to put up $50,000 each and Frank Vessels another $10,000 on the track's behalf for the special race.

Allred, however, apparently felt that the match race would interfere with Charger Bar's regular Los Alamitos stakes schedule and, at least for the moment is declining.

Beduino, according to rumors, is unbeaten in 13 match races in the Southwest, numbering among his victims Come Six and Chariwari.

Charger Bar, meanwhile, will now point to the $10,000 Chicado V. Purse on June 7 following her eighth consecutive victory last Monday night.

PENNY ANN SCORES — Horse racing's famous women's libber, Penny Ann Early, reached the winner's circle Monday at Golden Gate.

In the midst of a riding comeback, Penny Ann won a special all-girls exhibition race Memorial Day, guiding Crombie's Lady to an easy five furlong victory.

While the race was a non-wagering affair, it did carry a purse and surprisingly, produced a claim.

Crombies Lady was entered for $2,500 and trainer Charles DeLima haltered the filly for his wife.

DeLima had a busy day Monday at the Northern track. In addition to claiming Crombie's Lady, he also haltered Gemel, runnerup in the seventh race, and saddled the veteran sprinter Kissin George to a victory in the sixth race.

NO DATE CHANGES — The California Horse Racing Board meets Thursday in Inglewood to discuss the state's 1975 racing calendar, and for the first time in years, no major changes are anticipated.

Now that the newer meetings, such as Southern California Racing Association, the Horseman's Quarterhorse session and the Cal-Cap trotting meet are now settled the overall schedule finally falls into place.

About the only discussion point at this juncture is the closing day at Santa Anita and the opener at Hollywood Park in 1975.

SALES PITCH — Hollywood Park officials are busy behind the scenes attempting to lure Kentucky Derby winner Cannonade, Preakness hero Little Current and Florida Derby champion Judger West for the Swaps Stakes for three-year-olds on June 30.

Whether or not they can pull off the coup remains to be seen, but it brings up some fascinating possibilities.

Conditions of the race call for a base purse of $100,000 but should a winner of one of the Triple Crown races enter, then the purse would jump $25,000. If two enter, the ante raises another $25,000.

Interestingly, if the Cannonade and Little Current camps could be sold on jetting out for the Swaps Stakes, they'd have only two weeks to wait before the $150,000 Hollywood Derby comes up.

JOCKEY STAKES — The guessing now begins as to who the 10 riders will be that join Laffit Pincay and Sandy Hawley in the lineup for Hollywood Park's $20,000 All-Star Jockeys Race June 30.

Pincay and Hawley have already been invited for the race as the national money champion and the national dash-winning champion of 1973.

Five riders from the East and five more from the west will be added, based on money-won as of May 31st, with the winner earning $10,000.

The leading candidates at this point from the East are Angel Cordero, Miguel Rivera, Ron Turcotte, Braulio Baeza and Jacinto Vasquez while the Western possibilities include Bill Shoemaker, Alvaro Pineda, Don Pierce, Fernando Toro and Howard Grant.

Horses and post positions will be drawn by lot.

BIG RACING WEEKEND — Southern California's horse players were busy on three fronts over the long Memorial Day Weekend with Hollywood Park, Los Alamitos and Caliente all in action.

More than 164,000 fans wagered over $14 million at the three tracks, with Hollywood Park the obvious leader.

The Inglewood track lured 116,818 for its Saturday-Sunday-Monday programs with $12.6 million passing through the mutuel machines.

Los Alamitos drew 16,636 for its Saturday and Monday night cards good for a handle of $1.3 million. Caliente, meanwhile, attracted 30,000 with wagering right at the three-quarter million mark, for programs Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

NO 'BUTE' TO HELP — Judger's disappointing fifth-place finish in Monday's $160,000 Jersey Derby didn't come as a surprise to most veteran horsemen.

Judger, like so many thoroughbreds today, is accustomed to using Butazolidin, legalized in many states — but not in New Jersey where Monday's race was run.

So, Judger went into the race without the drug, in complete contrast to his impressive wins in the Blue Grass in Kentucky and the Florida Derby where, by law, he was allowed to use 'Bute.'

Pierce rode high-weighted Quack to an impressive victory in the $100,000 Californian at Hollywood Park, to register his 48th stakes victory at the Inglewood track and move into fifth-place on the all-time HP list.

The family mare, Chatty Connie, dropped a by filly by Knight in Armour at the Pierce's '395' ranch located near Escondido. The foal was the sixth this year at the Pierce ranch. Don's wife. Norma, supervised the proceedings.

Later in the day, Don's 15-year-old won a third-place trophy in the All-High School-Moto-cross motorcycle competition at Carlsbad in the overall '125' class.

NFL is considering further expansion

NEW YORK (UPI) — The question of further expansion will be one of the major topics on the agenda this week when the 26 National Football League owners gather here for a meeting opening Tuesday.

The threat presented by the new World Football League and the upcoming negotiations with the NFL Players Association will also get high priority from the owners before they wind up the meetings on Thursday.

There are also several minor procedural, rules clarification and bookkeeping items on the agenda.

But the question that interests the fans most is whether the owners will agree on more expansion at this meeting after hearing a report from the expansion committee.

At their last meeting in April, the owners surprised many observers by adding only one team—Tampa—for 1976 at a cost of $16 million. It had generally been assumed that they would add two teams. But with all the problems on the horizon, the owners are becoming more cautious about expansion.

The city officials of Memphis were enraged at being bypassed by the NFL and then agreed to rent their stadium to a World Football League team —after first refusing to let a WFL team use the stadium.

The other cities in contention are Seattle, which is constructing a domed stadium, and Phoenix. Honolulu has been mentioned but is considered a longshot.

Although an NFL franchise is a small business as businesses go, an NFL franchise is supposed to be worth many millions to a city and the stakes are high. The chamber of commerce in Tampa is already promoting the fact that its area was picked for the 27th franchise.

At one time, there were thoughts that the NFL might expand to 30 teams in 1976 but now the owners are having second thoughts about such a move. Adding four teams would dilute their TV revenue and their rosters—at a time when most teams are [illegible]ing playes to the new World Football League.

The WFL, of course, will be discussed and the owners will decide how they're going to cope with the challenge of the new league.

Up to this point, two NFL teams—Cincinnati and Dallas— have filed court suits against the new league for signing its players. Dallas won in a state suit but Cincinnati lost in federal court and that decision will take precedence.

It is generally believed there is no way the owners can stop the WFL from signing its players to future contracts.

Of course, the owners will also discuss their position in regard to the negotiations with the players. They made a "good will gesture" this week when they decided to pick up the health insurance premiums for the players from June 1 to July 15 at a cost of almost $60,000.

The two sides will start meeting every Tuesday - Wednesday-Thursday the week of June 9th—and none of the major issues have been resolved.

Ratte named 'Hens' MVP

CLAREMONT — Pierre Ratte of Pitzer College was named the Most Valuable Player of the 1974 Pomona-Pitzer tennis team at the annual banquet and awards ceremonies held recently.

Pierre, a transfer from Fordham University, was a strong addition to this the Sagehen team, playing in the number two singles and number two doubles positions. The sophomore netter was victorious in 60 per cent of his 49 matches during the season.

He represented Pomona-Pitzer at the Ojai Tournament, the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Tournament, and the NAIA District III Tournament.

Tom Mahrer, a Pomona College junior, was elected the 1975 team captain, replacing graduating senior and four-year letterman, Rip Rapson.

Pomona College junior, Loren Laine, received the Most Improved Player award for this year.

DFG reports record haul of anchovies

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Commercial fishermen in California landed a record 121,579 tons of raw anchovies during the 1973-74 season, the state Department of Fish and Game reported recently.

Department figures compiled after the May 15 closing showed landings in the north totaled 11,276 tons out of a quota of 15,000 tons and in the south 110,303 out of a 120,000 ton quota.

The California Fish and Game Commission increased the annual quota in the southern area from 100,000 tons after fishermen approached the quota for the first time in the fishery's history. The northern quota was also increased, from 10,000 tons.

The department said last season the commercial fleet landed a total of 75,039 tons, 72,687 in the south and 2,352 in the north.

Closing price to fishermen was $41.25 per ton, down from the season's peak this year of $57.50, the department said.

Angels revise format at open tryout camp

ANAHEIM — The California Angels will use a revised format for their second annual tryout camp at Anaheim Stadium as a result of last year's overflow response.

High school graduates through age 23 with last names beginning with letters A through N are invited to try out before Angels scouts Friday, June 21. Those with last names beginning with O through Z are invited Saturday, June 22.

Players should report by 9 a.m. for registration on their respective date. Workouts will begin at 10 a.m. Players will be judged on throwing, fielding, hitting and running ability. They should bring their own glove, shoes, hat and uniform or other suitable outfit. American Legion players must have a written permission slip from their coach to attend the tryout.

More than 700 young men showed up for the first day of the 1973 tryout camp. None was signed to a contract at that time but several were selected later in the January free agent draft.

The Angels currently boast two examples of on-the-spot successes. Pitcher Jimmy Stewart is on the Triple A farm club in Salt Lake City. He was signed at a tryout camp in Shreveport, La. He is considered a major league prospect but has been hampered by injuries this spring.

Infielder Ronnie Franks is on the Class A team in Salinas for his second season. He was signed in 1973 after a tryout at Sawtelle Field in West Los Angeles.

Angels director of scouting Walter Shannon and west coast scorting supervisor Al Kubski will conduct the tryouts. Several local scouts will assist.

Aztecs host tough foe

LOS ANGELES — The hottest team in the North American Soccer League, the Los Angeles Aztecs, will try to notch its sixth consecutive league victory against the Miami Toros at 3 p.m. today at East Los Angeles College Stadium.

Miami has lost only once in five games and is contending for the Eastern Division title against defending NASL champion Philadelphia.

The match features two outstanding offensive teams. Douglas McMillan leads the Aztec forward line which is the highest-scoring in the NASL while last year's most valuable player, speedster Warren Archibald, spearheads the Miami offense. The 27-year-old Trinidad forward scored 12 goals last season.

He also played on the Trinidad national team last year which also sported Aztec starters Tony Douglas and Ramon Moraldo.

Miami's goalie, Osvaldo Toriani, is among the best in the NASL. He currently ranks third with a 1.20 goals against average, allowing only six goals through five games.

He was the goalkeeper for Independiente during several seasons when that Argentine Club was South American champion. He allowed Pele only a single goal during four games against Santos and the legendary soccer superstar.

"There's no doubt that this is the toughest team we will have to face at home," says Aztec head coach Alex Perolli. "Miami was one of the finest teams in the league last year and already they're off to a fast start.

"It's going to be our hardest game so far and it'll show us how good we really can be when we have to. Miami has a very fast team and any good, fast team is always dangerous."

The Aztecs will present a three-game State Cup Soccer championship preliminary program. Montebello Homenetmen and the San Pedro Yugoslaves will battle for the Southland State Cup championship at 12:45 p.m. The teams are perennial powerhouses in the Greater Los Angeles Soccer League.

The State Cup program will open at 10 a.m. with the Branford Rangers of the Goldent State Soccer League meeting Veracruz of the California Soccer League in a Division Three under-15 Southland State Cup title. At 11 a.m., the Branford Rangers and the Celtic Flyers of the Pacific Soccer League will meet in an under-11 battle for the Southern California championship.

Sugar Ray Robinson and members of his youth foundation will be guests of the Aztecs for Sugar Ray Robinson Youth Foundation Day Sunday.

New World Football League set to open training camps

NEW YORK (UPI) — The World Football League, the third league to challenge the National Football League since the end of World War II, has opened training camps for its first season this year.

Ten of the 12 teams will have their practice camps in operation before the end of this week.

Three teams, the California Sun in Fullerton, Calif., the Honolulu Hawaiians in Riverside, Calif. and the Houston Texans at the University of Houston opened their training camps Saturday.

The New York club opens Sunday at LaSalle Academy on Long Island and two more clubs—Florida (Orlando) at Harrisonburg, Va. and Chicago at Lake Forest, Ill.—start on Monday.

The Jacksonville Sharks start on Tuesday at Stetson University at Deland, Fla., and two more teams—Philadelphia at Glassboro, N.J., and Portland at the University of Portland—open on Friday with Memphis tenatively set for Senatobia, Miss on Saturday.

Waiting until the following week to start are the Detroit team at Ypsilanti, Mich., on June 9 and the Birmingham club at Marion, Ala. on June 10.

The league starts a 20-game season on July 10 with no exhibition games. Most games will be played on Wednesday nights and there will be a nationally televised game every Thursday night. The season runs until the day after Thanksgiving when the league title game—dubbed the "World Bowl" is scheduled.

The Honolulu team plays its home games on Sunday, creating quite a road trip for clubs that will play a West Coast team on Wednesday and then fly to Honolulu for a game three days later.

The other two leagues to challenge the NFL in the last three decades were the All-America Conference, which folded when the NFL absorbed its best teams after the 1949 season, and the AFL, which started in 1960 and got the NFL to agree to a merger by 1966.

Unlike the AFL, which competed with the NFL for college talent, the WFL has concentrated on signing NFL players to future contracts.

Except for a few players like Charley Harraway, most of these players won't be available until 1975. So, the WFL will have to try to win public acceptance this year mainly with unknown players.

The new league says it has over a thousand players under contract but most of them were cut by NFL teams in the past or were never even drafted.

The NFL, which is currently involved in contract negotiations with the Players Association, is not scheduled to start its regular season until September although exhibition games begin late July—if there's no strike.

KMPC personalities to play Angel wives

LOS ANGELES — With the emphasis on laughs instead of finesse, radio station KMPC personalities will again play the wives of California Angel players in a softball ame at Anaheim Stadium on June 29.

The 6 p.m. contest will precede the Angel-Texas game, and KMPC listeners will again be able to purchase seats to the "double header" on a two-for-the-price-of-one basis.

Last year's Spouses vs. Louses contest ended in defeat for the KMPC team, after supplying hilarity for the more than 25,000 fans in attendance of the Big A.

Angel players' wives play their husbands positions, and have already gone into training for the return match.

Schmautz stays with Bruins

BOSTON UPI) — Bobby Schmautz, rumored to be heading for Vancouver of the World Hockey Association next season, has signed a contract with the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League.

Schmautz, 29, reportedly had a tentative agreement with the Vancouver Blazers when he was acquired by the Bruins in February from the Vancouver Canucks.

World doesn't seem quite ready yet for World Team Tennis concept

NEW YORK (UPI) — World Team Tennis says it is ready for the world, but the world doesn't seem ready for World Team Tennis.

The ambitious and imaginative concept which has lured some of the game's brightest stars—present, past and future —into its ranks, has gained great attention from the tennis establishment, from the media, and from the players who are guaranteed their money before stepping on a court.

But ominously, in four weeks of WTT existence, the world does not seem ready for the new game in town.

Attendance through May 26 for 86 league games was 208,571 for a sobering average of 2,414 —an average bolstered by a few respectable 8,000 crowds but an but an average also decimated by a May 12 Chicago total of 300 and a lip-biting, strict count of 556 in New York for the Sets against the Baltimore Banners, a match which paired Nikki Pilic against the Banners' headliner, Jimmy Connors.

There is no sign of panic, though, among the front men and women for the new League.

Commissioner George MacCall professes to see signs of progress, slight signs, he admits, but progress nevertheless. He believes that the almost three week break in competition, from June 16 to July 6, offers WTT time in which to make certain provisions for the rest of the season and for the years to come.

The break in play will permit all WTT players to compete at Wimbledon and the attendant publicity of their play their will be an asset to the league when it resumes play, MacCall thinks.

"I'm most delighted," he said, "about the attitude of the players. I'll admit that some of our guys and gals had some reservations about the new concept, but they've all taken to it. The younger kids can't get over playing against the big names before a couple of thousand fans. In tournament play, they'd meet the big boys in early rounds on the outer courts at Forest Hills or Wimbledon before maybe 200 people. Don't tell these kids that 2,000 people isn't a crowd."

Nor is there is sign of panic— yet—among the 16 franchise holders. They went into the venture with money belts and eyes open. No one sold them a bill of goods. They had been told they would take a financial lacing, but that if the concept proved valid after four or five years of losses, the league would make it, make it worldwide, and make it big.

Led by the high-priestess of women's lib in sport—Billie Jean King—the league believes it can cultivate a new tennis fan, disguised as the fan who watches baseball, hockey, football, boxing, basketball. That is the same fan who comes to be entertained, to participate vicariously and sometimes violently in the doings of a team or individual with whom they can identify.

Let 'em yell, WTT says of the crowd. Shout when you want, heckle when you want, break the concentration of a man or woman serving at match point, just as you try to shatter the nerves of a pitcher when the count is 3-2, bases full, in the bottom of the ninth.

That aspect has had a mixed reaction from spectators and players alike. The old line tennis afficianado does not take kindly to bad manners either on court or in the stands and the players, the older ones like Ken Rosewall, are up the wall when heckled by the opposing team's "bench jockeys."

Is the team concept going to develop new players for the international circuit and the traditional major events of the sport?

Playing against the likes of John Newcombe for one set in a team match scarcely equates with fighting a Newcombe over five sets in the early rounds of a major tournament, the veterans say.

"What do I think of streaking?"

I think streaking is Okay if they don't go to far. Streaking is better than swallowing goldfish or seeing how many people you can stuff in a telephone booth. They shouldn't streak around business buildings. They can streak in parks or campuses. Its even sort of funny. In the newspaper you don't have to read about watergate, energy crises, Nixon, or the war. I don't want any laws that say people can not streak. They shouldn't walk in stores in the nude or just walk in the nude. Streaking and walking in the nude are two different things. Streaking is running a short distance from one place to the other. Walking in the nude is walking for hours. People who don't agree with you can go to nudist camps. But you heard what I think of streaking.

The End.
Mark J. Miller

Children's viewpoint I'm entering your contest about streaking this week

I think streaking is a fine thing to do, there's nothing wrong with it. Take Adam and Eve for example. They ran around naked and weren't ashamed of it and that's just what streakers do and everyone stares and points. I think you could classify it as a sport. I think a game could be made of it. I don't see why some people say its so bad I don't think it is. There problem if you want to show off your body then its great that your not scared to show it. You should be proud that you have a body to show. So stand up and streak Americans! Well have to go now or I'll be late for my streaking appointment.

See you later and Happy Streaking.

Jill Ocepek
Pomona,
Age 11

Dear Progress bulletin,
What Do I Think of Streaking?

I wouldn't do it, because it would make me feel weird. If I saw someone I would probably laugh or gigle or make fun of the person that's doing it. Why do they do it? To show off, or there sick in the head. My friend saw a little boy about 14 or 17 years old streaking at school on the grass.

Mary E. White
Pomona,
Age 9½

I think it's silly. It's not something horrid, but it is crazy. What I'd like to know is why the people streak. I guess it's up to the individual. It's sort of like hot pants. They came and went. So this probably will too. But, while it lasts, let the streakers have fun.

Donna Guisado
Pomona,
Age 10½

What I Think Of Streaking

I think that going from point "A" to point "B" naked isn't really such a big thing. I mean so what? No clothes. That's how we were born so doesn't it seem like it would be natural? The fact that it offends some people doesn't mean it's wrong. Clothes are made for protection against weather and for style so if they don't want or need Protection, why should he be forced to wear clothing? I think the person who uses streaking as a form of recreation and exercise should be allowed to do so if he or she uses responsible judgment.

Having an accident prevention summer takes concentration

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Family Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bone up on accident prevention to keep harm out of summer fun.

When you're breaking out the sun tan lotion, swimsuits, barbecue gear and such, resolve to do your very best to avoid the hospital emergency room and, at the extreme, the mortuary.

Consider:

—More than 200,000 fingers and toes are amputated by power mowers.

—More than 300 of all ages drown in backyard swimming pools.

—Carelessness at the grill results in countless burns, ranging from minor to severe, including those resulting in death.

Ben Harris, Recreation Safety Specialist in the Public Safety Department of the National Safety Council (NSC in an interview listed areas of extra-special concern to the safety specialists this summer. He also gave tips for basic safety-consciousness.

In the backyard pool, skull fractures and broken necks are increasing, leaving many victims paralyzed. The most severe cases involve both legs, both arms—everything below the neck.

Harris said this often is due to going down the pool slide headfirst. The slides are designed for feetfirst posture. Other fractured skulls and necks, including those resulting in fatalities, are due to forgetting the all-time prohibition—diving into water that is too shallow in lake, river, backyard or community pool.

Previously a swimming coach for 12 years, Harris said hyperventilating before diving in for an underwater swim is a practice to be discouraged.

The swimmer takes many breaths and fills his system with lots more oxygen than ordinarily needed. This sees him through the underwater swimming longer than if he did not hyperventilate first.

"I believe that most of the unexplained drownings of excellent swimmers is linked to this practice," Harris said.

"When a swimmer hyperventilates the usual warning signs to breathe are not there. He can black out without warning and drown."

In the backyard pools other troubles develop from diving from the ladders into above-ground pools. Harris said some of these pools are two to three feet deep. No one knows if three feet is too shallow for diving.

"There is a controversy over how deep pools should be for diving purposes," he said.

To come up with a solution, the National Swimming Pool Institute is supporting research at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, Mass.

"In general," Harris said, "diving should be done only in an area designed for diving."

Mini-bikes, those two-wheeled motorized teeny "motorcyles", also concern the accident fighters at NSC.

"I dont have specific figures," Harris said, "but a lot of kids are getting killed on these things. It is illegal to use them on the streets and they are not allowed on sidewalks but the kids use the streets and sidewalks anyway.

"A lot of little riders are getting hit by cars."

To parents who might be pestered for a mini-bike, Harris would say—try to forget it, unless you have a private place where the bike can be used, and only after the rider has had adequate instruction.

A further area of new concern involves danger of death from carbon monoxide poisoning—when on a rainy or cool day the family chef decides to bring the grill indoors. If the cooking area is not properly ventilated fumes accumulate and death results.

If you think the garage is a better bet, keep the door raised and the windows open. The practice of bringing the grill in under any roof also escalates the danger of injury from burning accidents.

Each year some fatal accidents are linked to drinking too much while boating, swimming, horsing around on the swimpool deck, grilling or even trying to use a powermower — when under the influence.

Watch the drinking when doing any of these things.

A basic primer on summer safety goes like this:

—POWER MOWER ACCIDENTS. Due in large part to impromper mowing practices. Contact with a mower's moving parts is a major cause of injuries. The Outdoor Power Equipment Institute (OPEI) urges power mower operators to follow safety rules found in the owner's manual. Safety rules include:

Start the mower engine with feet and hands well away from the blades or other rotating parts.

Before removing the grass catcher or unclogging the chute, shut the motor off and wait until blades come to a full stop.

Know your controls. Learn how to stop machine fast in an emergency.

Stop the engine and disconnect spark plug wire before checking or working on blades.

Wear sturdy shoes, not tennis or sneaks. Never, never mow in barefeet.

Keep children under 13 away from mower. Insist children and pets be indoors or otherwise out of range of any stones, bits of wire or wood the mower might pick up and shoot with the velocity of a bullet.

—COCKOUT SAFETY. Do not pour flammable liquids on the coals that are dying. The heat rides the trail of liquid into the can and causes contents to explode in your hands. Use all flame starters according to directions. Watch children around the grill. It is best to keep them a distance away. Also avoid horseplay while grilling. This is to keep from being involved in burning accidents.

—BACKYARD POOLS. There are four million and an additional 300,000 will be installed this summer. Each one needs to be fenced or otherwise made off limits for children and-or others who may be tempted to take a swim without permission. The fencing also keeps curious little children from falling in and drowning.

The National Safety Council Guidelines for keeping accidents from the home pool scene include:

—Don't mix water and electricity. You can get electrocuted. That means rotisseries, portable record players, radios and other electric things should be kept away from pool.. —Keep pool and apron clear of glasses, bottles and other things that can cause cutting injuries.

—See that everyone who is swimming knows how. If non-swimmers want to join the fun, keep them in the shallow part and under supervision.

Attention, brides

The Progress-Bulletin Women's Department looks forward to printing the stories of your engagement and wedding.

Please pick up engagement and wedding forms at the newspaper office and return them with the picture you wish used.

Engagement forms are not accepted if they are received less than six weeks before the wedding, and wedding forms should be returned within two weeks after the wedding with a picture of the bride only.

Snapshots, polaroid and color pictures are not acceptable for wedding pictures, although most color photos will be accepted for engagement announcements.

Butler-Sprague vows heard in Long Beach

MRS. ELMER BUTLER

Miss Kathryn Louise Sprague and Elmer Alvin Butler were united in marriage in a Saturday afternoon ceremont at the Lakewood Village Community Church in Long Beach.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Sprague of Paramount was given in marriage by her father during the double-ring rites read by the Rev. Roger Lautzenhiser.

She wore a floor-length gown of blue batiste over blue taffeta fashioned with a square neckline and accented with white lace around the waist and on the puffed sleeves. She wore a white garden hat and carried a cascade of white carnations, pink baby rosebuds and baby's breath.

Mrs. James I. Harvey III was matron of honor. Kristen LeVier was flower girl.

Edwin S. Butler served as his brother's best man. They are sons of Mrs. Marie Butler of Pomona.

Miss Nancy J. Hyden attended the guest book at the reception at Casas Del Patio recreation center in Paramount.

After a two-weeks honeymoon in Mexico, Mr. and Mrs. Butler will reside in Pomona.

Dr. Bellew to address society

"Newer Concepts in Nutrition" will be the topic for the June 11 meeting of the Pomona Valley Chapter of the American Nutrition Society.

The 7:30 p.m. meeting in Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association, Foothill and Indian Hill Boulevards, Claremont, is open to the public.

The speaker will be Dr. Bernard A. Bellew, who is now serving as president and medical director of the International Molecular Institute in Riverside.

The center was established for research and cure of degenerative diseases such as arthritis, coronary heart disease, emphysema and peripheral vascular diseases.

He is the co-author of a book, "Diet Dynamics" and many articles in magazines and newspapers.

Dr. Bellew has served in the Navy and as the police, fire and floor surgeon at Los Angeles Receiving Hospital as well as on the staff of Children's Hospital, Queen of the Angels Hospital, Los Angeles General Hospital and others. He has taught at USC and other schools. He is widely known as a lecturer.

This is the last meeting of the nutrition society until fall.

Baptist Women set party

The American Baptist Women of Bethany Baptist Church have planned a birthday party Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the church fellowship hall.

The usual luncheon has been replaced with an evening event for the benefit of working women.

Mrs. Donald Brandt, who teaches eight-week courses on "Fascinating Womanhood" from the book by Helen B. Andelin, will discuss the subject. She is a minister's wife, a registered nurse and the mother of three children.

The revealing of Secret Sisters will take place along with the selection for next year.

The birthday cake will be presented by Mrs. Gary Clayman to commemorate the event.

The meditation will be given by Mrs. Stanley Chapin and Mrs. Martin Griss will play piano selections.

Hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. William Cherry and Mrs. Troy Blackmon.

Upland Jrs. install, honor woman

Installation of new officers for Upland Junior Woman's Club was held at Beef 'n' Barrel Restaurant in Pomona.

Mrs. Larry Diess, San Bernardino District president, installed the officers.

Taking office were: Mmes. Don Pederson, president; Andy Bergen, first vice president; Brian Kruger, second vice president; Frank Gant, third vice president; Rusty Cushing, recording secretary; Bruce Nichols, corresponding secretary; James Gray, treasurer; Thomas Carlton, parliamentarian; Phillip Plotkin, press chairman.

Mrs. David Troje was named Junior of the Year by members of Upland Junior Woman's Club.

The title is given not only for work as a club member, but also for a woman's attitude, friendliness and how she presents herself as a junior to other groups.

Mrs. Troje has worked in all Junior projects during her three-year membership in the club. She has been conservation chairman, press chairman and third vice president.

PRINTED PATTERN
House of Branell

Popular vest-jacket

HEAVENLY FOR HOT WEATHER — the sleeveless vest-jacket tops its own long or short-sleeved shirt and pants. The lean cardigan lines are casually tied at the waist above the straight-legged pants. Thanks to an invisible front zipper, the pants fit absolutely smoothly over the stomach. Wear all three parts together, or wear the scarf-neckline shirt (see small sketch) over or tucked into the pants. It would be beautiful in sheer voile. Note also the short-sleeved shirt version. Branell designed the Original of Printed Pattern M350 in polyester crepe. Think of jersey, pongee, Dacron-cotton, linen, double knits as well.

Printed Pattern M350 is available in Misses' Sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, 16, 18. Size 12 (bust 34) sleeveless pantsuit requires 2⅜ yards 60-inch fabric; blouse 2¼ yards 45-inch.

Please send $1.25 for Printed Pattern M350 to Progress-Bulletin, Pattern Department, P.O. Box 59, Old Chelsea Station, New York, N.Y. 10011. (Add 25c for each pattern for First Class Mail and Special Handling.) Please Print plainly YOUR NAME, ADDRESS with ZIP, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

PVCH Auxiliary

Installation scheduled

To highlight its final meeting of the season, the Pomona Valley Community Hospital Auxiliary will install officers for the 1974-75 term.

Mrs. Walter Jones, a past president, will install the officers. They are Mrs. Gerald Rathbun, president; Miss Edith Frances Eells, vice president; Mrs. Delwin Ludwick, recording secretary; Miss Virginia Parker, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Elmer Juenke, financial secretary; Mrs. Harry C. Kinne Jr., treasurer; Mrs. V.D. Farrand and Mrs. Chester Rappe,. directors.

The program will be presented by Mrs. Frank Herkelrath, soprano solist, and Mrs. David Naftel, accompanist.

Reservations for the lucheon should be made with Connie Gildersleeve, 595-3849, or Kay Keltz, 986-4960. Persons needing transporation to the country club from the hospital are asked to contact Pat Spear, 624-3683, or Gloria Soupkoff, 626-1983.

At the last general meeting of the auxiliary, Mrs. Louise Pavey, a member of the PVCH Charity Fund Committee, presented a check for $1,100 from hospital employes to the Auxiliary Sick Baby Fund. She was introduced by Mrs. Wilma Temple, director of volunteers.

Mrs. Margaret Balch, president of the auxiliary, announced that the group had purchased three more pieces of equipment for the neonatal nursery at the hospital. They consisted of a heart monitor and two heart transducers, costing $1,860.

MRS. GERALD RATHBUN

Smoking problems

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: Recently I had to visit several doctors' offices. In each one the patients in the small waiting room were smoking, and in one case the receptionist had her ashtray overflowing. The air was blue with smoke.

"Even though I felt quite well, having to breathe all that smoke annoyed me. It can't be good for patients who are really ill. I do wish you would encourage the use of 'no smoking' signs in doctors' offices. Do you approve?—L.E., Syracuse, N.Y.

I certainly do approve. I have been annoyed, too, by patients and doctors' aides smoking when I have been in small waiting rooms, sometimes for an hour or more as appointments usually don't take place as scheduled (another annoyance which is, I suppose, unavoidable in most cases).

How about doctors' aides being more realistic about the scheduling of appointments? Instead of a firm "2 o'clock," say "I have you down for 2 o'clock, but Im sure the doctor won't be ready until 2:30 if you want to take that into consideration." Many errands can be done in a half-hour, and few people enjoy sitting around doctors' offices unnecessarily. Post cards, please.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: Regarding your column about a lady who puts a 'no smoking' sign on her front door, I wholeheartedly agree with her. Recently I suffered for eight hours on a flight from the Canary Islands to Philadelphia and nobody cared that I had just completed 25 cobalt treatments and was not supposed to irritate the esophagus area! I wish nonsmokers could get together and really do something!—Mrs. S.S., N. Arlington, N.J."

I have had much mail on this, and I am now myself contemplating putting no smoking signs in my country house which is guarded from the menace of fire only by a volunteer fire company. I never did like smoking in my house but am now getting courage to say so openly.

Church unit schedules meet, tour

Members of Westmont United Methodist Women will meet at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the church parlor before going to the Armstrong Galleries at 11 a.m. David Armstrong will take the members on a tour of the galleries and will lecture on the collection.

No luncheon is planned for that day.

The circle meetings scheduled June 11 are the Susanna Wesley unit meeting with Mrs. Frank Williams, 1749 W. 9th St., at 9:30 a.m., and the Lamplighter group meeting at 8 p.m. in the church parlor.

Turn once

Hamburgers about three quarters to one inch think cook in about eight to 14 minutes over charcoal. Turn them about half way through the cooking period.

Guild charts luncheon

The annual luncheon meeting of the Foothill Guild for the Crippled Children's Society will be Friday noon at the Red Hill Country Club, Cucamonga.

Mrs. Kenneth F. Russell will serve as president for a second term. Others taking office for 1974-75 are Mrs. Robert F. Miller, vice president; Mrs. Leon R. Lott, secretary; Mrs. Ralph E. Gain, treasurer; Mrs. Colin McDonald, hospitality chairman; Mrs. John T. Tomlinson Jr., membership chairman; and Mrs. J.P. Rimer, publicity chairman.

New provisional members for the year will be introduced by membership chairman, Mrs. Robert C. Davidson.

Reservations are due by Wednesday with Mrs. Robert F. Miller, 624-2259.

Training classes to begin

A training class for adults wishing to hold "Five Day Clubs" this summer is scheduled at 2862 Sumner Ave.

Classes will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday of this week from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. with no charge.

Five Day Clubs, a registered name for Child Evangelism Fellowship, are for boys and girls of elementary school age.

The program includes gospel songs, Bible lessons, memorization and a missionary story.

There will also be a training class for teen-agers the last week in June at Corona. Further information may be obtained by calling 622-2680.

Stocks decline during slow holiday week

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rising interest rates and inflation have concerned investors for months and it showed again as stock prices declined in a slow holiday week on the New York Stock Exchange.

There was disappointment when the prime rate —that charged a bank's top-rated commercial customers —held at the record levels of the past two weeks.

There had been signs of a peaking in the rate —now generally at 11 ½ per cent, with one major bank at 11 ¾ —when business loan demand declined the week before and major banks for the first time in weeks did not hike this base lending rate which has climbed from 8 ¾ per cent in mid-March.

However, the Federal Reserve Board reported loan demand up again last week. The Fed has been trying to stem soaring loan demand by means of a tight money policy in an effort to curb inflation, and during the Memorial Day weekend, Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Fed, said the board would not relax its tight money policy.

This caused renewed concern in Wall Street. "Right now, there is a question of whether the Fed has adopted too tight a money policy" said William Nelson, analyst for Moody's Investors Service.

There was a psychological factor in trading during the week, also.

The Dow Jones industrial average, an indicator followed widely by the public, hovered around the 800 level, breaking slightly below it Wednesday when it plunged more than 18 points to its lowest level since Dec. 5, 1973. The Dow, an index of 30 blue-chip stocks, lost 14.48 on the week but closed above the 800 mark at 802.17. Observers were encouraged that the break did not trigger heavy selling but that support developed at what is seen as a "psychological barrier" even by those who do not follow the charts.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, a broader indicator, lost 1.30 to 87.28. The NYSE common stork index dropped 0.67 to 45.92.

Of a total 1,933 issues traded, only 531 closed higher, with 13 at new highs for the year, while 1,137 were lower, with 531 setting new lows during the week.

TURNAROUND IN DETROIT — After years of promoting "big as better," an energy crisis and slumping sales have Detroit's automakers thinking small. This 1975 Ford Granada Ghia was spotted recently as its driver was heading to the test. The car, with all its options, will sell at close to $5,000.

Automakers think small

DETROIT (UPI) — After years of promoting "big is better," an energy crisis and slumping sales have pushed Detroit's automakers into thinking small.

Seven new small cars and two new intermediate models will join the lineup for 1975 along with the three subcompacts and 10 compact models already on the market. New gas-saving six-cylinder engines and smaller V-8s will be offered.

It's all part of Detroit's attempts to change its image in the face of small car competition from foreign automakers and the dramatic shift in the American car-buyer's preference for anything that isn't big.

"The whole thing kind of hit us over the head," mused one industry executive. "Once the shock began to wear off, we decided the small car is here to stay."

The new models due this fall are just a preview of what the industry is planning in the way of minicars and new forms of engines for the rest of the decade. Those cars will start appearing in 1976 and 1977.

Small car luxury

For 1975, Detroit will be trying to sell luxury in a small package.

General Motors, caught with too few small cars in its lineup when service station lines began lengthening last fall, is adding four new small models based on its subcompact Chevrolet Vega. Two are sporty versions of the Vega originally designed with the Wankel rotary engine in mind and the Canadian version of the Vega sold by Pontiac dealers.

Ford, alone of the Big Three with a wide range of compact and subcompact models, adds two more compacts—the Ford Granada and Mercury Monarch that were originally intended to replace the Ford Maverick and Mercury Comet. Instead, they'll be luxury models in the $4,500-$5,000 price range.

American Motors, with 75 per cent of its production already in small cars, will introduce its Pacer in January. A sporty model with a luxury interior, it was originally designed for the rotary engine, but will be offered with a six-cylinder engine until AMC decides to either buy one or build its own.

Chrysler Corp., still two years away from a subcompact model, instead will devote its efforts to two new intermediate models designed for the midsized personal luxury field. Known as the Dodge Charger SE and Chrysler Cordoba, the No. 3 automaker hopes they'll put Chrysler in the field dominated by the Pontiac Grand Prix and Chevrolet Monte Carlo.

Won't be cheap

One thing the new small cars won't be is cheap. The subcompact models with price tags now around $2,500 are coming out of factories so optioned-up that a $3,200 subcompact is not unusual. At about $3,500, the AMC Pacer probably will be the cheapest of the new breed of small cars for 1975.

One main reason for the trend to small cars besides the gasoline crisis is that people have just so much to spend on cars. Once they have their mind set on what options they want and the knowledge the government is forcing others on them, they go to a smaller model to stay within their budget.

"As the things they want and select and the things they don't want but have to take go up in price, the amount of money they have to spend on the car size goes down," observed one industry analyst.

An example of this is the Ford Maverick. About one-quarter go out of the factory with the luxury LDO option, 44 per cent with air conditioning, 76 per cent with the larger engine options and 95 per cent with automatic transmissions. Even the subcompact Pinto is affected with 58 per cent automatic transmissions.

The new sporty Chevrolet, built on the same chassis as the Vega, had been intended as GM's answer to Ford's Mustang II whose sales zoomed after introduction last fall. But problems in developing the Wankel rotary engine will leave the car powered by the conventional four-cylinder or a small V-8 engine.

Ford's Frustration

The sporty subcompact also will be given to the Oldsmobile and Buick Divisions to sell since they have been hit hardest by not having any small cars in the lineup. Pontiac dealers get the Astro, now sold in Canada and differing from the Vega only in its grille and taillight treatments.

GM also is giving its four compact models—the Chevrolet Nova, Pontiac Ventura, Buick Apollo and Oldsmobile Omega— a facelift for 1975. More glass area and a less boxy appearance will be the major changes.

After years of plugging away to shake the image of small cars and low prices, Ford finally gained leverage against GM in the big car market only to find the public's desires changing once again.

"We do get a bit frustrated about it," admitted Norman Krandall, director of Ford's Marketing Research Office. "We spent years beating the drums for our big cars, and got to the point where 60 per cent of our 1973 model sales were from our conventional and luxury lines.

"We were selling a lot of small cars, but we were selling more bigs than smalls—and what happens? We plan for a continued but reasonably gradual increase in our small-car mix, and then the Mideast erupts, and we really have to shift into high gear on small cars."

AMC, a company that shifted into high gear four years ago, will debut its Pacer early next year. All the company's 1975 models will be introducted at the beginning of the year, partly to avoid having to add on costly emission control devices when the other companies do in September.

Built from the same basic frame AMC uses for its small Gremlin and Hornet models, the six-cylinder Pacer has a sharply sloping front hood, a wide pillar behind the door and almost wrap-around glass.

New rules may aid in furniture

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Furniture shopping, at best, a bewildering and expensive experience, now may be a little less confusing—though no less costly—thanks to some new government rules.

Basically the new guidelines say that if a piece of furniture looks like something it isn't — plastic that appears to be oak, for instance, or vinyl that looks like leather —it must carry a tag clearly disclosing that to the buyer.

And perhaps more importantly, the rules are designed to end misleading advertising claims which in the past, for example, have said a bedroom set was available in "pecan, walnut or mahogany" but failed to mention that was the color, not the wood.

Now the advertising must state "walnut color" or fruitwood stain finish" if any reference to wood type is used. Something advertised and tagged as "solid maple" or solid anything must be exactly that. And a veneer must be identified as such —"walnut vanedged pecan solids," for example.

The Federal Trade Commission guidelines took effect March 21. One FTC official said he believes most of the manufacturers have gotten the word, although there are indications it has not filtered down to all the retailers.

Furniture on showroom floors must be retagged to comply with the rules. But it appears the FTC will make no effort to force furniture stores change labels in warehouse cartons intended for shipment directly to the consumer.

The rules are voluntary in the sense that the FTC put them out as guidelines; but they carry the force of law because the agency could charge offenders with violations of the laws against false and misleading advertising.

The biggest help for the shopper should be in the increased information available on furniture tags. Look closely when you shop and if you can't figure out what something is, let the salesman or store manager know you know you have a right to find out what you're really buying.

Overlapping government jurisdictions and confusion over statistics have left the buyer holding the bag again—this time where pet turtles are concerned. Both the Food and Drug Administration and the Consumer Product Safety Commission are studying the problem of the disease-carrying pets and whether anything can be done to prevent turtles from spreading salmonella infections to children.

The problem has been recognized for some time but the existing program —which attempts to keep infected turtles from interstate commerce — doesn't appear to be working. At the moment, the Product Safety Commission is trying to decide if it should ban turtles altogether, while the FDA is working on a label that would warn buyers of the problem. In the meantime the best advice is: Wash your hands thoroughly if you come into contact with a turtle.

PBS to explore TV art

By FRANK S. SWERTLOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you know the right artist, your television set can be transformed into a chic art gallery.

Monday night at 8 p.m. EDT, the Public Broadcasting Service will provide an interesting look at the expanding field of personalized television in "Video: The New Wave."

The 60-minute program highlights the alternatives to commercial network news programming, the field of abstract TV art, and the more personalized expressions of television artists.

Among the alternatives to network news will be a look at an underground television team's coverage of the 1972 Republican National Convention. The program also will examine the abstract works of Nam June Paik and Stephen Beck. And artists Joan Jonas and Peter Campus will show audiences their attempts to take a fresh look at everyday subjects.

The world of TV art—the use of cameras and TV sets as expression of art and not broadcasting—began in the mid-1960s with the development of portable cameras and videotape recorders. These allow users to pursue their own style of television.

Many art galleries already are converting their TV sets to broadcast these art forms. Some people are having videotape cassettes made for their own TV sets at home.

What is ironic, not so much about this program, but of TV art, itself, is that it will reach only a small audience through the instrument of television, a vehicle for the masses. Much of this show cannot be appreciated unless the viewer has a color set.

Art critic Brian O'Doherty, who narrated and wrote script, said in an interview that when he approached his subject he found the field too directionless and shapeless.

"Some of it followed the feeble vestments of a futuristic utopia for television," said O'Doherty. "Much of it was too feeble, and very dumb. What I tried to do was survey the field and put some common sense into it."

O'Doherty generally succeeds in his attempt, but there are instances the program becomes too repetitive.

One can see just so many quivering explosions of color from the world of abstract art. And there are times, particularly with the work of Joan Jonas, that segment becomes too "in." One can almost see a group of artists sitting before a TV set and smiling at her works as the definitive statement about life.

O'Doherty, who concedes that some of the art will exist only for salons and avant gardists, suggests that the field already has had its impact on television.

"To some degree commercial television already has used some of it," he said, "and, of course, educational television has picked it up."

"People Are My Special Interest"

Hello!

To those of you I did not meet at shopping centers, parades, fiestas, park dedications, factories, meetings, coffee hours, candidate nights, union halls, classrooms, churches, banquets, and a host of other "people to people" events –

You have the right to demand that a candidate for public office make every effort to meet you personally instead of hiding behind billboards and professionally packaged campaigns. I have tried to meet that demand since:

"People Are My Special Interest"

It was a pleasure to meet and to talk with thousands of you who also received emeryboards, matches and Axelrod Consumer Protection Information Cards.

I ask you to continue this people to people relationship by making me your candidate for the State Assembly from the 65th District.

Nicaragua postpone junta presidencial centro-americana

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Gen. Anastacio Somoza, commandante de la guardia nacional, anuncio el aplazamiento de la junta de presidentes central americano, que se habia senalado llevarse acabo en Nicaragua.

No se ha citado fecha nueva, para este parlamento.

Detalles en los motivos por este repentino aplazamiento de junta, fueron dados por Somoza, quien iba a hospedar esta conferencia, en su plantacio de tabaco, cerca del pueblo de Jalapa, 145 millas al norte de aqui, y cerca a la frontera de Honduras.

No obstante, el anunciamiento de Somoza vino despues de que el presidente de El Salvador, Coronel Arturo Molina, dijo en el Salvador, que no le seria posble atender.

El proposito principal para este planeado parlamento, ere el de atentar arreglar de una vez por todas, el conflicto continuo entre El Salvador y Honduras, que proviene de el tan llamado guerra "soccer" entre ellos, en 1969.

Somaza dijo unicamente que la junta se tendra cuando un estudio de antemano, de los propositas concretamente permitan hacer un temario que sea mas detallado.

Aparte de los presidentes de El Salvador y Honduras, se esperaba que atendieran la junta, Guatemala y Costa Rica.

Republica Dominicana

Releccion de Pres. Balaguer fue un triumfo personal

Aunque arreglos previos parecieran suficiente aseguramiento, el Presidente Republicano Dominicano, Joaquin Balaguer, prefirio en tomar su escapatoria de un accidente de helicoptero como una senal de Dios que "mis servicios tan modestos con como son, todavia pueden ser utiles a mis concuidadanos."

De alli fue Balaguer una semana despues, en 16 de mayo, a ganar la eleccion presidencial de la republica, una victoria quizas incitada por el hecho de que otras retiradas, lo dejaron como el unico candidato mayor.

Para Balgauer, el que una vez fue teniente del anterior dictador Dominicano, Generalisimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, su releccion a un tercer termino en una nacion con vividos recuerdos de Trijillo y sus excesos, y por consiguiente a una opocision construida a una larga continuacion en oficina fue un triunfo personal basado en un numero de razones, algunas de ellas en conflicto.

La mas importante fue la retirada de tres candidatos de oposicion, dejandole como unica oposicion a un retirado almirante, sin base de popularidad.

Entre los que se retiraron, estaba Silvestre Antonio Guzman, rico hombre de ganado, y candidato a una improbable coalicion de cinco partidos de isquierda y derecha.

Ellos acusaron al gobierno de planear ganar con engano bajo de un arreglo permitiendo a los votantes echar sus votos en cualesquiera de los 5,000 lugares para votar en la nacion. Ellos dijeron eso les permitiria a los partidarios de partido prevaleciente reformista, a votar diversas veces en diferentes casillas.

Guzman, quien habia prometido establecer relaciones con Cuba y paises socialistas, se comprovo un sorprendente y fuerte candidato. Algunos analyistas dijeron que en una eleccion justa y libre, el quiza hubiera podido desafiar muy seriamente a Balaguer.

Otro elemento fuerte en favor de Balaguer, fue la lealtad de el ejercito en el cual por los ultimos ocho anos el se lo habia ganado para si mismo, con regalos, promociones y traslados.

El tambien manejo el exilio de sus mas promiente ejercito oponente, Gen. Elias Wessin y Wessin, el candidato vice presidencial bajo el "Acuerdo de Santiago."

Un hombre que quezas le hubiera proviedo fuerte oposicion, el anterior presidente Juan Bosh se reducio asi mismo a un papel menor afectando su propio partido Revolucionario Dominicano.

Un escor de personas habian perecido con violencia, acompanando esto la campana de este ano, pero aun asi otro elemento estaba trabajando en favor de Balaguer.

En contraste los problemas economicas acosabar a muchas naciones del Caribe, la Republica Dominicana ha estrado experimentado una propsperidad que la elevada inflacion, apenas la obscurece en parte.

Grupo historico planea barbacoa

POMONA — La Sociedad Historica del Valle de Pomona tendra dos motivos para celebrar el proximo Domingo, dia 30 de junio.

En este dia la sociedad commemorara su 58 aniversario y tambien tendra su barbacoa septima anual en la vieja mansion Phillips, 2640 W. Pomona Blvd.

La barbacoa, de medio dia a las 5 p.m., es uno de los mayores eventos que tiene la sociedad anualmente para reunir fondos para la adquisicion y restauracion de lugares de senal.

Tambien se ha venido haciendo undo de los eventos sociales muy popular y a que es una manera de atraer gente de todo el valle y todo el sur de California.

Este ano el programa se llevara a acabo con la coperacion de la ciudad de Pomona, los Pomona Jaycees y Club Circulo "K" de la universidad de Cal Poly.

La exhibicion sera un entretenimiento musical por la Banda de Concierto de Pomona, cantando el grupo de Muchachas Sin Limite, y bailes por los Folklateers.

El Pomona Funmobile tambien esta alli.

Dentro de la mansion habra exhibicion de trajes, y otros exhibiciones tales come el proceso de componer material para hilandera y entretejido.

JUANITA BROWN

Juanita mixed up over mixtures

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — In this era, when black is beautiful commercially Juanita Brown has a problem.

She is one of those stunning creatures who is a product of crazy mixed-up genes. Her father is half-black, half-white. Her mother is half-white, half-Indian. The combination is devastating, esthetically, but where does that leave her, artistically?

She's been turned down for black parts because she looks too white and she's been turned down for white parts because she looks too black.

Still, in the two brief years since she's become an actress, she's come a long way. Her career is booming.

She's progressed from small parts to bigger parts and now she has a starring role in "Renegade Women." She's also seen to good advantage in "Foxy Brown," "Willie Dyanmite" and "uptown Saturday Night."

Juanita is a rarity in Hollywood for reasons other than her ethnic background. She is one of the very few actresses Hollywood has ever had who is a Phi Beta Kappa and magna cum laude graduate.

She comes from Michigan originally. Her father worked in Chicago but felt the rural life would be better for his children, so he got a farm in Michigan and commuted. Juanita grew up there but it was a lonely life. She says her best friend was her dog, Tootsie, and she would read Tootsie poetry and take her for long walks in the woods.

"I was a recluse as a child," she says. "I didn't fit into the world so I took refuge in books and was introspective."

She was a brilliant student and had several scholarships offered to her. She accepted the bid from Western Michigan and was in that institution's honors college.

She had been brought up in the Pentacostal Church which is so fundamental that Juanita's mother still refuses to go to the movies. She believes her daughter is "temporarily lost," and prays for her salvation.

Because of that background, "and the need to find out for myself about religion," she majored in the philosophy of religion. In her junior year, she won a fellowship and moved to Hawaii to study at the University of Hawaii.

She was married for a while. Then she "went off" with an architect but that didn't last. She came to Los Angeles to stay with the architect's mother-in-law, an old actress who persuaded her to take up acting.

She's doing well at it but she still isn't sure this is what she wants to do with her life.

"I love it now," she says, "but I have loved other things and the other things eventually paled. This may pale, too."

She finds acting as intellectually stimulating as academia, "and the fruits are more immediately seen." She says as a student you work all year for a piece of paper. In acting, you see the fruits of your labors more quickly and more tangibly.

West End Symphony elects new officers

ONTARIO — Wiley Clayton of Upland was elected president of the West End Symphony Association at a recent meeting.

He heads a committee that is screening candidates for a permanent conductor.

The orchestra performed last year in an abbreviated season under a series of guest conductors following the resignation of Robert Walton Cole who served as regular conductor for six years. Cole joined the Buffalo Symphony as associate to Michael Tilson Thomas.

At the meeting, directors unanimously named these officers for the new season: vice president, Mrs. James C. Fryman, Alta Loma; recording secretary, Charlene Bennett, Upland; corresponding secretary, Jeanette Harris, Upland; treasurer, Ed Kusick, Montclair; financial secretary, Marjorie Bungard, Ontario.

New members elected to serve as directors on the board were: Mrs. James Elmer Alsover, Mr. and Mrs. Don Hester and Delfine Segovia of Upland; Mrs. Harvey Wood of Montclair; Mrs. Robert Downey, LeRoy Elliott, Mrs. Sam Esrock; Jim Housel and Mrs. R. N. Smith of Ontario.

Jazz bands invited to competition

MONTEREY — Ten high school jazz bands and five combos have been selected to compete in the fourth annual California High School Jazz Band Competition June 8 at Monterey Peninsula College.

Bonita High School of La Verne, Corona High, La Sierra High of Carmichael, San Leandro High, Eagle Rock High of Los Angeles, Richmond High, Ygnacio Valley High of Concord, Mira Loma High of Sacramento, College Park High of Pleasant Hill and Reseda High have been invited to participate. Alternate bands are from Hemet and Burbank high schools.

The selected combos are from Eagle Rock High, Berkeley High, Grant Union High of Sacramento, Terra Linda High of San Rafael and Granad High of Livermore. Burbank High was chosen as alternate.

The competition begins at 9 a.m. in the college theater.

Kubik work

CLAREMONT — "Fanfare for the Century for Brass Choir" by Gail Kubik, professor of music and composer-in-residence at Scripps College, has been published by the Robert King Music Company, the nation's leading publisher of music for brass ensembles.

The work was commissioned by the Century Association of New York City.

Firefighter dies in river

BLYTHE (UPI)—A bulldozer operator who was helping fight a brush fire which burned through more than 4,400 acres near here apparently accidentally dumped his vehicle into the Colorado River and drowned, police said.

The body of Fordner Van Fleet, Parker, Ariz., was found floating in the river about 30 miles north of here.

ROBERT E. WOOD

Griswold's exhibiting watercolors

CLAREMONT — An exhibition of watercolors by former Claremont artist Robert E. Wood is on view this month at Griswold's Art Gallery, Indian Hill and Foothill boulevards.

Wood is a graduate of Pomona College and holds a master of fine arts degree from Claremont Graduate School. He has been exhibiting for 20 years, and has had more than 80 one-man shows in the United States and Europe. He has won numerous awards at major watercolor exhibitions.

Since 1961, Wood has conducted a summer school of painting at his studio-home at Green Valley Lake.

Artist Phil Dike says of Wood, "The effect of his watercolors on the public and professional alike has been pronounced. In addition to painting, he has become an outstanding teacher and there are few watercolor painters today with his knowledge and facility."

Art exhibit being held in library

MONTCLAIR — An exhibition of art works by Myland McRevey Jr., a student at Dominican College in San Rafael, is on view this month at the Montclair Public Library.

The exhibit is largely watercolors. Other works are in pencil, ink, charcoal and plaster of paris.

McRevey, a graduate of Montclair High School, plans to become a medical illustrator.

"Miracle Cure"

5,000 YEAR OLD CHINESE HEALTH REMEDY FOUND

PEKING (Special)— Health researchers in China have uncovered an amazing rare old Chinese herb remedy that possesses spectacular healing qualities and reportedly has been used for 5,000 years to cure or give relief to a host of the most common illnesses suffered by mankind. Dramatic claims are being made that this "miracle herb" called ginseng, may actually hold the key to a longer healthier life. Indeed, there is one historical case of a user living to be 256 years old.

Helps Many Illnesses

Like acupuncture, the many healing properties of this remarkable herb were once considered "folklore and superstition", but modern researchers around the world are suggesting that it may actually regulate many of the body's processes to increase SEXUAL potency, help heal ULCERS relieve ARTHRITIS, check graying or loss of HAIR, improve DIGESTION, slow down ARTERIOSCLEROSIS, relieve ASTHMA overcome FATIGUE, improve DIABETIC conditions, relieve inflammation of the URINARY TRACT, help chronic INSOMNIA, relieve BACKACHES and PAINS and generally improve your health by increasing your body's potential to heal itself.

Safe, No Side Effects

Ginseng is not a drug, but an herb or vegetable that is extremely rich in vitamins and minerals. What's more, this amazing natural remedy is completely safe and non-toxic with no side effects Unfortunately, high-grade ginseng is in short supply, and brokers and processors around the world are bracing themselves for a "run" on the market as the herb's purported "near miraculous" healing properties become more widely known to the general public.

Now Available in U.S.

Now you can get a generous 30-day supply of this amazing natural remedy direct from a major supplier by sending only $10.00 in check, cash or money order to Health Laboratories, Dept. I, Box 2142, Palm Springs, Calif. 92262. This wonder herb is said to have helped millions of other people, and it may help your health problem too. Isn't it worth a try?

Linda Lee to address art group

HACIENDA HEIGHTS — Linda Lee, artist and art instructor, will give a demonstration of her work at the monthly meeting of the Heights Art Association at the First Federal Savings & Loan Association, 2233 S. Hacienda Blvd., at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. The public is invited.

Mrs. Lee attended Pasadena City College and won a scholarship to Chouinard Art Institute. She has been an instructor at Pasadena City College and now teaches for Tri-Community Adult Education in Covina.

Upland artist plans exhibition and sale

UPLAND — Baila Goldenthal, painter, sculptor and printmaker, will hold an exhibition and sale of her works at her studio-home at 865 N. First Ave. from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday, next Sunday and the following weekend.

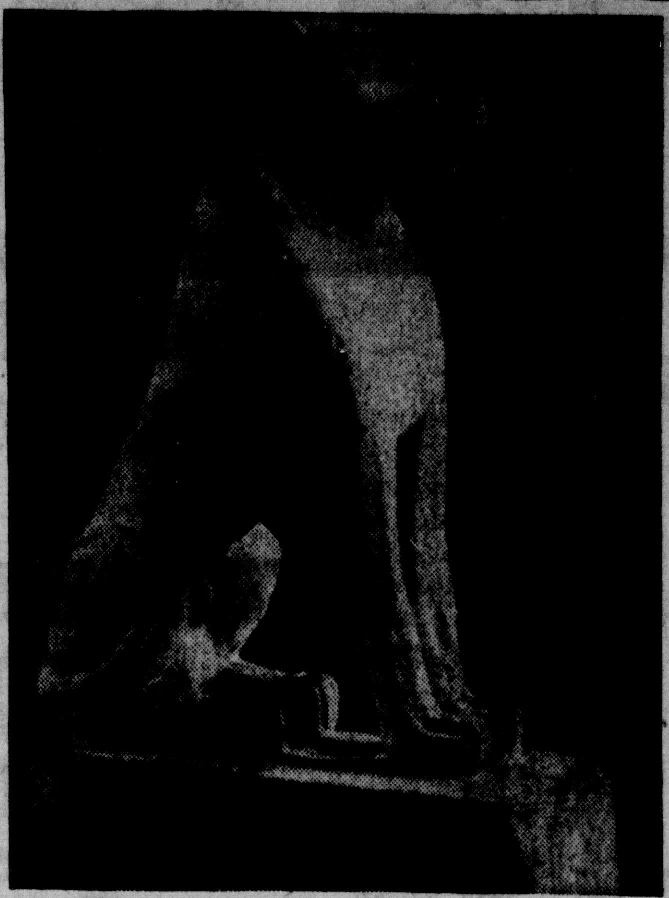
Miss Goldenthal studied at the Boston Museum Art School and under Morris Kantor at the Art Students' League in New York City. She had further training with Hans Hoffman.

Her works are in numerous public and private collections in this country and abroad. She has taught drawing, painting and sculpture in New York, San Francisco and Los Angeles, and has won awards on the East and West coasts.

An interest in the art and religion of India led the artist to spend more than a year in that country where she completed a documentary film and began work on the pen-and-ink series "Hindu Trilogy — The Faces of God," which will be previewed at the exhibition.

Signs of waste

Replacing and restoring deliberately destroyed and defaced traffic signs costs an estimated $16 million of the nation's yearly $110 million maintenance bill for signs, which ordinarily have a lifetime of five to seven years.



ANCIENT ART — This lion with cartouche of Tuthmosis III is one of 150 works of Egyptian art in the exhibition, "Age of the Pharoahs," being held through the summer at the county Museum of Art. The pieces, drawn from 14 major collections, dates from 4000 B.C. through the Roman era. This work is from the University Museum in Philadelphia, Pa.

Supervisor Pete Schabarum
He really works for you.

Concern is the hallmark of the administration of Supervisor Pete Schabarum. In little more than two years since becoming the First District Supervisor, Pete Schabarum has set into motion scores of programs and construction projects which have benefited not only the 1st District but the entire County as well.

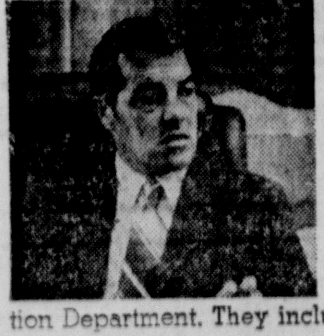
These programs reflect the concern of a man endeavoring to make government more responsive to the needs of the people; to make it operate at a level of efficiency which will squeeze the most productivity out of each tax dollar.

To be a Supervisor in Los Angeles County requires more than popular appeal to the voters. It requires a driving energy, a devotion to public service and a full time commitment to the human needs of the people of Los Angeles County.

Supervisor Schabarum successfully steered Board deliberations toward two successive decreases in the property tax rate; a 41-cent cut the first year and a 16-cent reduction the second.

The impact of his dedication to responsive, efficient government is evident in other areas as well, including:

Development of a comprehensive transportation plan for Los Angeles County ☐ Development of a preliminary General Plan, the first land use master plan in County history to establish initial guidelines for growth ☐ Initial studies to develop a health care services master plan to establish medical and health care priorities ☐ Development of a solid waste management master plan ☐ Development of a County Parks Needs Study to establish priorities for long-range park development ☐ Ordering a re-evaluation of the Capital Projects program to determine which are in balance with immediate needs ☐ Initiating cost-savings programs by consolidating some County services.

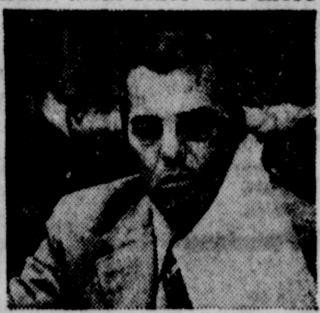


While all of these activities clearly demonstrate Supervisor Schabarum's fiscal responsibility, his concern is also deeply human oriented. It spans the age range from the very youngest to society's sometimes forgotten senior citizen.

More than a dozen recreation projects benefiting persons of all age groups have been made a reality under Schabarum's leadership and many more are currently on the drawing boards of the County's Parks and Recreation Department. They include:

Continuing development of the sprawling 2,000-acre Frank G. Bonelli County Regional Park in San Dimas ☐ Gunn Avenue County Park ☐ Farjado County Park ☐ Arcadia County Park ☐ Bassett County Park ☐ Stimson County Park ☐ Otterbein County Park ☐ Pamela County Park ☐ The 13-mile long San Gabriel River Bike and Equestrian Trail, connecting La Puente with Long Beach ☐ Improved and modernized the par 72, 18-hole Diamond Bar County Golf Course and Arcadia Park Golf Course.

At Supervisor Schabarum's insistence, miles upon miles of public streets in the First District have been improved, widened and resurfaced to make them safer and more enduring.



Schabarum's concern covers a broad spectrum of interests which have resulted in:

Construction of the Leland Weaver County Library in South Gate ☐ Construction of the Claremont County Library ☐ Expansion and improvement of Library services through reciprocal agreements with other library agencies ☐ Construction of a sheriff's sub-station in Pico Rivera ☐ Expansion and improvements at McLaren and Los Padrinos Juvenile Halls ☐ Signing of agreements with the California Youth Authority to provide housing for overflow juveniles in County custody ☐ Implementation of anti-graffiti program with community youth groups ☐ Establishment of San Gabriel Regional Health Care Services Center in Covina ☐ Establishment of County Service Center in El Monte ☐ Expansion and improvements at El Monte Airport and Brackett Field in Claremont ☐ Elmination of Barrio slum conditions at Hicks Camp outside El Monte relocation of low-income residents in modernized dwellings ☐ Appointment of specially trained deputies for duties in ethnically sensitive communities within the 1st District.

To Supervisor Schabarum these achievements are only the beginning of his service to the 1st District. They represent his concern for people and the tax dollars they pay to make government a viable, responsive part of our lives.

We can continue the progressive leadership of Supervisor Pete Schabarum by voting to re-elect him on June 4th. He's proved he really works for us. Let's re-elect a proven friend.

ENDORSEMENTS...

SCHABARUM RATES RETURN..."During two years in office he has consistently voted for economy in government and has refused to be bulldozed by county government bureaucrats into abandoning his responsibility as a representative of the taxpaying electorate of this district... Schabarum has served his consituents conscientiously and well. We believe he should be retained."

—DAILY TRIBUNE, February 8, 1974

SCHABARUM FOR SUPERVISOR..."The Daily News advocates the re-election of Supervisor Schabarum, based on what he has accomplished in the time he has spent in office, on the improvements he proposes in county government, and on his consistent effort to limit if not reduce the cost of that government."

—THE DAILY NEWS, March 14, 1974

EARLY ENDORSEMENT SYMBOL OF ESTEEM... "Schabarum's case for re-election is open and shut. Based on his record of achievement and his value to the communities he serves, Pete is the man for the job...One of the more remarkable qualities of Pete Schabarum is his ability to remain a "common man" despite a record of personal success that would swell the head of a lesser man..."

—THE SENTINEL, February 21, 1974

Re-elect a proven friend.
Supervisor Pete Schabarum

'March of the porcupines'

By ERMA BOMBECK

I was browsing in a music store last Saturday when the sound of a melody stopped me dead in my tracks.

I became rigid, my palms started to sweat and a wave of nausea swept over my body. Unable to help myself I was drawn like a magnet to the room where the music originated. Opening the door I said mechanically, "It's 'The March of the Porcupines,' isn't it?"

The teacher and the small child on the piano bench and the mother sitting on a chair nearby looked up startled, "Oh yes," said the mother numbly. "She's playing it in the recital."

There is something about the song your child plays in the piano recital that is as repetitive as a Hungarian cabbage dinner. It haunts you the rest of your life. I even knew one mother who underwent shock treatments and the only thing left in her memory bank was a haunting melody, "There's a Daffodil Left in the Bottom of My Teacup", a drum solo which her son performed in a music recital.

The first time my son played, "The March of the Porcupines" it sounded familiar. Later I realized I associated it with a friend of mine who once fainted over a keyboard. Mrs. Miller, our son's music teacher assured me that after nine weeks of practice, practice, practice, it would sound completely different.

When the recital was seven weeks away, I told my husband I didn't want to be a mother anymore. "The March of the Porcupines" was getting through to me and I felt that physically I was deteriorating. He assured me the mother of Van Cliburn had endured "The March of the Porcupines" and so should I.

When the recital was four weeks away, our bird died for no particular reason. However, it was suspicious that his wings were cupped around each ear.

The criticial period arrived two weeks before the recital. Our son was thumping, thumping, thumping (with feeling, feeling, feeling) through TMOTP, when my husband came home early one afternoon. I had a crown of flowers around my head and was sprinkling petals from a nosegay around the living room. "It's all right," he said softly. "Only two weeks to go."

The voice of the mother in the music store jolted me back to reality. "It doesn't sound like much now, but she has 11 weeks to practice. The music is familiar to you. Did your child play it in a recital?"

"Actually no," I smiled wanly. "He practiced it for nine weeks and came down with measles on the morning of the recital.

She was crying when I left.

Prof: Nixon just letting off steam

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Prof. Reinhold A. Aman of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee says he read "the whole (expletive deleted)" presidential transcripts, and found 1075 "unintelligibles" and 146 "expletives deleted" and "characterizations omitted."

Aman, who says he is an expert on swearing, listed 25 different profanities that he thought might have been edited out of the text. (Nearly all of them are unprintable in a family newspaper.)

"He (President Nixon) acted like anyone else," Aman said. "He had to get rid of his emotional steam. He could have kicked Pat or started a war. Or he could have sworn."

Not fattening

Contrary to popular belief, potatoes are not especially fattening. A medium-sized raw potato contains only about 70 calories.

TOURIST BOOM — The millions in gold gouged out of the frozen Yukon in the 1890s is pouring back as tourist dollars, most of it hauled over the unique and historic White Pass & Yukon Railway. Much of the WP&Y's profit comes from its passengers who ride in obsolete rail cars to view the scenic wonders of the road's 110 miles between the Alaskan port of Skagway and White Horse.

This railroad loves people

WHITE HORSE, Yukon Territory (UPI) — Some of the gold gouged out of the frozen Yukon in the 1890s is pouring back as tourist dollars, most of it and its owners hauled over the unique and historic White Pass & Yukon Railway.

Short—only 110.7 miles, narrow—three foot gauge, and profitable, North America's only unsubsidized railroad links the deep water Alaskan port of Skagway with this capital of Canada's Yukon Territory.

Much of the WP&Y's profit comes from its passengers. An international road, it employs both American and Canadian train crews. Although Skagway has a population of only 758 and White Horse 12,000, the WP&Y carried a record 52,715 passengers last year and expects to do even better this year.

It's powered by modern diesels, but the coaches are the most obsolete still in use by any railroad. Heat in the varnished passenger cars is still supplied by wood stoves now modernized as oil burners, eliminating arguments over who would stoke the stove during winter runs when the temperature settles in around 30 and 40 below zero.

Although the railroad has never owned a dining car, White Pass passengers eat well. All the trains stop at the division point of Bennett, headwaters of the Yukon River and named for the famed American editor, James Gordon Bennett. Here Mrs. Mary Siggers presides over the biggest stove in the Yukon, a 12-foot monster that turned out 855 meals on Aug. 12 of last year, the biggest single day in the WP&Y's history.

Scenery and history

The famed "sourdough" meals—which substitute bakery rolls for sourdough bread—are included in the $25 ticket and always include homemade pie, be it breakfast, lunch or dinner.

Scenery and history are the White Pass's biggest attractions. It climbs nearly 3,000 feet in 17 miles after leaving coastal Skagway, offering some of the most spectacular views of Alaska as it crawls through the St. Elias mountains. Five diesel units are needed to drag each of the mixed passenger and freight trains up the face of the mountains. In some stretches, old "Shake, Rattle and Roll" climbs 80 feet for every 1,000 feet of track.

The route follows one of the two passes through which the thousands of gold seekers poured into the Yukon in the gold rush of '98. There were only two sensible routes to the gold fields near Dawson, 400 miles down the Yukon: Assault the St. Elias range via White Pass or Chilkoot Pass and float down the Yukon from Lake Bennett to Dawson via White Horse. Or sail around the Alaska Peninsula into the Bering Sea and take a paddlewheeler the thousand miles up the Yukon to Dawson. The vast majority of goldstruck Americans invaded Canada via the Chilkoot and White passes.

Educated track-layers

British money and a Canadian Irishman named Michael J. Heney built what historians agree was the toughest railway construction job ever attempted. Work started in May, 1898, using black powder, sledges, picks and shovels wielded by some of the best educated minds ever to lay track. The labor force was made up mostly of flat-broke doctors, lawyers, engineers and even preachers who ran out of money long before they hit the gold fields.

Twenty-seven months later the road was completed to Caribou Crossing on the Yukon. Sternwheelers hauled the gold seekers downstream to Dawson where they found the best claims already staked and most of the gold gone.

The WP&Y has stayed in business ever since, sometimes so broke that there was trouble meeting the payroll. During World War II the White Pass became one of the most important railroads in the far north, and was run by the United States Army. The great bulk of the freight needed to build the Alaskan Highway was hauled into White Horse by old "Shake, Rattle and Roll."

But hauling humans is still an important source of WP&Y revenue, particularly the one-day excursions from Skagway to Bennett. All through the summer the tourists will pour off the cruise ships at Skagway, board the big-windowed coaches for the day's outing at the old ghost town of Bennett. The WP&Y fills them full of scenery and food; the tourists fill the WP&Y'S cash registers, a rare phenomenon in modern railroading.

Medical doctors fleeing India; drastic shortage there prevails

NEW DELHI, May 14 (UPI) — It is widely acknowledged in Britain that its health services would suffer drastically if the more than 4,000 immigrant Indian doctors living there were turned out.

In the U.S., according to recent figures, the number of foreign doctors mainly from India and South Korea seeking employment outnumbered Americans graduating from American medical institutions.

The Indian government regards this situation as an alarming brain drain problem as more and more young Indian doctors flee to advanced countries in search of more money and better working conditions because they are unable to find employment here —where they are badly needed.

"We need our doctors desperately and we want them more than ever to serve our people, particularly in the rural areas," a Health Ministry spokesman said.

He admitted the doctor brain drain problem is even more severe than the flight of scientists, engineers and other skilled Indians.

Acute shortage

Although there is no exact estimate of the number of Indian doctors abroad, officials say it runs into tens of thousands in the countries of Europe, Canada, the U.S. and Australia.

In India the doctor-population ratio is one doctor for every 5,000 persons but in several thousand Indian villages a doctor cannot be found within a radius of 20 miles.

"With the increase in the number of Indian medical institutions more and more doctors are looking for employment but a majority of them are unwilling to go to rural areas where, we agree, working conditions are atrocious," an official said.

"There is no way we can ban their (doctors') travel to other countries," the Health Ministry spokesman said.

New policy

U.S. Surgeon-General S. Paul Ehrlich during a recent visit to New Delhi explained the problem in an interview with an American correspondent.

"This is a problem," he was quoted as saying. "The lesser developed countries like India have been helping to subsidize the medical manpower needs of the United States. In the next few months a policy will be evolved in the federal government to deal with this problem."

He was referring to a request by Indian Health Minister Dr. Karan Singh that something be done to stem the outflow of Indian doctors.

Having ignored the problem for years, the Indian government woke up to the situation after the three-month strike by New Delhi's 2,400 junior doctors which crippled health services in the capital. The doctors demanded higher salary and better working conditions in the incredibly overcrowded city hospitals.

Strike settled

Whereas an intern in a country like the U.S. earns upward of $400 a month, his Indian counterpart gets less than $30. In some cases an Indian intern makes considerably less than an office peon in a business firm.

After tortuous negotiations, the Health Ministry settled a strike last month with an offer of $46 a month for an intern and $66 for a house surgeon.

"What the hell do you expect us to do with this money when in a city like Delhi or Bombay a man needs a minimum of $80 just to be able to eat two meals a day," a junior doctor complained. "If we go to a rural area where our services are badly needed, we can't afford to buy even a bicycle and we will have to do everything from delivering a baby to treating cancer."

The United Nations, which now has taken up the issue, said in its Secretary General's report, "The net outflow of trained personnel from developing countries is significant enough to justify the international concern."

Compensation urged

The developed countries should not regard the existence of a potential supply of trained personnel from the developing countries as a supplementary source to fill the demand for trained cadre," the report said.

However, unable to suggest an immediate solution, the report urged "compensating the developing countries for the trained immigrants" through bilateral agreements.

"Any plan for compensation for the brain drain must be in addition to, and not at the expense of, development assistance to the developing countries," it added.

"Such a solution is not going to solve the problem for the doctor who can make about $100,000 a year in a country like the U.S. but can't make even $1,000 in India," another official remarked.

Division answer to rat multiplication

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: It seemed Roxanne and Rudolph Ratnik hit it off from the very first. There was no doubt of it when Roxanne's first litter arrived. That was exciting, but since then it's become exhausting. They've been littering all over the place and I'm kept busy frantically trying to find new volunteer rat owners. Do I have to have Roxanne spayed to slow the flow? I hate to subject her to surgery, but I've got to do something and fast. We're just getting too many rates around here. — W.W.

Dear W.W.: A simple, safe and inexpensive way to reduce your rodent population explosion (at least as far as Roxanne and Rudolph are concerned) is separation. Simply set Rudolph up in adjoining bachelor quarters: Absence may or may not make the heart grow fonder, but if the Ratniks remain permanently separated, at least one pressing population problem is solved. The same technique can be applied, of course, to any of their offspring who might also be littering up the premises.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We suspect this cat that's wandered in on us might be old. At what age do a cat's teeth begin to loosen? — V.S.

Dear V.W.: The feline first has loose teeth when only a few months of age. These temporary teeth are lost as they're displaced by the permanent teeth beneath them. Aging ivories leave home most typically in the cat beyond nine or ten years of age. Injury can cause tooth loss at any age, of course. Gum diseases are common in cats and are often responsible for loosened or lost teeth in middle-aged or even young animals. Loose (adult) teeth in any feline, including your newfound friend, are an indication that dental help is past due. Your veterinarian can provide an estimate of the cat's approximate age, using teeth as one of the guidelines.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Sam Snake (I don't know what kind he is) I think is losing weight. But he eats. How much should a snake be fed a week? — V.M.

Dear V.M: In Sam's case, probably more. It might also be advisable to have Sam checked out for internal and external parasites. Sam would normally need rations totalling about two per cent of his body weight per week, though if he was very active, ration requirements could at least double.

I promise to do my utmost to maintain the quality of life we in Claremont have come to insist upon. The experience I have gained in business and finance will help me properly control the City's budget at a time of considerable national inflation and an increasing demand for services. I will also work to complete the facilities at park sites already owned by the City so people throughout Claremont may have their recreation facilities unburdened. My experience as a Planning Commissioner, businessman, and scientist has shown me that some improvement in the commercial and industrial base can be made that is in keeping with Claremont's character.

JESSIE HAVER BUTLER
The First Lobbyist for Women at the Capitol, Washington D.C.
ENDORSES
FOR 35th CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT
U.S. CONGRESS
MARY MONTES IS A CITIZEN ADVOCATE!
Her life-long residency in this area has given her a firm grasp of the needs of the people in this area. Born in Chino, the 35 year-old candidate was educated in the Pomona schools, Mount San Antonio College, U.C.L.A., Cal State University at Los Angeles and is currently finishing her dissertation at the Claremont Graduate School. She holds an Associate of Arts and Bachelor of Arts degrees and expects to receive her Ph.D. before June, 1974. She is a recent recipient of a full Ford Foundation fellowship in Administrative Leadership.
MARY MONTES HAS BEEN INVOLVED IN MANY COMMUNITY - ORIENTED PROJECTS. PROFESSIONALLY SHE HAS WORKED AS AN EDUCATOR in Chino, Pomona and at the Claremont Colleges.
"Every voter in the 35th Congressional District and every mother and father should swarm to their voting booths on June 4 and vote to send Mary Montes to Washington to serve the needs of American women, children and families of today."
"Let me explain. Recent news inform us that our country loses more babies in the first week of their lives than any other civilized country. Also, our country is 11th on the list of nations which loses more babies the first years of their lives than any other civilized country. Last year 10,000 children less than 3 months old, died in their cribs at night. 1,000 to 1,500 of those babies died in California. Also last year infant mortality was the 5th leading killer in the United States—the richest country in the world."
"Mary Montes knows this. She also has had years of the best training that California's educational system has to offer. She is concerned about the quality of care the young receive—at home and at school."
"I speak for women and also for men and fathers who suffer from the effects of poor child care."
"Although many fine men are running in the 35th Congressional District our state needs MARY MONTES in Washington. She knows our needs and knows what to do there."

Employes have no problems with this boss

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Bookkeeper Stan Robinson and his 11 co-workers at an appliance store here set their own wages, take as much vacation as they want, and collect profit-sharing bonuses.

When one of the employes at Friedmans' Appliances thinks he deserves a raise, he merely tells Robinson what he wants.

"They're happy as a lark," Robinson says. Before the pay plan was introduced five years ago, he said, "The fellows were kind of grumbling, thinking they should get more money.

"Now they just ask me and they get it. I don't even talk to Art about it, or Morry."

Owners Arthur and Morris Friedman said they began to let employes set their own wages to implement "the words we've heard—so many pretty words in our lives from ministers and other people."

It was, explained Arthur, a way of "practicing what we preach."

The Friedman brothers never argue with their employs. They allow them to choose the customers they want to wait on, borrow company trucks for their own personal use and never discuss salaries with them.

Arthur Friedman, 51, estimates that the service men, truck drivers and a warehouseman are making about $1,000 a month, more than the union scale for retail clerks. Most of them are union members for health and welfare benefits.

The store itself has been showing about the same rate of profit the past five years as before, with $750,000 in total volume.

"We don't like to profit off the effort of some other guy," Friedman said.

"Some of my friends say, 'They're going to call you a dirty commie.' But how can they since I own a business?"

The Friedmans have discovered that their employes now watch the store's profits as carefully as they do, as if checking their own wallets.

They are:

Truck driver Robert Ryan, 27, said he keeps tabs on business to help him make salary requests. "We do not want the company to go under."

"All the employes know you can't go hog wild," said semi-retired service man Elwood Larson, 64. "To get what we asked for we have to produce— otherwise the company will be in trouble."

Larson said he adjusts his pay hikes with jumps in the cost of living. "I figure what I need and ask for it.

"I never ask what the others are getting. Never paid any attention to it and they've never asked me."

Robinson, the longest - tenured employe and the man who keeps the financial figures straight, says the salary requests are not exorbitant.

"Last week one of the fellows asked for $25 a week more. But he hadn't taken a raise for about a year. He might be happy for a couple of years now," Robinson said.

"I was short last week. I gave myself 10 bucks but I cut down this week."

Arthur Friedman said he prefers having such "fantastically conscientious, model employes" to whatever profits he might lose to wages.

"People can't believe we're as offhand as we are," he said. "But there are simply more important things than making an extra buck."

For an employer to open the payroll to his employes, Friedman explained, takes "nerve, or the guts or the faith to try."

"The biggest thing is convincing the people that you really mean it ... that no matter what they ask of you, you'll give it."

The owners found some of their employes either couldn't believe them at first or were uneasy with the responsibility of naming their price. One man refused to ask for a raise for months because "maybe it was too much for him to handle."

And then there is the service man who makes less than a coworker but doesn't ask for a raise because he feels he would have to work harder to rate it.

Would the plan work in factories and other, larger firms?

Arthur Friedman doubts that many will try because "most guys in business are unwilling to relinquish any of their power and their potential profit.

"I'm sure there might be a few people who would take advantage," said deliveryman Ryan. "But a lot of people, you treat them like a person and they'll act like one."

"It's not going to work if you have someone who wants to chisel," advised Larson, adding that skeptical onlookers tend to think the Friedman employes are "a bunch of damn liars."

They are wrong, he counters.

"It's really a crazy mixed up profit-making deal."

70-year-old New York City landmark closes

By RONALD G. BURNS

NEW YORK (UPI) — A half-dozen old men stood around a shabby doorway on Manhattan's Lower East Side. It was a warm, muggy day, but the men had their hands in their pockets and their collars turned up.

They had spent their lives waiting tables at the restaurant behind the doorway, a unique eatery known as Ratner's, which offered a strictly "kosher dairy" cuisine. No meat was served.

Now, for the first time in its 70-year history, the restaurant, once a thriving center of the dwindling Jewish neighborhood, had closed its doors.

When—or if—it would reopen was uncertain.

"I'm 77 years old and I've worked here 20 years," said one of the men, Abe Klein. "What else have I got to do?"

The other men shuffled their feet and nodded. Without Ratner's, they said, their futures looked bleak.

And though a spokesman for the restaurant said the owners hoped to get back in business after "alterations and reorganization," most of the men said they were ready to start looking for other work.

The restaurant closed Monday night after the long illness of its principal owner and general manager, Abraham Harmatz. Harmatz died less than 24 hours later and was buried Thursday.

Ratner's, which operated 24-hours-a-day since it first opened in 1905, was one of a dwindling number of restaurants in New York City that kept late-night hours.

It became a key establishment in the Lower Manhattan neighborhood that exploded with Jewish immigrants in the years before World War I.

As the area thrived in the 1920's and 1930's—producing countless political and artistic leaders —Ratners grew with it, moving half-a-block from a small location at Second Avenue and 6th Street to the large building it occupies today.

Wine tasters speak a language all their own

CHICAGO (UPI) — "Full-bodied, robust, supple . . . sometimes I don't know if they are talking about a girl or a wine."

Irving C. Dobrow, a New York banker turned wine buff, admitted he is sometimes surprised at the way people describe wine.

Wandering through a crowded room of wine tasters during Heublein's Sixth Premium National Auction of Rare Wines, Dobrow, a Heublein consultant, said wine also could be "woody, corky, flinty, fruity, velvety — even even mousey if it's not good."

Okay, we said, glass at the ready. Tell us about wine tasting.

"Anything that is edible or palatable has to appeal to the eye. So we look at the color," said Dobrow, holding a glass of red wine close to a white table cloth.

If it's cloudy or milky, it has lost its eye appeal and may not be so good, he said, "but sediment is perfectly okay as long as it settles."

"Then the bouquet or aroma," Dobrow said, gently sniffing a 1959 Inglenook Charbono. Pleasant, but "not much nose to this," he said.

Dobrow said in general, whites should have a flowery smell and the quality reds "an overpowering aroma. Your senses are immediately alerted."

"Taste is a matter of personal preference," he said. "Most people prefer white wine to be very dry, to be eaten with bland food, like fish. Red wine is smooth, velvety and most pleasant."

Its auction price was listed at $25 to $35 a bottle.

Professional wine tasters usually nibble on a bit of Swiss cheese or dry bread between sips. Dobrow said he liked an unsalted cracker and "certainly no smoking."

He said the professionals believe the best time to taste wine is in the morning "and they will not use tooth paste or mouth wash" beforehand, lest they make a difference.

"Your mind, your taste buds —all your senses —are most at rest in the morning," Dobrow said.

Dobrow was an assistant vice president in a small New York bank at the end of Prohibition in 1933 when he decided to go into the wine importing business.

"In those days all anyone knew was hard liquor. If someone had mentioned Beaujolais or Chablis then, no one would have known what he was talking about," Dobrow said.

Dobrow learned. In 1944 he was able to obtain a few cases of a new Portuguese wine from Lisbon, a sparkling rose in a handmade clay jug.

The first imported wine to hit the United States in the latter stages of World War II, the rose became an instant success under the company's Lancers label.

"We bravely imported 50 cases," Dobrow recalled with a smile.

By 1964, when he sold his Vintage Wine Inc. to Heublein, more than 100,000 cases of the sparkling rose were being imported, and the figure is now up to 500,000.

Short supply to hike price of oranges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumers can expect a sharp increase in orange prices beginning late this year and lasting at least until the late 1970's, Agriculture Department economists warned today.

Experts said they based their warning on a study showing that per capita supplies of both fresh and processed orange products will drop in the 1974-75 harvest season and may not climb back to current levels until the 1979-80 season.

With demand for frozen orange concentrate growing steadily, officials said, the declining supply means shoppers had better brace themselves for "significant increases" in prices.

A report published by the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service (ERS) traced the coming dip in supply to low prices in the late 1960's. With production then running ahead of consumer demand, growers found their profits lower, and there was a corresponding slowdown in planting of new orange trees, especially in Florida, the report said.

"By 1980, however, Florida's acreage of bearing trees should be back to the high levels of 1970-71," the report added.

Not much production

A worker honeybee collects only about one-tenth of a pound of honey during its entire lifetime.

Reform sought in food safety laws

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A bill calling for major reforms of federal food safety laws, including annual mandatory government inspection and registration of every food plant in the country, was approved recently by the Senate Commerce Committee.

The measure would also require for the first time that food manufacturers include open dating on all food labels, and that food labels list color additives and other flavor and spice ingredients not now required on labels.

QUALITY OF LIFE — PEOPLE ORIENTED CAMPAIGN

THE TAX STRUCTURE PLACES UNFAIR BURDENS ON THE AVERAGE WAGE-EARNER! Tax reform can come about when those who formulate tax policy become accountable to the individual wage earner. The tax-exemph system presently used is not an equitable system.

JOBLESSNESS IS CRITICAL IN THIS AREA! We need training centers for those seeking employment or higher levels of employment.

WE NEED STRONG LOCAL SCHOOLS! Local programs must be strengthened further. Educators need additional support systems which will provide students with higher levels of achievement.

THE ENERGY CRISIS IS MUCH MORE THAN HIGHER FUEL PRICES! Most people have yet to recognize that the malfunctioning of their vital energy supply stems from a basic deficiency in the political process: American governmental institutions (let alone the American people) lack the power to insure a rational public energy policy.

HONEST GOVERNMENT SERVES THE AVERAGE-AMERICAN BY DESIGN! The need for full representation is apparent. The gap between the average citizen and government representatives is too great. We need new arenas like the "Town Hall" concept where citizens can address themselves to issues which affect them and their families. We all need more honest exposure to the facts.

MARY MONTES IS A CITIZEN ADVOCATE! Her life - long residency in their area has given her a firm grasp of the needs of the people in this area. Zinc fever spreading in Yukon

WHITEHORSE, Yukon Territory (UPI) — The historic cry of "Gold! gold! gold!" is heard again in the Yukon, blended today with shouts of "Zinc! zinc! zinc!"

The gold that made the Yukon and the Klondike famous in 1898 is attracting hundreds of modern prospectors who have been lured to this northern Canadian Territory by the more than quadrupled price of the yellow metal.

But the big excitement in this territorial capital is with the unglamorous zinc, copper, lead and manganese finds which Canadian geologists say will prove richer than any wealth conceived by the stampeders of '98 who took tons of gold out of the frozen Yukon wilderness.

The record gold prices have overshadowed the all-time highs established by the base metals, all of which this Canadian territory is digging out of its 207,076 square miles of mostly virgin real estate.

"It's 1898 all over again," said prospector Ronald Granger. "There isn't a gold claim in the territory that hasn't changed hands at least once at prices never dreamed of five years ago."

And like '98, all the good claims were staked out long ago, leaving the new arrivals with rich experience and empty pockets.

"There has certainly been an increase in prospecting activity for gold,' said Blake R. Baxter, the supervising mining recorder for the Yukon Territory, "but it is no boom, and certainly no rush."

Baxted pointed out that most of the Klondike had been tramped over acre by acre since the first strike in 1896, and the big producing placers had long ago been washed clean of most of their color.

"There has not been a staking rush for gold claims," Baxter said, "as there are only so many creeks in the Yukon and most of those have already been staked."

The Territory records show that whereas only 59 placer claims were filed two years ago before gold took its big jump, last fiscal year the total was 234, an increase of 296 per cent. Quartz claims were up from 7,358 to 10,368, a jump of 41 per cent.

Cam Ogilvy, manager of the Yukon Chamber of Mines, described the splurge as a "mini gold rush."

"Due to the high price of gold —around $170 an ounce —there has been a substantial increase in placer mining activity in the Yukon," Ogilvy said, "particularly around the Dawson area where the big finds were made in the 1890s."

But he emphasized that most of the precious metal activity was by individuals working part time, or just during the summer months.

"The last dredging operation ceased about seven years ago," Ogilvy explained, "and the placer mining is being done pretty much the way it was in the 1890s, by individual or small groups of young prospectors. The Yukon Consolidated Gold Corp., which holds most of the Yukon leases, hasn't done much except sub-lease or sell some of its claims."

Ogilvy then produced the wealth figures for the territory which showed the $15.5 million worth of mineral production in 1967 had leaped to $147 million this year.

"And this," he forecast, "is only the beginning. Most of that increase is from the Anvil Mining Corp.'s open pit operation 130 air miles northeast of Whitehorse, and from the Whitehorse Copper Mines Ltd. just outside town. From all indications, the new Barrier Reef discovery in the Bonnet Plume River, 300 miles northeast of Whitehorse is the biggest zinc-silver-lead find in the territory."

The area is so remote that everything must be flown in, and not even a dirt road has yet been built into the valley. Construction of the road is expected to begin this summer.

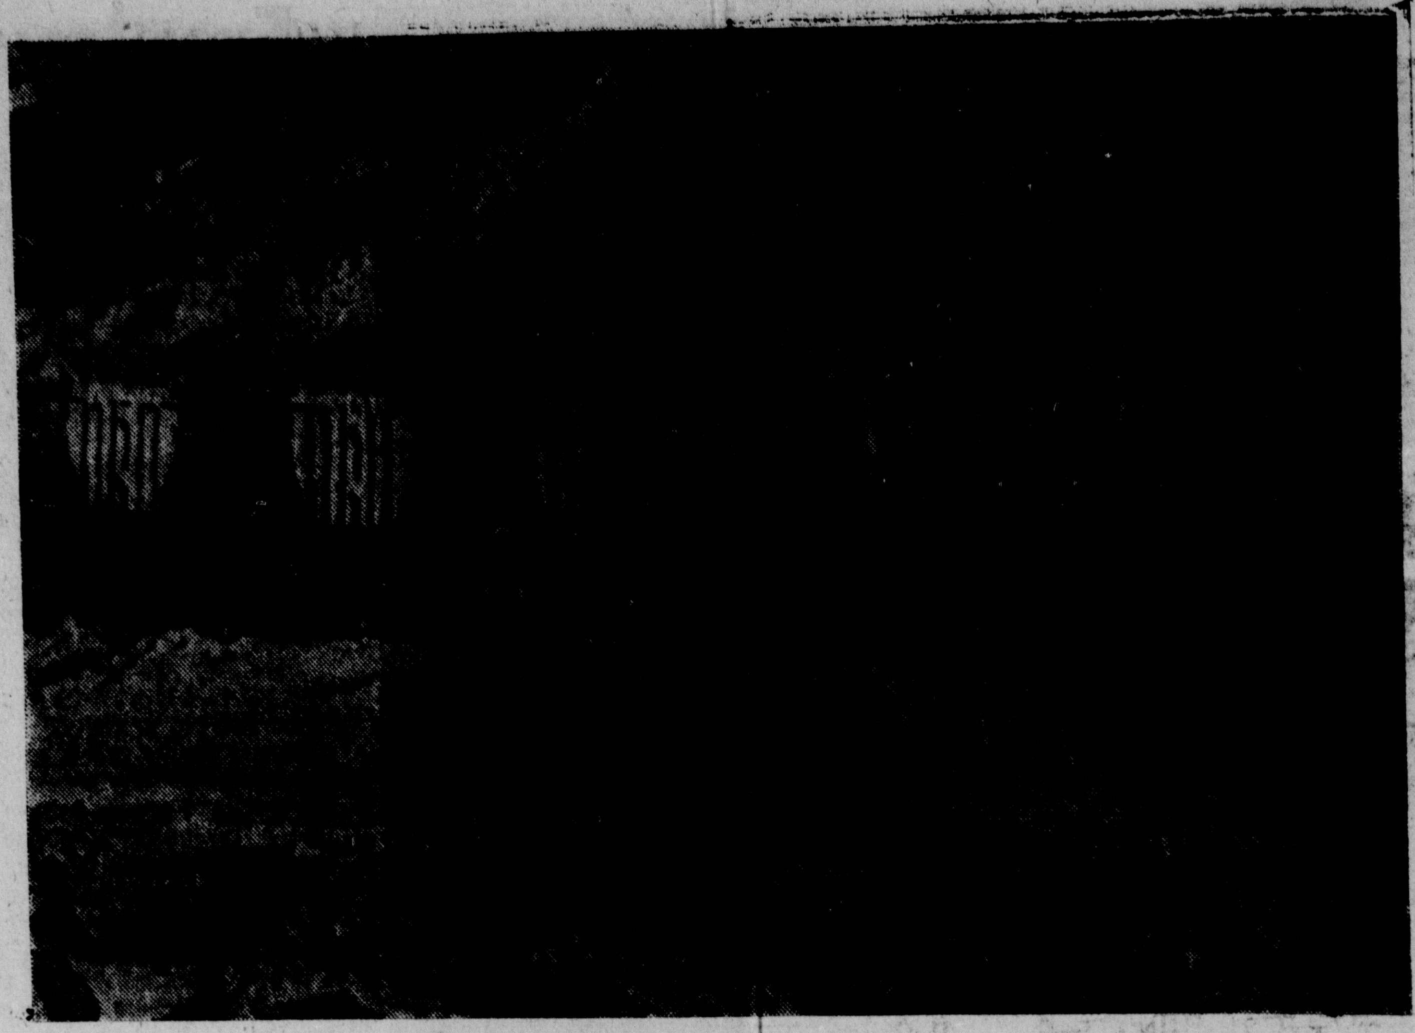
There was no road into the Anvil area, either, until the strike was made there in the early 1960s. Now ore trucks loaded with 15 tons of zinc-lead concentrates make the 150-mile run from the Anvil mine to Whitehorse every 20 minutes day and night, hauling the concentrates to the railhead at Whitehorse. From there it is moved by the narrow gauge White Pass and Yukon Railway 110 miles over historic White Pass to Skagway for shipment to West Germany and Japan. Even with these tremendous shipping costs, the high price of zinc makes the Anvil operation one of the most profitable in the Yukon.

Information officer Don Sawatsky of the Yukon Territory government confirmed that there had been discussions of extending the WP&Y on down the Yukon to Dawson, and also preliminary studies made on building a smelter at Whitehorse, but that both proposals were still in the talking stage.

"There have been several good copper finds in the Territory," Ogilvy said. "The United Keno Hill Mines about 300 miles northwest of Whitehorse has two years supply of ore in sight, and we estimate that the territory now possesses at least 10 per cent of the world's tungsten supply. The Cassiar Asbestos Corp. has two big operations, one at McDame Mountain in British Columbia just south of the Yukon border, and the other at Clinton Creek, 50 miles northwest of Dawson."

Each of the mining men is convinced that the present exploitation and development is only the beginning.

"Our biggest need now is energy," Ogilvy said, "either through development of our hydroelectric sources, or the proposed natural gas pipeline from Prudhoe Bay and the MacKenzie Delta which will be going right past our front door. If we can tap that source of energy and use it to refine our ores, the Yukon has the potential of becoming one of the biggest mining-industrial complexes in Canada."



GOLD RUSH — Locomotives of a White Horse and Yukon Railway train haul a string of ore cars in Canada's Yukon Territory where the cry of "Gold" is heard again, blended with shouts of "Zinc, zinc." The rising price of the yellow metal that made the territory famous in 1898 is attracting hundreds of modern prospectors, but the big excitement is with zinc, copper, lead and manganese finds which geologists say will prove richer than any wealth conceived by the stampeders of 1898.

Tops in milk

California cows average the highest milk production in the United States, about 5,000 quarts each in a year.

Eudora Welty

Pulitzer author looks back

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Eudora Welty said she "didn't know any better" when she started sending her short stories to magazines as a young woman just out of her teens.

"I would write things and send them in and they would come back—always with rejection slips—they always came straight back," she recalled with a smile.

The Pulitzer Prize-winning author of "The Optimist's Daughter" agreed recently, during her 65th birthday week, to a rare interview and reminisced about her distinguished literary career.

Sitting in the sunny and quiet living room of her girlhood home. Miss Welty said that she was touched with "luck and ignorance and innocence" when she first began submitting her stories of familiar characters and places to small circulation magazines during the Depression.

"It was luck because in those poor years there were a lot of magazines where an unknown author could be printed," she said.

"Petrified" Esquire

But she described how the larger publications sent her early stories back to her. She especially remembered mailing a story called "The Petrified Man" to Esquire magazine.

"They accepted the story and then they found out I was a woman," she said "They wrote me and said they did not know I was a woman and could not use the story."

She didn't allow such early setbacks to deter her from her chosen profession and over the years has become one of America's foremost authors.

The Pulitzer Prize which she received last year was among numerous awards and critical acclaim won by Miss Welty since the first publication of one of her stories in 1936 in a small magazine called Manuscript.

Her novel "Losing Battles" was a Pulitzer Prize nominee in 1971, and "The Ponder Heart" won the William Dean Howells Medal of the American Academy of Arts and Letters for the most distinguished piece of American fiction to be published in the five years before 1954.

Success Brings Problems

She also was recognized in 1972 with the Gold Medal award of the National Institute of Arts and Letters, which had been won 10 years earlier by fellow Mississippian William Faulkner.

But success, she said modestly, had brought problems and interrupted her coveted privacy with activity that "was not my normal way of going on... there was the excitement, but my life is pretty quiet."

"I look for whole, dear days to work without interruption," she said. "I'm pretty priggishly conscientious. I try not to be priggish, but I probably am because I have a lot of pride in my work."

Miss Welty, the only daughter of a prosperous Jackson insurance executive, attended Mississippi State College for Women and graduated later from the University of Wisconsin with a degree in English. She also studied advertising at Columbia University.

WPA was a help

"When I first got out of college," she said, "the country was in the Depression and there weren't any jobs so I took a part time job. It left me with time to write, which I had wanted to do all the time."

She worked for a while as a "general factotum" at a Jackson radio station owned by her father's insurance firm, but it was her rambling criss-crossing of Mississippi by bus and car as a WPA publicist that gave her much of the material for her stories.

"I have trained my memory well," she said. "I have a visual mind and a love of accuracy." During her travels, her keen eye caught infinite qualities of Southern small town living and the characters within.

Those small towns, she said fondly, are "much more likely a setting for a writer—they define a space and simplify your work—you treat it like a family."

Back home in the upstairs bedroom of her chocolate-brown brick house, Eudora Welty wove her many stories on an upright typewriter which she has often said she'd rather use then talk.

"My ideas come out of a typewriter," she once said. "I can put them down on paper but I'm not very good at just talking them. I like the noise and I don't feel I've really done it until it's been through the typewriter."

She said the people in her stories are mostly composites of people she has known "a lifetime," mixed with a measure of her own feelings.

She said characterization is "the most important thing" in her work. "It's essential; it's what makes you want to write to begin with, a feeling for other people. I cannot write about emotions I have never had.

"You cannot describe something you haven't felt—it's dishonest."

But she said her own emotions "are not acted out the same in a story as it was in my life."

Ideas nurtured slowly

Miss Welty said she usually nurtured the ideas for her stories for a long time before putting them on paper. "I think over some kind of general theme, usually things in the world that bother me. Then all of a sudden something will give you a clue, maybe something you've heard," she said.

"Then you realize the form into which you can put these feelings, you can put it in in a hurry. It could be thinking and feeling over a year without even knowing you are doing it."

After a pause, she continued: "You have to have an idea so strong that it compels you to write. Only a strong idea has vitality and you give it all you've got."

Miss Welty, who has never married, lives alone in the big house and still sleeps in her old "private bedroom" where a pink floral carpet covers the floor. Scores of books line the walls.

Forgets to eat

Except for a housekeeper, she said, she works alone in the house often wearing "an old shirt or a housedress and sometimes barefooted." She said she sometimes gets so involved in her work that she might forget to eat except "sometimes I like to fix myself a peanut butter sandwich quickly and get back to work."

"I am very hard on myself and I hope I always will be," she said.

Although she shuns publicity, she is not a recluse. She enjoys driving around Jackson in an old powder-blue Ford and visits her neighborhood grocery almost anonymously. "You can move around just the way you want to here," she said.

And her life isn't all work. She said she likes "to knock off work in the late afternoon, meet a friend and go out to dinner or play records and read. I like to travel and to entertain and I have good friends in different places."

Mystery fan

Some of her favorite books, she said, are mystery stories.

Among her current projects is compiling her nonfiction writing into a book, including lectures, book reviews and speeches that she has made over the years.

When taking vacation:

Plan security for your home

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thieves can add considerably to the cost of a summer holiday so the wise family will add home safeguards to holiday planning.

From Pinkerton's, Inc., private security firm, and others some hints on procedures:

—Don't talk in public about your travel plans, household possessions or personal valuables. You never know who's listening. Above all, don't announce your vacation plans in the local newspaper; wait until you've returned if you really must oblige the society reporter.

—Aim for an "at-home" look while you are gone. One way is to have someone you trust "house sit" —live in while you are away. City friends might enjoy the change if you live in the suburbs; if yours is a city home, look to out-of-town friends. This also enables you to leave pets at home.

Almost as good, if there are pets, is to leave them at home and arrange for a reliable neighborhood youngster or a friend to stop in two or three times a day to take care of them.

—For most families, probably the most practical way is for neighbors to cooperate, to keep an eye on each other's homes.

Automatic lights

—Before you take off on vacation, invest in automatic timers for a few lamps —in the living room and kitchen, a room or two upstairs. Set them to turn on around dusk and go off later in the evening as they would if you were at home. Stagger them so they don't turn off and on at the same time. You might put a radio on one. This is a good year-'round measure, too, for anytime the house is going to be empty.

— Don't draw window shades. Leave them as you would if you were at home. It's a wise idea, however, to put out of sight any valuables —a silver tea service, for instance.

—Have a cooperative neighbor pick up your newspapers for you. One burglar, Pinkerton's said, had a tip-off man working in a newspaper subscription office to learn of families that were stopping their papers temporarily.

—Neighbors also can turn on the sprinklers in your lawn, have their guests or members of the family park in your driveway, even put rubbish in your garbage cans.

—If you'll be away for any length of time, arrange to have the grass cut.

—Lock up ladders and tools and garage doors.

—Notify police that you will be away.

A final thought —Pinkerton's notes in some cities, block associations give members a warning whistle as a signal in case of street crime. In suburban areas, other neighborhoods are forming associations to hire security patrols. Along with the extra benefits of getting to know who lives near you, Pinkerton's says, crime drops sharply.

There are residential patrol and inspection services with two-way radio cars and uniformed guards behind the wheel. A central office acts as dispatcher and relays any trouble reports to police headquarters. When a family is away, the radio patrol acts as a special watchman.

Good security need not cost a lot. In fact, the best measures are often the least expensive — getting to know your neighbors and taking some simple common sense precautions.

House features cedar roof, louver shutters

The graciousness and formality of the facade of this home is characterized by its attractive cedar shingle roof, the brick veneer and the large windows framed between louver shutters.

Although the home has been planned as a split level design, it could easily be constructed on a level lot by lowering the one-story portion of the plan until it is on approximately the same level as the garage.

Twin doors open to a center hall entry which offers excellent traffic circulation to all areas of the home. Entry access is also available directly from the oversized two-car garage. Such a feature will really be appreciated during inclement weather. From the entry one has a direct view of the attractive fireplace in the huge living room.

Only cabinets — including an eating bar — separate the kitchen and family room. Not the storage complex consisting of closets opening to the family room and dining plus a guest closet at the entry. Sliding glass doors open from the family room to the patio while a wide pass through window above the kitchen sink offers a convenient method of serving drinks or food on the patio.

The location of the family bath and the private bath off the master bedroom allows the economy of back-to-back plumbing. There is a twin lavatory in the family bath. A pullman lavatory in the dressing area of the master bedroom suite continues to form a dressing table.

Laundry facilities plus a furnace and water heater have been located in the roomy workshop just back of the garage.

This same basic exterior is also available in a three bedroom design, at a different price structure, and is illustrated in our book, Hallmark Homes.

Complete working drawings for plan 4108 can be purchased for only $12.67 for the first set and $6.36 for each additional set ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these special prices until September 12, 1974. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. A specification booklet is available for $1.06. A large reproduction rendering of the exterior is available for $1.06. Send all orders to: Hiawatha Estes, P.O. Box 404-PO, Northridge, CA 91324.

Woman earns realty award for sales

UPLAND — Margaret E. Bradford, sales woman for Lewis Homes of California, has been awarded a "Million Dollar Circle" citation by the National Association of Home Builders' sales and marketing council.

She was honored for personally contributing to more than $1 million in sales last year at the Lewis Homes—Prestige development in Upland.

The Lewis Homes organization, with headquarters in Upland, builds residential developments in California, Nevada and Utah.

SIGNS POINT TO CHINO — These signs advertising new residential communities, located on Mountain Avenue near the Pomona Freeway, indicates the large number of homes being built in the Chino area. While some homes in the developments are ready for occupancy, others are still being constructed. City officials issued in April building permits for 49 single family homes with a $1.3 million valuation.

Builders propose measures to boost housing production

WASHINGTON — Concerned over inflation, tight money and high interest rates which depressed housing production, the National Association of Home Builders has proposed a program to alleviate the situation.

Lewis Cenker, NAHB president, said the group's 1,100 member board recommended these measures at their spring meeting:

— Establishment of a system of national priorities of allocation of financial resources and holding down unnecessary government spending which would lead toward balanced budgets.

— A system of credit allocation to create an equitable flow to those sectors of the economy hardest hit.

— Reinstitution of some form of economic controls so as to monitor firmly wage and price adjustments.

— A less restrictive money policy than now being adhered to by the Administration.

— Creation of a capital issues committee to regulate the flow of borrowing demands in the market place.

In a board statement, members said that housing, a major segment of the economy, is being "disproportionately depressed" by the inequalities of national policies.

"While there has been some attention focused on housing problems by the President's recent announcement of additional secondary mortgage market support, it must be recognized that the $10.3 billion price tag sounds like more than it is," they noted.

An accompanying resolution condemned current economic policy and the Federal Reserve Board's reliance on tight money and high interest rates as a device for containing inflation as "not only self defeating but a contributor to that very inflation it is intended to cure."

The NAHB called for Congress to establish immediately a program to make mortgage funds constantly available at reasonable and stable rates.

Firm to warm new building via computers

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Heat generated by computers as they turn out business data will be used to warm a new building here.

The Hartford Insurance Group estimated computers work up enough energy to ultimately save 120,000 gallons of oil annually.

The computer heat will circulate through a nine-story building, now under construction for The Hartford. Computer heat formerly was regarded as an unwanted by-product of data processing.

Young people are entering realty field

LOS ANGELES — The real estate profession is drawing younger and career minded sales people.

"Many persons buying homes or seeking help in finding an apartment are quite young. Therefore they relate better when dealing with a young Realtor or salesman," said Richard C. Farrer, vice president of the California Real Estate Association.

"This is probably because they understand each others lack of money," he added.

"The trend is escalating to require a college degree to become a broker in the near future. And young people in real estate practice are the result and the cause.

"Many times today you'll find college educated men and women involved in real estate, bringing new ideas to a fast growing element of our society," said Farrer.

Orchard Lane reports most homes sold

UPLAND — More than 80 per cent of the Orchard Lane homes here have been sold.

The $3 million condominium community, developed by the Fredricks Development Corp., is located at Spencer Avenue and Seventh Street.

Buyers have their choice of single story homes having two or three bedrooms and one or two bathrooms.

The homes feature wall-to-wall carpeting, drapes, kitchen ranges and ovens, dishwashers, luminous kitchen ceilings and "no wax" vinyl floors, and central air conditioning.

The development has a large heated swimming pool, hydro-therapy pool, cabana and children's playground. Maintenance of landscaping, recreation area and exterior of the homes is under the supervision of the homeowners association.

The homes are priced from $19,900 with conventional financing available. Furnished model homes are open daily.

Despite interest rates:

Homes in California are still good investment

C. Larry Hoag, president of the California Real Estate Assocation (CREA), gave this opinion in response to President Nixon's announcement that he is infusing $10 billion into the mortgage market.

"On the short term, that will help make money available for some types of housing," said Hoag. "But it doesn't really get at the root of the problem. That's inflation and the monetary policies of the federal government.

"People must get used to the idea that when they rent money—and that's all mortgage interest is—the price is higher. It has been for several years, in spite of the fluctuations caused by government or the marketplace."

Hoag said the average family buying a home in California lives in it from five to seven years before selling. "If they wait six months to buy, hoping the interest rate will go down, they're playing dodge ball with their future.

"And in all probability they will still be hit by inflation while trying to dodge high interest rates."

A $25,000 house would increase in value about $1,250 in six months at recent inflation rates, more than using up any savings they may make, he noted.

"Even if they keep the house for seven years, the added interest they pay in their montly payments will in all probability be more than offset by the rising value of their house."

Hoag was cautious about the immediate effect of the Nixon administration's announcement that $4 billion will be advanced by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to savings and loan firms. Coupled with that action is another $3.3 billion to expand VA and FHA financing.

"We'll have to wait and see how much of that actually gets down to the grass roots where the average person is," he said. "This might help the eligible veteran to get a VA loan, but FHA's main problem will still be there."

Hoag said the big reason FHA isn't used extensively is unreasonable requirements for cosmetic repairs before approving a loan. Then added the high cost of points and typical delays in processing, and it's no wonder sellers shy away from FHA.

"Even if the President's action makes more money available for loan through savings and loan associations, the likelihood of it at a substantially lower interest rates is remote," said Hoag.

UPLAND HOME — The second phase of Lewis Homes — Upland will add 39 homes to the community located on 14th Street, a half block west of Mountain Avenue. The homes, part of the Classic Series, will feature cedar shake roofs, wood burning fireplaces and garden kitchens.

Lewis Homes completing model homes

These will serve as prototypes for the 39 homes in the new unit, said Richard A. Lewis, president of Lewis Homes.

"Actually, all 39 homes are in a sense display models for the community," he noted. "Because they are in various stages of construction, they afford shoppers of new homes an opportunity to see the materials and workmanship that go into our houses, even in the parts of the structure that are not visible to the eye once the house is completed."

Buyers will have their choice of one and two story models. The homes are designed with cedar shake roofs, wood burning fireplaces and garden kitchens.

The homes are priced from $33,950 with VA buyers offered 7¾ths per cent loans, equivalent to 8¼ per cent annual percentage rate. Cal Vet terms of 4¾ths per cent interest and conventional financial are also available.

$1.5 billion:

March building shows gain in nation's 200 large cities

NEW YORK — March building permits in the nation's 200 largest cities totaled $1.5 billion. This was a 33 per cent increase over February's $1.1 billion, reports Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.

And while the permit valuations were the highest since August, they lagged below the March, 1973, volume of $1.6 billion.

In New York, a sharp increase was noted as builders filed plans valued at $165,142,318, almost three times the previous month's total of $58,814,075. This was also the highest value since November, 1972.

Strong month-to-month gains were noted in the boroughs of Bronx and Richmond.

Outside of New York, permit valuations in the other 199 cities climbed 25.5 per cent during March to $1.4 billion, a seven month high from $1.1 billion.

Registering large gains were Chicago, Dallas, San Diego, New Orleans and Columbus. The 199 cities excluding New York trailed the $1.5 billion in March 1973.

The 200-city aggregate for 1974's first quarter reached $4,058,768,128, a slight drop from the same period last year of $4,347,300,441.

Cities in California registered these March building valuations and three month accumulative totals:

Los Angeles, $63,101,326 and $175,247,142; San Francisco, $8,536,227 and $32,944,197; San Diego, $39,858,496 and $71,701,799; San Jose, $21,384,446 and $43,902,404; Long Beach, $2,707,625 and $11,125,270; Sacramento, $5,309,225 and $14,945,890; Anaheim, $3,791,702 and $23,463,047; Fresno, $6,259,616 and $14,323,331; Santa Ana, $6,848,763 and $20,140,941; Riverside, $1,091,464 and $7,004,804.

Torrance, $7,711,965 and $11,551,686; Glendale, $5,224,246 and $10,401,768; Garden Grove, $3,449,387 and $8,396,590; Berkeley, $384,942 and $2,723,993; Pasadena, $614,647 and $3,268,827; Stockton, $4,363,844 and $14,762,646; San Bernardino, $1,661,513 and $3,345,976; Fremont, $2,960,550 and $7,501,325; Sunnyvale, $3,190,583 and $7,668,136; Hayward, $2,140,574 and $6,873,354.

Norwalk, $3,441,120 and $5,307,640; Inglewood, $576,880 and $2,220,622; Burbank, $666,750 and $2,098,285; Downey, $827,817 and $2,156,884; Santa Monica, $4,255,593 and $9,700,441; Santa Clara, $6,376,864 and $12,970,384; Pomona, $236,771 and $1,366,072; and Fullerton, $7,548,968 and $18,732,247.

But all 38 are attorneys

Impeachment committee is a microcosm of the House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Regardless of how far the impeachment process against President Nixon goes, the initial decision has to be made by the 36 men and two women who make up the House Judiciary Committee.

They are nearly a microcosm of the entire House.

Liberal Democrats like Reps. Jerome R. Waldie, Calif., a gubernatorial candidate, and Robert F. Drinan, Mass., offset conservative Republicans like Reps. Lawrence Hogan, Md., and Delbert L. Latta, Ohio.

The committee has bright members —one a Rhodes scholar —and some not so bright. It has the lethargic and energetic, reasonable and unreasonable, strident and reserved, formal and informal, quiet and talkative, shy people and publicity seekers.

It has its share of large-state representatives and those from the smaller states, East, West, North and South. It has three blacks, 21 Democrats and 17 Republicans, and there is a cross section of liberals and conservatives from each party.

They range in age from the 72 years of Rep. Harold D. Donohue, D-Mass., to the 32 years of Rep. Trent Lott, R-Miss.

All that is reflective of the makeup of the entire House of 434 members.

But the committee departs from the House makeup in that all 38 of its members are lawyers. They are different kids of lawyers. Most gained experience with law firms, but there also are former prosecuting attorneys, a state attorney general, two assistant U.S. attorneys, a law professor, county judge, justice of the peace, district attorney and assistant D.A., corporation lawyer and four former FBI agents.

Almost all say publicly they have not yet made up their minds about impeachment, but estimates are that 17 lean in favor of it, 13 against and 8 undecided.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., wants the evidence supporting an article of impeachment —if there is any — to be overwhelmingly convincing. He doesn't want to recommend an article of impeachment by a partisan vote. He wants it to be clean and unmarred by any possible charge of partisan politics.

To avoid that, Rodino has been especially cautious about making concessions to the Republicans, who have been under constant pressure from the House leadership and the White House to protect the President's interests.

He has been so cautious in conducting the panel's impeachment business that it has taken nearly seven months, since it first received the impeachment assignment, to reach today's stage of presenting evidence.

If it weren't for impeachment, the committee would be mainly concerned this year with measures such as rewriting the rules of courtroom evidence, prison reform and drawing up a bill to protect newsmen from disclosure of sources.

At times the House of Representatives is bothered by "runaway committees" and committees whose membership do not reflect the makeup of the whole House. It doesn't have to worry about Judiciary on either score.

Chou slowly dropping out of the public eye

HONG KONG (UPI) — Premier Chou En-lai is continuing his steady and studied withdrawal from the frontline of administrative leadership in China.

The withdrawal process that began early this month during visits by two heads of state has followed the same pattern during the current visit of a third foreign leader, Archbishop Makarios, president of Cyprus.

Chou failed to show up at the airport to greet the Cypriot leader. Chinese officials, the most prominent of whom was Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, gave Makarios a collective welcome instead of the one-man show usually given by Chou until last month.

Chou greeted Makarios at the guest house in downtown Peking. He later joined in the first round of talks, along with Teng and other Chinese officials.

The Chinese premier also accompanied Makarios to a meeting with Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung. But he missed the second round of talks at which Teng headed the Chinese side.

The welcoming banquet for Makarios was given in Chou's name. But Teng hosted it and made the welcome speech usually given by Chou.

"I am entrusted by Premier Chou En-lai to be host at the banquet this evening," he told the guests in Peking's Great Hall of the People. He gave no explanation for Chou's absence, the fourth such banquet he has missed this month.

Chou's possible withdrawal was signaled in early May when he failed to appear at a farewell banquet given by President Leopold Senghor of Senegal.

The withdrawal process was virtually confirmed a few days later when Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan arrived.

Chou did not turn up at the airport, greeting Bhutto at the guest house instead. He talked of being old and tired. He was not too old and tired to join in talks with Bhutto and accompany him to a meeting with Mao.

It was in that meeting that analysts specializing in Chinese affairs noted a change in the seating arrangements in Mao's study. Instead of being on Mao's right, Chou sat on the chairman's left, with Bhutto between them. Teng sat in Chou's usual place.

The same arrangement was followed for the Makarios' meeting with Mao.

Loss of sex drive by aged is a myth

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ideas that old people lose their sex drives are myths that should be dispelled by doctors and the general public, a research psychologist says.

In fact, Dr. Robert N. Butler told a national conference sponsored by the American Medical Association, many elderly men and women can and do perfect the art of lovemaking to new levels of satisfaction.

"The evidence clearly points to a continuing physical capacity and sexual desire throughout life, even into the advanced eighties," Butler said.

He said there are many serious myths about sexuality among the aging that contribute to misapprehension, fear and uneasiness among older people and their families.

"There's the 'fading fast' myth that holds that anybody over 45 is on a sexual decline," Butler said. "Then there's the 'over the hill' myth that declares that the decline has reached its nadir and sexuality is over. This is usually pegged as occurring somewhere between 60 and 65.

"Then, of course," he said, "there's the 'fragility' myth that presents the belief that sexual activity might somehow be dangerous either in terms of heart attacks or broken bones or something of that sort."

Butler, who serves on the faculties of the Washington (D.C.) School of Psychiatry, Howard University and George Washington University, said it is very important for physicians to help older people understand that "these myths" are simply myths.

"Not only must doctors learn this," he said, "but the public at large must learn this and our whole cultural sensitivity towards old people should be changed so that we are not ridiculing, laughing or making jokes about sexual activity or any other activity that older people may engage in."

Butler said men and women learn throughout life and many of those in the middle and late years of life perfect the "second language of sex," which is related carrassing, touching, tenderness and quality.

"With the children gone, with more leisure and with retirement, older people can spend more time working at —and it does demand working at — developing the character of their relationship," Butler said.

"The second language of human sexuality is vastly underdeveloped and old age is a time of life filled with possibilities for its exploration. We already know that the old are physically capable of sex. What we are beginning to learn is that many of them could raise the art of lovemaking to a new development."

He's no Don Quixote, but he's ready to do battle with windmills

HAMILTON, Ill. (UPI) — Edwin Wingfield may be the last full-time windmill repairman in the nation. He says he knows of no others in his line.

"At 59, "it's not an easy way to make a living," he said in an interview.

From his Hamilton home — across the Mississippi River from the Iowa-Missouri border —he travels hundreds of miles to jobs. Sometimes he just cruises rural roads looking for a windmill that needs fixing.

"I can size up a windmill in two minutes. I can tell you how old it is, what repairs have been made, and what's wrong with it," he said.

When he spots an ailing windmill from the road, he pulls up to the farm house, introduces himself as "the windmill man," and offers services. Often the people have been trying for years to find someone who could repair their windmill.

Wingfield said he "never had any trouble' with the door to door approach. "Everyone likes to talk windmills, but some don't want to have them fixed," he said.

Wingfield is a self-taught repairman —he was in construction until a day 23 years ago when a friend asked him to help repair a windmill.

"I have sort of a categorical mind when it comes to windmills," he said. "I remember them like I remember faces."

About once a year Wingfield, his wife and their 15-year-old son ride the Santa Fe to California to visit relatives. One reason they take the train, he said, is "so I can look at windmills."

"I bet I know every windmill on both sides of the tracks between here and Los Angeles," he said.

At one time, Wingfield said, 19 to 20 companies manufactured windmills and sold them to farmers and ranchers from coast to coast. Today, he knows of only one firm that makes the small-bladed, American-type windmill and its plant is in South America, where windmills are in demand for large cattle ranches.

Wingfield said the windmills now in use are mostly pre-World War II types, some of them manufactured 75 or more years ago. Fixing them has its hazards.

Wingfield must climb the spindly-legged windmill towers —generally about 50 feet high —to get at the mechanism that connects the wind-driven wheel to the pump.

The wheel and the large metal vane that keeps it pointed into the wind can shift suddenly and deliver a damaging and possibly fatal blow.

Sometimes the platform near the top of the windfall gives way, leaving him dangling in space by a nylon safety line.

"That's something you never get used to," he said.

Vet prefers house calls for sick pets

CHICAGO, Illinois (UPI) — Veterinarian Leon Schwartz makes house calls because sick pets respond to treatment better in familiar surroundings.

"House calls are much easier on the sick animal," Schwarts said. "Many city animals seldom get outdoors at all.

"Imagine what it's like to be a cat or dog acccustomed to certain surroundings and people. Then you're transported in a strange vehicle to a strang place full of freightening sights, sounds and smells. Then you are put on a table to be poked, proded, and stuck with needles by strangers."

Schwartz, whose standard consultation fee for most calls is $10, also firmly believes a pet's best nurse is its owner.

He said some pets do require hospitalization but "many procedures can be performed in the home and this can be best for the animal, for the owner and for me.

"The greatest advantage of home care is the quality of the nursing the pet receives. It's hard to get efficient and compassionate nursing care in an institutional setting, even for human patients. In an animal hospital, the problem is far more difficult."

Turkey moves fast

The wild turkey not only is the largest upland game bird, it is also the fastest.

EASY EVERYTHING $15,500

Easy living in the two bedroom home; easy to expand on the huge R-2 lot; easy to assume the existing loan; easy to move in because it's vacant now; easy to dial our number, to see it, and to buy it. Make it easy on yourself — do it now!

A "HOMEY" ONE! $21,950

This is a good all-around home for a good all-around family. It has four bedrooms, 1¾ baths, and more than 1200 sq. ft. It's loaded on a cul-de-sac and is convenient to schools, transportation, and shopping. All terms are available. Let's go see it now!

COMPLETE COMFORT $24,950

was built into this cozy Claremont home with it's four bedrooms, 1¾ baths and a dining room included in its spacious, gracious 1350 sq. ft. All terms are available, including an assumable 6% VA loan at $172.00 per month. To delay is to miss out, call now.

GHQ FOR A BIG FAMILY $32,000

The specifications say it all; four bedrooms, 1 + ¾ + ½ baths, family room, rumpus room, a kitchen with all built-ins including the refrigerator, two fireplaces, over 2200 sq. ft., a three car garage, automatic sprinklers in the lawn, a covered patio, and a 15' x 30' heated pool. Oh, yes, all terms too. Wow! You've got to see this one. Call today.

A COOL ONE $28,000

Central air conditioning keeps this home cool throughout all of its 1730 sq. ft., which includes three bedrooms, a family room, and 1¾ baths. Its cool outside also, because of the 11' x 21' covered patio. You'd be "cool" to see it right away. We're waiting on our hot-line, so do it!

THE 'OL SWIMMIN' HOLE $45,000

That's the atmosphere suggested by the evergreens surrounding this 20' x 38' heated pool. The home itself is long and low and nestles amid a profusion of colorful plants and shrubs. The living space includes over 2000 sq. ft. with four bedrooms, three bathrooms, a family room and a den. We can go see it today if you'll dial our number now!

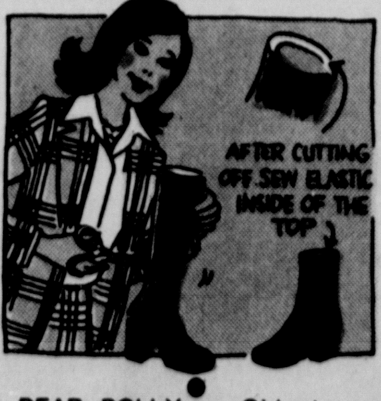
Pointers

DEAR POLLY — If you have a pair of thin, crinkled wet-look patent boots that are perfectly good, still fit your feet, but are now too small around your legs, turn into pants boots. Cut off just above the ankle and sew down the raw edge. Measure two pieces of elastic around your leg and sew them to the inside of the tops of your "new" pants boots. — TAMMY.



AFTER CUTTING OFF SEW ELASTIC INSIDE OF THE TOP

DEAR POLLY — Old pierced earrings make pretty bulletin board tacks. Use a file to make a sharp point and you are all ready to stick it in your bulletin board. — J.T.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, ℅ this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — You'll do a better and more accurate job of cutting out garments to be sewn if you first press the usually very wrinkled pattern pieces. Iron gently, using low heat and no steam. — BARBARA.

DEAR POLLY — My manmade fur shortie coat needed washing. I followed the manufacturer's directions, but I did not like the coat's looks after it was dry. I brushed it with a hair brush and now it looks as good as new. — ANGELA

DEAR POLLY — There never seemed to be a pen or pencil at hand to jot down a phone message, so I taped a small pencil sharpener to the phone as a holder. I never lose the "point"! — CECELIA.

DEAR POLLY — Don't throw away those empty thread spools. Wind yarn or crochet thread around them. Stick a wire through the hole and bend so it can hang on your chair arm as you knit or crochet. — RUTHANN.

DEAR POLLY — When buying new sheets and pillowcases it is more ecomical to buy only sheets with an extra flat twin size, to use for making pillowcases. I make three pairs from one sheet. — SANDY.

DEAR POLLY — The case from an old vacuum bottle makes a fine yarn caddy. First, remove the lid and top collar. Discard the glass liner. Pierce the lid. Place yarn in the case, replace the collar, run yarn through the hole in the lid and replace it. This caddy is a real help to me! — MRS. W.S.G.

DEAR POLLY — My mixing bowl slipped and went crashing to the floor. Until I could replace it I started using a heavy glass quart-size measuring cup and found it so convenient I do not want a new bowl. The cup does not slip around, has a useful handle, a spout and now serves two purposes. — MRS. A.E.L.

COCONUTS

COCONUTS ARE REALLY THE SEEDS FROM COCONUT PALMS. THE ROUND SPOTS, OR "EYES," AT ONE END OF THE COCONUT ARE SOFT SPOTS IN THE HARD SHELL THROUGH WHICH THE BABY COCONUT PALM WILL SPROUT WHEN THE COCONUT SEED IS PLANTED.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

MARTIN GUENTHER, OREGON CITY, OR, ASKS:

"WHAT IS A STAR MADE OF?"

EVERY BRIGHT STAR IS A SUN, LIKE OUR OWN SUN. THIS MEANS THAT STARS ARE GREAT BALLS OF GLOWING GASES. THESE GASES SEEM TO BE MADE UP OF THE SAME ELEMENTS THAT WE FIND ON EARTH, SUCH AS HYDROGEN AND HELIUM. ON THE STAR, THE ATOMS OF GAS PRESS TOGETHER SO TIGHTLY THAT THEY RELEASE ENERGY IN THE FORM OF LIGHT AND HEAT. THIS IS WHY STARS SHINE. MOST OF THESE STARS ARE SO FAR AWAY THAT THE LIGHT THEY GIVE OFF TAKES SEVERAL YEARS TO REACH THE EARTH.

CALIFORNIA JAM

"California Jam," one of the more successful outdoor concerts ever held in the United States will be telecast on ABC's In Concert series on Friday (June 7 and 21) at 11:30PM. An ABC Entertainment production, "California Jam" was attended by nearly 250,000 young people. The "Jam" was held in early April at the Ontario (Calif.) Motor Speedway and featured eight outstanding rock groups—Seals & Crofts, Eagles, Rare Earth, Earth, Wind & Fire, Black Oak Arkansas, Black Sabbath, Deep Purple and Emerson, Lake & Palmer. The trouble-free concert ran for a total 13½ hours and also featured fireworks, ballons and skydivers.

BIG AL

Al Molinaro, who portrays Murray the cop on ABC's The Odd Couple, (Fridays at 9:30PM), is everybody's idea of the prototype of a New York City cop. But Molinaro was born in Kenosha, Wisc., and only recently visited Manhattan for the first time. He was most impressed. Al's most obvious physical attributes are a generous-size nose and brown eyes as guileless as a puppy's. Overall, he has the aspect of a man who keeps taking wooden nickels, misses the bus by seconds and gets a busy signal whenever he dials. A professional actor only since 1969, Al arrived in Hollywood 21 years ago as part of a four-piece combo touring the country. Al, who plays piano and guitar, fancied the idea of doubling in brass as an actor and remained on in Hollywood when the other sidemen split the scene. He landed a $75 a week job as staff producer at a local TV outlet, and within three years began packaging and selling his own video programs. From there he took the plunge into TV as a performer. He bungled an assignment on a foreign car commercial, but it was so funny the producer decided to play the blurb for laughs. The commercial ran two years. Al enrolled in a Hollywood acting school and was seen in a play there by writer-producer Garry Marshall who later signed him for the role of Murray the cop.

COVER CLOSE-UP

'BOBBIE GENTRY'S HAPPINESS HOUR'

It was a few years ago—3:30 AM in a Las Vegas hotel room. A young performer had just returned home after another grueling round of shows. Unable to sleep, the creative urge compelled her to enlarge on a line she had scribbled some time before on a scrap of paper: "The day Billy Joe McCallister jumped off the Tallahatchee Bridge." Four or five hours later the sun was up and a new song was finished; a song that within a coule of months would have millions of people wondering what it was that Billy Joe had thrown off that bridge. "Ode To Billy Joe" won three Grammy Awards in 1967 and started Bobbie Gentry on her way to international recognition.

This Wednesday (8:00–9:00 PM) Bobbie Gentry will debut in her own mini-series on CBS, replacing The Sonny & Cher Comedy Hour for each of the four Wednesdays in June. Titled "Bobbie Gentry's Happiness Hour," the new show will give its star ample room to display her talents as a performer as well as a composer and lyricist. It will feature a versatile, sophisticated and glamorous Bobby Gentry—a far different star than the "country singer" image she's conveyed because of the Southern flavor of her songs.

The show's producers, Frank Peppiatt and Eric Lieber, have fashioned a dazzling combination of music, dance, comedy and guest stars to frame the Gentry talents. Emmy-winner Bill Davis is directing the hour-long segments which will feature the new young comedians Michael Greer, Valri Bromfield and Earl Pomerantz in the regular cast. Many of Miss Gentry's musical friends—such as Jim Nabors, Glen Campbell and Wayne Newton—will be guests.

"Ode To Billy Joe" was just the touchstone which put Bobbie Gentry on the road to her own television series. She soon was much sought after as performer on a variety of musical shows. "I often thought I was over-paid for what I did on those shows," she says. "I knew that I was capable of adding much more to the program than the few songs I was asked to sing." It was in England where she was able to hone her hostess talents to a fine edge during four years as the star of a BBC series. She continues to have a weekly disc jockey program on the American Armed Forces Radio Network, runs her own production company (Gentry, Ltd.), continues to write and record songs and has moved from the lounges in Las Vegas to that town's most sophisticated dinner rooms.

Although she is now much at home with the bright lights and fast pace of Hollywood and Las Vegas, she began life quite differently. She was raised by her grandparents on a farm in Chickasaw, Miss., where indoor plumbing and electricity were considered unconscionable luxuries. Her playmate and best friend was a dog, social life revolved around the local church, and the high point of the week was Saturday night and a trip to the county seat.

The Gentry musical talent started to display itself at seven with her first song: "My Dog Sergeant Is a Good Dog." Imitating the chuch pianist, the song is played mostly on the black keys. "From where I sat, it seemed that's the way he played." In her early teens she went to live in Palm Springs, graduating from high school in that California resort city. It was there she started performing and received encouragement from holidaying Hollywood personalities.

After a session at UCLA studying philosophy, she put her Las Vegas act together: a singing and dancing group for which she did all the writing and choreography. The group was a modest success but Bobbie's songs were gaining exposure. When she felt the time was right, she headed for Los Angeles determined to wager her entire savings on a concentrated attack on the recording companies. Finally "Ode To Billy Joe" was pressed by Capitol and the Gentry rocket took off. She has published 72 songs since then and still has time to let her creative juices flow in renovating her big home in the Hollywood Hills, paint, and design all of her own clothes, until now.

"Bobbie Gentry's Happiness Hour" is her all-consuming project at the moment. "I haven't been this excited since the first day of 'Billy Joe,' " she says.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR LOWELL THOMAS, newsman

Is there anyplace in the world you haven't been that you would like to explore? (You can see by my name why I'm curious!) —Lowell K. Thomas, Canton, Ohio

● Yes, Mr. Thomas, there are at least two thousand places on this planet I'd like to visit. Recently, Astronaut Neil Armstrong told me he thought it would be an excellent idea for me to join one of the space flights. The next time I see Dr. Fletcher, head of NASA, I'm going to urge him to arrange this. As for the innumerable places here on earth I'd like to visit, there is the far back country in Brazil, the northern half of Siberia and a mountain range in Antarctica that bears my name—and yours. Oh, yes, and I'd also like to visit Canton, Ohio, home of the Football Hall of Fame and Lowell K. Thomas!

FOR SEN. BIRCH BAYH (D-Ind.)

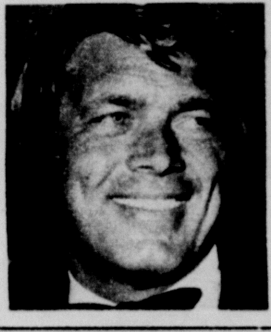
Why doesn't Medicare pay for Pap tests? After all, the mortality rate from cervical cancer is highest among older women.—M. O., Ocala, Fla.

● The only reason I can discover why this test is not now covered is the exclusion from the Medicare program of "routine physical checkups." But I agree that a test for uterine cancer should not be in the same class as a checkup. If we wait for a complaint to develop—in which case the Pap smear would come under Medicare—it may be too late.

FOR LUCILLE BALL

How many TV shows have you made?—Vincent L. Kelly, Woodcliff Lake, N.J.

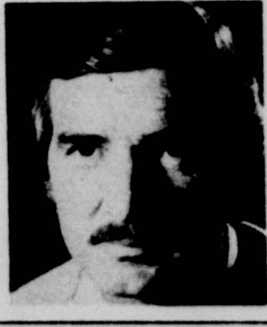
● At the conclusion of this year's production of "Here's Lucy," I will have filmed 483 episodes, which include the old "I Love Lucy" series and "The Lucy Show."



FOR CHAD EVERETT

You portray the role of Dr. Gannon on "Medical Center" very convincingly, and I wonder if you ever had an inclination to the medical profession?—Mrs. Walter Pitts, Lake City, Mich.

● Let's put it this way: If I found it necessary for some reason to forsake the acting profession and start a new career, I seriously believe I would consider the medical profession. And thanks for the compliment.



FOR DENNIS WEAVER

Is the accent you use on "McCloud" your own, or do you use it just for the TV series?—S. J., Charlevoix, Mich.

● I made it up, but it's pretty close to my own. I was born in Joplin, Mo., and attended the University of Oklahoma. But now I use the accent purposely. People from the country relate to it. It helps them like the character of McCloud. Makes them think he's sort of a nice, friendly fellow.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Why doesn't Ann-Margret use her last name?—Ray Sawman, Miami, Fla.

● Ann-Margret, who is married to actor Roger Smith, decided not to use her maiden name, Olsen, when she started in show business because she knew people in the public eye are always the targets of vicious gossip and rumors. Aware of her parents sensitivity in this area, she wanted to shield them from any adverse publicity, and felt that if she dropped her last name, they'd be cloaked in anonymity. But before she made the decision, Ann-Margret had the approval of her parents, of whom she is fiercely protective. She has often been heard to say: "When it comes to my family, I'm like a jealous tigress."

FOR SISTER JANET MEAD,
the nun who sings "The Lord's Prayer" to rock time

Many of my older Catholic friends are taken aback by your singing "The Lord's Prayer" to rock time. How do you reply to such criticism?—M. S. Moore, Atlantic City, N.J.

● I see Christ as a person with a vision of drawing all people together in happiness, and I see my work as part of His vision—to bring people to God through music.

FOR MICHAEL DOUGLAS,
starring in "The Streets of San Francisco"

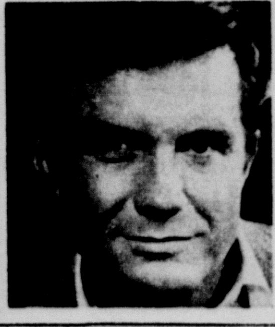
Were you made to give up car racing and flying when you went into the series "The Streets of San Francisco"?—S. K. T., Yreka, Calif.

● Yes. The reason is that I totaled my formula Ford racing car at Riverside. I hurt my knee, and I didn't feel I could afford to take that kind of chance while I was in a series. Also, I am very competitive, and to be best you have to practice constantly. I just didn't have time. I still fly occasionally. I'm checked out for single-engine planes.

FOR BOB HOPE

Why did you change your name from Leslie to Bob?—Dan Turnblom, Brigham City, Utah

● When I first started in vaudeville I was going to use my own name, Leslie, but I thought Bob sounded more like "one of the boys." Even though people shortened Leslie to Les, I never liked it. But changing it to Bob didn't help much either. Once they put my name outside the theater as "Ben Hope." When I protested, the manager said, "Who'll know?"



FOR CLIFF ROBERTSON

Is it true that you are an expert skier and have won more medals than anyone in Hollywood?—Ellen Smith, Chicago, Ill.

● No. I've only been in one ski race—the Sun Valley Pro-Am, which teams up amateurs like myself with professionals. I was teamed with two marvelous skiers, Harold Stuefer and Jack Beattie. We came in second. Had I known I was racing against the president of Warner Bros., I would have started slower. Incidentally, Jim Brolin was first.

Joan Kennedy Shares the Poignant Letters to Her Son

By Frances Spatz Leighton

Wide World

Prescription for Teddy's recovery: No special treatment, no favors.

The letter to Joan and her husband, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, was from a stranger:

Seventeen years ago we had a similar decision to make for our 13-year-old daughter Mary. Amputation was done. . . . Mary is 30 now, has received her education, including a master's degree. She is married to a teacher, has two children, drives a car, and is a well-adjusted individual, wife, mother and teacher.

At the time when the surgery was performed, we were very fortunate to receive the counseling of Dr. Emily Hess, a rehabilitation specialist in Cincinnati. The advice was: "You will be doing her no favor by doing things for your daughter that she could be doing for herself. The first time you raise even one finger to 'help' her, you have made the first move toward making her a dependent, resentful and unhappy person. If you must cry—and you will—don't do it in her presence. She needs understanding and love, not pity. Let her live a normal life—don't make excuses for her—let her have the responsibilities she naturally would as part of the family." What may have sounded a bit harsh was very sound advice. It was not always easy, but a combination of faith, common sense and a good sense of humor on Mary's part has helped her a great deal.

The very best wishes to Teddy and to both of you. . . .

The letter had a profound effect on Joan Kennedy. Not that she wouldn't have come to the same conclusion herself, but the letter helped give her courage. As soon as Teddy was back home and at school, Joan asked her servants and her son's teachers at St. Albans School for Boys to give her son absolutely no special treatment or favor him in any way. "Be tough," she said.

The letter printed above is only one of 50,000 that the Kennedys' received when the news broke that 12-year-old Teddy Jr. was suffering from cancer and doctors had decided to amputate his right leg above the knee. These letters helped sustain and bolster the family through their dark days. "It is comforting to get this mail from people who have lived through the same thing and been made stronger and more resilient by it," Joan says. "People do care and do try to share grief and respond. I feel that we have thousands of new friends, and I am very grateful to them."

Joan was amazed at the diversity of the people writing. For example, one prisoner at Missouri Training Center for Men, who couldn't even afford a stamp, wrote:

"I didn't really have the money to buy this stamp for this letter so I borrowed it. In some way I had to let you know that me and many more of my brothers dig you and your family. . . . I can't seem to understand why such a nice family of people have such bad luck in life."

Joan doesn't know either. Friends close to the Kennedys say that of all the family, Joan took the news the hardest. Her husband had to be the one to break the news to his son—she could not bear to. But once the initial shock was over, she was like a rock, spending all her time at the hospital. "I have to be not only a mother but a friend," she said. "Teddy needs both."

She was very proud of the way her son reacted. He was very adult, being concerned about her welfare above his own, and even—though she gulped and choked a little at the time—announcing that he wanted the severed leg to be used for medical research. "And can you imagine," she told friends, "he apologized to us for upsetting our schedules!"

Joan is also proud of how Teddy's sister Kara, 13, and his kid brother, six-year-old Patrick, have behaved, keeping things light and cheerful and making gag gifts for his homecoming. Even more remarkable, she feels, is the performance of his best friend, Teddy Tunney, the son of his father's friend and colleague, Sen. John Tunney. Teddy Tunney was told about the serious condition of his best friend's health even before her son knew it. Teddy Tunney, who is also 12, rose to the occasion, keeping the secret and being a good playmate. He kept up a good show until the operation was over. Then he visited Teddy Kennedy at the hospital, came home and fainted.

But the letters are what have given Teddy Jr. and his parents most of their confidence. Like the one from a New Jersey man who has worn an artificial leg for "50 years now and I don't use a cane or any support." The letter offers to teach Teddy "all the tricks" of walking so that he, too, can throw away the cane. Or the letter from the parents of an eight-year-old girl who, a year ago, in South Dakota, had exactly the same operation, and who tell Joan and the Senator:

Children have a strength and acceptance that we adults can't begin to match. This can be a devastating experience, but we have found it a very positive growth experience in our family. Holly has a dimension to her that many people never acquire in a lifetime, and an inner strength far surpassing many. She has given us more than we could possibly give her. We know that no matter what happens she is an example and an inspiration to many people.

Or the Richfield, Ohio, father who wrote that "just 13 months ago today my son Steven, then 13, underwent an identical operation. . . . For whatever comfort and encouragement that it may bring to you, I would like to tell you that within five months after his operation Steve had played golf at the PGA National, now rides his regular ten-speed bicycle proficiently, engages in fairly normal social activities and has returned to school, where his academic achievements have been at least equal

"MOMMY CAN do ANYTHING!"

To your kids, you're a magic Mom. Making bubbles appear on the beach. Bringing the ocean to their feet. Keeping the sun shining and finding a carpet of sand for them to run on.

But it isn't magic that keeps you going even if you're having your period. It's your joy of life. And Tampax tampons help. Worn internally, they keep you active, keep you swimming, keep you sure and smiling.

And they're economical as well. Tampax tampons come in packages of 10's and 40's, yet cost about the same as other brands that package only 8's and 30's.

Your kids think you practically created the beach single-handed. You're glad you can enjoy summer's pleasures with them, dependably protected with Tampax tampons.

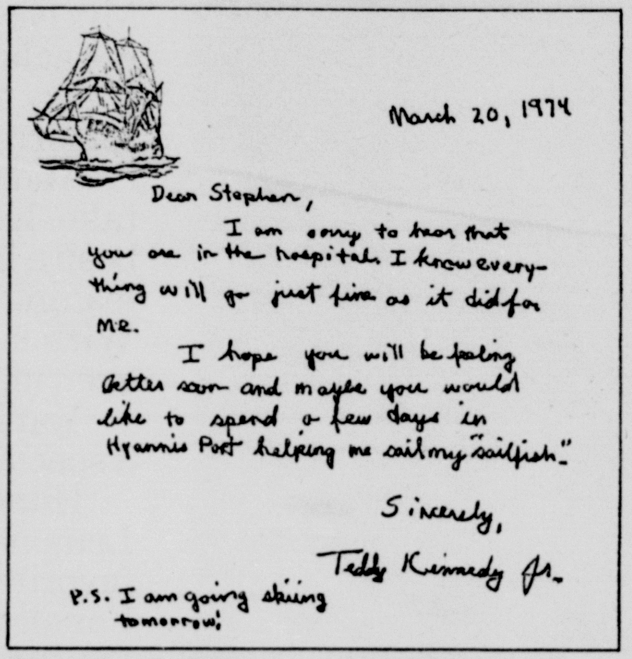
Wide World

"Losing a leg does not mean to sit on the sideline and let life pass you by."



March 20, 1974

Dear Stephen,

I am sorry to hear that you are in the hospital. I know everything will go just fine as it did for me.

I hope you will be feeling better soon and maybe you would like to spend a few days in Hyannis Port helping me sail my "sailfish."

Sincerely,

Teddy Kennedy Jr.

P.S. I am going skiing tomorrow!

This is the letter Teddy Jr. wrote when he heard that 13-year-old Stephen Sutherland of Miami suffered an amputation for the same reason he did.

to his preoperative level. . . . This year has been one of real accomplishment and growth, both for Steve and his parents."

To that last line Senator Kennedy echoes an amen, for he has frankly stated that he feels the tragedy has brought he and Joan closer together in spirit than they have ever been.

A mother in Bellevue, Wash., sent a message in caps that Joan felt struck just the right note of "upbeat philosophy":

> LOSING A LEG DOES NOT MEAN TO SIT ON THE SIDELINE AND LET LIFE PASS YOU BY. PLEASE DO NOT DESPAIR WHAT HAPPENED TO YOUR SON TEDDY. IT WAS A VERY BIG TRAGEDY. BUT AS ONE PARENT TALKING TO ANOTHER, THE SAME HAPPENED TO OUR SON WHEN HE WAS 14 YEARS OLD. NOT FROM CANCER BUT IN AN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT. BESIDES LOSING HIS LEG HE HAD A COMPLETE KIDNEY FAILURE AND HE PULLED OUT OF IT OKAY. HE IS NOW 21 YEARS OLD, GOES TO COLLEGE, SWIMS, DIVES AND WATER SKIS. I HOPE A FEW NOTES LIKE THIS WILL HELP YOUR SON.

The letters that have touched Joan the most, however, are those from the children who have had the same operation, and who write directly to her son. For example, this one from a teenager who writes on lined notebook paper:

> Hi, my name is Matt. I'm 15 and I live in New Mexico. I've had my right leg gone almost a year now. I had bone cancer in my knee. I know how you feel to lose your leg, but what the heck. You can do just as much with a artificial leg as you can a real one. That is if you want to. I know you'll go through a lot of pain and hurting but you'll come through just fine. After you get your artificial leg its pretty cool. If anybody cuts you down cause of your leg, don't let it bother you. If their so low that they have to use your leg to try to bring you down to their level their pretty sick. I got my artificial leg in April & I've gone camping a lot & this last week I even went deer hunting. I got a deer too. I even passed Drivers Education with an "A" and now I can get my drivers license.

The letter ends with a bit of philosophizing that only a kid could truly appreciate:

> One thing good for us is that we had time to except the fact that we were going to lose a leg. Just think how you'd feel if you got your leg cut off in a car wreck or like a friend of my brothers, who lost his leg when he got bit by a rattlesnake.

Another prized letter, also on lined loose-leaf notebook paper, is amusing for its slightly superior air, though it is written by what 12-year-old Teddy considers "a little kid":

> Dear Ed,
>
> How are you doing?
>
> I know you are scared. So was I.
> I had my left leg removed to the hip.
> The doctors found out when I broke my leg in a bike accident in June.
> After that I was swimming with my friends, riding a bike, playing tennis, playing kickball, hiking and volleyball.
> You will learn, too. I am nine years old.
>
> Good luck and take care.
> Your new friend
> Matt
> P.S. Please write back.

By now, Matt, who lives in LaCrescent, Minn., has probably received a card with his "new friend's" own handwriting reproduced on it in blue. It was Teddy's own idea to write a card that could go to his thousands of well-wishers.

Ted's letter, on a five-by-seven heavy-paper, off-white card, says:

> Thank you for sending your feelings, notes, and thoughts and remembering me in your prayers. The little time it took you to write these notes encouraged me greatly, and now I am just beginning to walk. Thank you very much for thinking of me.
> love

Needless to say, Teddy has not seen all the 50,000 letters received—only those that are "upbeat and inspiring or humorous," Joan says. Like one that reads, "Get well and shake a leg!"

It's hard to know whether they belong in the inspiring or humorous category, but some of Teddy's best letters come from little girls, one of whom wrote, from Fairhaven, Mass., "I saw your picture in the paper and I think your cute, for an older man."

How has the ordeal changed Teddy Jr.? His family and teachers and friends agree that it has made him a little more introspective and also a little more anxious to take life lightly and see the humor of things. He is spending more time with the telescope that his father gave him, scanning the skies and mulling over the mysteries of life. He also has a bugging device, and he teases his family and the servants by threatening to bug them all.

But every once in a while Teddy gets a faraway look in his eyes as he gazes at an oar leaning against his bedroom wall. It is one of those that was used on the raft on which he and his father and Teddy Tunney and his father shot the rapids on the Colorado River in Utah last summer. It arrived at the Georgetown University Hospital with a letter that is still one of Joan's favorites and is Teddy's choice for the most inspiring:

> While running rivers, my boatmen and I sometimes find ourselves thrown off course and in rapids almost too big to handle. When this happens and we are sucked into the throat of a big hummer, there are always two things we tell each other: Hang on and row like hell!
> Right now you are faced with big water. My boatmen and I wish you the best and give you this advice, Hang on and row like hell. The best part of the river is still ahead!

The letter is signed by the oarsmen on the Colorado River. FW

The First Annual Hamilton Mint

FATHER'S DAY INGOT

Ingot enlarged to show detail. Actual size: 1 x 2 inches.

"Under The Old Oak Tree"
by Thomas Rubel

Proof finished, limited edition ingot of Pure Silver and 24 Kt. Gold on Pure Silver

When it comes to people who are difficult to choose gifts for . . . fathers are notorious! But here is a Father's Day idea that captures the spirit of Father's Day.

This year you can choose a gift that is, at once, unusual, exciting and sentimental: The Hamilton Mint's First Annual Father's Day Ingot.

The ingot, a full ounce of precious Silver, carries an original work of art by Thomas Rubel. Entitled "Under the Old Oak Tree," Rubel's composition expresses the warm companionship of the Father-Child relationship. The design was interpreted for the ingot in high relief by master sculptor, Alfred Brunettin. The Proof Quality Finish, combining a frosted image against a mirror-like background, heightens the effect of the relief sculpture.

An unusual gift, the ingot will show your thoughtfulness and imagination. It's sentimental value is assured; it's investment potential is an exciting plus.

Choose Silver or 24 Kt. Gold on Silver
"Under the Old Oak Tree" is available in a limited edition of one full ounce ingots of .999 Fine Silver—the purest Silver you can buy . . . for just $12.50 each. And, for an even richer, more valuable interpretation, the work is available in a deluxe edition of 24 Kt. Gold on .999 Fine Silver for only $16.00 per ingot.

This Father's Day Edition is a Strictly Limited, First Annual Issue
In the medallic art field traditionally and historically, first annual editions have been especially prized and sought after. And because rarity can add substantially to the potential for increasing value of artwork executed in precious metals, The Hamilton Mint has placed a limitation on the minting of these First Annual Father's Day ingots.

Ingots will be struck to fill the orders postmarked by June 15, 1974. Once those orders are filled, the dies for the work will be destroyed and no additional "Under the Old Oak Tree" ingots will be minted—ever! This limit protects the value of your ingot, whether it is intended as a gift or as an addition to your own collection.

Handsome Presentation Case Included at No Extra Charge
With each ingot you order, you will receive an attractive presentation case designed especially for your ingot. The case is particularly built to display the ingot and also ideal for storing the valuable item.

A Certificate of Authenticity, attesting to the owner's status as one of a limited number of collectors possessing this limited-edition medallic artwork, will also accompany each ingot.

Interview by Helen Dorsey

Edward (Lou Grant) Asner:

"My Life Is Like My Garden... I Wish I Were a Better Gardener"

Ed Asner and his wife Nancy, their ten-and-a-half-year-old twins, Matthew and Liza, their seven-year-old daughter Kate, plus an assortment of animal friends, live in a beautiful, rambling stucco house in Bel Aire, Calif. Nancy's main concern has been to turn what Ed describes as a "Yuk" of a house into a beautiful, warm, open home. Ed's main concern is the maintenance of the grounds–a profusion of wildlife, plants and trees. Ed, dirty and sweaty from working in his yard, talked as he walked around. His cats and dogs followed us.

"I'm a worrier and a fretter. I'm compulsive about life. I don't spend enough time with my son. I'm too busy picking up sticks. That's just like frittering away life. Picking up sticks implies narrow vision and limited scope, bothering with petty details. That's my problem.

"Both my parents were hardworking people. My father [Morris Asner] was a quiet, strong, alone-type man. He was a beautiful man, and I loved him very much. Since I was the youngest of five children, I became Mama's baby, more shielded from the other children.

"I really didn't get to know my father until I went to high school and began working in his scrapyard. My brothers shunned the physical side and wanted to get into the business end. They were right, but I never wanted the business side of it. I wanted the drama of it, the manhood of it. I never wanted to do anything but load, unload, break, chop, stack and sweat.

"My mother Lizzie was always a busy beaver. Even though she took good care of her family, I'm sure there were times she would rather have worked with my father.

"I'm proud of the way we live, but I don't spend enough time with my children. I'm a big talker about loving them and wanting to do things for them, but when it comes to creating the time for them each day or each week, I fail miserably. Still, I suppose my kids are aware that I'm here if they need or want me.

"My wife and I are concerned about our children finding their own identities and developing their own potentials. This is particularly true with the twins, Matthew and Liza. They have been separated in school since they were three. Matthew is a bright boy, but lazy. He needs a lot of encouragement. He's fascinated with baseball. Liza is very bright, gifted, very sweet, and nosy about life! But she's so thorough about what she does that our only problem may be inspiring her to do the big things in life, rather than picking up sticks like her father!

"Seven-year-old Kate is a pistol! She'll probably start some new cult or something when she grows up. Her sensitivities are very delicate. She draws beautifully.

"Sometimes I become overwhelmed by having too much house. I look around and say, 'Oh, how I'd like the four walls of a condominium! I'd get lots of books, turn on the hi-fi, play all the music, spend three hours a day playing tennis rather than worrying about the maintenance and upkeep of a house, the grounds and the animals I'd take trips.' Now, I say all this. I'm sure Nancy would be the first one to call me a liar, but it's something to shoot for!" fw

"Nancy and I want our children to find their own identities."

> "I'm a big talker about loving my kids and wanting to do things for them, but when it comes to creating time for them each day or each week, I fail miserably."

Most athletes compete against other athletes, or against time and the record book. But a few find ultimate satisfaction in competing against fear. Here, they tell what it's like to take the field in sports so risky that injury and death can sometimes be odds-on favorites.

The Death-Defiers:

What Makes So Many Sportsmen Tempt Fate?

By Larry Bortstein

"Security is mortals' chiefest enemy." That line from Shakespeare amply describes a band of modern-day adventurers who are engaged in sports you won't find being played in stadiums or on ball fields.

Rather than find their competitive thrills on football, hockey or polo teams, these sportspersons—men and women—prefer the exhilaration of the individual challenge. They dare to risk pain—and even life itself—deliberately, gratuitously and, perhaps, compulsively.

FAMILY WEEKLY wondered what kind of people are tempted by high-risk sports. Are they united by some common bond? Motivated by some overwhelming drive? Perhaps we can understand what makes them participate in their hazardous activities after we read what some of these adventure-sports stars have to say.

BOB WILLS, Hang glider

Bob Wills, 23, of Santa Ana, Calif., and his younger brother Chris, 21, are America's champion hang gliders. (The sport is also known as sky surfing.) Bob holds the hang-gliding record for altitude gained above takeoff (1,070 feet), and also holds the flight-endurance record of 8 hours, 24 minutes.

"Flying has always been a thrill, and hang gliding—well, it's the most exciting thing I've ever done. And I've driven race cars and motorcycles and all sorts of stuff.

"Probably the most exciting thing I've done so far occurred last September when Chris and I took off from the edge of the crater of Haleakala in Hawaii and landed near the Maui shore, 10,000 feet lower.

"Though this is a pretty young sport, there are different types of competitions. There's target gliding, where you try to land within a specified boundary; and gliding for form, where you make turns and spins; and high-speed diving, and so forth. Last October the first national hang-gliding championships were held in Sylmar, Calif. Chris won, and I took second.

"I think more and more people are going to get into hang gliding because it's not all that dangerous. You have to learn something about what air can do to you, and a few other technical things, and you're susceptible to all the things that can happen to an airplane. But you're flying much slower than a plane—rarely more than 35 miles an hour.

"When you get to the top of your takeoff point, you have to wait for the wind and then get up the nerve to take two steps out. Suddenly you're flying. But for a newcomer to gliding those first two steps—off a sheer cliff—are the hardest."

Bob Wills, above, describes some of the fine points of hang gliding: "When you get to the top of your takeoff point, you have to wait for the wind and then get up the nerve to take two steps out."

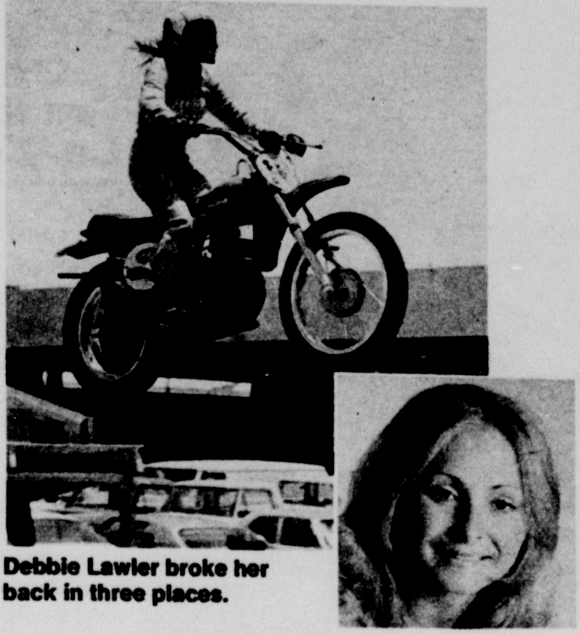
DEBBIE LAWLER,
Motorcycle jumper



Debbie Lawler broke her back in three places.

Adrian Studio

At 21, Debbie Lawler is an unlikely looking daredevil. But since entering the sport of motorcycle jumping in 1972, she has become one of its most accomplished performers, as well as the most physically appealing.

"I guess if I ever was going to get out of motorcycle jumping, I would have quit after my crash at the Ontario Motor Speedway in California this past March 3. I made my longest jump that day—about 140 feet—but the last 35 feet or so came after I had lost control of my motorcycle and my hands came off the handlebars. I rolled along the ground, hit the wall, and broke my back in three places.

"The crash taught me something about myself and about my sport. The day I crashed was very windy, and when you're as small as I am and riding a lightweight bike like I do, wind can give you a lot of trouble. But I never thought for a minute of quitting. A few days after the crash the doctors let me out of the hospital for a couple of hours to appear on a television show so I could let my fans know I'd be back. The fans have really come out for my jumps all over the country, and motorcycle jumping has become very big. For a long time Evel Knievel was the only big name in the sport. He's a great guy and has given me plenty of encouragement. He's still the king of motorcycle jumping. But I'm the queen. And I want to continue being queen for a long time. The money and the fame I can get in this sport beat anything I ever could have hoped for.

"I always thought I would do something connected with motorcycles. My dad was a professional cycle racer and I learned to ride when I was a young girl. I figure I have nothing to fear on a cycle. I've already had one scary experience: When I was 18, I had a mild form of breast cancer, which the doctors were able to cure without surgery. Actually, I can think of only one thing I'm scared about. Getting married! It's about the scariest thing I can imagine. I don't like someone else telling me what to do."

Craig Breedlove wants to exceed the speed of sound in a land vehicle.

CRAIG BREEDLOVE,
Speed seeker

Craig Breedlove, 37, of Torrance, Calif., was the first man to travel 400, 500 and 600 miles per hour on land. He is supervising the construction of a vehicle in which he hopes to exceed the speed of sound.

"Every time I've stepped into a car—whether it was a 200-mile-per-hour dragster or a 600-mile-per-hour land speed machine—I've experienced fear. You have to be at least a little apprehensive. It helps you concentrate better. I've had my share of crashes. The most spectacular was probably at the Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah in 1964, when I averaged 526.28 mph for two runs across the measured mile. But I lost control on the back run and the car went off course, knocking down two telephone poles and sending me into the water. Miraculously, I came out of it with only a cut leg.

"In thinking about breaking the sound barrier on land, a different type fear comes into the picture: the fear of the unknown. Nobody questions that man can build a vehicle capable of exceeding the speed of sound—about 720 mph. But nobody knows what might happen to man and machine. Will the car explode or disintegrate? Will the man survive? What? These are things we don't know. But I'd like to be the guy who finds out. It would be the culmination of a drag-racing career that began when I was 16. Last summer, in the English Leather Special, a prototype of the car I'm building now, I set a world acceleration record by reaching 377.75mph in 4.76 seconds from a dead start.

"The sound-barrier car will be a long, thin machine, about 50 feet in length. There'll be 3,500 pounds of extremely powerful fuel in two tanks. When I start the engine they will combine and generate 35,000 pounds of thrust, or 70,000 horsepower, which will be enough for one run of less than 30 seconds. I don't know when we'll be ready to go for the sound barrier, but I'm really looking forward to it."

CHUCK COLLINGWOOD,
Parachutist

Chuck Collingwood: 2,700 jumps with only three parachute malfunctions.

Chuck Collingwood is a 24-year-old Army staff sergeant at Fort Bragg, N.C., and a member of the Army's "Golden Knights" sport-parachuting team. From June 16-21, at Tahlequah, Okla., he will be defending the national championship he won in 1973.

"I made my first jump on February 7, 1970, and I've made more than 2,700 since. I had a lot more fear in the beginning than I do now. But now I have complete confidence in my ability and in my equipment, so that I'm not worried at all. Of course, you have to be prepared for a possible malfunction in your parachute, and then you have to react quickly to correct the problem. In all my jumps, I can remember only three when there was a malfunction, including one at last year's national championships. In case of a malfunction, I cut loose the main parachute, which is strapped to my back, so that there can be no tangling of wires when I open my supplementary parachute, which I carry on my chest. You're supposed to open your parachute at 2,000 feet; which you can read on your altimeter, so there's plenty of time to get the supplementary parachute out.

"We usually jump out of a plane—which is traveling at about 85 or 90 miles an hour—from heights that range between 2,500 and 12,000 feet. In parachuting for style, my favorite kind, there are five or six judges on the ground who judge your form and maneuvers in a free fall of 6,600 feet. Last year, I won the style competition, as well as the overall national championship, by averaging 7.9 seconds for 15 jumps over a five-day period."

FRANCIS deMONTEREY,
Rock climber

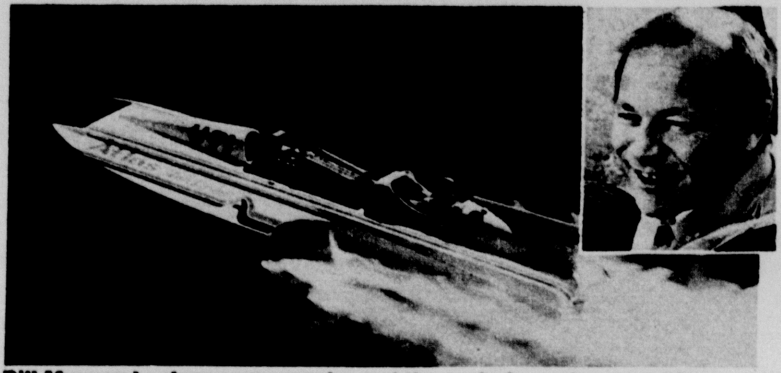
A 51-year-old polymer chemist in New York City, Francis deMonterey is an Austrian who began rock climbing in his native country when he was seven.

"Rock climbing is part of mountaineering, and is not to be confused with mountain climbing. When people climb mountains, they do some rock climbing as they go higher, but rock climbing involves negotiating sheer surfaces, rather than traversing the ledges and slopes of mountains. There's a certain amount of danger, which is why it's usually not wise for anyone to go up a rock by himself.

Francis deMonterey climbs sheer rock surfaces.

"Many of my colleagues and I don't like rock climbers who drill into rocks in order to insert pegs to support their weight. This is done in mountain climbing, but drilling is destructive. We prefer free climbing, in which we use our abilities, together with pieces of hardware, ropes and other equipment, to help us get to the top. There is a type of climber, called a boulderer, who uses no equipment, and tries to get as high as he can by using only his hands and feet.

"There are many famous rocks that attract the top climbers. Maybe the most famous is The Old Man of Hoy, a 450-foot rock off the island of Hoy in the North Atlantic. For years it appeared to be an impossible climbing job. Nearly the entire thing is one sheer wall of rock. There are no easy footholds and virtually no natural holes on its surface. One false step means almost certain drowning in the ocean. But a six-man team finally conquered it a couple of years ago."



Bill Muncey is always unconscious at the end of a serious accident.

BILL MUNCEY,
Hydroplane racer

Bill Muncey, 45, of Seattle, is the most successful driver in the history of unlimited hydroplane racing. He has won the Gold Cup, the biggest event in the sport, five times.

"There's danger in my sport. What else can you call it when you're going 200 miles per hour in a machine that has no brakes and can be spilled or sent airborne by changes in wind or water conditions? But I put fear out of my mind when I'm out on a course.

"I've had a lot of serious injuries in more than 25 years, including a permanent case of 'floating kidneys.' Probably my most famous accident was in 1958 when I sank a Coast Guard cutter. One writer said it was my second most incredible achievement. The first was living to tell about it.

"I was qualifying for the Gold Cup in Seattle and had won the first heat. We were starting the second heat and I was about a half-second behind as we hit the starting line. There was a lane open right next to the buoy line. I was doing about 160 mph and thought I could duck through there and leave everybody. Trouble is, when you're on 2,500 horsepower, as we were then (today's boats have 3,000) you've got an awful lot of torque. The boat wanted to go to the left. I was trying to balance it up before hitting a corner where I had to turn. But the wheel wouldn't turn. Just then, I spotted a 40-foot steel patrol boat directly ahead. Five Coast Guardsmen were aboard. I knew I was going to smack it. I turned off everything that might make the boat explode and was down to about 120 when I hit the boat amidships. It went down in 11 seconds, but the Coast Guard guys got out easily. When the boat hit, I must have gone over the top. I landed about 40 yards on the other side of the Coast Guard cutter. The people who picked me up didn't think I was breathing. I was, but I didn't know it. I have this reflex, that when I hit, I never can remember it. I've always been unconscious at the end of a serious accident. That's fortunate, because I have a relatively low threshold of pain."

JAY RAND, Ski flier

Jay Rand, 24, is a native of Lake Placid, N.Y., one of America's foremost winter-sports areas. He is one of the leading U.S. competitors in ski jumping and its more spectacular offshoot, ski flying.

"Ski jumping is better known than ski flying because it's an Olympic sport. The big difference between them is the distance you travel. In ski jumping the course is either about 229 or 295 feet. But in ski flying many people have gone more

Smoking.

What are you going to do about it?

Many people are against cigarettes. You've heard their arguments.

And even though we're in the business of selling cigarettes, we're not going to advance arguments in favor of smoking.

We simply want to discuss one irrefutable fact.

A lot of people are still smoking cigarettes. In all likelihood, they'll continue to smoke cigarettes and nothing anybody has said or is likely to say is going to change their minds.

Now, if you're one of these cigarette smokers, what are you going to do about it? You may continue to smoke your present brand. With all the enjoyment and pleasure you get from smoking it. Or, if 'tar' and nicotine has become a concern to you, you may consider changing to a cigarette like Vantage.

(Of course, there is no other cigarette quite like Vantage.)

Vantage has a unique filter that allows rich flavor to come through it and yet substantially cuts down on 'tar' and nicotine.

We want to be frank. Vantage is not the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you can buy. But it may well be the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you will enjoy smoking.

Vantage. It's the only cigarette that gives you so much taste with so little 'tar' and nicotine.

We suggest you try a pack.

than 500 feet. The current world record is about 575 feet.

"The approach run in ski flying is much steeper than in ski jumping. You go down a steep slide of about 250 feet, and by the time you reach the bottom you're traveling about 80 miles per hour. In the air you reach a height of about 30 feet, and you have to keep your body as far forward on your skis as possible to reduce wind resistance. It seems longer, but you're in the air only seven or eight seconds. The landing slope suddenly rushes out to meet you, and then you really feel the speed. The slope is a blur of white.

"Naturally, when you're covering more than the length of two football fields in a few seconds, there's a certain amount of danger involved. Guys constantly get injured in ski flying—broken legs, broken arms, and one flier last year landed on his back and was paralyzed.

"To be successful in ski flying, you have to put all thoughts of danger out of your mind. If you're hesitant or show fear, the air pressure might knock you off your skis, and that's when real trouble starts. You have to be aggressive."

Jerome Robinson: Getting gored isn't the biggest problem.

JEROME ROBINSON,
Bull rider

One of the top bull riders in U.S. professional rodeo is Jerome Robinson, a 26-year-old native of Brandon, Neb., who also conducts a school for bull riders in Fort Collins, Colo.

"Bull riding is the most dangerous event in rodeo. Bulls are unpredictable, and when you're on top of a raging animal that weighs between 1,300 and 2,200 pounds, with huge horns and hooves, there definitely are risks involved. You have to stay on a bull for eight seconds to get a score for the ride. If you get thrown sooner, you're out of the competition.

"Maybe the most interesting thing about our event is that you don't want the bull to be docile. We're scored on the basis of our form on the animal, and on how tough a ride the bull gives us. So you want an ornery animal. We get a bull to buck and jump by tying a sheepskin rope around his flank and rubbing it against him. Many people think we're hurting the bull, but the rope really creates a tickling sensation.

"Of course, some bulls are bad natured to begin with and become known as unmanageable animals. There's one bull now, Iron Duke, that practically always throws his riders.

"During a ride, while your insides are being jostled, the bull may rear back his head and get you with his horns. A rider has to watch the bull's head at all times. But getting gored by a bull isn't as big a problem as hitting the top of his head with your jawbone. A bull's head is very hard, and we bull riders make a lot of work for dentists. Our teeth get knocked out a lot."

Smart Cooking Day Before Payday

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen shows how to use potatoes as a main dish. Says Marilyn: "When your budget is down to almost nothing, bake a potato for each person and top with this hearty, protein-rich sauce."

Turn a Simple Potato Into a Delicious Meal!

Tuna-Sauced Spuds: Easy on the cook and easy on the budget.

TUNA-SAUCED SPUDS

4 large (2½ lbs.) Idaho or russet baking potatoes
Vegetable oil
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion or 2 teaspoons instant minced onion
¼ cup flour
1¾ cups milk
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
3 drops liquid hot-pepper sauce
1 tablespoon snipped fresh dill or dillweed*
2 tablespoons dill pickle juice or lemon juice
¼ cup chopped dill pickle or pickle relish
2 cans (6½ or 7 ozs.) tuna, drained and flaked
Grated Parmesan cheese
Paprika

1. Preheat oven to 425°F. Scrub potatoes well. Rub with a little vegetable oil. Prick with fork to allow steam to escape during baking.
2. Place on baking pan and bake 1 hour, or until fork-tender.
3. Make sauce: In medium saucepan melt butter. Sauté onion about 3 minutes, stirring. Stir in flour smoothly. Add milk all at once. Bring to boiling, stirring with wire whisk, until bubbly. Season with salt, pepper, hot-pepper sauce, dill, pickle juice, pickle.
4. Stir in tuna chunks. Heat gently until bubbly. Keep warm.
5. To serve, cut potatoes lengthwise and crosswise about 1½ inches deep. Press ends to fluff up potatoes. Place on plates. Spoon a generous amount of sauce over each potato. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and paprika.

Makes 4 servings, 3½ cups sauce

*Or use fresh snipped chives or scallion tops.

ORANGE 'N' CARROT ASPIC SALAD

1 pkg. (6 ozs.) orange-flavored gelatin
1½ cups boiling water
1 can (12 ozs.) carrot juice
1 can (8¼ ozs.) crushed pineapple, undrained
½ cup finely chopped celery
2 tablespoons grated onion
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
3 drops hot-pepper sauce
Crisp lettuce leaves
Sour cream, optional

1. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Stir in carrot juice, pineapple, celery, onion, vinegar and hot-pepper sauce.
2. Pour into a 7x11 or 8x8x2-inch pan. Refrigerate. Stir a few times during chilling to blend ingredients.
3. Cut into squares to serve. Place on lettuce leaf on individual plates. Top with a small spoonful of sour cream if desired.

Makes 8 servings

PANTRY BREAD PUDDING

Trim crusts from 4 or 5 slices dry bread; then toast and cut into ½ inch cubes. Arrange half the cubes in a shallow 1-qt. baking dish or pie pan. Prepare 1 pkg. (3¾ ozs.) vanilla instant-pudding mix as package label directs, with 2 cups cold milk, adding ⅛ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg, ⅛ teaspoon cinnamon and ½ teaspoon vanilla before beating. Pour half over bread cubes. Add remaining bread cubes and top with remaining pudding. Combine 2 tablespoons chopped nuts or crispy rice cereal and 1 tablespoon light-brown sugar and sprinkle over pudding. Broil 2 minutes 4 inches from heating element, until lightly browned. Chill.

Makes 3 cups, 5-6 servings

There I was, counting my daily thousand calories and studying every health-food book in sight. And I came up with what were, for me, four little friends that made me skinny." This reporter discovered a weight-loss secret that worked for her and even surprised her doctor. Is it right for you, too?

The amazing Cider Vinegar, Lecithin, Kelp, B-6 Diet

By MARY ANN CRENSHAW who has been writing on beauty and fashion for the New York Times for ten years.

"THERE ARE TWO sensible safe and tested diets that can make you lose weight, all right. If, and only if, you pick one of them after reading this book and checking with your doctor and then stick with it – and stick fast. One is a high-protein, low-carbohydrate (notice we said high-protein not high-fat) diet, and the other is a low-calorie diet – aided and abetted by my four fabulous discoveries.

"I didn't discover them all at once, you understand. One at a time I tried them. And when I had counted all four, I seemed to have come up with a formula that was, for me, seemingly infallible for making my weight come off with a sudden rush that surprised even ever-doubting me. It may just work for you, too!

"The four were lecithin, cider vinegar, kelp and vitamin B-6. I can only say that I put them all together and came out thin! In two weeks, I lost 12 pounds. I found it difficult to believe. My doctor had to be shown before he would believe it, and it seemed pretty ludicrous for him to be asking me how I did it. But there I was – thin again and still healthy.

Has Never Failed to Take Off Pounds

"Now, since this fortuitous fat-off formula fell into my lap by sheer luck, I have tried the same recipe on many guinea-pig friends. So far, the mysterious mixture of these four ingredients has never failed to take off pounds, as long as a low-calorie regimen was strictly adhered to. For I wouldn't dream of suggesting that these four, together with unlimited food intake, would make you lose weight. If you ever come up with a formula like that, you've no doubt got a ready million waiting for you. And for now, those of us who wish to get our weight down and keep it there will have to diet in one form or another. But my four little friends sure did make things easier . . . and quicker, which is the best part of all.

"Now, I wish I could tell you that I had vast numbers of control subjects and laboratory tests on the usefulness of these four seemingly magic weight-losers. I can't. But I have tried them. My friends have tried them. We have all lost weight, rapidly. And each of them is nothing more than food – with the single exception of B-6, which is just what it says it is, a vitamin – so I don't see how it could hurt you to try. Of course, you should check with your own doctor, anyway. I did."

Introducing Mary Ann Crenshaw's "four little friends that made me skinny."

Friend"1. Lecithin.

In "The Natural Way to Super Beauty," Mary Ann Crenshaw introduces you to the first of her "skinny friends," Lecithin. Pronounce it "less-i-thin" and call it a miracle. For lecithin is a substance that, while not exactly misunderstood, is perhaps not yet fully understood. It is found in egg yolks and in some vegetable oils. But mostly lecithin is a little soybean stuff you may take as you like – in oils, in capsules, in granules. It is a food, not a drug. Miss Crenshaw reports of a doctor's experiment in which it was found that lecithin produced as much as a 30% decrease in cholesterol. Another thing she discovered with lecithin is that it appears simply to shift your weight around to where you want it. And if perchance you are skinny, but have lumpy hips or thighs, it seems to streamline them!

Friend"2. The Cider Vinegar Brew.

Mary Ann Crenshaw reports how she experimented with that old folk remedy of one teaspoonful of cider vinegar in a glass of water. How she began to drink vinegar brew every day, after every meal. And inches is what she lost!

Friend"3. Kelp.

Along with lecithin and cider vinegar brew, Mary Ann Crenshaw next discovered her "third friend" in her diet, Kelp. She tells you that kelp contains iodine, and iodine is what makes the mysterious metabolic system burn up the fuel the way it should. Since her metabolic system burns everything too slowly (perhaps like yours) so that fat tends to pile up, she reveals how this wonder food acts in some mysterious way to make the fat grow thin! On her "help me, kelp" program she tells you how many tablets of kelp she downed with her vinegar brew – and kept getting thinner!

Friend"4. Vitamin B-6.

Mary Ann Crenshaw reports next how she came across a mind-blower! A Texas physician noted the slimming effects of Vitamin B-6, in the course of treating patients' leg cramps and numbness in fingers and toes with B-6, he discovered that they were losing weight and inches, especially around their waistlines – without changing one other element in their diets! According to the doctor, B-6 works with the sodium and potassium in your body to set up a balance that regulates body fluids and prevents water retention – the same water retention that makes your clothes tight and shows up as extra weight! By adding B-6 to her diet, Miss Crenshaw saw her body getting slimmer by the day! Every meal was ended with cider vinegar brew that washed down the kelp. And now the B-6. Suddenly, miraculous things began to happen. Her clothes actually hung on her. All of the weight she didn't want went off, and then some. And the inches went off as well. Maybe yours can, too!

Chart your way to a slimmer, more beautiful you!

Even if you don't reduce your present caloric intake, merely adding these four "wonder foods" to your diet may still help you reshape your shape. But Miss Crenshaw makes it easy for you to lose faster – by cutting down on your calories without giving up the nutrition you need! She has researched the most complete, most accurate nutrition charts you've ever seen – charts that tell you everything you need to know about everything you eat. And she has expressed them in terms and quantities that really make sense – the sort of quantities you can easily measure for yourself when you prepare your meals. The information is so exact and so complete, it makes it easy for you to custom-plan your diet to enjoy the greatest possible amounts of the foods you like best, right down to the last calorie. And you'll find all kinds of useful tips on how to chart your diet to fit in with your family's eating habits – to make your shopping and your cooking easier. You'll find that the charts alone are more than worth the cost of the book!

She Lost 12 Pounds in 2 Weeks.

Mary Ann Crenshaw shows you step by step how with the help of her "four friends" – Lecithin, Cider Vinegar, Kelp and B-6 – she lost 12 pounds in only two weeks! Better yet, she found that these amazing allies did as much to heighten her health as to lessen her waistline! Between them, this healthsome foursome not only shifts fat (to reduce ugly bulges), prevents water retention and washes out weight-adding water . . . they also, reports Miss Crenshaw from interviews with doctors, normalize your thyroid, and help maintain the sodium/potassium balance your body needs. They can make it easier for you to take in fewer calories without getting hungry, irritable, and tempted to cheat on your diet. And they're just part of her wonderful head-to-foot beauty diet that can strengthen your hair, toughen your nails, tone your skin . . . and do your health a world of good! Learn everything about this marvelous diet now.

Mary Ann Crenshaw's "four little friends" are only a few of the natural beautifiers she brings into your life in her "The Natural Way to Super Beauty." You'll find page after page of specifics onhow to avoid expensive chemical cosmetics that only mask the damage they help create . . . and on how you can often replace them with inexpensive natural ingredients that bring out and build up your own natural beauty. Including a pennies-a-day hot beautifier that works wonders for your skin. And an instant test for any beauty product you're considering using. (If it shows up blue, so will you!) And a "healthy hair cocktail" that goes to your hair – not to your head! And even a list of foods that have just the right nutrients to help your skin . . . your hair . . . your nails . . . your eyes. And more. Much, much more. All yours for a more beautiful you – in "The Natural Way to Super Beauty," Only $9.95 ppd. General Nutrition Corporation; 418 Wood Street; Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania 15222.

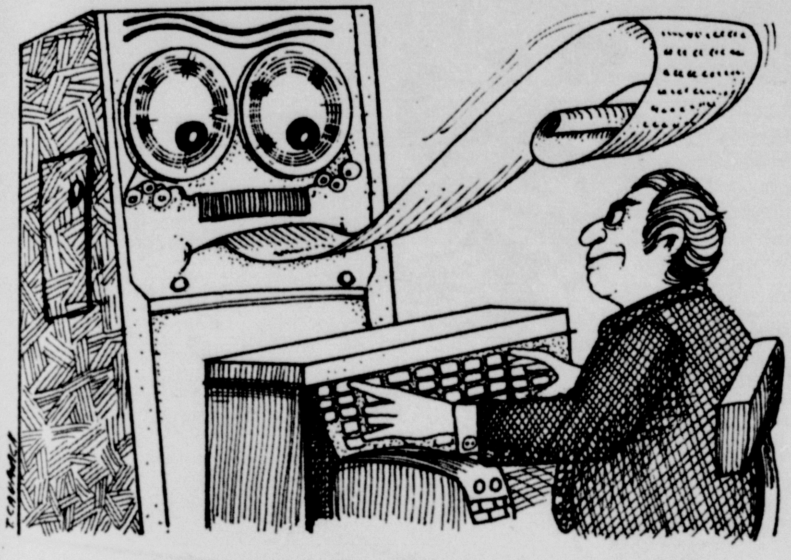
People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Do You Know Your Own Levels of "Smart"?



True or False: Thinking machines (computers) are smarter than people. (See number 5)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you have a good sense of time, it is an indication that you have a higher than average IQ.
2. The ability to think critically tends to go hand in hand with certain personality traits.
3. You don't have to have a high IQ to score in the top brackets in what psychologists call "social intelligence."
4. The thought processes of accident-prone drivers are different from other people's.
5. Thinking machines (computers) are smarter than people.
6. If you smoke, working in close proximity to a non-smoker will affect your ability to think.

ANSWERS

1. True. In studies at Yale University, where findings of leading researches were evaluated, it was found that the ability to estimate the duration of brief intervals of time and the accuracy with which a person can estimate the time of day without looking at a clock have a direct bearing on how high he is likely to score on an IQ test.

2. True—as shown by studies at Memphis State University, where students with high critical thinking ability (the capacity to analyze and evaluate objectively) were found to be "generally more imaginative, more independent, less conscientious, more stable emotionally, more trusting and less controlled than students of low critical thinking ability."

3. True. Social intelligence is defined as the ability to understand others and to act wisely in social situations. It includes "the ability to get along with people in general, social technique or ease in society . . . and insight into the moods and underlying personality traits of friends and strangers." University of California studies have shown that persons with relatively low IQ scores can be gifted in these qualities of social perception. Other findings on social intelligence: It increases with age; and women are better at it than men.

4. True—as evidenced by psychiatric studies comparing accident-prone drivers with others. It was found that accident-prone drivers have personality characteristics that make them respond suddenly and impulsively when they encounter frustrations. This results in an "all or nothing type of thinking" that causes the driver to assess the hazards of particular driving situations differently—and to make instant take-a-chance decisions. It's also noted that this type of thinking causes the accident-prone driver to perceive social situations differently from others, and to respond to other people differently.

5. False—according to a comparison study of machine and human intelligence conducted at the Imperial College of Science and Technology (London), which characterized man as "slow, sloppy and brilliant" and the machine as "rapid, rigorous, but stupid." The purpose of the study: to determine if there is reason to assume that proposed intelligence machines may be able to exhibit qualities of the best in both worlds.

6. True—as demonstrated by experiments at Mills College that were designed to determine whether the performance of hundreds of students on mental tests would be affected by having smokers and non-smokers in the same room. First, tests were administered with all the subjects in the same room. Next, tests were given with smokers in one room and non-smokers in another. Findings: Both the smokers and the non-smokers made significantly better scores when the groups were in separate rooms. Conclusions: "That the non-smokers earned lower scores in the presence of smokers may reflect physical reaction to the smoke as well as emotional reaction to the smokers. That the smokers earned lower scores in the presence of the non-smokers may have been reaction to, and possible guilt feelings from, the observable irritation and disapproval expressed by the non-smokers toward the smokers."

Do you suffer from painful elimination?

First of all, you should know that you are not alone. Thousands of people experience pain from dry, hard stools. The reason is often constipation or hemorrhoids. What's needed is something that will soften intestinal waste for smooth, comfortable relief.

And that's exactly what Serutan does. Serutan is a softening laxative that helps relieve painful elimination. It forms a smooth, mild gel that supplies moisture and bulk to bring effective relief without strain or griping.

Serutan is the same formula as the laxative prescribed by many doctors to give their patients the relief they want with real comfort.

Do you suffer from painful elimination? Try the Serutan way to gentle regularity. Soon you should discover that elimination can be as smooth, easy and comfortable as nature intended.

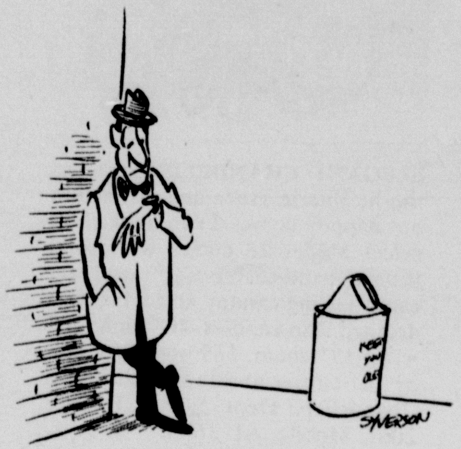
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



WAIT ON MY MIND

No argument and no debating,
What is, I ask you, worse than waiting?
I don't know anything forlorner
Than waiting, waiting on a corner
Or waiting by a ticking clock
Or waiting for a ring or knock
Or waiting for a card or letter
Or waiting payment by a debtor.

There's really nothing I hate more—
Unless it's being waited for
And knowing, hard though I may
  strain,
I just can't make it, can't explain,
While waiting at the other end
Is one who is (or was) a friend.

NEWS NOTE

World affairs show such stormy
  weather
As a matter of fact I don't know whether
To listen to the six o'clock news
And eat my dinner sunk in the blues
Or wait till eleven o'clock and keep
Myself so upset I cannot sleep.
—Georgie Starbuck Galbraith

During a heated family argument, a husband turned to his wife and demanded, "Don't you remember promising to love, honor and obey?" "Of course I do," she said. "What else could I do? I didn't want to make a scene."

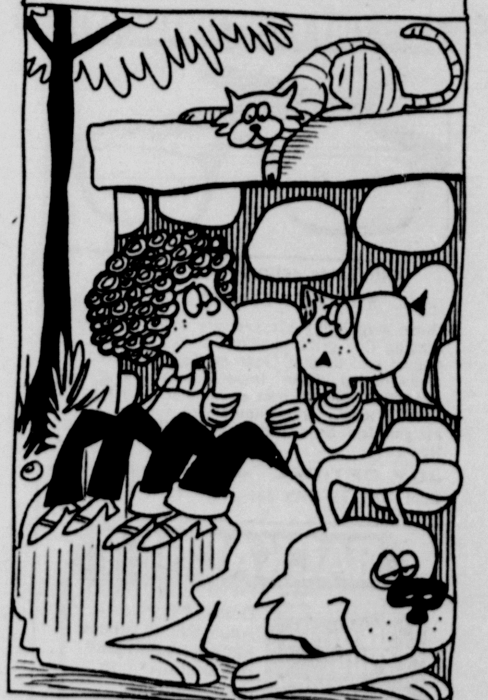
LITTLE EMILY

By Frank Baginski



"The Shah says he is sorry but there is nothing he can do about his country's dwindling oil reserves and the effect it is having on the price of Silly Putty. . . ."

SAM ERVIN
Always vote for yourself

Sen. Sam Ervin's first try at running for office: "I would have been editor of the 'Daily Tar Heel' [the student newspaper at the University of North Carolina], but I made a mistake. They had about 16 of us in nomination for the post, and in those days I was more modest than I am now. I wouldn't vote for myself in preference to somebody else. So I voted for a boy named Jimmy Hoover from High Point, and Jimmy beat me—Jimmy was elected with eight votes and beat me by one. So ever since then I have always voted for myself." From "Just a Country Lawyer: A Biography of Senator Sam Ervin" (Indiana University Press, $8.50).

Want to get away from it all? If you think joining the Forest Service is the answer, think again! For 6,000 jobs in the Forest Service each year, at least 100,000 applications are received from Americans who want to get away from traffic, crowds, smog, noise and the rat race. For every 40 ranger positions offered annually, 1,000 people apply. Even a routine announcement of an opening for a buffalo rancher in a remote corner of Arizona brought 800 telephone calls, telegrams and letters of inquiry from nearly every state in the nation. "We shudder every time somebody writes a story about the glories of working in the Forest Service," says a member of the staff.

Isaac Hayes of "Shaft" fame loves to spend money on houses, clothes and cars. "I don't have time for hobbies like golf or tennis, so I have beautiful houses because I live in them; beautiful clothes because I wear them; and beautiful cars because I drive in them from one place to another. I have a Mercedes and a Cadillac that I keep in my town house in Washington, D.C.; two Jaguars, two Cadillacs—gold-plated — an Eldorado and a Mark IV that I keep at my home in Memphis, Tenn."

PEG LEG PERCY
Doing the penguin strut

Have you ever seen a penguin flying? Well, don't worry if you haven't, because penguins don't fly. Not even when they have broken legs. This poor fellow, who is appropriately nicknamed Peg Leg Percy, hails from Sydney, Australia. He fractured his left leg during a storm. Fortunately, he was rescued by a family who nursed him back to health by setting his leg with a splint. While recovering from his injury, Percy still strolls out to sea for his daily swim. His swimming is unimpaired by the broken leg—it just means he has to move his paddle-like wings even harder.

Scary statistics about freeways:

- A four-lane road built to freeway standards requires a 300-foot right-of-way, and, every four miles, an 80-acre interchange.
- Every 100 miles of expressway takes 5,640 acres out of the property-tax base.
- A $50-million-a-mile commuter freeway—although usually "free" of tolls, charges, taxes and regulations—costs the city for which it was built $150,000 per mile per year in lost jobs and lost taxes on institutions the road wiped out.
- American cities and towns currently subsidize freeways by more than $3.9 billion per year.
- One-third of all civil-court costs relates to automobile and highway travel.

To introduce the beautiful 22-volume WOMAN'S DAY ENCYCLOPEDIA OF COOKERY, we'll give you Volume 1 FREE!

Absolutely no obligation to purchase anything ever!

Whether you're a novice in the kitchen, or a near-professional, this gigantic 22-volume WOMAN'S DAY ENCYCLOPEDIA OF COOKERY is the one set of books that can answer virtually all your cooking questions. And no wonder, when you look at the authorities who've written it:

- The editors of Woman's Day, the magazine that's been a homemaker's standby for more than 25 years. They've geared this food encyclopedia to women who love to set a good table, but can't spend a lot of money and all day in the kitchen.
- The consultants—a star-studded list headed by the great James Beard, who has contributed over 20 major sections to the Encyclopedia—nearly 300 special recipes from his private files! PLUS, Craig Claiborne with a new approach to gracious outdoor dining... Mary Hemingway and some favorite hamburger recipes of her late husband, Ernest Hemingway... Paula Peck, the baker's baker, with a dozen of her favorite cakes... and many more!

When the original WOMAN'S DAY ENCYCLOPEDIA OF COOKERY came out in 1966, it was an overwhelming success. Homemakers loved its international scope... its easy-to-follow recipes... its sound nutritional suggestions... its budget-minded results. Now, in this updated and expanded edition—AVAILABLE ONLY BY MAIL—you get more down-to-earth information than ever before: bargain buying tips, storage pointers, nutritional values, special tricks and kitchen techniques. The newly revised WOMAN'S DAY ENCYCLOPEDIA OF COOKERY will be your constant companion as you and your family explore new dishes from all over the world!
